Death Toll At New High Over Nation

None Injured In County As Sane Holiday Is Passed

Death celebrated the Fourth of July with the heaviest toll for a similar period in the country's history according to the news agencies yesterday afternoon. It was estimated that the total number to die from violent deaths during the three-day holiday would probably exceed 700 lives, with Texas ranking 3rd in the grim race. California was ranking first place during the afternoon. Texas had recorded 49 lives lost during the holiday week end. Perhaps one of the most unusual facts found in gathering the information regarding the great loss of life, was that fireworks accounted for only four lives, while motor accidents claimed the largest number with drownings holding second place.

Quite Fourth Passes Here

Motley county enjoyed a safe and sane Fourth, without a single injury of any nature being reported. Peace officers also spent an easy day without making any arrests, according to Deputy Sheriff H. H. Courtney.

Most paces of business in town, including some cafes, were closed during the entire day, and the streets were deserted until after midnight.

Many local residents spent a quiet day of rest in their homes while others attended festivals in this section of the Panhandle and visited relatives and friends within driving radius from the city. No motor accidents were reported. Many farmers did not observe the holiday but continued with planting and cultivation, which had been delayed because of the drouth situation, relieved some ten days ago.

Quickie Rains Damage Bridge

Service was resumed over the Quannah, Acme and Pacific Railroad Tuesday after a sudden rain storm striking in Cottle county Saturday night washed-out a bridge between Paducah and Quannah. Several days were required to secure a pile-driver in order to replace the piling of the bridge before service could be resumed.

The rain storm, which was accompanied by a violent electrical display, passed the northeast corner of the county and washed away some of the recently replanted crops.

U. L. Willie, who farms an extensive acreage just east of the Motley county line, declared that all of his crops in the area were washed away or covered up during the rain-fall there was estimated at four inches, falling in a very short length of time.

The storm which caused the damage to the railroad bridge dumped in the neighborhood of eight inches of rain upon a small watershed within a few minutes.

Hot weather has prevailed in this section since Sunday after a promise of more rain was dispelled by a strong southwest wind. Although vegetation, including range grass, is growing rapidly, observers declare that showers would be of much benefit by the last of the week.

New Feature Planned For Old Settlers

All Communities In Two Counties Urged To Aid August Meet

C. C. Haile, president of the Motley-Dickens Counties Old Settlers Association, declared Tuesday that a new feature is being planned for the annual meeting of the group to be held August 24-25. The feature will consist of a definite portion of the program sponsored by each of the communities in Motley and Dickens counties. The representation of each community may be singing, reading, a short play, a speech, a musical feature or any other form of entertainment which is composed of home talent.

A suitable prize will be awarded first, second and third places in the contest, following the decision of impartial judges. There will be no admission fee to take part in the feature, altho each community wishing to enter the contest will need to make arrangements with the program committee before the annual meeting.

Urges Immediate Action

President Haile urges those of each community interested in the entering the contest, make immediate petition to Mrs. M. S. Thacker, secretary of the organization, at Roaring Springs, so that ample time may be allotted the feature when the program is planned. Due to the brief time available, it will be necessary for all communities to confine their features to 15 to 20 minutes or less, Mr. Haile said. All interested in the plan are urged to see or write Mrs. Thacker, or Mr. Haile before the program is arranged.

Newton Jones Is Killed In Auto Accident

Father Of Local Dentist Dies In Saturday Tragedy

Newton M. Jones, 60, Santa Fe railroad employee of Pampa and father of Dr. E. B. Jones of Matador, was instantly killed early Saturday night when his automobile overturned after hitting a concrete bridge six miles south of Childress. After Dr. Jones received word of the accident he left immediately for Childress and thence to San Angelo where funeral services were held.

Alone In Car

Mr. Jones, alone in the car, was traveling south on highway 83 enroute to his former home in San Angelo from Pampa. His car rounded the curve but left the pavement and traveled down the barrow ditch for more than 200 yards before it hit the bridge.

