THIRD YEAR—No. 4 MATADOR, MOTLEY COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, MARCH 30, 1967 PRICE SEVEN CENTS

FIRST THE GRAPE, THEN THE WINE—Cleopatra (Glen Brotherton) waits on Caesar (Earl Byerley) who is presently to go to war. His friend Mark Anthony (R. E. Campbell Jr.) has designs on Cleo. This dramatic scene is from "Cleo" Lions annual show, which was written and directed by Miss Rosanne Terry, Matador High School senior, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Les Terry.

Printing and binding will be of best quality, and the dust jacket will bear a photograph of a ranch country scene. Several photographs will also be printed in the new book, which will be slightly larger than the original printing. It will also contain some more recent paragraphs from the column.

"Trail Dust" has been quoted from coast to coast in all types of publications, including magazines, newspapers, books, etc. and has frequently been used by radio stations. Reader's Digest has purchased three quotes from the column, the latest to appear being in the January issue.

TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

The latching of liberty is no longer the spirit of duty which preserves it.

The melancholy windmill turns lazily toward the varying winds and the tired old wheel moves the faded gears. A section is gone from the sucker rod and the water trough is bent and dry. A few ragged cedars and a barkless cottonwood stand in an area that was once a yard. A few scattered stones remain where a home once stood. It is spring and a Lilac is blooming beside the grass-covered walk.

Electricity made the coal oil lamp an object of antiquity, the automobile ruined the horseshoe and buggywhip business, synthetic leather has made a cowhide worthless, and yet people stand around and look at computers without lifting a hand against their eventual replacements.

Pollination of the tourist crop has been started by the advertising bees, while in some sections the early fruits have begun to hit the markets, while motels dust off the "no-vacancy" signs.

A friend who has tried inoculations believes the political virus remains in the blood stream, and despite any number of vaccinations by ballots, the victim will continue to experience seizures.

It would be interesting if some government agency, currently at liberty could be assigned to make a survey on garden and flower seed. Purpose of the survey would be to determine the effect on sales of a federal regulation made the printing of colorful pictures on the packages prohibitive.

The fuel to keep the fires of youth glowing is composed of about nine parts gasoline and one part bottled pop.

"Hackberry Hill" Ready For Paving

Final grading and base is about complete for the paving of "Hackberry Hill" west of Matador's business section, from Dundee Street north. The hill, on Bundy Street, comprising the south bank of Hackberry Branch of Ballard Creek, has long been a problem for maintenance and safety.

Mayor Welling said the city is paving the hill after extending the drainage to creek with underground pipe, and leveling the western slope of the street just east of the Methodist parsonage.

The city has its own paving equipment but limited funds for the work confines hard surfacing to areas where they are most needed at present.

An extensive amount of clay and gravel base will bring the level of the hill high enough to provide a safety factor from vehicles approaching from the north.
