PRICE TEN CENTS

TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

My troubles play to such a limited audience that I am frequently obsessed with the feeling that I am talking to myself. A popularity survey indicates that my creditors, as a class, are not impressed.

Keeping up with the Jones's is not difficult after you locate the source of their financing.

The obvious is often obscured by confused interest, like the fluttering dove that deflects attention from her nest. One of life's most vital qualities has become the neglected child of education; a waif that begs in the corridors of destiny. It is the all-important attitude of the individual. It decides every success and every failure, concealed beneath the complex veneer of our society. It is the arbitrator in every friendship bankruptcy hearing, yet its security extends beyond the grave. Wisdom, religion, courage, talent, love and the long list of attributes which go into the formula of character become impotent without the proper attitude toward life.

My introduction to culture was delayed until I started wearing shoes in the summer, and sat at a table laid with more than one fork.

Constituents of a political demagogue always become suspicious when he advocates cleaning house -- with his own broom.

Each life is allotted but a few truly splendid hours and one must be the first note in school. Three blazing words suspended from the stars to light the dream castles that youth must forever build.

Perhaps all the flutes in paradise will announce the arrival of a soul whose record of earthly commerce bears not a single entry of self-pity.

Who knows where the wind goes when it holds a fragile promise in phantoms arms? (Tribune files, Feb. 9, 1956)

Increase In Beef Imports Cited By Texas Cattlemen

AUSTIN -- The head of the state's largest livestock organization says foreign beef imports will continue breaking the back of the Texas cattle industry as long as President Ford refuses to use remedies available to him.

T. A. Cunningham of Goliad, president of the Independent Cattlemen's Association of Texas, called on the President and Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz "to cut imports or explain why they let the beef industry go broke."

The 100,000-member Cattlemen's Association, largest group of its kind in both Texas and the nation, was organized in 1974 when it became evident that American agriculture was becoming a pawn in U. S. foreign policy.

Cunningham pointed out that a 1964 meat import law gives the President authority to reduce imports at any time without waiting for the law's import quotas to go into effect automatically when imports reach a maximum allowable of 1.1 billion pounds a year.

Cunningham said that imports continued to increase last year while the President and Butz "sat back and waited on voluntary restraints which didn't work and State Department agreements which didn't materialize."

"I say it's time to take the State Department out of family farming and ranching," the I.C.A. president said.

Cunningham noted that Japan and the European Community -- the world's two other great beef importing markets -- "have had the good sense to save their domestic beef producers by cutting imports."

Barnhill To Head Easter Seal Appeal

J. L. Barnhill, Matador will lead the 1976 Easter Seal Appeal in Motley County, it was announced by Irving A. Baker of Dallas, President of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas.

Residents in the county will receive the traditional Easter Seal Appeal letters beginning March 1. The Easter Seal Appeal is conducted each Spring to provide disabled persons and their families treatment and services. It will continue through Easter Sunday, April 18.

Mr. Barnhill is one of the 234 men and women throughout Texas who serve in this capacity to help meet the cost of the statewide Easter Seal program, which assisted 10,768 handicapped Texans in 1975.

Society and it's statewide network of treatment centers and local volunteers spent $1,820,547 financed by the traditional Spring Easter Seal Appeal and Fall Membership Drive. Over 90 percent of all funds raised remain in Texas to support the growing needs of the disabled in the State. Special emphasis is being given in the 1976 Easter Seal Appeal to the disabled citizen who may need assistance and not know where to obtain it. Contact Mr. Barnhill at First State Bank, Matador to receive the simple, self-mailing request for service form. A determination of the extent and type of assistance needed, the most efficient means of obtaining that assistance, and arrangements for qualified treatment or other services will be made by the Texas Easter Seal Society.

Motley County has received a $50 check from John Deere for its outstanding 4-H conservation of natural resources program -- the best in the state of Texas.

County extension agent W. C. Pallmeyer accepted the check on behalf of the nearly 150 4-H members who participate in countywide conservation efforts. The cash award will be used for advancement of 4-H conservation activities in the county.

Motley County was one of about 19 counties nationwide selected by the Cooperative Extension Service to receive conservation awards. Awards are donated by John Deere, sponsor of the national 4-H conservation of natural resources program.

Land judging and plant identification contests, wildlife conservation, and natural resources demonstrations have been emphasized in the Motley County program.

Seven demonstrations were presented before local clubs and organizations, and the winning county demonstration, "Agriculture and the Bible," was used in a local church service.

