UNCLE SAM'S PURSE

The payment of the soldier's bonus and the invalidation of the processing tax have imposed new strains upon Uncle Sam's purse. At a moment when curtailed spending was promised, new and extremely large expenditures are forced by court and congressional action. The Federal Government's budget appears likely to become a major issue in this year's election campaign.

On Federal spending there are three general points of view. Expressed briefly and crudely, they are: First, keep on spending even if it drives the Government to money inflation. Second, quit spending for emergency purposes, even if this course forces the jobless to starve and bankrupts the farmers. Third, keep on spending but get the money from taxes instead of from increased borrowing.

All three points of view have arguments in their favor but the country must choose among them. For three years we have been spending by borrowing but this course cannot be pursued much longer without a dangerous type of inflation. A sensible course would be a compromise between the second and third points of view. Emergency expenditures must be gradually and severely curtailed, but not to the point of allowing people to starve. For those expenditures outside the regular budget—and there will be such expenditures whether there should be or not—at least part of the money should come from increased or new taxes.

It is unfair to the next generation to saddle it with a national debt as enormous as the one we are creating, even though ours is not yet so heavy as England's. It is dangerous, too, to approach so near the point at which money inflation may appear to many people as the only way out. The crash which inevitably would follow inflation would be far more ruinous than any taxes which Congress might impose. Moreover, an increase in the Federal income tax rate might be the quickest way to bring the country to its senses and to create an effective demand for curtailment of Federal spending.

To expect that Congress would increase taxes on the eve of a national election, however, would be too idealistic for this Nation.

SHEEP AND TUMBLE WEEDS

Sheep raisers in this section report that sheep have solved the problem of the tumble weed on their farms better than most anything else. Several years ago when the Russian Thistle hit this country, imported from the Nebraska prairies, it was freely predicted the country would be ruined by them. This has not occurred but they are troublesome. They pile up and catch their weight.

Sheep like weeds. They thrive on the Russian Thistle. Incidentally, bankers say sheep have made more money, where the farm was not over-stocked and due care was taken, than any other type of live stock on farm products on Floyd County farms. Their numbers are increasing in this section but slowly.—Floyd County Hesperian.

FAILURE SPICES SUCCESS

John Barrymore, nearing his 53d birthday, gives the world a good bit of philosophy to mark the occasion. And John's words should be worth studying—he has lived a lot. Says the noted actor: "Every split second of my life has been worth it, and I'll tell you why. An event in your life is like a gold coin with two sides. On the other side of a failure there's success. To be hit and knocked down flat by a great tragedy gives me the capacity to be lifted to the skies by a great happiness." It's a philosophy that applies all the way down the human scale. A lot of us acquired a bit of this outlook during the last five years, when and events generally were skidding off the easy roads. And we can use a lot more. The world is still crowded with folks working overtime at the failure side of their gold coin.—Wichita Falls Record News.

Nationwide Conoco Ad Program Boosts Texas Centennial

"Attend the Texas Centennial Exposition! Visit Texas scenic and historical shrines during 1936!" Continental Oil Company through its February newspaper advertisements, is inviting more than 25 million people living in 36 states and the District of Columbia to spend their vacations in the Lone Star state this year.

The first of this series of advertisements appears in today's Tribune. It will also be reproduced in nearly 1,200 other newspapers, according to Wesley I. Nunn, Conoco advertising manager.

Today's advertisement includes an invitation to enjoy the Centennial, while the second of the series due to appear during the week of February 9, calls attention to "famed San Jacinto" and the Centennial. The third and final advertisement of the Texas series, scheduled for the week of February 23, refers to "The Alamo—Texas Centennial highspot."

Readers are asked to make their jaunt to Texas even more pleasurable by taking advantage of the free trip planning service of the Conoco Travel Bureau, Denver, Colo., largest organization of its type in America.

Large Cash Prizes For Essay Writers

DALLAS, Texas, Feb. 3.—Sixteen cash prizes totaling $1300 will be awarded the State winners in the Woodul Historical Essay Contest being sponsored by the State Headquarters of the Texas Centennial Celebrations. This contest is open to all public, private, and parochial schools in the State.

Only one month remains for students to prepare their entries for the first elimination will be held within each school during the first week in March. Subjects for this contest are to be drawn from the history of the county in which the student now lives. The essays will deal with those phases of county development which are ordinarily not included in recorded history. These topics are being gleaned by students from newspaper files, public records, diaries, letters, and interviews with living pioneers.

Second eliminations will be conducted by County Centennial Advisory Boards early in April, and the winning essays in the four divisions will be submitted by this Board to the State finals not later than May 1. State winners will be announced after May 15. Rules governing this contest may

HOUSTON SEEKS PLOW 100 yrs. OLD

HOUSTON, Feb. 3.—A statewide search for a 100-year-old plow, needed for impressive ground-breaking ceremonies for the million-dollar San Jacinto battle shaft, was instituted today by the San Jacinto Centennial Association. John C. Townes, president of the association, issued the call today, appealing to all Texas to join in the search. The century-old plow would be the central feature of the ceremonies which will attract nationwide attention. Anyone in Texas owning or having information of such a plow should communicate with the San Jacinto Centennial Association in Houston immediately. The gigantic battle shaft to be erected on the site of Sam Houston's decisive thrust for Texas liberty will be one of the world's most imposing structures. Taller than the Washington monument, and more beautiful architecturally, the Texas shaft will become renowned overnight.

