YOUR RECORD

YOUR RECEIPT

A great combination! Greater than that of your massive steel or iron safe! You insist upon keeping your valuables in a heavy safe—but do you on the other hand protect yourself against paying the same bill twice. Such a thing could hardly occur if you kept a check book, as stubs supply a record and canceled checks an incontestable receipt. There are many other equally important advantages to be enjoyed by banking here.

The Guaranty State Bank.

What Will Replace The Hotel Lynn?

Much interest is manifest over the activity on the site of the Hotel Lynn, which was consumed by fire December last. Eight brick piers, laid on substantial concrete foundations, have been built, and the men engaged in the construction of these piers state that they are not informed as to what will be built here, and those in a position to enlighten us are, "not putting out anything." It is therefore a necessity that we that we adopt the "watchful waiting" policy of a certain very prominent American.

Tuesday of this week, men were busy unearthing and tearing to pieces the remainder of the brick foundation of the old building. However, we may rest assured of one thing, when a building is erected on this site, and it stands to reason that one will be in the near future, it will be a credit to the city, and that is what counts in the end.

The masonry of the first floor of the Guaranty State Bank building is completed, and work on the second story is progressing apace. The framing for the partitions on the second floor are practically all up, and by the time this reaches our readers, will be well along towards the completion of the installation of the heating system.

The Tahoka station of the Texas Oil Co., stood seventh last month in the sale of products in this state. This speaks well of our trade territory. Such shipments as the seven hundred gallon shipment to Lovington, New Mexico, made Monday is one reason for this high standing of the Tahoka station.

Dr. Chas. F. Card, of Justin, Texas, arrived in Tahoka Wednesday afternoon. He will locate at the new town of Grassland in the east end of Lynn county. Dr. Card is a brother-in-law of L. P. Barnes, the west side druggist, and a friend of Drs. Inmon and Turrentine; he comes to the county well recommended, and we are glad to extend to him a cordial welcome.

Biggest Line of Overalls in town. We can fit all sizes. H. M. Larkin.

Believe Mystery Is Cleared Up

We believe the mystery of the building activity on Main street has cleared up at last. As the war correspondents say, from semi-official sources we have the following report:

That on the site of the Lynn Hotel, where the brick piers have been erected will be constructed immediately a one or two story brick building 125x75 feet. Just what will occupy this building we cannot say, but from our source of information it is stated that the Ed. Meyers furniture store will occupy the south side of the building, and that there will be four, more concerns in the building. Excavation for the foundation of this building was begun the first of the week. By the same authority we are told that following this building will be erected a couple of buildings north of where Ed. Meyers is now located.

Miss Mae Elison, who taught music here the past term, left Friday for her home.

Mrs. G. F. Shattuck of Edith community, suffered another stroke of paralysis the first of this week. W. E. Henderson left Thursday for New Mexico for her daughter, Mrs. Florence Beeman to attend her bedside.

Born Thursday June 22nd to Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Chausler a daughter.

Born Tuesday June 27th to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dufold a son.

Monday afternoon, shortly before sundown a sand storm made its appearance in the northeast, and swooped down upon us. The like of it cannot be remembered by any old timer to have come from that direction. Only one worse one is remembered here. It came from the northwest about eight years ago.

Cline Thomas employed in the Barnes Garage north of the square, happened to the painful accident of having his face seriously burned Monday evening when a can of acid exploded in his hands. He will not sustain any permanent injury from the accident.

To The Citizens Of Lynn County

In answering the promptings of gratitude I heartily convey to you the deep appreciation that I feel, and also my sincere thanks for your confidence in placing me in the position of your County and District Clerk.

It has been my earnest desire to administer the affairs of this office from a point where the sense of public duty demands equal rights to all and special privileges to none.

I am human, and know that no man can ever reach perfection; that no one can please every one, but I believe every thing in human Government, like everything in individual conduct, depends in the end upon a sense of duty.

I would not undertake to administer the affairs of this office without fully realizing that duty commands me to fulfill to the fullest extent the office to which the favor of the voters has placed me.

Now, I am again before you, asking for a second term to the office above mentioned, and will say that if elected it will be my desire to serve you to the best of my ability.

I am fully aware that there are a few men in all towns who endeavor to control the farmers vote, and Tahoka, is no exception; All I ask of the voters of Lynn County, is that each and every man vote his honest sentiments, allowing no man to vote him.

New Hotel St. Clair Opens To Public

The new St. Clair Hotel is practically completed, and Mr. Williams has commenced moving in. This new hotel it will be remembered was brought into being by the remodeling of the old court house.

Mr and Mrs. Williams have used excellent taste in the arrangement and furnishing of this new hostelry, and we are glad to say that it is quite an addition to our town. The ground floor will be occupied by a cafe on the south end, the lobby on the east side, the dining room on the west side, on the northeast corner will be the parlor, and the northwest corner the family room. The kitchen of the old hotel will be moved up to the northwest corner of the building and annexed. On the second floor are ten guest rooms and a bath. The roof has been remodeled and a third floor with cosy rooms accommodates six guests.