It then hurtled thru the air for 20 feet and landed in the center of the crossroad. The left side of the car was ripped off when the machine hit the bridge, and the entire vehicle was badly damaged. Farmers Reach Scene.

Altho there were no witnesses to the accident, several residents of the area heard the crash. When farmers of the vicinity reached the scene, Jones was dead. He suffered a broken neck and other injuries.

Officers learned that Jones formerly lived at San Angelo, but had been employed at Pampa as a railroad crossing flagman for several months. He was known by a number of people here, having visited here last fall.

Mr. Jones is survived by his wife and at least three children. Further details could not be obtained late yesterday.

Springs Pool Is Mecca For Record Crowd

One of the largest crowds in the history of the Roaring Springs swimming pool sought refuge from the heat, and recreation at the popular West Texas resort during the fourth, according to manager Tom Harris.

Mr. Harris declared that over 400 persons were checked thru the swimming session during the holiday, while a crowd estimated at 3,000 and 5,000 enjoyed the abundant shade and picnic grounds which are adjacent the historic springs.

Many of the visitors to Roaring Springs Tuesday had traveled extensive distances and expressed their entire satisfaction with the advantages offered at the resort.

Date Is Set For Election On New Bonds

City Tax Payers To Vote Again On Paving Of Streets

The City Council meeting in regular session Monday night set Tuesday, July 25, as the date of the second election to issue $6,000 in bonds for the paving of four blocks in the business section of Matador, after Attorney General Gerald C. Mann had ruled that the first election ratified by the voters April 29, was invalid.

The attorney General's decision rendered the first election invalid because insufficient tax levy had been named in order to retire the bonds in a ten year period. Voters ratified the first election by a majority of over 15 to one favoring the bonds.

To Aid Relief Here

In event the issue receives the same reception at the polls as did the former election, plans will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible in order to obtain the WPA grant and get the work under way. The actual local relief situation is expected to be greatly benefited when the paving is started and thus relieve the county of its present burden.

A complete notice of the street improvement bond election is printed in this issue of the Tribune in which the qualification of voters who may take part in the election, is fully explained.

The election was called by the City Council following the presentation of a petition signed by 52 residents, in the exact procedure as the former election, with the exception of the levy which will be slightly larger than the first estimate.

CAUTION LIGHT IS INSTALLED

A new four-way caution signal was installed west of Matador last Saturday by the State Highway Department. The light is located at the intersection of Highways 18 and 28, and the city will bear electricity costs that will amount to about three dollars per month.

The light was installed as a result of the approval of the city council on May 2. Since both highways have a great deal of traffic, it is believed that the signal will be a great step towards preventing accidents, at the intersection.

Nine Crews Making Survey For Cotton Price Adjustment

Application forms for making cotton price adjustment payments were received today by the county agent's office according to Lowell Sharbutt, Administrative Assistant. Applications for the 1.6 cent cotton adjustment payment will be submitted after a performance on farms reveals that the cotton allotment has not been overplanted. The amount farmers will receive is derived by multiplying the adjusted yield of line per acre by 1.6 cent, Mr. Sharbutt explained.

Nine performance supervisors aided by two chainmen each are rapidly checking the acreage and turning the maps into the county agent's office daily. Two planimeter computers are calculating the acreage almost as rapidly as the maps are received. Clerks are tabulating the information on the forms and preparing them for the signatures of interested parties.

To Notify Producers

A summary sheet showing the number of acres in each crop is being prepared for the supervisor's report, and a copy will be sent for approval of each producer who has his crops measured. If the cotton allotment has not been overplanted, the cotton price adjustment payment application will be ready for signature, but under no circumstances will it be necessary for the farmer to call at the county agent's office until after the summary sheet showing planted crops acreage has been received. Each producer will be notified when the application is ready for his signature.

