of childhood return pleasantly when I hear singing in the breathy hours of night. Somehow songs echoed through the halls and reverberated in a far flung canopy of starry space. To lie awake and listen to the pattering of cottonwood leaves stirred gently by a phantom breeze from top-most branch and mingled with my own. Or to ride alone at night and hear brave hearted singers sing so that their songs seemed to come from the one nearest to you. Dream castles of youth have ground to powdered star dust and crumpled wheels of life—but the song of a mockingbird singing through the summer has remained unchanged.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME AND ENTIRE CONTENTS HERE THURSDAY NIGHT

LOCATION BEYOND WATER MAINS RENDERS FIRE DEPARTMENT HELPLESS

Fire of unknown origin destroyed the home of Mrs. J. F. Freeman in north west Roaring Springs early Thursday night. None of the family was at the house when the fire was discovered. A fire alarm was turned in and the fire department made the call only to find the blaze too far removed from water mains to be reached by the hose.

The fire, which had reached considerable headway when discovered, made the saving of any household effects impossible.

The house was the newest dwelling in Roaring Springs, having been constructed since the first of the year. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

ROARING SPRINGS MAN EVIDENCES CULTURE OF BEES SUCCESSFUL HERE

G. W. GREEN FINDS DEMAND FOR HONEY GREATER THAN SUPPLY

G. W. Green, whose home is located directly across Dutchman River from Roaring Springs has found the culture of bees, over a number of years, to be entirely successful and profitable.

"Many people think that bees are not successful in this country", Mr. Green declared, "but we find, after a thorough trial over a number of years, that this is a mistaken idea. Last year, altho considered dry, we marketed about five hundred pounds of honey. The demand for fresh honey has always exceeded our supply. The flowers in this locality are especially desirable for a select quality of honey. From the first wild flowers until the Mesquite and cotton blooms begin the bees are usually well supplied."

Mr. Green has sold bees to a number of farmers in this community who are finding equal success with the venture.

Beautiful Class Color Scheme Is Effective In Table Decoration

MOTHERS ARE HOSTS TO SENIORS AND FACULTY

Reminiscences of High School Life Follows Enjoyable Evening

Mothers of the nineteen members of the Roaring Springs High School graduating class prepared and served a beautiful and savory banquet to the Seniors, members of the faculty and several visitors in the dining room of the Travelers Hotel last Sunday directly following the Baccalaureate Sermon at the Baptist Church.

The class colors of pink and green predominated in the table decoration. The class motto, "Follow the Gleam", was inscribed on one of the cakes served at the banquet.

After thanksgiving by Rev. T. Marvin McBrayer, the enjoyable meal began to be followed by addresses by several guests. Later a number of popular school songs were sung. Reminiscences of high school followed until late in the afternoon.

It happened on a movie set one day—

A little old lady in her late sixties was seated in a theatre auditorium. Her hair was grey—two enormous dark eyes, dimmed by the passing years, set in the wreckage of a once beautiful face. She had borrowed an evening dress from a friend with whom she lived, so she might be eligible to earn her daily check as an extra. The dress—an affair of spangles and net—had long since passed its hey-day of pristine youth and beauty. Here and there one noticed jet spangles precariously dangling from long black threads, here and there the net was crushed and torn. Beneath it all was a shriveled form of a little old lady whose ancient heart tired and hurt persisted to beat. It should have stopped long ago but it was not wise enough to know this so it continued to beat on and on as it had these many years.

Above her in a box sat the star, a handsome man in his prime, surfeited with the adulation of his many admirers. He was poised on the crest of the wave—fame, wealth, happiness all was his. This was his hour triumphant, victorious. A friend beside him drew the star's attention to the frowsy little old lady who was crouching there in the shadows beneath him. Could that really be the woman who had at one time been the toast of two continents. His thoughts flew back to that time. Even yet he recalled the time when, as a boy, he had saved up his pennies from selling papers, to see that glorious creature from the top-most gallery and now he saw the wreckage of fame and beauty in that little old lady who sat there below him.