MOVIE CHATTER

(By A. Rogue)

"Rocky Mountain Mystery" Friday and Saturday the Rogue offers its patrons Zane Grey's "Rocky Mountain Mystery," starring Randolph Scott, Charles (Chick) Sales, Ann Sheridan and Kathleen Burke. Folks it's not just an ordinary "shoot 'em up" western but one with a real plot and really good players. When we say Zane Grey that's something, but when we add such characters as Randolph Scott and "Chick" Sales that's really something big. A big outdoor thriller filled with mystery! Who is the mystery man? You can't afford to miss this show for two reasons—ask J. D. Gaines what he thinks about watches? "Whipsaw"

Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy comes to the Rogue Sunday and Monday in their newest picture, "Whipsaw," which was released Dec. 13. MISSIONARY SOCIETY

(Delayed) "The Lord knoweth the days of the upright. And their inheritance shall be forever."

The regular monthly meeting of the Methodist Missionary Society was held Tuesday afternoon at the parsonage with Mrs. U. L. Willie as leader in a program entitled: "What Shall I render unto the Lord?" After the singing of the hymn, "I Love Thy Kingdom Lord," Mrs. T. E. Williams led in a prayer of gratitude for our inheritance of joy and privileges. "Faith of Our Fathers," was then sung with Mrs. D. D. Denison at the piano.

Mrs. Henry Solomon had a very inspirational devotional taken from Genesis 13: 14-18. "Intangible Legacies" was the title of a playlet given by members of the Irene Eldridge Circle and Martha Dell Scaff of the Y. W. C.

Many good lessons, which we might draw from it, were pointed out by the leader.

Mrs. H. H. Schweitzer, the treasurer, presented the budget for the year and gave many interesting statistics concerning our finances. She also stated that the pledges for the three circles this year amount to $162.50.

In the business meeting which followed the program, Mrs. H. K. Ford, president, gave a very inspiring message. Mrs. T. E. Williams, chairman of Circle No. 1, Mrs. Henry Solomon, chairman of the Y. W. C. and Mrs. F. G. Simpson, in the absence of the Irene Eldridge Circle chairman, each gave talks on the outlook for 1936.

Mrs. Gene Luker was appointed chairman of the Christian Social Relations. It is to be regretted that some of the members were unable to attend the meeting.

Mrs. J. R. Whitworth announced that the new year books had arrived and also the Mission Study books, "Toward A Christian America." Rev. D. D. Denison gave the closing prayer.

Many Thousands Ask About Texas

DALLAS, Jan. 27.—Thousands of requests for information and literature on the State of Texas and its state-wide Centennial year celebrations have been pouring into the state department of information here, following the opening of the national Centennial advertising campaign.

Requests for information began flooding the office following publication of the first of a series of Centennial advertisements in the January 21 issue of the Saturday Evening Post. Other advertisements will be published in Time, Colliers, Fortune, and other newspapers and magazines with state and national circulation.

Prepared literature is being mailed persons who ask information about the Centennial celebrations or the state on coupons included on the advertisements. Officials of the department pointed out that the present campaign is the most elaborate effort ever made by a state to "sell" itself to the nation.

Motley Farmers Strive To Save Drainage Water

A modified system of irrigation in which surplus runoff water from lands adjacent to fields is distributed over cultivated land for use by crops is proving popular with Motley county land owners...

ROARING SPRINGS NEWS

A partial list of those who have these systems built or building includes W. I. Rushing, W. E. Ellithorp, Geo. Edwards, Geo. Springer and Bob Robinson, Matador; W. G. Tison, Malcolm Morris, W. G. Kimball and W. L. McWilliams, Whiteflat; J. H. Hines and C. I. Franks, Flomot; and Ed Laster, Roaring Springs.

Demonstrations in running terracing lines for the benefit of all those interested have been arranged at the following places: Thursday, February 6, O. T. Casey, Whiteflat; Friday, Orville Washington, Whiteflat, and John Groves Matador; Monday, February 10, G. E. Hamilton, near Whiteflat; Tuesday, B. F. Simpson, Northfield; Wednesday, Ralph Stapleton, Flomot; Thursday, Wade Martin, Flomot; Friday, J. C. Collett, Roaring Springs; Monday, Feb. 17, Gaines L. Godfrey, Roaring Springs.

All five of the county owned terracing levels are in constant use by farmers and demonstrators. Many farmers are being delayed or prevented from running their lines because of the shortage of levels. One level which was borrowed from the county agent's office in March 1935 has never been returned. Any information leading to the location of this level will be highly appreciated and liberally rewarded by the county.

SPEEGLE CASE...