To Dispose Of Excess

Where summary sheets show that the cotton allotments have been overplanted, the producer will be notified of the excess and given an opportunity to dispose of it. When the excess acreage has been disposed of, a check will be made of the farm, and if the cotton allotment is then not overplanted, the farmer will be notified to sign his cotton price adjustment application.

Cotton price adjustment payments may possibly earn Motley county farmers in the neighborhood of one fourth million dollars for 1939, according to Mr. Sharbutt's estimate.

Crowd Invades Stamford For Holiday Rodeo

Thousands Pack City; Calf Roping Holds Spotlight

What proved to be one of the most successful celebrations of its kind ever to be held in Stamford was staged at that city July 3, 4, and 5. The tenth annual Texas Cowboy Reunion attracted thousands from all sections of the state, and the feature was viewed by a capacity crowd.

The ranch hand rodeo contestants, many from the local Matador Ranch, put on a show that left the Fourth of July fans begging for more. Sharing the spotlight with the younger cowhands were a number of the old time cowboys whose calf roping event was one of the popular features of the show.

Sponsors Compete

Forty-nine sponsors were entered in the main contest, and they put their horses through fancy paces, some riding almost perfectly. A record was set when thirty-eight cities competed in the cutting horse contest.

Local residents who attended the celebration were Ed Russell, Mrs. J. W. Drace, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Rattan and son, Garland, Mr. and Mrs. Don T. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bird and daughter, Iletta, C. Cattle Truck Rolls Into Creek

A large cattle truck belonging to H. D. Taylor of Plainview rolled away from the truck parking lot at Bob's Oil Well filling station and overturned in the creek which borders the station property, about 10 o'clock last night. The truck contained 13 head of cattle bound for the Ft. Worth market, and while the cat-been recovered at 11 o'clock. One yearling was slightly injured, but otherwise the damage appeared to be confined to the big truck. The high side-boards were broken and a fender was damaged from the impact after the truck left the highway and turned over in the creek.

Mr. Taylor had parked the truck on the parking lot and apparently did not secure the emergency brake, as he went across the highway to Bob's Cook Shack to eat his supper. It is assumed the motion of the cattle in the truck started it to rolling down the slight incline to the highway, which slopes sharply east of the parking lot.

It was believed feasible to wait until this morning before attempting to bring the truck to an upright position on the highway.

'Come Into the Kitchen', Invites Modern Woman

The kitchen today can be the loveliest room in the average home! "This is possible because time and labor saving electric servants keep it clean, cool and cozy," says Miss Eudora Hawkins (inset), home economist for the West Texas Utilities, who frequently visits in the numerous homes here which now are equipped with the electric range. "Come into the kitchen' is a standing invitation in thousands of homes where women are proud to show the beauty of cooking equipment and the ease with which they cook." Miss Hawkins declares. She insists that the electric range is the foundation for an all-electric kitchen, supplemented by electric refrigerator, dishwasher, hot-water heater and the many smaller appliances designed to "take drudgery out of the home."

Demon of Deep Water

The swordfish has only within recent years become the prize of the sportsman. The largest swordfish caught with rod and line weighed 842 pounds. Commercially, the swordfish is taken with the harpoon, from a "pulpit" in the bow of a small boat. Swordfish are found on both sides of the Atlantic, and are sometimes plentiful during the Summer off the coast of New England, although, like many other species, it is a fish of mystery coming and going in schools of varying size. It follows smaller fish, such as the herring, mackerel and bluefish, and fishermen say that the long sword of the upper jaw is used in killing as the swordfish thrashes through a terrified school of food fish. The swordfish has been known accidentally to ram a wooden boat and pierce its side. Lynn Bogue Hunt painted the swordfish for the 1939 Wildlife Week poster stamps, distributed by the National Wildlife Federation.

NO one of the forty-eight states in the Union is entirely free of aliens—even those states hundreds of miles from any port of entry to the United States. Graphically illustrated above is the alien problem of the United States—a problem that is admittedly one of the major problems to be faced in the nation's fight for democracy.