Quickly he bent over the edge of his box—smiling he extended his hand and whispered her name—a name, alas, that meant nothing to the present generation. She laid her hand in his, that little shriveled up hand freckled and spotted with brown and reddish spots—with its little crooked, gnarled fingers and their ribbed and ill-kept nails. He bent his head over it and kissed it, warm, moist lips throbbing with life contacted the coolness of old parchment.

The pulse strings of emotion were drawing her throat together ever tighter and tighter and tighter, her eyeballs were stinging with liquid fire—but in spite of it all she managed to smile her gratitude through her tears, while even the glittering jet spangles shook as if they too had suddenly come to life.

The lights went down, the play had started, but there in the shadows sat a little old lady enveloped in the ethereal light of her happiness, its very rays had pierced her heart.

Methodist W. M. S. Notes

The ladies of the Methodist church met Monday, May 29, in Bible study with Mrs. C. B. Cargile as leader. After the singing of songs with prayer by Mrs. McBrayer, Mrs. Cargile took charge and discussed the Bible lesson. The subject being: "Hallowed Be Thy Name Thy Kingdom Come", which was very interesting. These Bible lessons deal mostly with the explaining of the "The Lord's Prayer" which makes it so interesting.

The President called for the business session to begin.

The "Sun Shine Susies" will have charge of the Leaflet Program for next Monday, June 5. Come and meet with us and enjoy the good programs that are being planned.

Rev. McBrayer spoke to the Society in behalf of the "Banquet and Program for Men" of the church which is to be held on the church lawn Thursday night, June 8.

Mrs. Geo. Springer, Mrs. A. Freeman and Rev. McBrayer are planning the program of entertainment for that night.

Mrs. Albert Hodges, Guy Braselton and E. S. Favens were appointed to look after the "cats" for these good men.

It is said "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach".

Come and enjoy this church banquet and then put your heart into the church work and you will enjoy life so much better.

We are so glad to welcome Mrs. Stark as a new member in our Society. She will be an inspiration and help to us as we hope to be to her.

Some of our women were absent Monday, we are just wondering if they could be sick. Remember when your place is vacant no one but you can fill it, and God looks down with a sad heart when we neglect His great work for some things that could have gone undone.

Mrs. A. Freeman dismissed us with a word of prayer.

29-FT. AUTO CYLINDER WINS MUCH ATTENTION CHICAGO WORLD FAIR

One of the world's largest automobile cylinders is displayed at the Century of Progress in Chicago, Illinois. Measuring 29 feet in height, this huge moving exhibit represents one of the many features of the Gulf Refining Company's display. In the cylinder a large piston operates, showing, with the aid of lights, intake and exhaust and emphasizing the fact that, "fresh gas packs power."

Made of aluminum alloy, the Gulf cylinder is an exact copy of the modern cylinder. At the base of this display three shelves rotate. The shelves hold interesting miniature models of an airplane, a racing car, and a motor boat. Other eye-catchers of this particular section of the Gulf Exhibit include a cut-away Chrysler marine engine, an Evinruid outboard motor which established a world's record, a Westinghouse Farm Lighting Engine, and a Cummings Diesel Engine.

For four years we have worked together. During this time we have tried to aid you directly. Let us hope that we have taught you that we were capable of teaching. Truly this is true, if not actually, and it is time for you to go on to higher levels of instruction. Perhaps it is well. Soon, this relationship, teacher-pupil, will be broken. Farewell To School

Farewell dear school! With aching hearts and fond reminiscences, we leave you forever. We must now depart from the scenes, friends, and instructors of our childhood days to reap, in spite of storm or gale, a destiny. Yes we leave it all to begin anew in the great school of life. No more shall the old school bell summon us together in Alma Mater's halls; no more shall we tread the weather-worn paths to school; no more shall we race over the tennis and basketball courts; no more shall we gather to sing our dear old school songs; no more shall we know the carefree joy of school-boys and girls or the perfect fellowship of true classmates. Goodbye dear teachers! We shall miss your patient assistance, your trusting smiles, and your encouraging words. Goodbye, dear friends and classmates! We'll find no others so true. God's blessing rest upon you, dear school! Farewell! Juanita Thacker

Commencement

We are in the commencement days—grade school, high school, college and university. It is commencement for those who will continue study in the higher institutions of learning and prepare for professional life.