Argie Thomason, Wichita Falls, corroborated Karr's testimony in part. He said he heard Karr ask McArthur who hit Speegle. 'McArthur doubled up his fist and stuck it out and said, 'I hit him with that.' Ensey slapped him lightly on the face and told him to shut up,' he stated.

H. H. Courtney, Motley county deputy sheriff, the first officer to reach the tourist cabin, sent the aged man to a hospital. He testified the cabin, which the boys had rented, was torn up and bedclothing scattered. An oil stove was turned over and coal oil was spilled on the floor.

J. E. Russell, former sheriff of Motley county for 12 years, testified that "Uncle Ben" Speegle was feeble and recently had been ill. He also told of the condition of the cabin, as he saw it.

Case Hings On Statement The state's case of circumstantial evidence thus far seemed to hinge on the statement, by Harold Karr, that Ensey and McArthur were in an automobile in which Speegle later was found and on a declaration by McArthur at Roaring Springs following the slaying.

Karr, who lives 9 miles north of Spur, was asked by District Attorney Alton B. Chapman whether Karr had sought to determine cause of Speegle's injuries.

"I asked him (McArthur) who hurt the old man and put him in the car," the witness said. "Everett held up his fist and said, 'that fist' Melvin kind of pushed him and told him to hush."

COUNTY AGENT TO SCHOOL ON BEEF KILLING

Frank A. Buckley, county agent, and L. W. Chapman, assistant in cotton adjustment, drove to Floydada last Monday and Tuesday to attend a two day meat school. The school was conducted by O. G. Tumlinson, district extension agent who provided instruction and practice in approved methods of killing and cutting beef. Cuts adaptable to canning as well as for use in the fresh state were emphasized. People of Motley county who desire assistance in killing and cutting beef for home use should make arrangements at the county agent's office.

where he established the Works Progress Administration Emergency Education Program in Texas. This program is now well set up and is in progress over the entire State. "I will take up issues of interest to the public from the platform, through the press and on radio as the campaign progresses," concluded Mr. Block.

States Platform

Mr. Bullock stands for: A constructive, economic and democratic public school administration, a minimum per capita apportionment of $20.00, Adequate provision for high school tuition. Abolishment of the district system of supervision under Deputy State Superintendents, reduction in administrative costs of the State Department of Education, eliminating needless employees and traveling expenses, definite Rural Aid allotment that can be depended upon by school officials, a sane, practical course of study, based upon the fundamental principles of education, eliminating needless subjects now required for high school graduation, developing rural school for rural children, so that equal educational opportunities may be provided for all, the classification of schools by the County Superintendent and County Board without arbitrary interference by the State Superintendent, a workable transportation aid law to take care of high school students whose grades are not offered in the home district.

Granting rural aid according to the terms of the law as enacted by the Legislature and close cooperation of the State Superintendent with the State Board of Education, all school officials and the Legislature of Texas.

SCHOOL ESSAY

Facts and Fiction "It will be noted that there are some contradictions in these histories and it should stimulate enough interest in the people of Northfield to cause them to try and separate the facts from the fiction."

The three entries are as follows: The history of Northfield began about the year of 1898 when a few families came here to raise cattle. The land was cheap and they found plenty of grass for their cattle, so they made cattle-raising their chief occupation.

There was plenty of wild game here then such as antelope, grouse and quail. People could have wild meat anytime they wanted it.

The roads were unimproved and horse power was all they had in those days. It required two days to go to market, which was most generally Childress as it was the nearest railroad.

The first man to live in this community was Mr. D. Cook. He lived near the place where Mr. S. F. Moore now lives. Later some more people came here to live. Some of them were Miss Cooper, who gave Northfield its name; Mrs. Denny, who kept the first post-office; Mr. W. P. Bethany and a few others.

In those days the mail was carried in a hack drawn by mules. It was carried from Childress to Matador each day. There were two mail carriers. One stayed at Matador and one at Childress. They would make the trip one way one day and the other way the next. There wasn't a postoffice here then and the mail was kept in the home of Mrs. Denny.

Mr. W. P. Bethany built the first gin here. After he came here people began to raise cotton and they had to haul their cotton to Childress. It took two days to make the trip. Hence, the reason for Mr. Bethany building the gin.

The first church of Northfield still stands where it was built. The first school to be built in Northfield was a small one room shack. Later in 1918 it was torn down and a new school house was built. This one was a two story building containing four rooms and the upper story was used for an auditorium. In 1934 it was torn down and the nice brick building that we now have was built.

This community has grown and improved greatly and is still improving. There has been bridges built over all of the wide streams which weren't possible to cross during the primitive days. Cars and trucks have taken the place of horses and mules as a means of travel and transportation. Two stores and a blacksmith shop have been built here, making it much more convenient for the Northfield people. Our postoffice is in one of the stores. Mr. Tipton is postmaster. An automobile brings us our daily mail from Childress. Most of the land is in cultivation and our methods of farming have also improved.—Alwyn Russell.

Publishers Note—Owing to the length of these essays it is impossible to publish all three in this issue of the Tribune. The two remaining essays will appear in the issue of next week.
