Tahoka As A Cotton Market

ing the Marketing of Lynn and Her Neighboring Counties Cotton

Before the ginning season becounty cotton would be marketed there. However, we have heard of no cotton going to Post from the reason why.

A man drove onto the public square in Tahoka Monday morning with a bale of cotton in his wagon. The first offer he received was 12.55 and he finally sold to Paul Miller for 12.621/2 Hearing that a bale of Post cotton had just been sold in Tahoka The News man hunted him up and learned the following facts: over the road with Mr. Colp. This man (we did not ask his name) carried his bale of cotton to Post City Saturday and the very best offer he could get was 11 621/2. Finding he could do no better, he told the manager (he raised the cotton on rented land) to figure what the rent cotton came to at the price they offered, bought and paid for the rent cotton in his bale, brought it to Tahoka and in spite of the fact that the Monday market was Saturday market, sold his cotton rado-to-Gulf Highway. for a cent a pound or nearly six dollars more for the bale than he could have sold for in Post City on Saturday.

Baby beeves and silos will play a most prominent part in the National Feeders and Breeders' Show, which will be held at Fort Worth November 22 to 29.

Baby beef as a source of wealth for the Texas producer is little more than a year old. Conceived by a Texas livestock expert, it was heartily indosed by the Texas Department of Agriculture, but at last spring's National Feeders and Breeders' Show there were only twelve entries. Today, however, there are more than fifty Boys' and Girls' Baby Beefs Clubs, with a total membership of more than 1,200 youngsters between the ages of eight and eighteen, in Texas, and one county alone-Coleman-will send sixty entries to the show this year. Other counties will contribute in proportion and the entries in this class alone are expected to number far more than one hundred. Through the children, the Department of Agriculture is achieving considerable success in arousing the elders, inasmuch as a number of with the movement.

With every detail completed and Bull, one Registered Red Poll the most magnificent array of exhibits and attractions that it has ver offered the people of the Southwest, the National Feeders and Breeders' Show will throw open its loors for its eighteenth annual exhibition on the morning of November 22. It will last through November 29, new features being offered morning, noon and night.

While the central attraction is perhaps the most comprehensive and extensive livestock exposition ever witnessed in the Southwest, the management of the big show has neglected no feature to attract the crowds and interest those who perhaps are not well versed in live-

Music lovers from all over the State are expected to attend the show for the express purpose of hearing Thaviu's great band, which will play throughout the exhibition. This is one of the most famous bands of the country and the great director has with him an operatic sextette that has won renown throughout the United States.

There will be free attractions in the Coliseum every afternoon during the show and one of the best carnival companies that travels the South will throw up its tents on the Coliseum grounds.

Poultry fanciers from all over Texas and other States are being attracted by the advance notices of the magnificent exhibition that will be held at Fort Worth during the show. More than $2,000 in prizes and cups are being offered by the 10-tf Fort Worth Poultry and Pigeon Association, $1,500 of which will be awarded in the poultry division. Poultry and pigeons are being entered from all over the Southwest. The State meetings of five prominent poultry associations and the national meeting of another will be held here during the show, thus adding more than 1,000 birds. Last spring only 2,500 birds could be accommodated in the poultry building, but this year the space will be expanded so that 3,500 at least may be accommodated.

The most prominent poultry judges in the Southwest-H. B. Savage of Belton and Tom H. Woods of Favette, Mo .- will handle that division of the show, while George Ewald of Cincinnati, Ohio, the most prominent pigeon judge in the country, will gauge the respective merits of the exhibits in that division.

The News editor is a prohibitionist alright, but he was a democrat before prohibition and antiprohibition was talked much in Texas politics. We are not sick of our old time domocracy yet and are not quite satisfied to take the medicine prepared by the Dallas conference. As we understand that proposition the Dallas crowd made slates so long four years ago that our man got beat. Why they want and see if the slate suits the people? There are now two prohibitionists in the field. If neither of these suit the Dallas bunch, and evidently neither of them does, then let them name their man. The Fort Worth Semi-Weekly Record has taken front rank among the great publications of the South and West. It is especially prepared for the reader who has not the time or the opportunity to read a daily paper.

First of all, it is a newspaper. The record believes that the people of the country and the village are as much interested in current events as the the people of the city.

In the next place, it carries features suitable for all members of the family - women and children as well as men

Last, but by no means least, the record's editorial policy comprehends the economic welfare of the farmer and stock raiser. The Record is an acknowledged leader in the discussion of public questions in their relation to agricultu-

FAST TRIP THROUGH BRITAIN

Itinerary Enables Tourist, If He Wishes, to "Do" the Islands in the Course of Seven Days.

