TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Voices of three astronauts aboard the Apollo 8 at Christmas was the greatest sermon since Christ's departure from the earth. The trip was a miracle voyage into the unknown, with mortals seeing more than any before them had witnessed, and speaking to a distant world in a sermon and prayer as reaffirmation of man's faith in God. Surely never before in the history of the world had so many people heard a single message. Three men living, breathing and speaking from beyond the earth radioed a "conviction of things not seen." Their messages belong in the hearts of the people of the world as a mighty mortal link with eternity.

★★

Perhaps the new year is the one I have been expecting for so long to iron out personal situations that switch regularly into the path of my life. An example: the weather turns frigid and I can't find my gloves, but in a "catch everything drawer" I find three good gloves, all for the same hand.

★★

Resolutions that seem appropriate on New Year's should be considered with respect to the amount of strength that will be consumed in keeping them intact for a year.

★★

The astronauts have seen the back side of the moon but they still have the experience awaiting them of looking at the world from the back side of over three score years.

★★

When one man takes advantage of another's confidence or helplessness, he has broken relations with one of the first ordinances of society and impaired his own delicate sense of direction.

★★

The lights are gone and a few strings of tinsel cling to the dried little tree in a trash barrel. The laughter and sound of children's voices is elsewhere; all moments of joy, too, must pass.

WTU Announces Plans to Build At Lake Phantom

West Texas Utilities Co., through its president, Roff Hardy, has announced plans to build a $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 power plant on Lake Phantom in Jones County.

Mr. Hardy appeared before the Abilene city council Thursday (Dec. 19), seeking to buy land for the plant, to contract to use water from the lake and to obtain an extension of the company's franchise in the city of Abilene.

Work on the plant would not be started until about mid-1970, Hardy said. Approximately 150 acres are being sought for the plant.

Hardy emphasized these new plans will have no effect upon the plant at Paint Creek which is to be expanded again starting next year. About two years will be necessary to complete the addition.

Panhandle Shivers Under Frigid Blast

WINTER SLAPPED the Texas Panhandle and much of the central United States, with a frosty hand late Monday as Arctic air drove the mercury down to its lowest point this season.

Bob Stanley's thermometer dropped to 9½ degrees Tuesday morning. Amarillo radio station registered zero while the Weather Bureau reported three degrees. Lubbock reported a low of ten degrees.

Edge of the cold front was west of Motley County as the winter storm swept to the east and south. When the mercury started falling, Hereford reported 59 degrees while Amarillo registered 33 degrees at the same time.

A mist or ice crystals fell here about 4 a.m. Tuesday but no measurable precipitation was reported in this immediate area.

Continued cold weather is forecast, with a slight warming trend predicted by today.

Temperatures of 37 degrees below zero in Montana were reported Tuesday in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal. The newspaper said the coldest December temperatures ever recorded were in the Pacific Northwest. Stores and state offices were reported closed in Salem, Oregon, because of the bitter cold accompanied by snow.

North Wind Blows
The extreme chill here was more severe because of a strong north wind early Tuesday morning. Skies cleared early, however, and under sunshine brought some moderation with the mercury rising to 28 degrees at 1 p.m.

The mercury reading of 9½ degrees here early Tuesday was lower than any record last winter. Nearest was 10 degrees recorded on Sunday, January 7th (also 1968).

Small Issue of Tribune Early

If Tribune readers are not confused regarding holidays and Sundays and publication dates, this issue should put them into orbit, as it has the staff.

Pre-dating the Christmas issue for delivery Christmas Eve set up another situation which is being handled in a similar manner in order for the staff to have New Year's Day as a holiday.

The difference, of course, is that this issue is only one-fourth the size of last week's paper. The four pages are printed with the letterpress process, in the Tribune shop.

To hold this issue within four pages it was necessary to curtail the news, with many items arriving too late. The Tribune apologizes to correspondents and other contributors for being forced to delay publication until next week. Flomot, Whiteflat and Northfield news arrived too late to set into type and get in this pre-dated issue.

The Tribune hopes by next week to get back on schedule of Thursday publication date, and the entire staff wishes everyone a Happy and Prosperous New Year. Don't forget the blackeyes and hog jowls.

DECAYING WINDMILL on the W. T. Patton estate farm about two miles east of Matador on the Northfield Farm to Market road. It is one of the relics of a passing era of wooden towers. Contrary to general belief the windmill is not passing from the scene in West Texas. Builders of steel towers here believe there are perhaps more windmills than ever in this area.

MRS. PHILIP LEE ENGLE (Patricia Day)

Philip Engle and Patricia Day Pledge Vows in Church Ceremony

Marriage vows were pledged by Miss Patricia Claudette Day and Philip Lee Engle in a candlelight ceremony performed at 8 p.m. Saturday, December 28, in the First Baptist Church. The Rev. Miller Robinson of Snyder officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Day of Matador. Parents of the bridegroom are Major and Mrs. Robert Engle of Blytheville, Arkansas.

The double ring vows were repeated before an altar setting of spider mums and pink carnations with a background of votive candles in candelabra extending across the pulpit to a votive tree at each end. Pink satin bows marked the pews.

Mrs. John V. Stevens, organist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Richard Campbell of Lubbock, who sang "Because," and Miss Leslie Watson of Dallas as she sang "Whither Thou Goest," after Mr. Campbell quoted the scriptural passages from which the words of the song were taken.

Escorted and presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown which she designed and made. Fashioned of white peau de soie, the modified A-line gown featured a bodice of rose lace appliques embroidered with seed pearls, a wide, rolled, jeweled neckline and modified bell sleeves. The attached train was trimmed with five lace medallions, embroidered with seed pearls and her bouffant veil of illusion extended from a jeweled rose and leaves with crystal drops. She carried a white Bible with her bouquet of white sweetheart roses surrounding an orchid.