It is commencement for those who leave schools and endeavor to find their rightful places of service among their fellow men in this busy world of ours. It is commencement every morning, whatever the interests, opportunities, and responsibilities of the previous day may have been. An unexperienced portion of time, a mystery land, lies between. The day is handed to man by the Creator for a new period of responsible living. It is as fresh as the dew of the morning that sparkles on the grasses and flowers.

This life is commencement—it will be followed by an everlasting life and for which this is the preparation. Common life is God's great university in which he is schooling men and women for an endless existence. Life here is not an end, but a commencement day.

Commencement day is a happy time. A planned course of study, strenuous work has been faithfully followed and successfully finished. There is general rejoicing. It is well. To start with good intentions and make a home run is time to rejoice. T. A. M.

Success in life depends largely on opportunities promptly utilized. Some people would pass through a gold mine without noticing anything precious.

Our Faculty

The Roaring Springs School Faculty of 1930-33 was one great body of determined individuals, strongly and harmoniously unified in making our school the best possible. Every teacher, from the one who patiently, prudently aided the beginners to embark upon the most brilliant journey in childhood to those who have added the finishing touches to the foundation upon which we are to build our future, has played an indispensable part in forwarding the progress of Roaring Springs High. They have labored patiently with the weak and slow; they have encouraged the disheartened; they have inspired in many the ambition to climb upward; they have put a purpose before the eyes of the undecided; they have prepared many for life's trials and tribulations—all these things and more have they done by ever striving to live exemplary lives and by daily stressing the fact that success awaits the true, conscientious laborer.

The Voyage--Through High School

Juanita Thacker

I
We've sailed the sea for nine long years, And tho' we've lost some of our crew, We've guided the ship to this sad place Where we all must bid a last adieu.
II
Tho' often we have grown discouraged, And dropped our oars with a painful sigh, A cheerful word from our captain brave Reminded us of the storms drawing nigh.

III
Tho' often tempests grew unseen And struck our crew with great surprise; With harmonious, skillful work we rowed 'Till our ship was under peaceful skies.

IV
Tho' among our remaining crew There are sailors strong and sailors frail, We all have done our best to reach The lighthouse gleam which now we hail

V
The lighthouse gleam does not mean rest However tired and weary we are; It means that part of our bout we've won; And we must steer for the beacon star

VI
So now alone in our own little boats, Our future voyage is in our hands, To win or to lose as our strength may decide;

VII
'Till the day of all days in the promised land.
VIII
So shipmates, tho' now we say goodbye, And fight alone in a storm-tossed sea, If we will be both faithful and strong, We'll meet together in Eternity.

In Appreciation

For the friendship, training and fellowship of our teachers, parents and classmates, our gratitude is inexpressible, but we shall strive to so live that they shall say, "My work and influence have not been in vain."

Our parents, of course, come first in the moulding of our destinies, as they are with us through joy or sorrow, and shower us with love and sacrifice. It is they who make possible our training by experienced precept. We may show our gratitude to them by reaching our mark of success honestly and righteously.

Our teachers, kind and true, have labored patiently with us for ten long years ever striving to keep up-building aspirations before the minds of their pupils and to make ambitious, purposeful citizens of Roaring Springs school students. We may repay them by saying at our Set of Sun, "I have set a goal and honestly reached it."

And last, dear classmates, we may show our appreciation for each other by living up to our motto (Follow the Gleam) and to our ideals may we say at the end of life's day, "I have followed the gleam, even unto death; I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith."

Courage For Tasks

You'll find it in lullabies that patient mothers sing, It's in the humble cottage where shouts of children ring; It fills the weary toiler's breast, It lights the plowboy's eye, It's like the beauty of the sun, the glory of the sky; It glows above the mountain top, it rides the stormy sea. It's in the dream of every man that figures for joys to be. You read it in the faces of toilers homeward bound; It spurs the sturdy pioneer who clears a patch of ground, It stands beside a whirling lathe and delves within a mine, It swings the ax in forest wild and fells the mighty pine; It's stamped on every mother's face who brings a babe to birth; It is the seed of every good that blossoms on the earth.

