Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary Celebrated by Dr and Mrs. Hurt

At Their Home on Main Street Three Children And Six Grandchildren Spend Day Enjoying Dr. Hurt's Reminiscences of Early Days

Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Hurt are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today with three of their four children present and six of their seven grandchildren. Mrs. M. T. Shelton, of New York City, was unable to come. Lucille Thomas, of Midland, is attending the University of Texas.

All but seven of these fifty years Dr. and Mrs. Hurt have spent in Big Spring. Dr. Hurt, who was a member of the '80 class of Vanderbilt University obtained his M. D. one year and his wife the next, in Gallatin, Tenn. Seven years later the young couple left their family connections in Bowling Green, Kentucky, behind them, and came west.

When they bought the lots at the corner of Main and Fourth where they now live, they had no expectations of ever being downtown—that was a very respectable distance out in those days. Though the wide gates at the rear of the lot on the corner a few years ago one could see tracks made by the buggy in which Dr. Hurt has done most of his calling.

Dr. Hurt is probably known to more old-timers than any other man. For half a century he has remained faithful to his calling—that of the family doctor.

The two sons of Dr. and Mrs. Hurt reside in Big Spring. They are J. Clifford Hurt, pharmacist for the "Bliss Drug Store," and Harry M. Hurt, cashier for the First National Bank. Mrs. J. E. Thomas, a daughter, lives in Midland.

The grandchildren, who will partake of the family dinner and do their part to celebrate the occasion are: Harry Junior, Lillian, Helen and John Clifford Hurt, and Read and John B. Thomas of Midland.

HURT TO STAND, WEAK, NERVOUS

"Cardui Seemed to Build Me Up and I Was Rid of Pain," Says Virginia Lady. Roanoke, Va.—"Some years ago, I was in a very run-down condition," writes Mrs. T. B. Akers, of 533 Nelson Street, S.E., this city.

"I suffered a great deal with pain in my sides and back. Standing on my feet hurt me so much, that I would get very weak and nervous."

"I knew that if I didn't get something to help me, I would have to go to bed and stay there, which is hard to do for a woman who has small children. So I kept dragging about, until one day, when feeling unusually bad and discouraged, I happened to pick up a little book with a Cardui advertisement. I decided I would try it."

How Is Your HEALTH?

Edited by Dr. Jago Goldson for the New York Academy of Medicine

IT ISN'T SO!

Many a catch-phrase coined to express an alleged health fact is nothing more than a counterfact.

Fish is a brain food, is one such phrase. But it isn't so, not any more than any other essential food.

Tomatoes do not cause cancer. Tomatoes, as a fact, are a desirable dietary article, containing vitamins A, B and C. They also contain calcium, phosphorus and iron.

Brown eggs are no more nutritious than white ones. The difference is only in the pigmentation of the shell. An egg eaten raw is not more digestible than a cooked one.

Acid fruits do not cause rheumatism. Red meat is no more harmful than white. To the healthy person both are useful—the sick person may be required to eliminate both from his diet.

Fruits eaten at night are not poisonous. Acid fruits may be eaten with milk or cream. Water may be taken with meals, and no harm will follow unless the food has been boiled down. Even then harm is not certain to follow.

There are no poisonous combinations of foods. There are preferable ones, combinations which give dietary balance, good taste, and ease of digestion.

Most of these prejudices arise from isolated experiences upon which the uncritical have generalized, but it represents a unique, in a sense, a peculiar intolerance of a single or of a group of foods, is a new phase of medical science. That it exists has been well-established but it represents a unique rather than a general condition.

Individuals will do well to observe what foods disagree with them and to avoid them. But one may not justly condemn that food or food combination.

Hollywood Sights

BY ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Many of the stars who came to a Hollywood turned topsy-turvy in their adjusting themselves to a Hollywood gone normal again.

