Fourteen seniors will receive their diplomas from Roaring Springs high school Friday evening, May 25.

Baccalaureate services will be held Sunday, May 20, at 8:00 p. m. in the school auditorium with Rev. Tommy Allen, pastor of the Ralls First Baptist Church delivering the message.

Dr. Seymour V. Connor, Associate Professor of History and Archivist of the Southwest Collection, Texas Tech., Lubbock, will deliver the commencement address.

Grade school graduation exercises will be held Thursday evening, May 24, with Supt. Henry Teague of McAdoo, delivering the address.

As the school term nears completion, Supt. Sweet said, "The faculty wishes to express appreciation for the excellent cooperation of school patrons during the past term."

Lions Club Sweetheart Holds Service Record

With more than 12,000 clubs in 75 countries of the world, Matador's 88-member Lions club has an outstanding distinction.

The disclosure came as a surprise to the club (and Miss Patton) Tuesday during the regular meeting held in the basement of the Methodist church.

"I salute the queen of Lions clubs sweetheart, International records show that Lions Sweetheart Patton has served her club continuously for a longer period of time than any other sweetheart in all of Liondom."

Miss Patton was not a charter member, she declared. She was elected Lions Sweetheart about 1933 and has been re-elected yearly since that time.

Charter Members Honored: Lion Kirkham paid high tribute to the Matador club and its more than a quarter of a century achievements in community service.

Recitals Announced: Mrs. John Stevens will present her music pupils in a recital of piano and organ music, Tuesday, May 22, at 8:00 p. m. at the First Baptist Church.

Youth Hurt By Tractor

Condition of Riley Rigsby, Jr., 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Riley Rigsby of Matador is reported improved this morning after he was conveyed to Lubbock Methodist Hospital late Tuesday following his injury in a tractor accident.

The tractor was driven by Frank Thrasher, 16. The two boys had started to plow a plot of ground near the Rigsby home in north Matador when the youth was injured.

He was conveyed to Stanley Hospital in an Eady-Seale ambulance where examination disclosed that no bones were broken, but that he suffered internal injuries which might require surgery.

Scheduled to graduate from the eighth grade here May 28, young Rigsby last week refused to go into his home when he learned his brother had contracted the mumps.

History Made By Medical Saga Of Texas Physician

THE LAST STITCH, by Dr. William L. Crosthwait and Ernest G. Fischer. J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia, $3.50.

Dr. William Crosthwait, an 83-year-old Waco physician, picked up the pen for his biography which was written in collaboration with Ernest Fischer, a New Orleans news man.

Fresh out of medical college, Crosthwait got stuck with a minor case that no other doctor wanted to risk. As he operated on his patient on a kitchen table, he could hear threatening voices outside.

One, which belonged to a man who ominously held a lariat in his hands, said: "If anything happens to Aunt Bess, Doc don't do his last stitch."

Fortunately, Aunt Bess recovered and the doctor is still here making stitches.

His book is as much a chronicle of the times in which he has lived as a personal account of his life.

In 1899, when Dr. Crosthwait graduated from medical college in Louisville, Ky., people were seriously questioning if sky-scrapers would hold up and were forming such organizations as the American Society for the Prevention of Premature Burial. That group was most active in New York.

In central Texas, where the young doctor began practice at Holland (Bell County), there were people like Aunt Lucky who went around curing the sick with her "magic jug". Dr. Crosthwait strongly suspected that this magic jug contained, at least in part, alcoholic spirits.

Then, too, there was the old grandmother who taught Dr. Crosthwait how to facilitate a delivery. Her advice: "Snuff her, doc, snuff her." The doc found out that snuffing meant to stick snuff in the expectant mother's nose, causing a terrific sneezing, which, in turn, expedited the birth.

Dr. Crosthwait also found people who paid their doctor's bill in peculiar ways. After doing surgery on the wife of the publisher of the Holland Progress, the doctor found himself with a 150-year paid-up subscription to the newspaper.

"The Last Stitch" is filled with the good humor of a man who has enjoyed life. It teems with anecdotes that crackle with wit.

Dr. Crosthwait, who moved to Matador from Holland, is still practicing and hopes to do so for as long as possible. His collaborator on this book is a man he's known for quite a spell. In fact, the doctor was the one who brought him "a screamin' and a kickin'" into the world—BLAIR JUSTICE (Fl. Worth Star Telegram).

Grade School News

The second grade is studying birds. They will study the life of each bird in this locality. They want to find out the value of each bird to the farmer and other people and why they should be protected.

The third grade, having reached the stage where they can pick up speed in the things they have learned this year, plan a number of contests in arithmetic in the next few weeks. They are to read and tell stories to the class. Their spelling will consist of spelling matches, using words learned before and new ones that can be spelled from sound. They plan to finger paint also. It may be messy, but is surely fun.