Efforts of 4-H members brought about a reduction in littering -- which meant savings to the city and county governments and the state highway department.

Nature tours were effective in increasing interest in 4-H conservation activities. One nature hike, held each year at 4-H Camp, used locally-taken color slides as well as slides prepared by government agencies to promote awareness of conservation.

County conservation activities received broad support from local groups and were publicized in five newspaper articles.

Conservation awards were arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

Hill and Dick Wright of Vernon; Mr. Hill's brother-in-law, Edwin Youngblood of Fort Worth, Regional Director of the National Labor Relations Board, and John Irving of Washington, D. C., president of the General Council of N.L.R.B. Mr. Hill visited at the ranch from Thursday through Saturday.

Papers Complete For Dr. Y

John M. (Sonny) Russell, president of the Motley County Hospital Board has been informed by the State Board of Examiners that all of Dr. Do Hoang Y's papers have been completed and he will be issued a temporary license to become effective in the near future.

The date of issuance will depend on when they can obtain a narcotics license, Russell said.

Dr. Y has been observing American medical practices in Hi-Plains Hospital in Hale Center, preparatory to assuming duties as general practitioner here within the next several months.

The county's other Vietnamese physician, Dr. Do Danh Thuy (Dr. Do) was accompanied to Dallas by Sut Braselton, to appear before the examining board of the American Medical Association Jan. 20 - 23 to take his national examinations.

Quoting from a feature in the Dallas Morning News by staff reporter Linda Little: "Vietnamese doctors face tedious process in U.S."

Miss Little reports:

TEXAS HAS anywhere from 40 to 50 Vietnamese physicians scattered in such places as Dallas, Houston, Avery, Claude, Matador, Bonham, Tenaha and Hale Center. Their eventual licensing to practice medicine may help in solving the problem of sparse medical facilities in rural Texas.

On top of being faced with a new culture, a new language, and, in many cases, menial jobs, the Vietnamese doctors moving to Texas must pass the Educational Council for Foreign Medical Graduates Examination (ECFMG). To be eligible for a license, they must also take the basic sciences examination. Then for licensure, they must pass the Flex (Federation Licensing Examination).

While this will allow them to become general practitioners in Texas, they must pass still another examination and, possibly, depending on the speciality board, continue education as a resident.

Attend Premiere

Several local residents who attended the world premiere of "Mackintosh and T. J." Thursday night at the Winchester Theatre in Lubbock experienced the thrill of a lifetime when they saw themselves on the silver screen.

Segments of the show starring Roy Rogers and Clay O'Brien were filmed in Matador last summer, although the principal action took place on the 6666 Ranch in Dickens County. Some scenes were also shot at Silver Falls in Crosby County, and in Lubbock at the Palomino Club.

The premiere was a benefit for the Ranching Heritage Center at the Museum of Texas Tech University, with tickets selling for $10, $25, and Golden Row tickets, selling at $50.

A champagne reception was held in the theatre lobby preceding the show, and following, the holders of Golden Row tickets were guests at an after-theatre supper at the Lubbock Country Club. Roy Rogers and his wife, Dale Evans were present at the premiere activities.

Among local residents attending the gala affair were Mayor and Mrs. Kirby Campbell and son, Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Welling, who joined their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne James of Lubbock, Mrs. R. E. Donovan, with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Pierce of Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Many other residents of Matador and surrounding communities have attended the picture, which is showing at the Midway Drive in between Quitaque and Turkey, and the Palace Theatre in Paducah.

More than 20 local residents appeared in "walk-on" scenes and included Mrs. C. R. "Sis" Davis, Winifred Darsey, and John and Christene Briscoe, in addition to others mentioned in last week's Tribune.

Mrs. Dale Estes, with her daughter, Mrs. Roger Reddick and small son, Zacharia Stephen, all of Diana visited last week from Monday night until Thursday with Mrs. Estes' father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Givens Lawrence, and her grandfather, E. D. Lawrence.

I wish there were just something left these days that could honestly be called unmentionable.

Lamp Shades Make a Room Glow

Lamps have been functional since they first replaced the candle as a source of light. But lamps are more than functional. They can be decorative and create a mood. In fact, light is often secondary to a lamp's form, texture and color.