Most of the musical comedy scintillants who came west when filmstrips were the rage have returned to New York, but a few have packed away their voices, figuratively speaking, and remained on their merits as straight actors.

Dorothy Jordan, with rather brief experience in musical comedy, played in a few musical romances, not singing any too well, but gave her best performance in a straight role in "Min and Bill," and as a result is slated for early stardom.

REAL ACTRESSES NOW

Marilyn Miller's first talkie, "Salvy," was a conventional musical, but her second, "Sunny," was straight comedy drama, and Marilyn did as well as ever without her music.

Jeanette MacDonald, imported for musicals because of her voice, has left Paramount and gone to Fox.

Contracted to the former for another picture, she wanted to do a straight, non-musical role but was denied, and the company being afraid of more musicals, she was loaned to Fox which promptly signed her on contract.

She hasn't checked her singing voice outside the studio gates, but she isn't using it in films until the filmstrips return to vogue.

Claudia Dell, the pretty blonde of "Sweet Kitty Bellairs," was released from Warners recently, but was signed by Radio at once—a company no more friendly to musicals had Irene Dunne, musical comedy star, in a dramatic role in "Cimarron," which at its preview recently was highly lauded.

THE SINGING MAIDS

Right in step with the times, the established screen favorites, who when talkies came in surprised the fans with good singing voices like-wise are storing them away for a while.

Bebe Daniels made her great come-back as "Rio Rita," and then appeared as "Dixiana," another musical heroine, but in between she has been given opportunities as a dramatic actress without tunes.

But what the fans may truly be thankful for is that the untrained singers, like Charles "Buddy" Rogers, Charles Farrell, Clara Bow, have ceased their warbling efforts.

were wrecked and several others were severely damaged. Government civil engineers were rushed to Barie immediately.

Melfi, one of the centers which suffered the most during the earthquake of July 23, was just being getting to recover and to rebuild.

Several slight earth shocks were felt here during the last half of 1929 but none were as heavy as that of this morning.

This morning's shock was preceded by slight tremors during the night.

Italian City Is Shaken By 'Quake'

MELFI, Italy, Jan. 5 (AP)—A strong earthquake of about five seconds duration was felt here at 8:25 o'clock yesterday morning. No victims were reported.

STOLEN HAPPINESS

When Fanny came home from work late Saturday afternoon the janitor's wife was waiting for her.

It was evident that Mrs. Murphy was bursting with excitement.

"There's a grand surprise waiting for you," she said.

By the glow from the red coals in the shining grate Fanny saw that someone was sitting in her big chair. It was a little girl, asleep. It couldn't be, it couldn't be—it was Sheila. Sheila stirred and raised her head.

"I got away. You don't mind?" was her anxious greeting.

"Mind? My darling, my darling!" Sheila explained how chance had made it possible for her to have a few days without being missed.

how she had left the local train at the Junction and hidden in the waiting room until time for the New York express.

Though they slept late next morning, there was no hurrying through breakfast, no thought, indeed, of anything except to enjoy themselves. It was a day of raptures. First came Mrs. Murphy, while they were still in bed, to make up the fire and inquire whether Mr. Murphy shouldn't be sent after delicacies in honor of their visitor.

"That's an inspiration," cried Fanny. "Tell Mr. Murphy to get a finnan haddie. Do you like finnan haddie. Sheila blessedest!" Sheila did. She also liked strawberry jam, English muffins, honeydew melon.

"Anything else?" inquired Fanny anxiously.

"I would like a cream puff, or a chocolate éclair," ventured Sheila. She had never been consulted thus about her preferences in food, her grandmother being adamant about growing children.

That afternoon they rode on a bus up Riverside Drive. In the evening a tall man, Mr. Wentworth, came, bringing Fanny orchids. Sheila a bouquet with a paper frill.

Monday morning Fanny took her daughter to the place where she worked and introduced her to Mr. Hirschberg and seven or eight of the prettiest ladies Sheila had ever seen in her life.