They are in the throes of spring fever, marble fever, and baseball. David Saint can shoot a marble too straight—the rest of them can not give him competition. They are looking forward to their spring picnic.

The fourth grade class has just

ROSETTED BLOOM PINK BOLL WORM NORMAL BLOOM

The dreaded pink bollworm is moving into cotton fields in all areas of Texas. When the cotton plants first start blooming, fields should be checked between 9:00 A.M. and Noon, daily, for about ten days for rosetted blooms. Rosetted cotton blooms indicate the presence of pink bollworm. The worm can be found by tearing open a rosetted bloom. Farmers should be on the lookout for pink bollworms, and are urged to contact their County Agent for control recommendations.

The Diary of Mary White

February 15, 1956, Wednesday

Sore throat for two days now and no voice today. Very tiring in the school room. Lost my patience and sent one child out of the class. The mother came to see me tonight. She is the Lena Anderson who wrote me after Marelda's death. We had a long talk and I felt like I had visited. She uses sentences. She stayed so long it was too late to cook dinner so we had tuna sandwiches and for the first time the whole family was a bit homesick for Texas. Don't know why unless it was the wind rattling the doors and windows and reminding us of other blows.

February 16, 1956, Thursday

Not even a whisper came forth from the vocal apparatus this morning so I printed NO SCHOOL UNTIL MRS. WHITE FINDS HER VOICE, tacked it on the door and went back to bed. You wouldn't think that a grown man and two intermediate children in a modern home would have any trouble satisfying their needs for food, drink and constructive activity for the period of one day, now would you? If you wouldn't it is very obvious you are one of the many who have not yet discovered which cog it is that makes the daily mechanics of living run smoothly. May you be spared the hectic experience of listening to them learn first hand.

February 17, 1956, Friday

Still no voice and still abed. Read and studied all day and said 'nary a word' but can't see much improvement in my throat condition. Curiosity got the upper hand of some of the villagers today and they just had to come see how a teacher without a voice looked. The mail came on schedule for once but nothing from Texas was. Guess that snow held it up. "Frances Goes to the Races" came today. Squeals of delight, laughter and clapping reached all the way to my bedroom. Did they ever get a bang out of that mule!

February 18, 1956, Saturday

Work with the hands and keep the mouth shut. What could be duller? But, thus the day went. Got some much needed typing done and enjoyed the sun through the window glass. The outside temperature was thirty-five below and dropped to forty below about ten thirty p. m. despite the fact that the sun shone brightly all day... from 7:45 to 3:45 to be exact. The sun is really making rapid strides to get back up in the sky instead of on the southern horizon. I made the foolish remark last August that I guessed the sun always came up in the north in this country. What a greenhorn!

February 19, 1956, Sunday

Tried to stay inside today but duty called. One woman came and said her child cried all night with earache. I told her that I couldn't go out. So she brought him to the clinic. He had fever of 102 degrees and running ears. I felt like a heel. Doctored his ears and gave him a penicillin shot. Thirty minutes later in came a girl saying her sister was sick. I gave her a thermometer to use and bring to me to read. Fever 101 degrees. I didn't have the heart to say come up so I put on my coat and went down. Found the mother and a brother in bed too. 'Twas a good thing I took along extra shots. Experience had taught me not to leave the house with only one. Our elderly lady who is an advanced T. B. case sent me word last Wednesday that she would accept a bed in the hospital. I wrote the nurse to inform her. Her son came today saying she is very sick and can I call a plane to take her to Nome to the hospital. Of course, it is Sunday and no one is in the ANS office and that is the only frequency we can use. Patience! Alaska will teach you not to get in a hurry. I am learning why Eskimos passively accept most any condition. It's more sensible than beating your brains over something that you can't alter.

February 20, 1956, Monday

Warmed up to twenty degrees today and old man weather must have been cleaning house for he dumped lots of snow on us. We had fun reading about the snow storm and blizzards in Texas. Twenty-eight to thirty inches! Many of the houses in the village have snow around them that allows the children to walk right onto the roof. But I was glad for the moisture it brought to the farms. Had to go to the far side of the village to visit the sick. The trail wasn't very well packed and I really floundered in the snow. The old voice got raspy before the day was finished but by refusing to read any stories and making the children do the most of the talking we made it through to an early bedtime.