Take color for instance. A light glowing through a sunny yellow lamp shade can make a room look warm and inviting. A lamp shade color can blend with a room decor or provide a bright accent color. To add color to plain white fabric shades or to refresh faded fabric shades, the makers of Rit dye suggest a dye bath or spray. Dye will color almost any type of washable fabric except for some polyesters and acrylics or glass and mineral fabrics.

First, check the construction of the shade. Dip only shades that are sewn. Also check to make sure heat from light bulbs has not weakened shade fabric. Next, choose any light or medium Rit dye color. Stir 1/2 cup liquid dye into a sink filled with warm water. If using powder dye, stir one package into a small amount of hot water before dissolving it completely in sink water. Move the shade up and down in the dye solution until it is a color slightly darker than desired. (Colors will lighten as they dry.) Dry thoroughly on a protected surface. For shades constructed with glue, spray on a dye solution. Dissolve 1/2 cup liquid dye (or one package powder dye) in a quart of hot water. Funnel dye solution into a hand spray bottle. Working in a protected area, evenly spray the shade; avoid excessive soaking. Dry thoroughly.

Drain cherries thoroughly. Combine sugar and flour. Add cherries and cook until thick. Add butter and food coloring. Cool and reserve.

Soften yeast in warm water. Add hot milk to shortening, sugar and salt. Stir until shortening is melted; cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 1/2 cups of the flour. Add softened yeast and egg; beat well. Stir in remaining flour or enough to make a soft dough. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth, about 5 minutes. Place in a greased bowl; cover and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk, about 1 to 1 1/2 hours. Punch down; cover and let rest 10 minutes. Roll dough to slightly less than 1/2-inch thick. Cut with a 2 1/2-inch cutter. Place 2-inches apart on a lightly greased baking sheet. Cover and let rise until light, about 45 minutes. Carrye Burley Shares Christmas In England

Hello Friends of Motley County:

I'm just back from my first English Christmas. Let me share it with you. I spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bianchi in South Shields (northern England). Carol, June and Lillian considered me as a fourth sister home for the holidays.

The festivities started Christmas Eve with the family gathered around the fireplace, singing Christmas Carols. Dick blew the trumpet as the carols were sung in the dining room. Later that night the house was wrapped in secrecy because Father Christmas was wrapping gifts. We left mince pies and a martini in case Father Christmas got hungry coming down the chimney.

Christmas morning, gifts were opened as we eyed the bit of mince pie left, and the empty glass that once held a martini!

Here's the glorious Christmas dinner: Champagne cocktails; appetizer, chilled grapefruit; main course roast turkey with sausage meat stuffing (dressing), bacon rolls, sausages roasted and boiled potatoes, brown gravy, carrots, English peas, Brussels sprouts, cranberry sauce; drinks with meal (homemade) Mead (honey and grape concentrate), red and white wines; dessert Christmas pudding decorated with holly. Brandy was poured over the pudding (fruit cake) and set aflame. The Christmas pudding was served with a white, corn flour sauce and brandy butter (butter, brandy and brown sugar); fourth course cheeses - Stilton, Cheshire and Camembert and crackers along with port wine. After the dinner, liquor coffees were served.

The things that I will cherish about my first Christmas, obviously will be the food. But of more lasting value, I will remember the family traditions that were observed - the importance the Bianchi's placed on Christ and giving. Never shall I forget my first English Christmas.

State Family Leaders of Tomorrow receive a $1,500 college scholarship while state second-place winners receive a grant of $500. The state winner also earns for his or her school, a 20-volume reference work, "The Annals of America," from Encyclopaedia Britannica Educational Corporation. In the spring, state winners and their faculty advisors will be the guests of General Mills on an expense-paid educational tour to Washington, D. C. A special event of the tour is the announcement of the All-American Family Leader of Tomorrow, whose scholarship will be increased to $5,000. Second, third and fourth place winners will receive scholarship increases to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively.

Veterans Eligible For Tax Exemptions

Disabled veterans and survivors of servicemen who appear to be eligible for property tax exemptions under a new law recently enacted by the State of Texas will be furnished a letter verifying service-connected disability, according to W. C. Palmeyer, Veterans Service Officer.

It will not be necessary to write the VA in most cases, since a computerized letter containing the required verification will be mailed by the VA automatically by April 1, or earlier.

The state law authorizing tax exemptions applies only to veterans who have a service connected disability of ten percent or more and to certain widows and minor children of servicemen who died while on active duty. Also included are widows and certain minor children of veterans who at time of death had a service connected disability of ten percent or more.