"This is my little girl," was what Fanny said. The tone of her voice, her smile, her radiant bearing, said "Isn't she a darling? Isn't she the sweetest, dearest, cleverest, most beautiful, adorable, charming child you ever saw?" Mr. Hirschberg patted Sheila on the head, presented her with a dollar, granted Fanny the three days off she asked for.

Sheila's heart had ached hotly at the thought of her mother working for a living, but now she decided that work that meant dressing up every day in a succession of beautiful costumes was something altogether delightful.

"Does Mr. Hirschberg make dresses for little girls?" she asked her mother on leaving.

"No, sweetheart. If he did I'd have him make you one."

"I didn't mean that," said Sheila. "I thought—maybe he'd let me be a model too, and you could afford to let me stay with you. I've quite a lot—$25."

"Blessedest!" Fanny choked, squeezed Sheila's hand. It was some time before she could explain that little girl's eagerness to do what their fathers said. That was the law—at least in this case.

"But we could hide, couldn't we?" suggested Sheila.

"They'd find us—your grandmother—Darling, you love your father, don't you?"

"Yes, Mother. Of course I would go and visit Daddy occasionally, but I'd rather stay with you." She added firmly, "And I'm going to when I'm older. Is 14 old enough?"

"Darling, you've made Mother so happy, I'll live on that hope. But you'll have to finish school."

"Well, if then. And every time I get a chance I'll run off and come—maybe this Christmas. Anyway the next one."

That night Sheila was sick, terrifically sick. But the worst was over in half an hour. Afterward she was allowed a comforting hot water bottle, instead of nasty hot wet towels, nor was she scolded and told she should have known that rich food would make her sick.

After a morning in bed and a diet of tea and toast, Sheila was able to take in a marionette show. They dined at home, went early to bed. The next day was Wednesday, the last day. They were both certain it was the last day, but by mutual consent they avoided mentioning it. They had a feverishly happy morning shopping. Then they walked home hand in hand, their hearts too burdened with the shadow of parting to make talk possible.

In the front hall Mrs. Murphy was again waiting, this time her face portentously mournful.

"There's two men been here asking for you," she burst out. "I told them you were out of town and slammed the door in their faces, but they had the impudence not to believe me. They've been hanging around, watching the house the whole afternoon."

It had come. The parting, the little death, was upon them. They barely had time to remove their wraps and warm themselves at the fire Mrs. Murphy had kindled before she brought up a card.

"It's your Cousin Edward," said Fanny. "Shall we let him come up?"

"Yes," said Sheila viciously. "He hates to climb stairs."

Mr. Philbrick, puffing and red-faced, greeted Fanny with his usual urbanity.

"I thought I should find the runaway here," he said, pinching Sheila's cheek. "I must say you're very cozy—a charming room."

"Thank you. We were about to have tea. Will you join us?"

Mr. Philbrick was tired and chilled. He sank gratefully into Fanny's comfortable big chair and accepted some tea.

"I'm afraid we'll have to go along," he sighed at last. "This young lady probably doesn't realize the anxiety and distress she has caused; but I think I can assure her that they'll be too glad to have her back to think of punishment."

"I'll leave my presents," said Sheila loudly, "until I come back."

"Yes, darling," answered Fanny evenly, "I'll keep them until you come back."

Sheila's stubborn devotion to her mother arouses Fanny's friends to her aid at last—tomorrow.

THE WATER BUCKNER

"Jew" Keeling will bring his Lubbock high school cagers to Big Spring Friday and Saturday nights, for a couple of conflicts with the Steers loopers. The Harvesters have played one game this year, ousting the fast Littlefield quintet 24 to 16. It is interesting to note that in the contest, the Harvester forwards accounted for only one point of the 24. Brown and Bledsoe amassed six field goals and a couple of free goals for 14 points. They are guards.