The city council has promised Mr. Williams a street crossing to his hotel, and he intends laying concrete walks in front of the lots, and an awning will be placed over the side walk. The building is also equipped with a sewerage disposal pit.

Dr. I. E. Smith, Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Specialist, of Snyder, will be in Tahoka Thursday July 13. Office at Stokes Hotel. 44 45

Dr. G. T. L. Bryan, wife and baby, of Bradshaw, Texas, called on the News Tuesday, and expressed themselves as highly pleased with the appearance of our country. The doctor expressed an intention of visiting us again some time, and intimated that he might become one of us. They were returning from a trip to Lovington, N. Mex.

Henderson Sisters Will Open Store

Miss Johnie and Odessa Henderson will open up in the near future a ladies ready-to-wear stock in the west store room of the Guaranty State Bank building. It is announced that they will leave for market around the first of August to purchase the opening stock. Every few days brings a new enterprise to Tahoka that eliminates some necessity for out of town buying. We bespeak a successful career for this establishment, and believe that the ladies of the Tahoka trade territory will appreciate this opportunity of selecting their ready-to-wear apparel at home.

BONUS AUTO VOTES

Our whole line of Jewelry, including alarm clocks, will be on sale next Saturday with 10 per cent off and 1000 votes issued for each dollars worth sold.

This is a good opportunity for candidates to raise their stand in this big contest. 44

T BAR TIDINGS.

The farmers of this community are much interested in working their crops to keep the moisture in the ground until it rains. Crops are looking fairly well considering the drouth.

The Lynn County Singing Convention held at T Bar last Sunday was a grand success. We had a large crowd, excellent singing, an abundance of every thing good to eat, and ice water to drink. We regret that all the classes were not present as they sure missed having a good time.

It seems that the farmers of this and surrounding communities have a contagious disease "Ford Fever" as there were so many Fords represented.

Mrs. Nelms returned home Friday morning from a trip to Jones county. She reported a pleasant visit.

Mr. Busbee left for Jones county a few days ago to attend the bedside of his baby who is very ill. Mrs. Busbee had gone down to visit home folks.

SOUND POULTRY HINTS

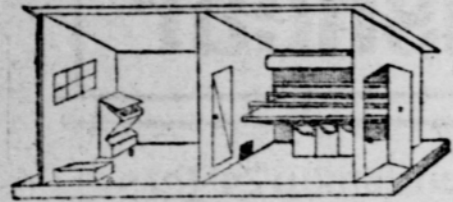

Cull Out All Superficial Males and Unprofitable Hens.

Every Fowl That Does Not Appear Healthy and Vigorous Should Be Sent to Market—Feed Liberally During Cold Weather.

One of the very first things to do to secure a profit from the farm flock during the winter is to cull out the flock and sell every bird that does not show a promise of returning a profit.

Old hens, superfluous males and pullets that do not show good healthy development had better be sold for what they will bring. All birds that do not appear healthy and vigorous should be placed in a house by themselves and given a chance to become marketable. In this way the size of the flock can be reduced and only hens that are capable of paying for their feed and care kept through the winter.

The flock must be fed liberally during the cold weather. Nothing is to be gained by feeding starvation rations. This much is an assured fact.

Poultry House With Concrete Foundation—Cheap and Convenient.

It is better to sell half the flock and give the feed to the ones that are left. With feeds of all kinds at present prices it requires strict economy and careful management to secure results during the winter months.

Wheat, corn and oats make an ideal grain ration for laying hens. It forms a palatable feed, furnishes variety and is well balanced for egg production. With boiled vegetables and meat scraps added or mixed with cut clover it makes a well-balanced feed.

The grain feeds can be improved by grinding and feeding in the form of a mash a part of the time. The change is highly beneficial and increases egg production. Meat scraps are a good source of protein. Green bone is preferred by many poultrymen, but it is out of the question with many poultry-keepers on account of the amount of labor required in its preparation.

If one is situated near a large market and can buy bone and meat at a low cost and has plenty of time to prepare it, he may then secure a good feed at a moderate cost. However, I believe that the average poultry keeper will find meat scraps at three dollars a hundred fully as cheap and economical a feed.

Hens must have bulky and succulent feed to take the place of the green grass they get during the summer. Alfalfa and red clover cut and cured early, are the best substitutes. If the hay is run through a cutting box or grinder and steamed for an hour and a half the hens will consume nearly all of it.

It is rich in protein and a good egg-producing food. If the flock has a dry and comfortable house, free from vermin, they will furnish an abundant supply of winter eggs, providing, of course, that other conditions are right.

Just to Help Out.

"Well! Well!" exclaimed Mr. Dubson to a flustered acquaintance who rushed into a railroad station carrying two large suitcases.—"Going away on the choo-choo?"