The figures above give the number of white aliens, 21 or over, according to the 1930 census. They are in effect the total number of aliens eligible for citizenship in each of the states. A long-term attack on this vital problem was recently inaugurated by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, through its 1,500 subordinate lodges in cities, towns and villages throughout the country.

In most of these lodges, preliminary and first steps have already been taken to set the campaign in motion. The Elks campaign is based on a four-point program. It calls for a survey of the nation's aliens; a campaign to sell aliens on Americanism and American citizenship; instruction for citizenship; and an active part by the Elks in seeing that the aliens do acquire citizenship.

In each lodge there is, or will be set up a permanent naturalization committee. This committee not only guides Elks activities in naturalization, but seeks to make these activities community-wide. Such a community-wide effort is a forward step for democracy. Dr. Edward J. McCormick, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, believes.

Automobile Wrecks Laid To Drivers

"I AM fully convinced," writes Isabel Dean in the July issue of Good Housekeeping Magazine, "that the biggest accident cause is not the car or the highway or even the demon rum—it is a loose screw in the mind of the driver." Miss Dean's article, "I've Had an Accident" is one of an aggressive series in a campaign for greater motor safety and the reduction of highway accidents now in progress.

"Getting behind the wheel of a car has a curious effect on human nature and normally decent people become unpleasantly transformed and discourteous when they drive. In addition to danger to life involved, bad motoring manners hold up traffic and waste time and fuel. Of all traffic delays, 25% grow out of common discourtesy. Psychanalysts have been uncovering reasons for some kinds of childish misbehavior in an automobile. A car is everything that the small boy in men," says Miss Dean. "Most people admit they drive too fast when there is no need for it. The human eye makes a deceptive accommodation to the sensation of speed, so that high speeds seem slow to higher ones. Most people are convinced that accidents happen only to other people and not to themselves. As a veteran of an accident, Miss Dean says they can happen to anybody."

NOT A SPORTSMAN?

There are about eleven million licensed hunters, of large and small game, in the United States. But perhaps you never owned a gun, never fired a gun, don't want to. There are more fishermen in this country than there are followers of any other sport, not excepting baseball, according to careful surveys. But maybe you don't fish. A camera or a flower garden, bird houses and feeding stations, a hiking club, nature study—maybe some of these things represent your interest in the outdoors. Or, it is just possible, you are an in-door American? If you should be, don't say "Wildlife Week has no meaning for me." If you eat, it has meaning for you. And if your interest in groceries includes the groceries of coming generations in the United States, Wildlife Week has plenty of meaning for you. Jay N. Darling, founder of the National Wildlife Federation, sponsoring Wildlife Week - which is March 19 to 25 - points out that hunting and fishing are only a very small part of the dividends we draw on our capital of natural wealth. Conditions of land and water essential to wildlife are highly important to all life, including the life of mankind. Exploitation that outraces the sportsman and the nature lover because it decreases the supply of fish and game also is a menace to our national well being. Slaughter of the forests, pollution of the streams, drainage of the natural reservoirs for the control of water tables, abuse of the grasslands and the grazing regions, destruction of marine and lake commercial fisheries are among man's crimes against the outdoors. Wildlife Week is a summons to all Americans, to join hands for the protection and the restoration of the resources that give us food and employment, as well as sports and recreation.

It's Tulip Time In Holland

Wooden shoes, a big armful of tulips, and a pretty Dutch maiden serve to tell the story of Tulip Time at Holland, Michigan, where the annual National Tulip Festival has just been held. The young lady perched on the new Chevrolet is Miss Vera Kirchner, one of the hostesses welcoming motorists who visit this spot where millions of tulips are in bloom.

ANCHORS AWEIGH

CHURCH OF EL CARMEN. Rising above the roofs of Villa Obregon are three large polychrome-tiled domes that belong to the ancient convent of the Carmelites, built in the seventeenth century. As compared to many other fanes in Mexico, this one is of no particular consequence, nevertheless, it does repay a hasty visit for certain features it contains.

