THE AMERICAN CREED

"I believe in the United States of America as a government of the people, by the people, for the people; whose just powers are derived from the consent of the governed; a democracy in a republic; a sovereign nation of many sovereign states; a perfect union, one and inseparable, established upon those principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; to protect its flag; and to defend it against all enemies."

A waterworks system is the most essential thing for Matador at the present time. We can never have it unless we get busy on it.

We call attention to the large Oldsmobile ad in this issue of the News. The reductions advertised may be of interest to the prospective buyer.

The hot days for the past few days is causing the cotton to grow leaps by bounds. However another rain within the next few days will be greatly appreciated and of much benefit to the crops.

They have seized $500,000 worth of liquor in the city of New Orleans. We are wondering what will become of this booze? The chances are that the seizure is the last account you will ever hear of.

For a real live bunch of business men, where is there a town that will beat Matador? The business men of Matador are letting the world know they are here in an advertising way and they are getting business too.

Lots of new people are coming to Matador. New people will bring new blood and new ideas will prevail. Some of those old ones who have been in the rut are going to give to come out of it and do something or else quit the game.

If you don't think that Matador is growing you should take a look around town at the building and improvement that is going on. The demand for rent houses in this town is becoming greater each day and as a result a real building boom is going to be on before long.

There has been a lot of weddings in Matador within the last few months and we haven't had a single job of wedding stationery to print. It may not be the style out here but where we came from we did a lot of this kind of printing.

It has been claimed that labor was the primal curse, but that it was softened into mercy, and made the pledge of cheerful days and night without a groan and now it is dutiful task that an honest man owes to his family and himself.

The announcement has been made that the fall and winter term of the Matador public school will begin on Monday September 14th. The enrollment is expected to be larger this fall than ever known before and a greater effort will be made by both board and teachers to meet the demands of the greater needs.

A dog and pony show lit in our town just in time for the big co-operative meeting that is being conducted at the Methodist church. Of course such shows will attract some people, and take a few dollars out of the town, but thank goodness their profits will not be so large on account of the meeting being progress.

An Episode of Silver Bow

By WALTER M. APPEL

(Copyright)

THE light was burning late in the Bank of Silver Bow. At his desk sat the bookkeeper, marshaling the columns of figures that danced before his eyes in an interminable procession. With the new month came the usual burden of discounted time-checks from the men who worked in the big mines above the camp. Mel Allen expressed a yawn as he glanced wearily at the clock in front of him. "Ten o'clock, and not half done," he muttered.

As he bent once more to his books, the noise of a key in the latch interrupted his labor. In the dim light he made out the features of Dick Barker, the junior member of the firm of Smith & Barker, his employers, the proprietors of the bank. "Hallo—still at it?" was the greeting of the newcomer.

"Yes, there's a lot of them," quietly answered the younger. "It will take till midnight at least."

He resumed his work while Barker slipped into a chair and watched him. The older man was restless and uneasy, and at intervals cleared his throat as though about to speak. "Say, Mel," he finally ejaculated. "A grunt from the bookkeeper showed that he was listening. 'I've got my luck with me tonight,' Barker resumed. 'I could make a big winning if I had the money.'"

"You let the wheel alone," muttered the man at the desk. "You'll lose like the rest of them."

"No, but I'm lucky tonight," persisted the elder. Then he went on: "Now look here, Mel. Tomorrow is the first, and I know that you've got plenty of money in the safe. I'm going to take a couple of thousand, double it between now and midnight, and have it back here long before you quit work. Now don't tell me what Bob Smith would say. Of course he'd object. But I'm going to do it, and Bob will never be the wiser, unless you tell him—which of course you won't. I'll have it back by midnight sure, so you needn't bother about it." The other watched him sleepily. "Be sure you shut the front door," he said as he bent over his books again.

The interruption had disturbed his thoughts. The figures would not stand still before his eyes. "I wonder if he closed the door," he thought, as he peered out into the semi-darkness of the outer office. In the shadows his thoughts ran riot. He wondered what they were doing at home—his father and mother and "the kid," as he affectionately termed his younger brother. And Leo—he hadn't heard from her for a week. Was she trying to forget him, to break off their engagement? He pictured that last evening when he had said good-by and she had promised to wait for him. Mel's head drooped lower and lower till it rested on his book. The neglected lamp sputtered feebly and went out, but Mel never stirred.

A rustling noise awoke the sleeper. He realized in an instant that he had been asleep on duty, and a cold breeze warned him that the door was open. He was fully awake now and every nerve was strained to catch some inkling of a possible intruder who, he reached for his revolver, always handy on the desk before him. In the darkness he missed it, but as he drew his hand away, he felt the weapon. Quickly turning his wrist to grasp it, he knocked it farther away from him and it slipped through his fingers over the edge of the desk. At the same moment came the bark of a pistol shot, and Mel pitched forward to the floor with a low, choking moan.

The Silver Bow Evening Times of August 1 made the following reference to the affair:

"Unable to face the punishment that awaited him for embezzling two thousand dollars of his employers' funds, Melrose E. Allen, the bookkeeper of the Silver Bow bank, shot and instantly killed himself last night while working in the office of the bank. When found this morning Allen was lying on the floor behind his desk with a bullet wound behind the right ear. Beside him lay his revolver, with one chamber empty. The body was fast becoming rigid and life had evidently been extinct for some hours. An examination of the dead man's books reveals a shortage of about two thousand dollars and it was undoubtedly the unavoidable discovery of his crime that led the young man to his rash act. He was twenty-four years of age and unmarried."