"Oh, no," answered the acquaintance, in a sarcastic tone. "My sole idea in buying a railway ticket and hastening hither with all the baggage I could stagger under was merely to increase the stir and bustle of this great city."

Folk We Touch In Passing

By Julia Chandler Manz

THE EXPERIMENT

The change in The Woman was subtle. The Man recognized it but he could not define it. Her manner toward him was flawless, and no one could say truthfully that she did not make him a good wife.

After thinking the matter over for a long time The Man decided that the change existed only in his imagination—a thing born of his too great love for The Woman—but even as he thus assured himself he knew that the solution was not true.

He spent a deal of his time in troubled mental questioning when he was absent from her, but when he went home her ready smile dispelled his fear, and he was able to believe, as long as he felt the sense of her nearness, that the love she bore him was the same that it had been when he chose her from among all other women to be his wife.

She left nothing undone to make his home comfortable. When he returned to it after a busy day in his downtown office she was seldom absent. In fact, she attended her wifely duties with such punctiliousness that it sometimes occurred to The Man that she made a business of his comforts; studied them and made them certain with a care that suggested motives other than love.

He told himself that he was getting finicky and exacting, and declared himself a maudlin sentimentalist. All this, however, was in the privacy of his thoughts, which he took good care The Woman should know nothing about.

And all the while the consciousness of a barrier between them grew upon the man, until one day it dawned upon him that the reason of it was that God had blessed his marriage with no children.

The Man's mind leapt at the suggestion. Yes; that was it. Children had been The Woman's absorbing passion. He remembered the day he had first met her. It was on a picnic at harvest time. She was sitting out under a spreading oak, surrounded by a large group of children whom she loved with her eyes even as she told them tales, and they, in their turn, gave her the adoration of their young hearts. And spring of The Woman's life. And it was not born of the fact that they had had no children for the quality in the tone with which she had echoed his words had been one of horror.

The Man said no more, but he made an excuse to get away, and when he was alone he walked the city streets in the summer moonlight with a single question staggering his mind and depressing his heart.

He cursed himself for a cad to doubt the woman he loved, and even as he cursed the sense of the justice of his doubts grew upon him. It swept over him like the great unbidden torrent of a raging sea that the thing she had offered him for several years in the place of love was a dead sea fruit and the taste of it suddenly filled his soul with bitterness.

In the days that followed, the question which had come to dwell in The Man's mind ate into his vitals like a cankerous sore and he could find no cure for it. The Woman was as punctilious in the performance of her wifely duties as ever. The Man's home lacked nothing of care, and in the manner of his wife toward him he could find no fault save that its perfection sickened his very soul.

He thought much of the time when he had first met her and the natural gravitation of little children to her. He thought of her passion for them and of how he had counted it as a sign of the very great purity of her heart. He thought of the grief with which she had first learned that her marriage could never be blessed with the happy prattle of children in her own home, and of how she had mothered every tot in the neighborhood, making The Man's home and yard a veritable play ground for them.

But it had been many months since he had seen a child in his house or about the premises. Somehow the fact had not struck him before as being significant. But now he remembered the saying of a very wise man that the touch of a little child will invariably bring an expression of fear into the eyes of a faithless woman, and the remembrance gave The Man an inspiration.

The next day when he went home he held in his own the dimpled hand of a always after that, wherever he had known her to be where there were little children, they gravitated to her as naturally as a flower lifts its face to the sun.

The Man decided that he had been a fool not to have expressed his regret more often and forcibly that no babies had come to bless her life in his own home, knowing what it had meant to her in the first years of their marriage, and he decided to make amends.

That night when they sat together on the broad porch of their home The Man reached over and took The Woman's hand in his.

"I am sorry, dear, for the great void in our marriage," he told her, "more sorry than I can ever tell you about the children."

"The children!" she echoed, and the note in her voice was one which told The Man, as nothing else could have done, that the change in The Woman was not one born of his imagination.

It was real. It was of graver consequence than even his heart had suggested. It went down to the yellow lovely child—a fair-haired, cherub-faced little lad whom he had promised the matron of a certain home to adopt "provided his wife approved."

The Woman was sitting on the front porch when The Man and the lad turned in at the gate.