February 21, 1956, Tuesday

All the wee ears have quit hurting and all the sore throats are on the mend so I didn't have to give any shots today. More soft, fluffy snow today and are the kids having fun! At ten or twenty above it seems warm so they pile into the snowbanks at recess and really enjoy themselves. Saw a beautiful white fox fur hanging in one home tonight. I asked how much he would get for the fur when he sold it. About fifteen dollars, was the answer and I thought "gee, what a beautiful evening cape several of those would make". And what by and stretch of the imagination, would I do with an evening cape? Have seen weasel, mink, martin, muskrat, fox and squirrel furs so far. The favorite fur here, however, is dog fur. These native dogs have the warmest fur of all with reindeer running it a close second. The hunters wear dog skin socks inside their mukluks. Hunter White even has a pair. They really are warm and properly handled have no odor like seal skin. Ugh! Squirrel and muskrat are the cheaper skins and most native parkas are made of these.

February 22, 1956, Wednesday

We are having no holiday today since we had to take two last week. The children don't seem to mind. We didn't interfere with anyone's plans of trip. We just don't plan week-end or holiday trips up here. A couple of native girls drove a dog team to Moses Point Sunday and that is one of the few times anyone has left the village all winter. Snowing again today. Big flakes, thick as can be are falling straight down. I'm beginning to wonder if some one has lost the cut-off key. No flying all week and our sick lady flying all radio that an auditor is coming in to audit the Native Store books. He thinks he will be here only five days. Oh well, I don't have much to do, so boarding a strange man shouldn't upset me much. May upset him though. "catch as catch can" means that he will have to eat. Maybe it will snow so much he can't get here. That was just a thought and I must not let it advance to the dignified position of a wish.

February 23, 1956, Thursday

The skies cleared for a brief time this morning and I wished for the clouds back. The bright sun on this white world and I am blind. I got my wish though for by noon it was snowing again. Still no plane for the sick but otherwise, all is moving on schedule. We are sufficient for our own needs here most of the time.

County show that 20 or 30-lbs of nitrogen and 20 to 30-lbs of phosphorus are needed per acre. This can be supplied by 150-lbs of 16-20-0 per acre, but to get a true picture of what your land needs, a soil sample should be submitted for test. At the rate above, with current prices, cost of material is $7.50 per acre. Cotton figured at 30c, 25-lbs per acre will be needed to pay for the fertilizer. To break this down to the boll bases, 7050 bolls per acre are needed, and if average stands are realized, 25,200 plants are on an acre. By this, it can be seen that one boll every three plants is all that is needed to pay for the fertilizer expense. Bolls are usually more mature, and this is also in the farmers favor.

Actual fertilizer tests are the only way that the farmer can satisfy himself as to the value of fertilizer. A soil test costs $1.00, and then by only applying a strip of fertilizer four rows wide through the field, a test can be conducted. Note the growth of the fertilized plot as compared to land not fertilized, and to get exact results, gather the crop on the 4 fertilized rows, and then skip over 4 rows and gather 4 rows of unfertilized crop. Compare the weights, as small differences are hard to recognize by eyesight, and see if the fertilizer has made enough difference to pay for the application. For accurate results, the adjacent rows should not be gathered to check against the fertilized rows as benefits may expand to adjacent rows.

Fertilizer is not all of the answer to increased crop production. A large percent of our soils are also low in organic matter. This can be replaced either by plowing under crop residue (green material, perferred), putting cotton burs on the land, or turning under a crop of green weeds before seed had time to form.

By increasing the organic matter, water holding capacity of the soil can be increased, and if legumes are turned under, soil fertility can be raised. Add these factors to adequate moisture, and crop yields will take an upward turn, thereby resulting in more net returns for the farmer.

Most of the soil tests that have been submitted from Matley

County Agent PALLMEYER SAYS:

Soil Fertility

Along with the weather, and insects, soil fertility is a major factor in crop production. 140 tests in 38 counties in Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico have shown that fertilizer applied on dryland pays. For each $1. spent for fertilizer, $2.75 to $4. have been gained as a direct result of the fertilizer. Reports from the Chillicothe station prove that in all cases there has been a noted increase in production of sandy land crops by using fertilizer, while fertilizer on tight lands depends mainly on the moisture.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Doc Nurses a Daydream

It's a treat when I get together with Doc Sherman. The Clarion keeps me much too busy—and Doc, well I think he puts in sixteen hours a day at the hospital. But Tuesday—a beautiful day—ho—and I slipped away for a ride around Turtle Lake. Doc's driving a 1956 humdinger—it's like riding on a cloud. Anyway, at one point Doc slowed almost to a halt. "Used to fish there as a boy, Joe," he said. "Used to sit and imagine myself up on the highway driving a high-powered car. Nowadays, I just sit here and wish I were down there again."

From where I sit, few of us are ever content with the way things are at any given moment. It's human nature. On the other hand, I've been rooting for years that someday everybody will show enough good American tolerance to respect his neighbor's right to enjoy a friendly glass of beer. When that day comes I assure you that I'll never want to change back.