Those desiring to claim the exemption should present a copy of a letter from the VA to the appropriate Tax Collector on or before April 30, 1976, verifying service-connected disability.

Some veterans and survivors who meet service-connected disability requirements will not receive the computerized letter and will have to request such a letter from the regional office where their records are kept or from the appropriate military service department. These include widows and children of veterans who died after leaving military service, those persons who reside out of state, and those where VA records are incomplete or do not exist because disability payments are made by the military service department instead of VA. In these cases, eligible veterans and survivors owning property in the state of Texas may now request a verification letter.

Cancer Drug Research Providing Good News

The fact that cancer claims a victim in this country every minute and a half is a frightening reality we must all live with. But where's the good news about cancer? Living proof that there is good news is evidenced by the 222,000 Americans the American Cancer Society estimates will be saved from cancer this year. While no one is claiming a complete cure for the disease, words like "remission" and "control" are being heard more often today than five years ago.

In recent years specialists in cancer care have been accelerating the war against cancer through surgery, radiation, drugs and knowledge of the body's immune system. Some of the longest strides in this war have come in the field of drug use known as chemotherapy.

According to Dr. Emil J. Freireich who directs the research of some 30 cancer investigators at The University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute in Houston, "Chemotherapy is the only therapy available for cancers that have spread beyond the possibility of local control at the primary cancer site and therefore cannot be treated by surgery or radiation."

It is important to remember, he explains, that cancer is not one disease but a large group of diseases - all dramatically different in characteristics and treatment. Thus, just as each cancer type is specific, drugs must be equally specific. Obviously, an over-all cure is no simple matter.

Despite the complexities, Dr. Freireich points out that chemotherapy has made numerous advances on the disease during its brief 30-year history. For a small number of cancers, the use of drugs is actually the treatment of choice.

For example, he explains that a single drug is available that does cure choriocarcinoma, a cancer of the female placenta or after-birth. "Women who have had this cancer would have died for sure in a very short period of time. Using the drug, early and properly, they are not only completely normal after five years, but they have their childbearing organs intact and can have normal, healthy children," he notes.

Advanced Hodgkin's disease and childhood leukemia are two other examples of cancers that have been controlled successfully in recent years by use of chemotherapy, say Dr. Freireich. "What's new now," he says, "is that we are beginning to realize that we can use chemotherapy in patients who have been treated well with surgery and radiation but where likelihood that they will have recurrences is very high. We call that adjunctive chemotherapy."

Thus, for many cancers, the chemotherapist is being called into action much earlier in the patient's treatment to combine the benefits of specialized treatments.

Perhaps most promising of all is the development of combination drugs to wage war on cancer.

Using combination drugs, Dr. Freireich notes that dramatic improvements have been made during recent years for the treatment of breast cancer, lymphoma, ovarian cancer and osteogenic sarcoma. Osteogenic sarcoma is the same disease that took the life of University of Texas football star Freddie Steinmark just 5 years ago.

ANSWER "C" is correct. You would have to be standing 1,662 feet above sea level. That means that if you stood on top of the Empire State Building, you would still need a 412 foot ladder to see even the tip of that oil rig.

Assembly Features Musical Program

A musical program, The Magic of Far Away Places directed by Mrs. Dan Kingston, music teacher, was given Friday morning in assembly of Motley County High School.

Debbie Clay, as Miss America, opened the program with "America The Beautiful," and narrated the presentation of Bucky Marvel, "The Happy Wanderer," singing that song, followed by "A Lovely Evening," by the group on stage.

Ronda Williams changes our tempo with a Spanish rhythm - Chippareecas, while Pennie Marshall brings a breath of French accent - Alouette," Debbie announced.

"Don Dillard, the typical cowboy, gives us scenes of The Streets of Laredo, Betty Sue Markham helps us remember that Irish Eyes are Smiling and then we will enjoy a spiritual All Night All Day (by the group). Miss Bicentennial, Susan Hunter, brings to our mind It's A Small World After All.

"Having viewed a glimpse of these different places," Mrs. Kingston concluded, "perhaps the magic of their beauty will make your heart thrill. And last - Merritt Simpson will direct Farewell to Thee, a song of Hawaii. Aloha!"

In colorful costumes, each student conducted the song he led, and pictures of the different places and locations were flashed on the stage as the number was sung.

FHA Chapter Activities Are Reported

By Charlotte Johnson
Motley County Chapter of Future Homemakers of America has led a busy schedule the past several months. Most recent project was "marching" for the March of Dimes and collecting $200.00 for this worthy cause.