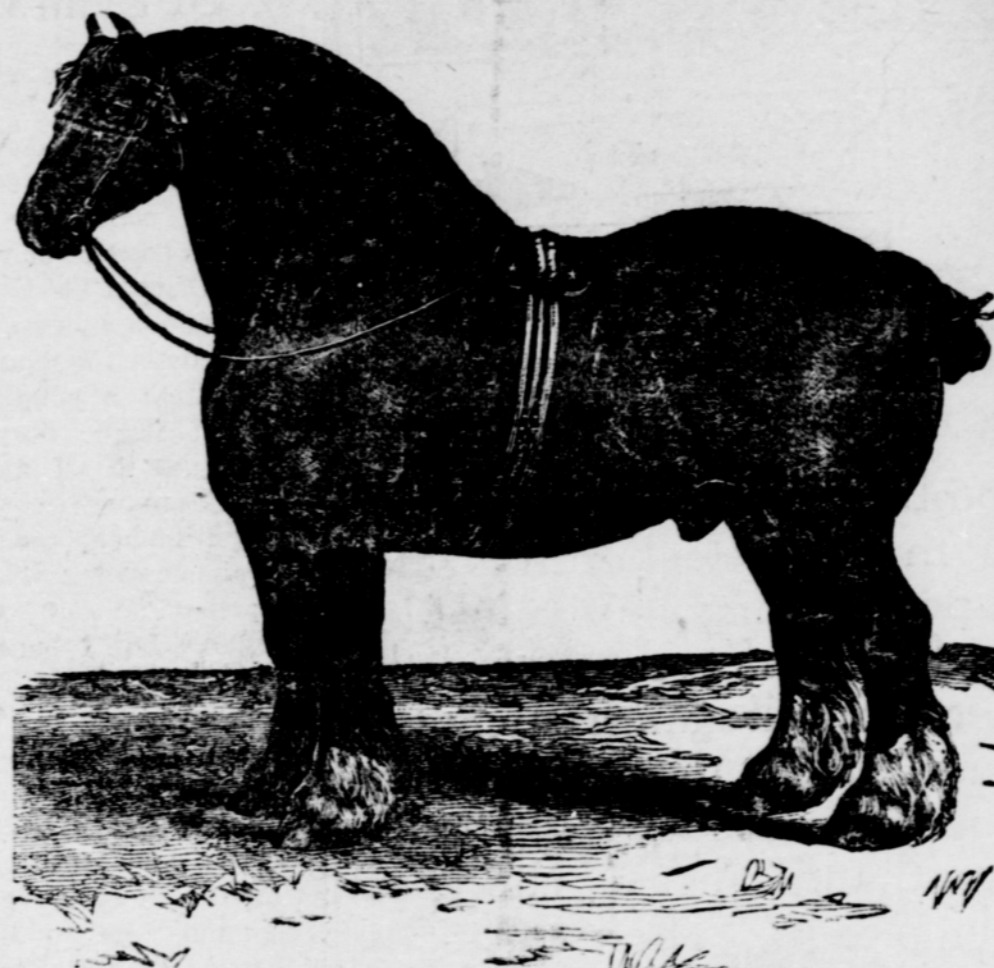

"Ah, my dear," called The Man to her, "see what I have brought you to be your very own."

The Woman's guard was suddenly down. She stood up and backed against the wall like an animal at bay. There was no smile on her face, and when the fair-haired boy, at The Man's bidding, ran to her and clasped his dimpled hands about her knees, lifting a face that was for all the world like a fresh blown flower toward her for a kiss, there came into the eyes of The Woman an expression of unutterable fear.

And The Man, watching, was answered.

USE CARE IN HANDLING BEES

Little Honey Gatherers Are Not Such Dangerous Creatures as Many Are Willing to Believe.

Bees are not such dangerous creatures as many suppose. Treat them well, and as a rule they will return the same treatment.

True, they sometimes sting when they are disturbed. Wouldn't you, especially if you thought you were being robbed? Besides, they are often pinched in the operation.

When removing the supers aim to never hurt a bee; smoke down if necessary. Rub honey over the hands before commencing to work with them and when a bee alights intending to sting the honey so tickles its palate that it settles down to eating and forgets its rage.

GOLF FOOT IS LATEST ILL

Doctor Tries to Take Joy Out of Life by Discovering New Ailment Due to Popular Sport.

Somebody's always willing to dig and find out something about that which one likes most. For instance, there are those who discourage ice cream, beer, highballs, cocktails, etc. But up to the time of the current issue of the Medical Record there were few who discouraged any particular line of sport beyond, perhaps, mentioning that a person might overtrain. One needs a brand new breath to tell this.

After millions of men and women have advocated golf as the healthiest of exercises, despite the fact that it may encourage a bit of fibbing now and again, along comes a doctor and declares that he has discovered the golf foot. The whole sum and substance of "golfer's foot" is that in driving or making some shots properly, one may get too much weight on the toes of the left foot. Players of this class, says the doctor, are very likely to develop a large callus on the inner side of the great toe about opposite to the bed of the nail. The doctor recommends that the best of care be taken of one's feet.

THESE MEN SAW SOME SNAKE

Declares They Encountered 20-Foot Reptile in Pennsylvania Field—Shots Failed to Stop It.

Frank Johnson and John Brees, living at Somerton, Pa., are authority for the statement that a snake between fifteen and twenty feet long is at large in that vicinity. They declare it is evidently an anaconda.