Going thru a neglected courtyard, one entered by a doorway that gives the impression of entering by the rear door—the Trademans' entrance. The interior of the church left me unimpressed—I had been spoiled by seeing too many others—much finer, larger and interesting. Puebla tiles are seen in lieu of baseboards. Paintings by Mexico's great colonial artists; Cabrera and Villalpando, are but second class work of these masters. In the Sacristy—dressing room of the priests—vestments were shown me that were embroidered by the nuns. Here the lace is made from the very fine fibers of cacti. Rather incongruous, I thought, that two such products, lace and pulque, should be derived from the cacti. Nature's original intention was for neither of these things, but man, in his ingenuity, has usurped them for other purposes. The finest object made of porcelain that I saw in all of Mexico I saw in this church. It was a statue of the Virgin of El Carmen, a masterpiece of Puebla porcelain work, dating from the seventeenth century.

THE DEAD OF GUANAJUATA. The greatest collection of mummified corpses in Mexico are to be seen in Guanajuata—a sight too gruesome for some "cream-puff" tourist. A whole room full of them, in standing position, greet the astonished (and shocked) observer. Here in the basement of the church of El Carmen is a small collection of desiccated corpses lying in their caskets open to the gaze of all those who enter the premises. This collection should be seen first, if possible, and prepare the observer for the greater collection in the other city. Perhaps, one look at these at Villa Obregon, will suffice without extending one's macabre sight-seeing. The corpses one sees here were formerly interred in the basement beneath the altars, in absolute privacy. Then came the day when the caskets were opened and exposed to view to show the remarkable state of their preservation through desiccation. Here one sees the 'great and mighty' who once were connected with this church—priests, nuns, Spanish noblemen, and a civilian (a rich one, perhaps, who had given much of his wealth to the church to earn for him this distinguished honor). And there one sees them attired in their clothes of the period, dusty, musty looking. Empty shells 'left by life's unchanging sea.' And one cannot help but ponder on the transitoriness of human life. Lines from Omar Khayyan come to mind: "Think, in this batter'd Caravanserai "Whose portals are alternate Night and Day, "How Sultan after Sultan with his pomp "Abode his hour or two, and went his way."

confronted with the large bronze statue of the martyred President Obregon with his one arm. In an illuminated well at the base one can see the exact spot where he was assassinated by a religious fanatic, after he had been elected President of Mexico for the second time. The Mexicans honor their great not only by erecting monuments to them, but by naming many things after them—streets, plazas, towns. The present city which was once known as "San Angel," was changed to "Villa Obregon" in the late President's honor. And what a fine thing it is to keep their glorious memories of the Mexican great, ever green, these commemorations—Let's forget!"

A VERY OLD NEIGHBOR

On the outskirts of Villa Obregon, dwells a very old neighbor. Once he was a neighbor to be feared, but not now. He has all his fiery, destructive nature and is now innocuous in his old age. I have reference to Pedregal—the ancient lava flow between here and Toluca—about six miles long, about 100 feet wide, and from twenty to thirty feet in height.

Texas Circus Wins Friends In Panhandle

The Gainesville Community Circus which presented three performances in Floydada Monday and Tuesday under the auspices of the American Legion, won hundreds of new friends in the Panhandle. Between 100 and 150 residents of this county are believed to have attended, according to estimates, and every expression concerning the performance has been of complete satisfaction and praise for the high class entertainment.

Gene Howe, publisher of the Amarillo Globe-News, accompanied by Mayor Ross Rodgers of Amarillo, officially opened the circus on the plains at Floydada Monday night.

Perhaps the most outstanding feature of the unique community enterprise which has attracted nationwide attention, is the "professional" treatment of the show. Altho the entire personnel is composed of business and professional people of Gainesville, the acts are equally as absorbing and well conducted as those performed by professional circus people.

The show equipment is new and every feature is clean and wholesome in every respect.