The chief attraction of the cage season at this particular moment is the Cosden Refinery-Lomax game to be played at Lomax tonight. A fairly large crowd is expected to witness the fray, it is said by those in the know. This apartment will do his 1927 overcoat and his overcoat and his overcoat self so the fray, Arctic zone or no Arctic zone. We have been intending for some weeks to visit the Lomax gymnasium and inspect its many advantages, and we feel we should be in no better company than Mr. Spike Henninger, who, most certainly, will crank up his rolls and speed out to the tilt.

The coaching situation, it seems, is still hanging fire. Several prospective coaches are being considered by the board. School officials conferred with one Obie Bristow Monday afternoon. Bristow, it will be recalled, is a former University of Oklahoma Sooner, and played a bit of professional football after leaving the university. While Big Spring is trying to select the logical man for the place, another village in this vicinity is having a bit of the same. Down at San Angelo, a Texas city to the south of us, they're talking coaches also. The latest developments, it seems haven't developed. As we understand it, Bill Elmsert, the present mentor, probably will be retained as director of athletics, with some other coach in charge of football. It seems Molly Crawford will get the assignment, although there are others being considered. Big Spring has a field to pick from. High school coaches who have made reputations are available. High school coaches who have not are bidding for the places. Young athletes just out of college have applied for the place. Supt. Blankenship has been smothered, as it were, beneath a deluge of epistles, telegrams, applications et cetera. The most concrete proposition submitted was by Weldon B. Chapman, Cisco high school mentor of nine years standing. He outlined his program, which included expansions in several departments.

Whoever the school board selects to succeed Bill Stevens, it is the hope of this department, which has nothing whatever to do with it, of course, that the selector is made early. Several high school athletes would like to move to Big Spring and pursue the different branches of education. All they are waiting is to find out the name of the 1931 coach. Once Big Spring puts out a contender, the going, from there on will be easy; until then, the same roughness will prevail, like the compass it holds true.

This department feels there is little chance now of obtaining Chapman, even if his proposition was accepted. The last we heard of the Lobo looper he was dickered with another school, and it seems the proposition was most favorable. There may be better coaches in this section than Chapman, but if there is one that knows high school football in this district, the toughest in Texas today, better than he does, it has not been the pleasure of this department to shake his hand. However, the school board should select the coaches and select them. Of course they know existing conditions better than anyone that is not in close contact with the school. Whoever happens to be the man, selected, he will find things rather in a bad way when he assumes his duties. And this chronicler wishes him the best of luck.

We wish to acknowledge with appreciation the receipt of another calendar reflecting the beauty of that sort should hang at all corners of our mahogany desk, equipped with a ball-bearing chair. This woman, however, has two defects. She is a blonde and is holding a parrot. In the first place, anything a woman and a parrot are combined it is dangerous. But for a blonde and a parrot to appear in the same picture—hand us that machine gun.

It is unlikely that Bill Stevens' cagers will have the satisfaction of spanking the San Angelo Bobcats this year. The San Angelo scribbler, who has returned to his desk after sojourning in Del Rio for a rest, we believe it was, smartly writes, "Sunday basketball challenges have been tossed at the Bobcats by the Big Spring Sports reporter. The Howard County scribe apparently seeks easy meat and would pick on a cripple. It would be unfair to send the San Angelo team against the fast-step Big Spring outfit. Coach Bill Wright's charges are heavily handicapped by lack of practice court facilities and general basketball experience. Bill has an unusually green squad this year and only a haphazard outdoor court on which to train the gang. Wery the gymnasium finished and conditions such that the squad could go in for regular training on a regulation court, we would ask no odds despite the team's experience." Well said and done, my good man. However, we were not seeking easy meat. All this department wanted was to see the Steers get revenge for the "moral victory" the Bobcats won over the Steers on San Angelo's graveyard gridiron last fall. That is all. No hidden motive, as it were.