The two men were walking across a field near the Forest Hill cemetery, and, according to their statement, the snake glided from a pile of rocks, moved swiftly across an open field, and disappeared at the opening of an old sewer. Brees emptied the contents of a high-caliber revolver at the reptile, but the snake kept going. The men are unqualified in the assertion that the reptile was about twenty feet long.

Several years ago, when a circus train was sidetracked near Somerton a report was current that a number of large snakes had escaped from their cages, and this story has been revived.

EDWARDS BROTHERS

FIND COMFORT IN TRENCHES

British Soldiers at Front Provided With Beds and Fires, and Have Dry Boots Awaiting Them.

Enormous improvements have been made in the British trenches since last winter. Most of them have boarded floors, others have brick floors.

They have a system of trench pumps to get rid of the water, and pipes which run a mile and a half back from the front of the trench supplying drinking water to the men. The dugouts are comparatively comfortable. The men have rough beds to lie on, and many contain tables. Many of them also have small braziers with fires.

One of the most valued presents which the men receive are boxes of nightgowns, which they are allowed to burn in their dugouts. This year the men have been served out with long rubber boots. When a battalion of men is coming to the trenches it finds in the supporting lines these boots waiting.

They remove their own boots, get an extra thick pair of stockings, and put on the rubber boots. When coming away after a turn in the trenches they leave these boots at the same station, and receive their own boots and socks, which have been dried for them.

ELECTRIC CHAIR FOR DOGS

New Form of Legal Execution for Canines Adopted in Omaha and Approved by Humane Society.

The first legal electrocution of dogs in Omaha occurred the other afternoon at the city pound.

The cage into which the dogs were placed is six feet by six feet, with a marble floor. Strips of steel were placed both ways of the marble, and through this metal the fatal contact was made. After the dogs had been inclosed a switch was thrown. The victims toppled over instantly, and within three seconds were lifeless.

Three dogs were electrocuted at one time. When further improvements are made it will be possible to kill as many as twenty with the same current. The device has been declared a success, and the humane society people say it is the most humane method of killing dogs. The old method of applying charcoal fumes to impounded dogs will be abandoned.

SEE MANY YEARS OF SERVICE

American Whaleships Exist as Monuments to the Remarkable Skill of Their Builders.

Considering the length of the voyages they undertook and the size of the vessels, there is a remarkable number of old American whaleships still in service. The oldest of these vessels still eligible for the ancient industry of whale catching is the bark Charles W. Morgan, built in New Bedford in 1841.

Although 75 years old, it is said the Morgan is perfectly seaworthy. She is now laid up at New Bedford, but her owners declare they will fit her up for a "plum pudding voyage" anyway in spring. That sort of trip lasts only the comparatively short time of six months.

Small but hardy were the old whaleships. The C. W. Morgan was of only 313 tons gross and 105 feet long on deck. The Greyhound, built in 1851 and now on a long whaling voyage, was of 177 tons and 95 feet on deck. There are about twenty whaleships left in the New Bedford fleet, and among them are the barks Morning Star, built in 1853 at New Bedford. The ancient Canton was 92 years old when lost a year or so ago coming out of the harbor of Fayal, Azores.

Antedating all these, however, is the English sloop Jenny, built of oak in 1787 at Nevin, in Carnarvonshire. The Jenny was a small vessel, 46 feet long and of only 19 tons register. She was solid, however, and after 129 years of service was still engaged in the fishing trade out of Cardiff, Wales.

We are listening for our energetic secretary to our Commercial Club so order the assembly call blown most any night now. There is work aplenty for this most useful organization.

The habit of libelation is essential to some animals and some organizations. But a commercial club is one organization that should not be allowed to contract the habit. Let's rub the sleep from our eyes and get a seat in the hand wagon of this section; the other teams may not miss us, but we will certainly miss the seats.

AMARILLO MERCHANTS TO MAKE THREE DAYS
TRADE BOOSTING TRIP

Amarillo, Tex., June 15.—A three day trade promoting trip will be made by the jobbers and retailers of this city, leaving here August 9. The special train carrying the party will run to Clovis and Roswell, N. M., and run over the Texas coast and the Lamesa branch of the Santa Fe. A band and drum corps will be features of the excursion.—Daily News.

Never was there a time in the history of this country when the people at large were as constant and inveterate readers of newspapers as they are today, and this is especially so in the matter of newspaper advertising.

People who a few years ago would hardly look at an advertisement now digest every word in it, and they do it with a purpose. The human mind is broadening and expanding and becoming more alert. It demands food, and particularly that class of food that conserves the financial interest of the reader. And the well worded advertisement appeals directly to every well balanced mind. It points the way of economy.

And the wise business man advertises accordingly.

Tahoka will seek her entertainment away from home this fourth of July, therefore we make mention of some of the nearby entertainments that have sent invitations to this office. Nearest to us are Slaton and Post City, each program vying with the other in the way of pleasures offered guests. Further removed are Plainview, Texas, and Plainview, New Mexico, the first offering an up-to-date sale and sale celebration of the historic day and the latter offering an oldtime cowboy carnival and barbecue, and a staging of the sports that were dear to the hearts of the "Knights of the Range" before the coming of the wire fence. Others are the Clarendon, Texas, Race Meet, and Las Vegas, New Mexico, Cowboy Rottion.

