Clarence Jenkins Receives WWI Commemorative Medal

Mr. Clarence Jenkins was honored on Tuesday, November 2, when he was awarded with a 75th Anniversary of World War I Commemorative Medal. The Medal is a gift of the Robert R. McCormick Tribune Foundation, a private, not-for-profit foundation located in Chicago, Illinois. Patterned after the World War I Victory Medal, awarded to those who served in that war, this Com-memorative Medal is surrounded by a wreath of laurel signifying honor. The wreath is encircled by a band bearing the inscription "75th Anniversary of World War I" at the bottom. The band is blue indicating loyalty and devotion to duty. On the reverse is a branch of oak, which symbolizes strength and acknowledges the sacrifices and contributions of the veterans who fought for our freedom. The inscription "They came on the Wings of Eagles" is from the famous World War of Eagles Is from the famous world war I American Memorial Monument at St. Nazaire, France. Also included is the dedication, "A Grateful Nation Remem-bers, and the commemorative dates, "1918-1993".

Mr. Jenkins is the only living World War I veteran in Motley County.

MANDATE MANIA Impact Must Be Weighed At All Levels

At All Levels Sure, legislative and regulatory bod-ies are necessary, but sometimes you have to wonder. The current flood of unfunded mandates emanating from Washington is threatening to drown state and local taxpayers. The federal govern-pant either needs to reconsider such ment either needs to reconsider such andates or appropriate the funds to pay for them.

State and local entities are being placed in an impossible bind. Already, a stag-nant economy is forcing cutbacks in services and limits on overall spending in-creases. But when they are also obligated to pay for mandates that are unfunded, unwanted and often unexpected, they must cut services elsewhere, forsake reforms and investment and take their plans back to the drawing board to the drawing board. During the 1993-94 budget year, for example, the city of Dallas has absorbed an impact of $43 million from unfunded state and federal mandates pertaining to waste-water collection system projects and compliance with the Clean Air Act. Over the next decade, Columbus, Ohio, is Scheduled to spend nearly $1.1 billion to comply with federal environemital mandates, while Los Angeles will spend nearly $600 million on federal mandates this year alone.

Understandably, Dallas this week joined the National League of Cities, the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the National Association of Counties and the Interna-tional City/County Management Assotional City/County Management Asso-ciation in a campaign to throttle federal mandate mania. In California, federal governement $750 million a year on emergency medi-cal treatment for undocumented immi-grants has forced California officials to slash aid for legal residents who are eld-erly and impoverished, blind and dis-abled.