Miss Jeanette Day attended her sister as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Misses Karol King and Joan Barton of Matador and Miss Marilyn Harigel of Houston. They were floor-length dresses of ruby red velvet, designed on Empire lines with a satin panel and bows, and long sleeves ending in ruffles, lined with ecru lace. Their head-dresses were red satin Dior bows atop maline veils and each carried a votive candle surrounded with holly, tied with long, red ribbons.

George Muse of Lubbock was best man. Groomsmen were Robert Higgins, Hereford, Michael Fain and Ralph Page, both of Lubbock. Serving as candlelighters and ushers were Gary Campbell and Terry Keltz of Matador.

Reception in Henderson Home

Miss Jana Jones registered guests at the wedding reception held at the home of Mrs. F. B. Henderson, grandmother of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with a net cloth over white satin and was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations and silver candelabra. Miss Frances Martin presided at the silver punch service with Mrs. George Muse and Mrs. Jack Mayfield serving the three-tiered wedding cake.

Silver candelabra and pink carnations also decorated the bridegroom's table, which was laid with a white linen cloth. Chocolate cake and coffee were served by Mrs. Stanley Fogerson and Miss Karen Elliott. Rice bags were presented the guests by Mrs. Don Finkner and Carol Boeing.

For a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M. the bride chose a three-piece pearl grey knit suit with leather gloves and other accessories of turtleskin. Her corsage was the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

A surprise "kidnap" brunch Saturday morning in the home of Mrs. J. E. Edwards was a courtesy for Miss Pat Day and her bridal attendants, and those assisting at the reception. Mrs. Bennie Keltz and Mrs. Harold Campbell were hostesses with Mrs. Edwards for the affair.

Misses Patty Edwards and Jeanette Day directed the activities by "rounding up" the guests and bringing them as they were, in pajamas, housecoats and curlers. The group included Miss Marilyn Harigel of Houston, Miss Leslie Watson of Dallas, Mrs. Stanley Fogerson of Midland, and Misses Karen Elliott, Jana Jones, Frances Martin, Joan Barton and Karol King of Matador.

In addition to the brunch, a birthday cake was served for Jeanette Day, on the occasion of her 16th birthday.

MEXICAN COFFEE

Theme was "down Mexico way" when Beverly Vinson, Margaret Jane Hill and Winifred Darsey entertained the fem golfers Saturday, December 21st at Winifred's with a greeting piece on the front door... metal tree silhouette on the mantel with pine cones, blinking lights and greenery... a willow Christmas tree, candles and straw Madonna arrangement on the TV... a Santa Claus figure with a Mexican straw hat... and the beautifully decorated tree... and on the buffet a God's eye tree with Mexican figure.

The dining table was covered with a green cloth, centered with a tin Mexican candle tree surrounded by colored chocolate Christmas balls for favors... (Margaret Jane carried this tree along with two others, on a plane from a recent trip to Jaurez). Bean dip, chips, pigs in a blanket, noches, cheese roll, pumpkin bread, sugared walnuts, pralines and millionaires were among the goodies served with coffee, to Laverna Price, June Keltz, June Moss, Faye Clements, Geneva Wilson, Louise Barton, Opal Pipkin, Grace McDowell, Dorothy Day, Virginia Hoyle, Lillian and La Voe Thacker, Lucretia Campbell, Mary Helen Wason, Billie Barnhill, Rose Pierce and Hazel.

ON CHRISTMAS EVE morning, Hazel was hostess to the gals for coffee with holiday nibbles... Center of attraction was the tree, traditionally decorated with ornaments accumulated through the years, topped with the first angel (same age as Rose)... and including stuffed toy decorations (made by Peggy McCallie Dietze... a new one added each year) and others new this year, a golfer Santa Claus, hand carved snow flakes, tiny pine cone angels, and Mexican birds and a walnut shell containing minute figures (brought from Juarez by Lila Meador)... Those enjoying the morning were Laverna, Dorothy, Louise, June, Grace McD., Geneva, Faye, Winifred, Marguerite Edwards, Lucretia C., Beverly, Opal, Virginia H., Billie, Mickey Bostick, Rose and Hazel...

One gal got her morning off to a bad start during the holidays while on an early errand... in gown and housecoat... and got stranded when her car engine died and would not start... Everyone busy and rushed... but all fun!

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:

One of the most aggravating experiences is to find beetles or moths in dry foods stored in the pantry. Foods that are most commonly attacked are cereal products, cornmeal, flour, spices, nutmeats, chocolate, dry pet food, and dried fruits. Both the larvae (worms) and adults may be found feeding in these dry food products.

Almost always stored food pests are brought into the home in packaged food that became infested somewhere in the food chain. Once an infestation is established, insects spread to other stored foods in the pantry. Several of the stored food pests have the ability to bore through cardboard or cellophane containers to get to food.

The first step in controlling these pests is to determine the source of infestation. If only one package is infested, the problem is eliminated by destroying the package. Rapid turnover of dried foods is one of the surest ways of preventing trouble from these pests. If you suspect that insects have invaded several packages of food, the insects can be killed by sterilizing these packages in the oven at 150 to 160 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Small packages can be heated as they are, but larger packages should be opened and the contents spread in a thin layer to allow sufficient heat penetration. To prevent re-infestation, store uninfested or heat-sterilized dry foods in metal or glass containers that have tight-fitting lids.

When stored food pests are found feeding throughout the pantry, concentrated effort is usually required to clean up the infestation. First, all food spillage and food containers are removed from the shelves. Scrub the cabinets thoroughly with a stiff bristled brush and soapy water, paying particular attention to the corners, cracks and crevices.