It's not alone in facing death, when that grim duty asks, It's facing life from day to day, with all its dreary tasks; It's keeping faith with those you love, its standing firm and true And bearing all life's bitterness for those who trust in you; It's clinging to your glorious dreams when doubts and griefs assail, It's trying for a splendid goal, and smiling though you fail.

The soldier shares it with his king, the toiler with his chief; The self-same courage all must own who feels the touch of grief, Rich cowards will be cowards still, Despite their sums of gold, For courage is the gift of god and can't be bought and sold; And all who tread the path of life and scorn to stoop to sin, Have earned the glory of the great —for courage makes them kin.

—Edgar A. Guest.

If he knows his lessons, he's a smart aleck; if he doesn't, he's a dumbbell. If he has ideas, he's a crank; if he doesn't he's a numbskull. If he spends his money, he's a spendthrift; if he doesn't, he's a tightwad. If he's quiet he's a high batter; if he's sociable, he's a pain. SHORT RAIL LINE BUILT OF "SCRAPS"

Primitive Steel Highway in Early Washington.

In early days Dr. D. S. Baker built between Walla Walla and Wallula the first railroad in the interior of Washington...

The road was 32 miles long. Its rails were of wood, with strap iron nailed on the upper sides to provide traction for the engine wheels...

Lifelike, though it was, the story gave the "strap-iron" contraption the fun-poking name "Rawhide Railroad"...

Frequent delays were occasioned when the straps of iron came loose and rolled up under the engine...

The Rawhide railroad was built in 1868, when most of Washington was wilderness. What strikes the Evergreen state has made since that time!

—Leo A. Berk in the National Geographic Magazine.

Washing Woollens

To be safe, test new woollens for color fastness before washing, by squeezing a sample or inconspicuous portion in lukewarm water for five minutes or so.

For the washing, briefly: make rich, lukewarm or cool suds with mild, neutral soap-detergent. Put in the garment and wash quickly, by gently forcing the suds through and through the material.

Rinse the garment thoroughly in lukewarm or cool water. Squeeze out the water, or put it through a wringer, adjusted loosely. Don't twist. It is helpful, where practical, to roll woollen garments in a dry turkish towel to absorb the excess moisture.

KASHMIR VALE FULL OF CHARM

Srinagar Is a Lovely Place for a Vacation.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—W. H. S. Service.

AS WARM weather approaches, the Vale of Kashmir, one of the famous garden spots of the world, beckons to the vacationists of India. Its wooded hillsides...

The Vale of Kashmir lies among the lower Himalayas, north of the Indian Punjab. One reaches Srinagar, the summer capital of the native state known as the domain of the Maharaja of Jammu and Kashmir, over a long route by rail and motor.

Almost at once on leaving Rawalpindi the motor road begins to climb. Up and up through the deodar-clad slopes of the lower mountain the road twists and turns, the heated air of the plains grows cool and invigorating.

Everything seems amusing and interesting. Ruffled pinks swing from the ceiling, though you may have no need of them. Your deft and turbaned servants patter barefooted about the rooms, unrolling your bedding on the stringed charpoys.

Native Chauffeurs Are Speedy. The road from Rawalpindi to Srinagar is a well-built motor road, some 200 miles long, and it lies through the mountains north of the Pir Panjal pass.

Quite the contrary. You spend two nights in dak bungalows (resthouses) along the way, the second at Baramulla, which lies at the edge of the great depression known as the Vale of Kashmir.

From Baramulla one can go the rest of the way by boat, up the Jhelum river; but you may prefer to drive. The last 35 miles lie across a level stretch, the road bordered on either side by slender poplars.

The people passed along the way are quite different from those one sees in India. Ekkas and tongas, the two-wheeled horse-drawn vehicles of the country, draw aside to let you pass.