OLD ROAD

Abandoned to the grass of wild mesquite Like hairs that cover some old maverick brand, A rutted road, like half-forgotten dreams

Of those who followed it across this land, Can take my thoughts and show me many things

Of freighters, fighting men and buffalo, Of courage, triumphs, dreams and wagon trains,

Of cattle drives and souls of long ago.

The past's last load across the last frontier Hag long been freighted by a phantom hand;

The wheels of time have ground to bitter dust The chivalry which blossomed in this land.

And yet an old road conjures up for me Those souls who triumphed on its dim old bed

Who hitched their wagons to a brighter star And looked beyond the place to which it led.

NEW BOOKS

Matador City Library

"LISTEN! THE WIND"

"Listen! the Wind," by Anne Morrow Lindbergh, is one of the year's outstanding non-fiction books. Not only has Mrs. Lindbergh taken part in a history-making flight, but she has proved herself to be a genius in relating dramatic episodes and in describing them in a beautiful manner.

In the foreword to the book, Colonel Lindbergh says: "Listen! the Wind" is about a period in aviation that is now gone, but which was probably more interesting than any the future will bring. As time passes, the perfection of machinery tends to insulate men from contact with the elements in which they live.

"The 'stratosphere' planes of the future will cross the ocean without any sense of the water below—like a train tunneling thru a mountain, they will be aloof from both the problems and the beauty of the earth's surface—wind and heat and moonlight take-offs will be of no concern to the transatlantic passenger. His only contact with these elements will be in accounts such as this book contains."

From the adventures of this period, Mrs. Lindbergh has selected one whose story covers completely and perfectly the excitement, problems, and dangers of pioneering in the air. It is the story of the flight made by the Lindberghs across the Atlantic Ocean from Africa to Brazil in December, 1933, at the end of their survey of the North Atlantic air routes.

"Listen! the Wind" is so dramatic and beautifully written that one scarcely realizes that Mrs. Lindbergh has skillfully included in her narrative each detail of importance concerning the plans for the flight, the final preparation of the plane, the manipulation of the radio, and the actual piloting.

In addition to the foreword, Colonel Lindbergh has supplied the jacket design, the full-page map drawings, and an appendix giving an itemized list of the equipment carried on the flight.

Miss Maisey Reeves arrived here Friday for a visit with her mother, Mrs. W. E. Reeves. Miss Reeves teaches in the Boude Storey Junior High School, Oak Cliff, and has just returned from a trip to Cuba.

We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the many beautiful gifts tendered during the storm shower Thursday afternoon. Altho it will be impossible for us to thank each individual personally for the gift bestowed, we want everyone to know of our gratitude.

And carrots make you beautiful. All children should be dutiful!
Oh, dear—it seems, the living day.
That's all that Nurse and Mother say!

It must be grand to be so old. You never, never need be told. Oh, well—some day when I'm grown up, I'll eat DELICIOUS food: Not just because it's "good for me," but just because it's good.

Toward a Greater America

As long ago as June, 1916, there was born in the editorial offices of Good Housekeeping Magazine an idea which, recurring at different times and in different places since then, has finally emerged into what may well be the beginning of an American renaissance of patriotism.

In an editorial appearing twenty-three years ago in that month's issue of Good Housekeeping, William Frederick Bigelow, editor of the magazine, wrote:

"The stability of a democracy rests upon the honest participation in its forms of government of a majority of the enfranchised citizens. So long, however, as a mere majority support certain ideals, those ideals will merely live, not flourish. Only through the driving power of a public opinion so general as to merit the usual term 'united' can worthwhile advances be made. Now any man buttonholed on the street will tell you that we need a great increase of both intelligence and honesty in our electorate. Charges—and proofs—of fraud are the commonplace of every election season. . . ."