Considering the many entertainments of nearby towns on the Fourth, we believe that it is a courtesy due them for Tahoka not to attempt a celebration of the Fourth this year, but we would like to have an announcement in the near future that Tahoka would hold a County Fair some time the first of September, and extend an invitation to all neighboring counties to be our guests during the occasion.

We are in receipt of the catalog of the Panhandle State Fair Association, held at Amarillo, September 23 to 27th inclusive, and these dates are the reason for our suggestion that our county fair be held some time around the first of the month, that the prize winning exhibits might be consolidated into a grand county exhibit to enter the competitive classes of this State Fair.

The panhandle State Fair has come to be the show window of the Plains of Texas. The eyes of the world are upon this wonderful country, and every county should be represented at this wonderful display of the resources of West Texas.

We have dabbled long enough in the advertisement of our potential opportunities to the world, and it is time we put our shoulder to the wheel and begin to put a red circle around our place on the map.

It is true that all things come to him who waits, if he is not too far down in the writing list. If we wait long enough, investors and community builders will discover us and straggle in, but the probabilities are that this discovery will not be made until other communities shall have garnered the cream of immigration by their aggressive advertising of their opportunities. We cannot develop our possibilities alone,

REBUKED.

The persevering landscape painter knew that he had an observer looking over his shoulder at the easel. He knew from the rustle of skirts that the observer was a woman; yet he worked steadily on. Presently the observer spoke.

"A charming landscape," she said. "Ah, you flatter me," said the artist modestly. "Compared with the original landscape it is very poor stuff."

A NEW METHOD.

Blondine—Mrs. Giddig has adopted a definite plan for raising her boy.

Brunette—Along what lines?

"I know it. She just reaches over under the table and kicks him on the shins."—Youngtown Telegram.

ONE OR THE OTHER.

Bill—They say Russia wishes American farm and garden seeds.

Jill—What's the matter? Running short of strapnet, or are the hens getting busy?

SUPER-PREPARED.

Knicker—What is your wife's idea of preparedness?
Booker—Wearing fur in summer.

HE MADE IT PAY.

Below is the way E. F. McIntyre describes the way our big merchant started in business:

"There was an old gentleman, and he had a lot of sense. He started up a business on a dollar-eighty cents—The dollar for his stock and the eighty for an ad.

Brought him three lovely dollars in a day, by dad! Well, he bought more goods and a little more space.

And he played that system with a smile upon his face.

The customers flocked to his two-by-four.

And soon he had to hustle for a regular store.

Up on the square, where the people pass,

He gobbled up a corner that was all plate glass.

He fixed up the windows with the best that he had.

And he told 'em all about it in a half-page ad.

He soon had 'em coming, and he never, never quit.

And he wouldn't cut down on his ad one bit.

Well he's kept things humming in the town ever since.

And everybody calls him the Merchant Prince.

Some say it's luck, but that's all bunk—

Why, he was doing business when the times were punk.

People have to purchase and the merchant was wise—

For he knew the way to get 'em was to advertise.

Everybody was disappointed Sunday as Bro. Williams didn't get to fill his appointment as he was at Tahoka sick.—Tahoka Correspondent in Terry County Herald.

Recently Launched Summer Styles

It makes one long for midsummer, for the glory of June weddings, or even for graduation days, to view the new thin white dresses which have recently been launched upon the sea of summer fashions. They are a froth of frills and ruffles and look as cool and unsubstantial as white clouds in the spring sky. These models of the utterly feminine in summer clothes are reported in pale tints that are mere reflections of pink or green or blue. Occasionally elusive figures appear on them, usually in the form of lace applique in motifs that are applied to an under petticoat or to the underside of the skirt.

Organic and other sheer crisp materials are better adapted to dresses of this kind than softer fabrics. Laces and voiles are used for them, and it almost goes without saying that the flounces and frills are made very full always but fullest in the softer goods.

A frock of white organdie is shown in the illustration given here. It reveals the cleverest sort of management of style and material, each helping out the other. The skirt and bodice are in one, set together with a plain belt of white moire. There is a panel down the front made of a series of frills graduated in width. They are plaited in the narrowest of plaits and extend from the square neck to the bottom of the skirt. Two wide and very full flounces cover the remainder of the skirt. The hem of these flounces is trimmed into scallops and hemstitched at the edges.

The elbow sleeves are covered with four plaited frills and widen at the elbow. There is a quaint little cape about the shoulders, edged with a frill, and it falls over the shoulders to the topmost frill on the sleeves. The bodice is plain and is hemmed at the sides by a scalloped hem that falls over the panel at the front. It fastens at the side with visible fastening of small flat buttons and loops.