It is just as well, perhaps, the two quintets do not meet. If the game was played here, the score would go so overwhelming against the invaders that the fans would be disgusted and probably wouldn't return again for a couple of seasons.

Price of Wheat and Value of Corn Did Not Bother Boxing, Wrestling Industry During The Past Season

Upsets for Champions Marks 1930; Gate Receipts Measured Up to Those Registered During 1929

NOTE: This is the first of two stories written especially for the Associated Press by Maj. Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing Association. In it he reviews the 1930 season. Tomorrow he will discuss the problems of the new year.

BY MAJ. GEN. JOHN V. CLINNIN,
President, National Boxing Association
CHICAGO, Jan. 6 (AP).—Nineteen hundred and thirty was an exceptionally prosperous year for boxing and wrestling despite the industrial and agricultural depression. Gate receipts measured up to those of 1929 in almost all of the states where boxing and wrestling are legalized.

LITTLE ROCK TO HOLD PLACE IN LOOP

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Jan. 6 (AP).—Successful negotiations in Little Rock had unbundled the Southern Association today of some of its worries but it still had a knotty situation at Mobile to reckon with. As matters stood today Little Rock is assured of retaining its membership in the league with ownership of the club passing to a conference between members of the club of Little Rock business men while adjustment of the Mobile situation depended on further negotiations and a meeting of the league directorate here tomorrow.

Problems confronting the Little Rock club were settled last night when an agreement was reached at a conference between members of a civic committee and the Little Rock school board by which the board reconsidered its previous refusal to permit the use of Kavanaugh field as a baseball park this year. Immediately permission was obtained for use of the field and an agreement was made that an operation obtained by the civic committee for purchase of the club from R. G. Allen, its present owner would be exercised.

Midnight toning is the time fixed in an understanding reached at a meeting of the league directors here last week for conclusion of negotiations between a group of Nashville men headed by Byrd Douglas of that city for the purchase of the majority stock holdings of the Mobile Club. Douglas justified John D. Marin, league president, last night that the negotiations could not be successfully concluded within the time limit but that conferences would continue in hope that a deal could be projected before the one set for the league meeting tomorrow.

Cosden Cagers To Meet Lomax Squad Tonight
Spike Henninger's Cosden Refinery basketballers will take on the Lomax Hornets, fast basketball quintet of the rural sector, at 7:30 p. m. at the spacious Lomax gymnasium.

The Hornets will be the fastest aggregation of the red and white colors of the Cosden Company has clashed with so far this season. The Hornets will have the edge, perhaps, because of intense and regular training, coupled with a regular schedule of games. The Cosden team has been handicapped by lack of steady practice and the lack of a place to practice.

The goal shooting of "Skeeter" West and Steelman, Cosden for warders, is expected to feature the contest.

Last Night's Fights
By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA—Benny Bass, junior lightweight champion, outpointed Lew Amesey, Philadelphia, (10). Tommie Grogan, Omaha, outpointed Young Firpo, Pennsylvania, N. J. (10). Jack Gross, Salem, N. J. knocked out Roy "Ace" Clark, Philadelphia, (6). Harry Blitman, Philadelphia, knocked out Al Gordon, Philadelphia, (1).

TORONTO—Jackie Phillips, Toronto, outpointed Jack Gillespie, Detroit, (8).
CHICAGO—Gary Leach, Gary, Ind., stopped Young Jack Dillon, Indianapolis, (3).

WEAR TO QUIT
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6 (AP)—Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, soon will resign as chairman of the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, members of his family disclosed here.

Pressure of business has forced Wear to decide against retaining the important committee post, he has held since February, 1928. Not only is he established in private business but is chairman of the alumni board of Yale University as well and he no longer can find the necessary time to devote to Davis Cup affairs.

Athens Learns About Loop Battles

Kitts Brigade Starts Back Home With Defeats

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 6 (AP).—The Athens, Texas, high school basketball team was on its way home today after learning that Indiana basketball was all loyal Hoosiers have been saying it was.