A Foreign Foods Supper was held by the FHA on November 11, with the faculty and school board members as guests. The seniors featured Poland; the juniors, Mexico; the sophomores, Polynesian Islands, and the freshmen, Italy.

Skits were given by each class, representing the country it featured. Prizes were given for the best table of food, and the best skit, with the seniors winning the table award and the juniors, the skit award.

At the supper, Darrell Moore was given recognition as FHA Beau for the year and was presented with a plaque.

Another project of the chapter took place on Nov. 15 when FHA girls rode 20 miles in a "Hike Bike" for the retarded people of Texas. The following made the ride: Charlotte Johnson, Audrey Campbell, Brenda Campbell, Laura Grundy, Alicia Wilson, Sherry Meredith, Tina Tharrington, Carla Hart, Debbie Phillips, Pansy Moore, Glouris Sims and Janie Taylor. The girls collected $418.00 in this drive.

From these activities it can be seen that the FHA of Motley County High School is a working and learning organization.

County Agent Pallmeyer Says

A USDA-Agricultural Research Service plant pathologist, Dr. Earl B. Minton of Lubbock, believes that multiple fungicide treatment of cottonseed may be the answer to troublesome cotton seedling disease.

According to research conducted over the past five years, coating of seed with multiple fungicides was more effective in controlling seed and soil-borne diseases than coating the seed with one fungicide. These fungicides consisted of seed protectants to reduce seed and preemergence seedling rot, and systemic fungicides to prevent postemergence diseases.

In 1974 experiments, catpan was used alone and in combination with either carboxin (Vitavax) or chloroneg (Demosan) or the three-way combination. Under the highest level of seedling disease conditions, seed treatments containing the three fungicides gave the highest stand, which meant that they were the most effective in controlling both pre and post emergence diseases.

When disease conditions were milder, catpan plus either of the systemic fungicides gave stands comparable to the combination containing the three fungicides.

In other field evaluations during the last few years, Minton reports similar results were obtained with Thiram, a seed protectant that was evaluated alone and in combination with one or both of the systemic fungicides. Again the results were similar to those obtained with the combinations with catpan.

In addition to field studies, various combinations of fungicides have been evaluated in the greenhouse at constant soil temperatures of 65, 75 and 85 F., and alternating 70 to 90. A high inoculum level of seedling disease pathogen occurred in the soil, and the highest stand for each seed treatment was obtained from the alternating temperatures. On the other hand, for each reduction in constant soil temperature, seedling emergence and survival were reduced.

For each of the four temperature measurements, the most effective seed treatment contained three fungicides. It's reasonable to conclude that two protectants could be twice as effective as one in controlling the same or even different pathogens. Combination of fungicides may also control pathogens that neither material is effective against when used alone.

Minton admits that initial seedling emergence may differ little between multiple-treated versus single-treated seeds when preemergence diseases are light, but the better protected, multi-treated seedlings stand a better chance of surviving post-emergence disease. This leads to a higher final stand with more uniform distribution of seedlings in the plant row, and these will be more vigorous.

This means there will be less or maybe even no need for replanting to get a good stand, and by not replanting, producers save the cost of additional seed, fuel, machinery and labor that would be needed to replant. This would also conserve moisture since the soil is not disturbed again, and result in an earlier maturing crop which should provide higher yields and quality.

The more vigorous plants will have a better root system, enabling them to make better use of soil moisture and nutrients. This increased root development of the plant will result in increased vigor and higher plant populations, and will help control Verticillium wilt and other diseases, according to Minton.

In his studies, the action of the fungicide itself helped control Verticillium wilt.

Add these treatments to properly processed seed of high quality, and cotton producers should provide the conditions required for increased yields at a lower cost.

Should you burn off your lawn or not?

Very few lawns in West Texas need burning. If the grass has produced a mat that is heavy, burning may be beneficial so as to allow for new plant roots to grow in the soil rather than the mat, but in most cases by burning, you are only decaying plant material that will provide nutrients for the grass to be grown this summer.

Some claim that by burning, the grass starts sooner. Does it? or is it easier to see the green growth against the black background than in dead grass? Also to be considered is the "mess" that the burned grass presents for several weeks.

OUR STANDARD OF LIVING

Good News...Surprising Facts

Even when the economy declines, the good news is that some people are finding ways to improve the standard of living without raising prices. These are the innovative people in the plastics industry who are finding new and expanded uses for the nearly 40 different types of plastics materials that exist.