BUILDING ON INSIDE LOT

Home May Be Made as Comfortable as One Erected in More Advantageous Position.

When building on an inside lot a number of complications, not found in a corner house, will arise. The corner house has unobstructed views from the windows on two sides, while the house on the inside lot is likely to have but one. This fact necessitates careful planning in locating the living room, front entrance and porch.

The location of the living room may develop the question of a choice between a western exposure, which is desirable, or windows, which are a necessity.

Since from the standpoint of health, as well as of comfort, it is essential to secure the maximum of sun and air in preference to other considerations, the living room should extend across the front of the house. High windows, if neighboring houses are near, may be placed at the sides to admit air and light, and will exclude unattractive views.

With the living room extending across the front of the house, the correct location of the entrance becomes a problem. A middle entrance is not desirable, since it would make the living room a common thoroughfare or else necessitate a division in it.

A satisfactory solution is to place the entrance at one corner. By this arrangement the entrance hall may be so divided from the living room as to indicate its separateness, yet in a manner not to detract from the apparent size of the room or obstruct in any way the view.

While the ideal location of the porch is seldom on the front of the house, facing the street, it is generally preferable to place it there when building on an inside lot. The suggestion of privacy so essential to the successful porch may be obtained by shielding it from the street by a parapet and flower boxes.

The steps and entrance to the porch may be arranged with good effect at the end, thus giving to it added privacy with an unbroken stretch of lawn in front.

ADD TO CITY'S APPEARANCE

Motor car supply stations, at which gasoline, oil and a limited variety of accessories are dealt in, have been springing up throughout the residential districts of nearly every city of prominence. Often these depots consist of small brick huts, sheet-iron shacks or frame structures, most of them unsightly buildings which detract from the appearance of the neighborhoods in which they are located. In California, and particularly at Los Angeles, this condition is being ameliorated by the erection of small attractive structures designed after the old Spanish missions of the Pacific coast and Southwest.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

LAWN REQUIRES MUCH CARE

Must Not Be Neglected if One Would Have a Really Suitable Adjunct to Home.

In order to keep our lawns beautiful, they must have constant care. Too often the lawn is cared for only during the growing season, when in reality it should be cared for during the whole year.

Whenever the lawn needs fertilizing, put on very fine, well-rotted manure soon after the ground becomes frozen in the fall. Let it lay on the lawn all winter, and rake it off in the spring as soon as active growth takes place. Be sure and use well-rotted manure, because fresh manure is apt to heat and kill the grass roots.

During an open winter, the grass is subject to a drying-out process which tends to kill the roots. This can be helped by sprinkling the lawn often.

Weeds, dandelions, etc., infest the lawn whenever the grass has become thin. These thin places can be remedied a great deal by sowing grass seed very early in the spring and raking it in well. Young grass will start growing very early, and in this way, it will get ahead of the weeds.—E. F. McKune, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colorado.

There is and always has been a great amount of public spirit in Melbourne, due, in large part, to the Scotch element that has predominated from the beginning. "The first citizens, led by Scots, as a rule, set to work with magnificent faith in the future. A city was planned worthy of being the capital of ten million people, and the public buildings were designed on the same generous scale. The soil on the site was deep and rich; that suggested tree planting, and most of the streets are today relieved by handsome foliage and the parks which ring the city round have trees worthy of the forests of Europe. The avenue of elms in Fitzroy Gardens certainly represents that tree at its best."—Bishop E. E. Hoss in the Dallas News.

Recovering Radium.

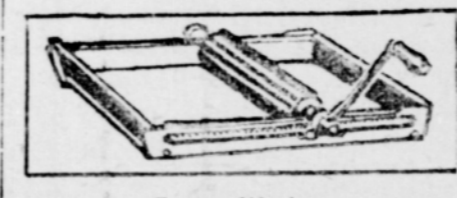

What is known as "radium" is a radium salt, usually either radium bromide or radium chloride, some times radium sulphate. Tiny grains of these salts are extremely precious and are usually sealed up in glass bulbs. The radium in one of the first bulbs that were received in London had a curious history. A physician in Portland place was applying the bulb to a patient when he accidentally let it fall and a moment after crushed it under his foot.

The value of the radium to the physician was very great. He removed his shoes and cut out a square of his valuable carpet. He had shoes and carpet burned, and out of the ashes refined the original radium salt. It was placed in a new applicator and is in use today.

BUTTER WORKER SAVES TIME

Where Demand Is Strong It Will Pay Farmer to Undertake Production of Butter for Sale.

Cream selling is more popular than buttermaking on most farms at the present time, and as a result it is growing harder and harder to buy butter in the smaller towns in many communities. The home buttermaker has quit, and this has brought about a strong demand for the prod-

In order to do this there must be equipment, prints, butter workers and other devices in daily use. The illustration shows one of the many types of butter workers that save time and wearying work.