Athens, winner of the national tourney at Chicago for the last two years, won two games in Oklahoma and two in Missouri before invading Indiana on its barnstorming tour. In Indiana the Longhorns lost six straight games.

Then they jumped over into Kentucky and defeated Ashland high school, national champions, three years ago, and returned to Indiana and lost two more. They finally hit their stride and defeated two Hoosier teams in the last stages of their trip.

Indiana teams never have entered the now defunct Chicago tournament, but loyal Hoosiers have claimed their teams compare with the best of those who battled for the national championship. Athens' record in Indiana seems to add strength to this contention.

The Longhorns were scheduled to play Paducah last night but the game was cancelled when a machine bearing the coach, Jimmy Kitts, his wife and son, two players and a negro trainer figured in a collision at Danville, Ill. The trainer's hand was injured but the others were not hurt, the car was so badly wrecked, however, that the party could not rejoin the other ten members of the squad at Paducah until late last night.

The players in the Kitts car were Dan Adair and Erskine Wade. The automobile was so badly damaged Kitts had to purchase another one in which to continue the trip.

Hank Bruder Is Hunting For A Job, Now Has Wife

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 6 (AP).—"Hard Luck" Hank Bruder, captain of the 1930 Northwestern University football team, is hunting for a job—he has a wife to support.

His secret marriage Sunday at Waukegan, Ill., with Miss Omega Gilbert, 21, leaked out yesterday. Bruder said he would withdraw from the university.

Dean James Armstrong said Bruder would not be expelled from the university as his wife is not a student there.

"That's fine," said halfback Herb, "but whether I want to stay in school or not, I must get out and earn a living for the Bruders now."

Bruder has received offers to play professional football next season. Despite injuries and illness which kept him from playing in more than eight games during his three-year career at Northwestern, he feels he still has a lot of good games left.

CHAM CHATS—

rent model of loveliness.

Which is right? Is Venus to yield the scepter to our measurementless miss of today and become a dowdy dowager? Is the Queen of Beauty to search out a comfortable niche by the chimney corner and spend the rest of her days knitting wrist warmers while her rules in her stead an elongated version of feminine anatomy who would rather perish than possess hips?

I think not. I hope not. Because I'm all for Venus, you see. One of the Royalist party, Venus embodies the true ideal of physical beauty. It may be true that her proportions are the least bit more generous than absolutely necessary for esthetic perfection. But I would not grant more than a "pound of flesh" margin, the merest fraction of diminishment in her measurements. And even this concession, I protest, is only to be polite.

And Venus must have been such a tremendously vital person. Such a radiant creature! So thoroughly alive! So possessed of perfect health. How she must have strode the earth with springing eager feet. How she must have breathed. And laughed. And how her eyes must have sparkled. And what a complexion!

So healthy. Not puny and stooped-shouldered and whining voiced and pasty skinned, and nervous and half ill most of the time. The modern dandy destroys her health by the methods she pursues to keep thin. She either starves herself outright, or she subsists on trick diets which undermine her health and produce ill effects without end. Not only does she sacrifice her health, but she does it for a stupid purpose. The skeleton figure after which she yearns is not beautiful. And it costs so dearly in the coin of health.

Now excess fat is the enemy of health also. Surely excess fat is not beautiful. Surely we should not permit the graceful flowing curves of the figure to be deluged under swathing folds of fat, or the well-being of the body to be menaced by the accumulation of fat.

Excess fat affects the circulation, the breathing, the function of the heart and the bodily welfare generally. It does another very ill-bred thing too. It crowds out the normal tissue of some of the vital organs and unceremoniously takes their place. This is called fatty degeneration of the organ, and sometimes causes dire trouble.