"At the present time—and we have never heard that it was ever otherwise—it is the custom for a young man who has come of age during the year to join the ranks of the voters without any attention being paid to him. Yesterday he was a child legally; today he is a citizen with as much influence at the ballot-box as the most learned and experienced man. He makes his way to the polls, casts his ballot, and goes out to swell the ranks of those who look upon voting as a matter of slight importance and never once think of the significance attached to the casting of a ballot. It does not occur to him that voting constitutes the chief difference between being a citizen and being a subject. . . ."

"Our proposal is that hereafter on the Fourth of July—which we at present don't know what to do with—there be suitable services in convenient places for the men and women who will vote for the first time at the following November election. Certificates of citizenship, bearing the state seal and appropriate wording, and signed by some designated official, should be given to each new voter, who should take an oath of citizenship, the duties and privileges of which should be explained in a public address by some well-known man of unquestioned probity. The occasion could be made very impressive, and in a few years would doubtless be looked upon as the public event of the year."

In Good Housekeeping for June, 1921, for July, 1933, and for July, 1935, Bigelow repeated his advocacy of a national Citizenship Day. The General Federation of Women's Clubs took up the banner and through its Department of American Citizenship launched a campaign for recognition of such a day.

Now, in elaborate ceremonies which recently took place at Manitowoc, Wisconsin, sponsored by the State Board of Vocational and Adult Education in cooperation with the University of Wisconsin Extension Service, when 350 native Americans were inducted impressively into the privileges of citizenship, and in scheduled observances in New York and elsewhere, there has come recognition of the wisdom of beginning the voting careers of the country's young people with fitting solemnity. This movement inaugurated by Good Housekeeping is expected to reach greater and greater proportions.

LET'S QUIT ROWING IN CIRCLES —

Babies Should Be Protected During Summer

As the thermometer shows signs of climbing higher and higher, some of the ways by which babies may be kept well and comfortable during the hot weather and may be safeguarded against "summer complaint" are outlined by the Texas State Department of Health.

"The best way to keep your baby well," advises the department, "is to take your well baby to your doctor regularly for advice and supervision, and to follow the doctor's instructions carefully and very faithfully. If your baby develops any digestive trouble, call your family doctor at once. He'll tell you what to do."

"Summer complaint, or cholera infantum as it is sometimes called and other digestive diseases that are dangerous for babies, are germ diseases. The germs that cause the disease get into the baby's food or in the water given the baby to drink. Babies who are nursed by their mothers and who are given cooled, boiled water to drink are protected from these sources of danger. Care should be taken not to wean a baby in hot weather except under a doctor's orders."

"If mother's milk is not available, the best substitute for it is fresh cow's milk or unsweetened evaporated milk mixed with an equal quantity of water. If sugar or additional water is needed, it should be mixed with the milk according to your doctor's directions. All milk or milk mixtures given to children up to two years of age should be boiled. The feedings should be kept in individual bottles and kept on ice until used. Each feeding should be warmed as needed."

"Always wash the hands thoroughly before preparing the baby's food, and before handling the baby's bottle. All dishes, pots, pans, bottles and nipples should be sterilized by boiling. "Throw out any milk left in the bottle after feeding. Don't leave the bottle in the baby's crib or carriage. It will attract dirt and flies. Rinse out the bottle; put the nipple aside, and see that both are sterilized by boiling before using again.

"Be careful to protect the baby and the baby's food against flies. Flies are potent disease carriers. Keep a supply of clean mosquito netting on hand to throw over the baby's crib or carriage while the baby sleeps."

The SNAPSHOT GUILD
PICTURES AND SPORT

Combine photography with your sports or other hobbies... for studies of "form" in golf... wild-life studies if you are a hiker... and so on. Picture taking mixes well with almost any other hobby.

ONE of the fascinating features of photography, as a hobby, is that it fits in perfectly with almost any other hobby or interest. In particular, nowadays, outdoor enthusiasts are finding that picture taking harmonizes admirably with such sports as hunting, fishing, hiking, golf, and other open-air activities.