Building and construction uses of plastics accounted for 1.8 million metric tons in 1970, but by the year 2000 it is expected that some 25.5 million tons will be used. Packaging applications will also be growing rapidly in the areas of bottles for foods, shrink wrap, paper-like films, pouches for liquid packaging, plastic-coated glass bottles for greater safety, and so on. Possible new uses are carbonated beverage bottles, corrugated shipping boxes, paint cans and wine bottles.

It is expected that by the year 2000 the auto industry will use a large volume of plastics materials for major body parts. To minimize energy use, emphasis on light-weight plastics will enhance the increasing consumption. Consumer electronics such as home video tape, video communications systems, and computerized housework will account for much of the growth. The use of plastics material in furniture is in an early stage of development. Because of the potential for styling innovations, automation and cost savings, the growth potential is high. The same is true for the housewares and appliances industries.

In short, by using this abundant material—even as a substitute for metals in short supply—American industry will be taking a step towards improving all our lives.

ABOUT YOUR Glasses

Most multifocal eyeglasses are made by fusing smaller segments of optical glass (foreground left) to larger lens blanks. This piece is then ground and polished to specific prescriptions.

BIFOCALS—THE MODERN MARVELS

by Ralph Drew
Optical Consultant

It's odd, but some people still back off a little from the word "bifocal". Perhaps it's because the word has that "forty-plus" sound, never welcome if you happen to be forty-plus.

Many years ago there was good reason. The bifocal used to be crudely made by cementing two pieces of glass together, with results rather obvious to the observer. But all that has long since changed. Today's bifocals are marvels of optical glass technology, not only in their near invisibility but in their great variety.

Why should there be so many kinds? One reason is your prescription; the other is yourself: the kind of work you do, the hobbies and sports you favor. Your eyewear specialist will guide you in both respects.

The bifocal, a two-part lens, has the upper area for distance focussing, and the lower part, called the segment, for seeing close at hand. The relative size of these two parts can vary, and a good guide is that either part is made larger or smaller according to its importance in use. For example, if you lead an active, outdoor life and do very little close work, the segment could be quite small. But if you work all day at a desk, that part should be much larger. There are all kinds of sizes of these segments to make your vision more efficient, more comfortable. And they come in clear glass, or tinted lightly for comfort, or in deeper shades for sunglasses. You can even get bifocals in photochromic glass, the kind that darkens in the sun and lightens again indoors. And all from the same prescription!

How do you decide which is best for you? Your eyewear specialist will guide you. He will demonstrate and explain the different kinds that apply in your case, and he won't let you make a wrong decision. Remember, no matter how you work, or play, there is a bifocal that will help you do it better, more comfortably.

The right bifocals are no longer age revealers. What they do reflect is the up-to-date, sound judgment of the wearer. If indeed they can be seen at all.

DOCTOR

the grueling 10-hour ECFMG examination came two weeks ago when 27 of Texas' Vietnamese physicians were in Dallas for the examination.

Among these, in addition to Dr. Do, was Dr. Nguyen Van The, one of the three Vietnamese physicians in Hale Center.

The great majority of the Vietnamese doctors interviewed seemed determined. If they weren't able to master the exam the first time around, they would take it again in six months.

If they are successful and choose to remain in Texas, they just might provide some relief for the physician shortage in the state's rural areas.

A man has to live with himself and he should see to it that he always has good company.

Mrs. Patton's Rites Held In Hale Center

Services for Mrs. Eulah Patton, 81, of Hale Center were held at 2 p.m. Tuesday in the Hale Center First Baptist Church with the Rev. Carrol Green, pastor, officiating.

TEXAS TALK

Most city folks still don't know the facts of life . . . facts of life about farming at least. This lack of knowledge is considered by some to be the most serious educational crisis in the United States. According to a report issued last year by a group of Kansas educators researching political and economic aspects of the issue, the country faces possible economic disaster if this situation is not corrected. Central to the problem is the attitude of many of those away from farming that agricultural products are natural resources . . . same as oil or coal. Little appreciation is shown for the work and costs that go into production of crops or livestock. Put most simply, there's a lack of savvy in the city . . . they don't understand if the farmer doesn't grow it . . . nobody's going to eat it. Officials releasing the special report in Kansas urged all agricultural groups to work toward enhancing consumer education.