The Vale of Kashmir is a level valley about 80 miles long and averaging about 20 miles in width. It lies, a great oval, surrounded by mountains green with deodar and spruce on the lower reaches and white with snow until well into the early summer. Skies of an incredible blue complete a color scheme of fairly loveliness.

Quaint Scenes in Srinagar. Seven curious bridges span the river, and along the shore quaint old wooden houses lean sometimes at a rakish angle. Many of the city streets end in wide stone steps leading down to the river's edge.

Seven curious bridges span the river, and along the shore quaint old wooden houses lean sometimes at a rakish angle. Many of the city streets end in wide stone steps leading down to the river's edge.

Also there is the interesting river life. A large part of the population of Srinagar lives afloat. Odd, long, pointed boats, called dangas, with superstructures hung with mats of woven reeds, are the only homes which thousands of Kashmiris ever know.

The native of more ample means has a better boat. Walls of wood replace the woven mats, and as better and better financial status is indicated, so the boats improve. The best are comfortable and well-furnished house boats, such as one might see upon the River Thames.

mar gardens, the houseman goes along and serves a perfect meal under the spreading chinar trees. When you plan a morning in the bazaars, the houseman follows respectfully behind, your guide. Your days are carpeted with ease and your home is a joy, thanks to the willing service of an able houseman.

Where but in Kashmir could one call back to a houseman as one is leaving home for all day, "we will have guests for dinner tonight at nine o'clock," and return to find everything in perfect order, fresh flowers everywhere, the table set in holiday attire, and a course dinner perfectly planned?

Many of the Kashmiris are fine looking, the women especially having beautiful eyes and quite regular features. Like other native states of the Indian empire, Kashmir has an English resident, or advisory official, and through him more sanitary ways of living are gradually being introduced into the country.

Foreigners Like Kashmir. The foreign element in Srinagar increases yearly. From the terrible heat of the Punjab come English army people, seeking the cool air and health of the hills, and these bring with them the influence of English manners and customs, and, better still, of English fair play.

Shopping is a quaint pastime in this City of the Sun. As one strolls along the Bhand, eager merchants press their wares. Mohamad Jhan assures you that not in all Srinagar—no, not even at Ali Jhan's, his rival—can you procure such embroideries, such fine pashmina, such beautiful designs. Will not the Lady Sahib see?

Or, as the small shikara of a merchant is rowed alongside your boat, devoutly timed to find you at home, he devoutly spreads his wares. He is insistent that you see his treasures. "Only looking, Lady Sahib. Not buying, only looking." The foxy merchant well knows his goods are tempting. He is sure that some time you will buy.

The native industries of Kashmir, alas, have cheapened and some have almost died out entirely. No longer, for instance, can one procure the very finest shawls, such as made the name of Kashmir famed throughout the world. One can get good shawls, soft and fine, but the exquisite, old-time shawls are hardly to be found outside of museums.

Pashmina is one of the loveliest products of the land. It is a soft cream-colored woolen cloth, made from the fine under-hair of the Tibetan goat. The finer weaves are incredibly soft and the shawmaker, hopeful for your order, will show you how a length of it can be drawn through a finger ring.

A much heavier woolen cloth, something akin to Scottish homespun, is called puttoo, and the better weaves make splendid outing clothes.

Heraldry Important in Coin-Collecting Game

Coin collectors who specialize in countries other than the United States sooner or later run into a baffling maze of technical, heraldic terms.

If the fever is in the veins, there is no turning back, asserts a writer in the Detroit News. One must either learn something of heraldry or else give up collecting. Such knowledge might stand one in good stead, for often a coin can be identified only by the coat of arms it bears.

Heraldic colors on coins are shown by conventional lines. Gold is shown by dots, red by perpendicular lines, blue by horizontal lines, green by diagonal lines from observer's right to left and black by perpendicular and horizontal lines crossed. Silver or white is shown by blank spaces, but as the lines denoting colors are invariably not cut in the dies, a blank space, unless there are other indicative lines, does not necessarily mean the field is white.