FARMS GIVE BEST RECRUITS

Navy Department Finds That Country Boys From Middle West Get to the Front the Quickest.

"The best type of men in the United States navy come from the farm or the village," said Monte C. McLaren of the Milwaukee naval recruiting station. "The rawest kind of a country boy will make the best kind of material when properly handled. He is willing to accept the commands of a superior officer."

"The navy department wants men from the country," he said. "The navy is not particularly a calling for the sailor, but it is a place for a man who will take his place in the working out of a great system. The whole navy proposition is handled upon a very strict system plan, and it is found that it is the boy who is the 'gawk' that gets to the front in the end. The fellow from New York 'knows it all,' while the farm boy admits that he doesn't but he is willing to learn."

"Captains are continually seeking men from the United States naval training station at Great Lakes, Ill., and most of those at this station come from the middle West."

BABE IS ADOPTED BY GOAT

Animal Walks Into Kitchen Each Morning and Waits Until Infant is Brought Out to Breakfast.

Mr. Lockwood, three months old, whose mother died a few weeks ago, gave her life to a pet goat. The baby girl was taken to Rahway, N. J., from New York immediately after the mother's death, and placed in charge of an aunt. The aunt procured a goat and taught the infant to nurse from the animal in the natural way.

The child at that time weighed but five pounds and showed indications of tuberculosis. Now, after nearly three months, the child weighs 12½ pounds and is pronounced exceptionally bright and active.

In the morning, as soon as the members of the household arise, the goat walks into the kitchen and waits until the baby is brought out to breakfast.

TITLE PREVENTS "EDUCATION."

"Shooting craps" in the presence of a judge, even at the request of the judge, did not appeal to a janitor reported to be one of the most proficient "shooters" in the arena.

The court had become confidential to a friend, and asked what really constituted "shooting craps." The friend explained, but said he could supply better evidence of the little details in the game if the judge would come again when the janitor was about.

A few days later, when the judge was with the friend they saw the janitor. But neither the appeals of the friend nor those of the court would move the colored man, who was as good a politician as he was "craps shooter," and he did not wish to let anybody get the "goods" on him, even for a demonstration.

NOT ONE.

"Is your husband a fan?" asked the baseball expert.

"Fan?" repeated young Mrs. Perkins. "If you mean the kind of fan that helps you to keep cool on a warm day, Charley certainly isn't."

SAVING CLAUSE.

First Submarine Commander—Now the Americans have been told that we have orders to go slow.

Second Ditto—But they've also been told we're so temperamental haven't they?

VOCAL CULTURE.

"Americans don't sing as they do in Europe."

"No. But you ought to hear us boffer at a baseball game."

THE REASON.

"Why did they formerly cremate widows in India?"

"I guess it was because they had widows to burn."

SUNWED UP.

Kaicher—Of what does a shad consist?

Booker—A backbone, a wishbone and a funny bone and then some.

"Do you raise much cane around here?" asked the visitor.

"No, sir," replied the native. "This is a prohibition state."

WHEAT BEARD PIERCES CHEEK

It Pretty Thoroughly Explores Marf's Anatomy, Causing Severe Pain for Months.

While preparing a grain exhibit for eastern fairs in August, W. C. King, exhibit clerk for the state board of immigration, swallowed the beard of a stalk of macaroni wheat. The beard stuck in his throat. He tried to cough it out.

Recently the beard, 1¼ inches long, was removed from his right cheek, the St. Paul Dispatch states.

At the time of the accident Mr. King noticed no ill effects.

While at the Galesburg (Ill.) fair his chest became sore. Mr. King did not know what was the matter. Neither did a physician he called. But the pain grew less and he forgot about it.

At the Indiana state fair at Indianapolis later his throat became sore. For ten days he was bothered with a swelling. Another physician was called, but he failed to diagnose the case. The soreness of the throat was followed by an abscess in his right ear. Later, Mr. King was troubled with a swelling of the jaw.

Recently a lump formed in his right cheek. It was painful, and a third physician was called. He, like the others, could not understand the symptoms. Then the beard of wheat was forced out of the lump.

SO IT SEEMS.

"Doing much advertising these days?"

"Not a great deal," answered the manufacturer of a household remedy. "We are spending about five hundred thousand dollars with the newspapers this year, and perhaps five hundred thousand dollars on billboards and other forms of outdoor advertising, but I can't say that we are exerting ourselves. You see, our remedy sells itself."

TERRIBLE RISK.

"This diplomat says he wouldn't even change a comma in a state paper without the authority of his government."

"One can't be too careful in such matters."

"I suppose not." "It would be a dreadful thing for two nations to go to war over a misplaced comma."

PATIENCE.

"You are not working in the same place," said the butler.

"No," replied the cook. "I've been obliged to change families several times and I'm going to keep on trying till I find one that suits me."

ONE EXCEPTION.

"You can't eat your cake and have it, too."

"Yes, you could, if your wife tried it."