We do want to get rid of those unneeded pounds. But let's do it scientifically. Doing it scientifically means doing it slowly, without subjecting the body to the shock of fasting or trick diets. And let's remember that health, as well as beauty, requires that we do not in our reducing enthusiasm pare our selves down to the mere shadow which the fashion plate would have us think ideal.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—Small sales are being closed on finer grades territory wools. Graded strictly combing 53, 60s territory wools sell at 63-67c scoured basis. Lower grades are not moving, but an occasional buyer shows an interest in looking at offers of 56s and 48s wools, as, contrasted with the recent general indifference toward these grades.

any source save hard work, constant application to one's own business and the giving of increasingly greater value to the public.

Stock market speculations and all other kindred devices for getting rich come to grief when they run up against this homely, fundamental truth.

Still another, from Sears, Roebuck & Company one of the leading merchandising firms of the world:

Sears, Roebuck & Co., believes the daily newspaper is, beyond comparison, the best medium for retail store advertising. This opinion was expressed by D. M. Nelson, vice-president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., in charge of all merchandising and all advertising of the company.

"Last year," said Mr. Nelson, "Sears, Roebuck Co. bought approximately $4,250,000 worth of space in daily newspapers to advertise the company's retail stores. In 1930 there was an increase in the amount spent because we are operating more stores in 1930 and, also because of our 44th anniversary event. We are also coming to have more and more faith in the efficiency of newspaper advertising. We have conducted experiments with all forms of advertising. Our tests have indicated that the daily newspaper is in a class by itself as an advertising medium for retail stores.

Mr. Nelson said he did not mean to disparage the effectiveness of any kind of advertising media. The newspapers are used by the company for advertising their retail stores only. The company has used radio, outdoor, direct mail and circulars for these stores but has found that the greatest returns for the amount invested have come consistently from the newspapers.

CHARGES FILED

A charge of driving while intoxicated was filed against a man giving his name as D. T. Moore, in Justice of the Peace Cecil C. Colings' court today. The complaint was lodged by Constable Miller Nichols.

Bond had not been set by Justice Colings this morning.

RADIO Day By Day

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Lobo, a barking radio soloist, has deserted the microphone for the happy hunting ground of dogdom.

The dog, whose salary was said to have equalled that of a union musician, is to be heard no more in the broadcasts of Horace Heidt's orchestra over the NBC networks. His death came after four short years of life. Lobo's bark was prominent in the playing of the signature song by the orchestra. It was not the mere barking that made Lobo outstanding among dogs, but the way he put it over. For visible audiences he put on an unusual boxing and dancing act.

His owner, Clarence Moore, saxophonist in the orchestra, says that although Lobo's bark is gone he has Lobo II in training.

Definite announcement that Paul Whiteman and his orchestra are to present a weekly broadcast over an NBC network is at hand. His first program is set for Tuesday evening, Jan. 27, at 7:30 (a. t.). Except for an occasional appearance from Chicago, where he is playing in a night club, Whiteman's band has been absent from radio since the conclusion of his CBS series last spring.

Starting Tomorrow

Poor complexions show big improvement overnight.

with corrective cream prescribed by nurses
"How much smoother and clearer your skin is." "And finer-textured, too." Delightful compliments! You'll get them the very next morning after you've used this quick-healing night cream.
Nurses first discovered this quick way to clear and refine the skin. And largely through their recommendation, over 6,000,000 women now keep their complexions radiantly fresh and lovely with Noxzema Skin Cream.
Noxzema is a triple action cream. Its soothing oils soften the skin and smooth away roughness. Its mild medication heals blemishes and rid the pores of poisons and harmful wastes. Its gentle astringents shrink enlarged pores back to normal. And Noxzema beautifies—as well as corrects. For it stimulates even good complexions to greater loveliness.
You'll be amazed to see how quickly Noxzema heals. It softens and smooths the skin instantly—refines and helps clear it in 8 hours.
Let Noxzema show you what glorious new beauty it can bring your skin. Get a small, trial jar today.