As a special treat the vicar provided sausage-rolls at the tea party for the oldest inhabitants of the village. During the meal he walked around among his guests with a plate of rolls. Presently he stopped beside Mrs. O'Malley, who had taken the sausage out of her roll and left the pastry on the side of her plate.

"Don't you like the pastry, Mrs. O'Malley?" he kindly asked. The old woman looked up and shook her head.

FOR FAILURE PROOF BANKING STRUCTURE

Speaker Outlines Threefold Cooperation Between Bankers, Government Officials and the Public to Maintain Bank Standards

TWO elements beside the bankers themselves are required in order to give the nation universally the type of banking it should have, Francis H. Sisson, president of the American Bankers Association, declared in a recent address. He said that the efficiency of government officials upon whom the people rely to supervise the banks properly, and the patronage of the people themselves are factors in the kind of banks a community shall have.

"There can be no question that the people of the United States should have banks immune from failure and wholly free from bad or questionable banking," Mr. Sisson said. "It is not enough, as President Roosevelt has said, that while some bankers had been incompetent or dishonest, this was not true in the vast majority of our banks. A situation should exist in which there is not even a small minority of bankers open to question. There should be no room for dishonesty or incompetency to exercise any influence in banking anywhere."

"While bad faith and bad management enter the human factor in all types of business, their effects in banking should be surrounded by such special safeguards as to render them no longer a factor in bank failures. The responsibility for bringing this about, however, cannot rest upon the bankers alone, for the means to accomplish it are not wholly in their hands. There are other essential elements."

"One is the efficiency of government supervision. Since we rely so greatly upon supervision, it may, unless it is of the highest order in safeguarding the public interest, create a sense of false security. Supervision should render bad banking impossible, but it has failed to do so. There was supervision by presumably the highest type of bank supervisors in every one of the instances of questionable banking that has shocked the attention of the country during the past three years. Therefore a thorough strengthening of supervision is clearly called for if the people are to rely on it to the fullest extent for the protection of their interests."

The Public's Part
"Another essential factor in maintaining good banks involves the part played by the public in banking. There is certainly a responsibility on the people themselves to support that type of banker whose rigid adherence to sound principles makes a sound bank, rather than to give their patronage to the easy going banker who may be easier to do business with, but whose methods create a weak bank."

"Bank customers are charged with a great responsibility in protecting the safety of their banks in respect to their utilization of the assets of the banks as borrowers. Banks have failed because many of their loans and securities, created in good faith by bankers in cooperating with the business interests of the country, proved unsound under subsequent conditions. An unsound loan is created by the borrower as well as the banker. A bank is only as sound as its community, and this applies also to the banking structure as a whole in relation to the economic condition of the nation as a whole.

"A bank is truly a semi-public institution, but in a reciprocal sense—it has its obligations to the public, but so has the public equal obligations to the bank. No one who has not sound banking principles at heart has any business in a bank whether as a banker or as a customer."

"The banker is a semi-public servant. He is charged with the heaviest of responsibilities and obligations that occur in our economic life. But he can meet these fully only through the cooperation of good laws, good public officials who are empowered to exercise authority over his bank, and good business methods on the part of business men generally who utilize his bank. Only through such cooperation by all elements in our nation's community life can we be assured of a failure-proof banking structure."

"The Administration at Washington has taken hold of this problem with a firm grasp of essentials and is exercising splendid leadership toward the desired end. The strongest feature of the government program will be found in recognizing the joint responsibility of the public, of business and of government officials together with the bankers themselves in creating the kind of banking the nation should have."

Improved Pasture Pays

IMPROVED pastures are a cheap source of feed for stock. A farmer in New Hampshire, cooperating with his county agent top-dressed his 5 acres of pasture with 500 pounds of complete fertilizer at a cost of $75, reports the United States Department of Agriculture. After 4 weeks he turned his cows out on this pasture. Tests made during the six weeks the cows grazed there showed that his herd produced 7,000 pounds more milk than they did in the same period the previous year, although the farmer had one cow fewer and fed 800 pounds less grain. Based on current milk prices he made $189 on the extra milk and saved $16 on the grain, netting him an increase in income of $120.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.