More sports enthusiasts are taking pictures because modern cameras are so light, compact, and easy to carry. Cameras taking fairly large pictures have been reduced in bulk in recent years, while many fine present-day miniature cameras are so compactly built that they can be carried in a pocket at all times.

Operation has been made more convenient, too, so that picture taking is quick and easy. Therefore, the sportsman can use his camera about as he would a notebook. "Jotting down" in picture form each interesting detail of his trip or sport activities.

This is the modern way to use a camera. Instead of taking random snapshots, one here, one there, the wise picture taker tries to keep a

Urges More Singing Of National Anthem

WILLIAM FREDERICK BIGELOW, editor of Good Housekeeping Magazine, in an editorial in the July issue of that publication, urges the American public to brush the dust off the "Star Spangled Banner" and to make it a national anthem in fact as well as theory. "We are a conglomerate people," Bigelow points out, "gathered together from the ends of the earth, the newest come as free to come and go as are the descendants of those who founded the nation. While those of alien birth cherish freedom, they do not always see or feel the tie that binds us in an inseparable whole. They are not accustomed to going through life without hearing patriotic music. Whether rightly or wrongly, their homeland reaches out to them in sentiment or in seduction and it would not be too surprising if many of them should yield."

More demonstrations of love of country and loyalty to its institutions would be appropriate at this time, Bigelow says. If our liberty is to survive it must be made into

Mary Kay has been a class officer every year in college.

Large Bear Is Killed In Texas

It has been many, many years since there have been bears in most sections of Texas, but a few, probably less than 200, remain in the Trans-Pecos and the largest killed in a score of years was reported recently by State Game Warden T. S. Redford.

The bruin, slain by a party of ranchers under the supervision of the game warden, weighed 463 pounds. It was tracked down after having killed twenty-three sheep

IMAGINATION Makes A Meal

The famous French chefs built their reputation upon the deft blending of unusual herbs and spices, and any housewife can achieve the same results, if she will stock her spice cupboard with seasoning which can be bought anywhere. Even a village grocer will be glad to order whatever she wishes if he does not stock the items.

Most home cooks become dependent upon sage, bayleaf, salt, pepper, onion, vanilla, and lemon, and all their meats and desserts taste exactly the same, week after week.

Bread can become uninteresting. But have you tried adding a cup of wheat germ when making muffins, or sprinkling the tops of raised rolls with sesame seeds, or poppy seeds? These are not expensive items, and a small amount lasts a long time.

Why Not Try This?

Instead of salt, pepper, and onion in the pot roast, why not try adding a tablespoon of brown sugar, a large grated dill pickle, and three crushed gingersnaps to the gravy; not omitting the salt and pepper, however? You will have a dish much like the famous "sweet-sour" of German-Jewish ancestry.

Carrots take on a fresh flavor when browned in butter, with a sprinkle of sugar, a dash of onion juice, and a pinch of marjoram added. Potatoes, peeled and boiled, taste strange and new when they are served with melted

LARGEST LEGION MEET FOR TEXAS IN WACO PLANS

To encourage Americanism, law and order, and national defense are three big objectives of 27,000 American Legion members, who are planning for the twenty-first annual Texas-wide convention to be held in Waco, August 26-29. The Waco convention is expected to be the largest in the history of the Texas Legion.

Officers of the convention city corporation, an organization which is responsible for convention arrangements, emphasized in recent statements that they are putting every effort possible to center the program of events and speeches for this year's encampment upon the present day problems of the legion and the public in general.

The program is expected to be released to the Waco office within the next week. Inserts will be made to include the local arrangements. Present plans are being made by the department commander, Vincent Chiodo, of Houston, and his associates. Chiodo will also invite a number of distinguished guests from out of the state to the meeting.

Over 400 million dollars in taxes every year. Over 1,000,000 jobs. A market for 3,000,000 farm acres of produce.

The brewing industry would like to preserve for itself and the people the many economic benefits it has created in the past five years. Brewers everywhere realize that this is a question bound up with the proper