"Mr. Dick Barker of the firm of Smith & Barker, by whom Allen was employed, speaks in the highest terms of the dead man. His honesty has been hitherto unquestioned and it is due to this fact that he has had entire control over the funds in the bank's vaults. Mr. Barker telegraphed particulars of the son's death to the aged father in Massachusetts, asking for instructions as to the disposition of the remains. The father, evidently overcome by the disgrace to his family, in reply merely directed Mr. Barker to bury the body in the potter's field at Silver Bow. Mr. Barker, however, who is well known for his many acts of public charity, will at his own expense have the remains decently interred. The funeral will probably be held tomorrow."

FORD NEWS LETTER

A change in the policy of Henry Ford's publication, the Dearborn Independent, was announced today. Advertising will be accepted beginning with the October 3 1925 issue of the Magazine.

The Dearborn Independent has not carried a line of paid advertising since it has been the property of Mr. Ford and the change in policy reflects a growing feeling on the part of the public to expect as a buying guide a certain amount of advertising in magazines of its choice.

However, advertising in the Dearborn Independent is to be kept within definite limits. Under the new policy the magazine is to be increased in size from 32 pages to 48 pages but the amount of space available in each issue will only be thirty-three and a third percent of the total space inside, or, in the 48 page magazine only 16 pages will carry advertisements, exclusive of covers. This rule is said to be unique in the publishing field. Other requirements are made relative to the kind and nature of advertising which will be acceptable.

The Dearborn Independent, then a small country weekly news paper, was acquired by Mr. Ford in 1918. All paid advertising was dropped and the paper changed to a sixteen-page magazine. In May of this year, with the installation of new presses, the magazine was increased to 32 pages of standard size. The Dearborn Independent, since becoming a Ford property, has become one of the most widely discussed publications in the world. It is distributed to over 600,000 paid subscribers.

Los Angeles to Detroit at a total cost of $22.20.

That is what it costs in a Chevrolet according to Joseph L. Rogers, Hollywood, and A. V. Gallina, Los Angeles, insurance men who recently made the trip of 3,104 miles at an expense of $44.40 for gasoline, oil and food or seven-tenths of a cent per man per mile.

The Chevrolet used was asedan owned by Mr. Gallina. It had been driven only 630 miles before they decided to make a vacation tour to the Detroit home of Mr. Roger's brother, Clifford W. Rogers.

Alternating at the wheel, they made the trip in five days and 18 hours, only a day and one half longer than the time of the transcontinental flyers which travel a much shorter distance due to the windings of the motor roads.

The tourists gave no particular thought either to the speed or economy of the trip until they were questioned in Detroit by the manager of a Chevrolet service station where they stopped on arrival to change the crank case oil. He induced them to visit W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company, General Motors building. After inspecting and driving the car, Mr. Knudsen pronounced it in excellent mechanical condition.

"The trip was in no sense a stunt," said Mr. Rogers. "We had no accidents except a puncture, the repair of which incidentally is included in the expense budget. Our only adventure was finding two Indian children nearly dead of thirst on a lonely stretch of desert road in New Mexico. They fell on their knees when we gave them a bottle of water.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE
 The second outbreak of the foot and-mouth disease in the State of Texas within ten months was confirmed on July 29 on the same premises, 20 miles southeast of Houston, where the previous outbreak began. Immediate steps were taken by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture and the State authorities to eradicate the infection and up to the present time only one other infected herd has been found.

Even before a definite diagnosis had been made, the Bureau of Animal Industry and the State Livestock Sanitary Board had a force of experienced men assembled so that there was no delay in handling the situation. The infected herd, consisting of 96 cattle, was slaughtered and burned on July 31, and on the same a quarantine order was issued by the Secretary of Agriculture for the protection of livestock and other interests. This order placed under quarantine a large portion of Harris County. The second infected herd, discovered on August 5, was within this quafan timed area and consisted of only 18 head of cattle. This herd was slaughtered and buried the following day. As these animals had been in contact with other animals prompt action is being taken to trace and slaughter all cattle in that locality which had been exposed.

An investigation is being conducted to ascertain if possible the source of the outbreak. Up to the present time the indications are that the present occurrence of the disease was due to infection harbored in the manner on the premises since the outbreak of last year. Regardless of the source of infection, it seems that the promptness with which the situation was handled prevented the disease from spreading over a large area. Dr. Marion Imes, representing the Bureau of Animal Industry, and Dr. N. F. Williams, the State veterinarian, are working together to control the disease and the State Livestock Sanitary Board is giving its undivided attention to the problem.

The outbreak of last year occurred during the latter part of September on a ranch about 20 miles southeast of Houston and extended to other premises in Harris and Galveston Counties, involving 148 diseased and exposed herds. Doctor Imes had charge of the eradication work for the Department of Agriculture in the outbreak, which was suppressed within thirty days.

SIXTY YEARS AGO WAS A DIFFERENT STORY

Sixty years ago housewives considered gas service cheap at six to nine dollars a thousand cubic feet. One or two cities in Texas that enjoyed gas service paid that much. That was in the days of the wood fire and kerosene lamp. Now every sized community has gas for heating and many other uses at a cost which is a small percentage of that figure. Some of these communities get natural gas. Others get manufactured gas. The latter costs a little more generally but nothing like

In the old days says the Texas Public Service Information Bureau. In the case of natural gas the service has been made available through the investment of gigantic sums in gas wells, pipelines, compressors and distribution systems. In the case of manufacturing gas the items are similar putting stills, ovens, and holders in the places of wells and long transmission lines.

The great reduction in the cost of this service to users is explained by the progress in engineering that has been made during the time that has passed since sixty years ago—and by the assembling of great sums of capital from investors all over the land by investment houses that were able to see the need for the essential service of gas.