How to "do" the British Isles in a week is the latest scheme for hustlers A dash around London, a flying descent on one or two cathedral cities. a race through Scotland and a glance at Killarney-this what is open to those who want to see the country in a hurry. Tourist agents say that the idea is catching on with Americans. Indeed it was an American who first suggested it.

that the tourist begins his trip on Monday, he devotes that day to the show places of London, winding up with a theater in the eveing. On Thursday he goes to Windsor and Hampton Court and on his return to London has time to go to a music hall. On Wednesday he leaves London for Peterborough, sees the cathedral and gets to York at three

At York the tourist has plenty of time to visit the Minster and other historic buildings before catching the 6:15 train to Hamburgh. He coaches through the Trossachs and takes steamer through Loch Katrine and Loch Lomond. Then the train to Glasgow.

After dinner the hustler takes the night train out of Glasgow by way of Androssan to Belfast, reaches Dublin in the afternoon and takes the night train to Killarney.

The colors of the British army are made of silk, with gold-fringed edges and cords and tassels of crimson and gold, mounted on a staff eight feet seven inches long.

To insure their absolute correctness in matters of detail and pattern, an official of the Heralds' College acts as "inspector of colors." He has to furnish drawings and designs, and is responsible that an unauthorized departure is made from them.

Every infantry battalion has two colors-"the wing's" and "the regimental." The former is always of the same pattern, and shows the union jack on a blue ground, while the latter has a wreath of roses, shamrocks and thistles, with the regiment's motto and crest, surrounded by a list of the various battles in which it has taken part.

Regimental colors are no longer carried into action, but are now left behind at headquarters when a battalion proceeds on service. This has been the rule since the Boer war in 1881. A couple of years earlier two young officers of the South Wales Borders were killed while endeavoring to prevent the colors, of which they had charge, from falling into the hands of the enemy at the battle of Isandhl-

LITERAL IN HIS THEOLOGY

Darky Preacher's Humorous Comment on Biblical Text As He Understood Its Meaning.

Of old the right of individual private interpretation of the scriptures was not accorded to the laity. Only the priests or preachers were authorized to say what was meant by the sacred text. That has all been changed, and no man will now be expelled from the most orthodox church for believing that Balaam's palace mule did not really address his fellow citizens of Judea on the political issues of the day, or considering that the statement of the sun's standing still at the order of Captain Joshua was an illustrative allegory and not the record of a frozen

This advance in theology is illustrated by the story of the darky preacher who delivered a sermon from the text, "These eight did Milcan

REGARD ALL AS BROTHERS

Altruism Seen in Its Highest Form Among Amateurs Who Go in for Chicken Raising.

"If you want to give me real pleasure," said the genial man, "just set me down among a group of amateur chicken raisers. Their conversation is a study in brotherly love. More than any other set of people they are willing, even anxious, to help each other. Professional men and men engaged in the trades do not, when talking together, sound the note of mutual helpfulness. Each keeps his secrets of success to himself. Now and then one may drop a hint that may by chance prove valuable to his hearers, but he does not mean to do even that, because the rule is for each to work out his own salvation.

"Amateur chicken raisers, on the other hand, are an inspiring example of altruism. When one discovers a new cure for the pip he hastens to spread the information among his friends and neighbors, who are also wrestling with the pip evil. If another man hits upon a new idea in feeding or hatching, he never rests till he gives his brother chicken raisers a chance to profit by his discov-

"Commuters who live in a chickenraising co-amunity exhibit a friendliness of spirit that is foreign to commuters from chickenless neighborhoods. They have their incubators, the relative value of different breeds of fowls and the possibility of premiums at the next county fair to talk about, and so caltivate a spirit of kindly courtesy unknown to persons engaged in other pursuits."

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE.

It Causes Hardening of the Arteries and Other Grave Troubles.

Physicians have always studied the pulse, because it gives valuable information concerning the body's condition of health or disease. But it is only recently that they have begun to use the term "blood pressure" frequently and to regard the amount of that pressure as of great importance. That is because they now have instruments for accurately measuring the pressure, which previously they could only estimate by feeling the pulse.

Blood pressure or the degree of tension of the blood current within the arteries is chiefly significant because a permanent increase in it is quite sure to be followed in time by hardening of the arteries and by the degener ation or disease of important organs, especially the kidneys.

The blood pressure is increased by a number of causes that increase the force of the heart beat or that contract the smaller blood vessels. Any excitement—anger, joy, fear, "nervous-ness"—raises it temporarily. But that is of little importance unless the emotion is frequently repeated or unless the person already has diseased arteries. The blood pressure that is permanently high is more serious. That comes from long continued mental excitement, such as worry, business anxlety or political strife or from the action of certain poisons that are formed in the system and not properly excreted.

These poisons come from the waste products of digestion, especially in large meat eaters. They raise the blood pressure by causing the smaller arteries to contract.

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill.
