TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

My name must be written often in the book of life and perhaps the meager account is overdrawn, but in the entries made through the years I am positive that envy is not written there. I have not wanted what others possessed nor have I begrudged a man of a fill-cup when my own cup was empty. I have been thankful for my brown bread and tankard of sweetened water in the tavern near the tables of the mighty, laughing as the burning rum crisps the tops of their puddings. They are willing to pay more than I have paid for that which all may buy.

Tomorrow I may select a table nearest the window overlooking the sea and touch the fine lace covering on which rests the crystal vase with its single rose bud.

Something sinister lurked in the shadows of the dim-lighted room reeking as an apothecary and scalded by hot winds flowing through the mean window where a tattered curtain scraped the sill and struck momentarily against the rusty screen. Very frail and very small the little girl lay against the blistering sheet and looked with fever-drenched eyes at the ceiling. Silence hammered against my heart as I knelt beside her bed and waited through the remnant of an eon for that absorbing glance which I could not see. Then a small hand moved toward my own and clutched my fingers for a moment. The tired eyes closed across her lips. A taut yellow curl caught in the suitry breeze and dangled across her brow. They said she was asleep.

The wind seemed cooler as I journeyed through the night afterwards, my heart burning under the unlighted flame of sorrow, watching the young moon with a yellow curl across its brow, growing weary to lay back against the soft cushion of stars.

The message that came next day was a confirmation of the grasp of a little hand upon my fingers.

Good coffee, as fine steel, deserves the right to be properly tempered. The methods vary along the line of kindred artisans from the tin cup lifted in the smoke of a hobo jungle to the thin demitasse held lightly in jeweled fingers. Only at one board have I been offered, unchanged at many, a pitcher filled with thick sour cream.

City Allied By State Rail Commission To Save Matador Line

Att'y General's Dept. To Furnish Aid At Hearing

PETITION TO JONES

Hearing At Matador After October 1st Is Sought

As one of the principal issues at the meeting of the Motley County Chamber of Commerce, held in the dining room of the Matador Hotel Tuesday, Matador's efforts to save the branch line of the Quasah Acme and Pacific railroad threatened with abandonment through an application placed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, received encouraging reports. Farris Fish, local attorney offering his aid gratis to the community in the concentrated fight against the railroad company's request for removal, declared that it had been reported to him that Lon Smith, oldest member of the Texas Railroad Commission had expressed himself in offering the aid the city. While it was explained that the State Railroad Commission had no direct influence upon the Interstate Commerce Commission, the latter organization often gives consideration to its opinions in matters of this nature.

Attorney General's Support

The information also declared that the state would bear part of the city's expense of a hearing. The Attorney General's Department was quoted as having expressed willingness to furnish legal counsel in behalf of the city at the hearing.

Marvin Jones Gets Petition

The petition circulated recently when public subscription in the amount of $600 was collected to be used for expense and preparation of the hearing, was sent to Congressman Marvin Jones with the request that he use all influence possible with the Interstate Commerce Commission to state to the hearing to be held at Matador and not before October 1st when it is believed that first data and other arrangements will have been completed to show the community's position in asking that the abandonment permit be refused.

Other Towns Are Cited

Another member of the Chamber of Commerce declared that he believed it only the amount of patronage being given to trucks by other towns along the route he shown in comparison to that of Matador. It was the member's opinion that Matador was not supporting other means of transportation in any proportion to the warrant the attitude of the railroad company in asking that the service be discontinued.

To Patronize Railroad

All members at the meeting were asked to patronize the railroad in every possible instance and to use their influence to get others to do likewise. Also a warning was expressed that the interest in community's efforts not be allowed to lag in any respect before the hearing since it will require active and concentrated efforts to achieve the purpose of retaining the important beneficial service of the rail line here.

County Agent Offers Cooperation To Civic Club

With the possibility of $200,000.00 being spent in Motley county within the next three or four years for the Tree Planting Shelterbelt the Motley County Chamber of Commerce, in the regular meeting held at the Motley Hotel Tuesday, voted to sponsor interest in the Federal project. County Agent, Frank A. Buckley declared that to date little interest had been shown in the work here and that few applications had been made to lease or sell land to the government for the project.

Committee Is Appointed

Jim Woodruff acting chairman, appointed Dr. A. C. Traweck, J. R. Whitworth and George Springer as a committee to make a survey of the situation also investigate the possibilities in advantage to the county.

County Agent, Buckley declared that he understood that it was the plans of the government to establish a nursery somewhere in this section under the Caprock to raise young trees for the project and that it might be located in this county with the proper amount of interest and cooperation of citizens of this section.

Plenty Cotton Certificates

In an agricultural report, Mr. Buckley declared that about 30 per cent of the 1934 cotton certificates which were pooled would be returned to the raisers and would be usable on this year's crop. Mr. Buckley said there would be available for this county between 16,000 and 17,000 bale certificates, which with the estimated 35 per cent crop reduction, would be ample for a large crop.

PER CAPITA $17.50 STATE SCHOOL AID

Set By Board Of Education Last Week For Period, 1935-1936.

MAXIMUM RATE

Only Once Before, '29, Per Capita Reached Maximum of $17.50

A per capita apportionment of $17.50 was set by the Board of Education at Austin last week for state school aid for approximately 1,600,000 schoolchildren in the state, covering the period 1935-1936, according to press dispatches from Austin. The new per capita apportionment is the maximum allowed by statute.

Because of income from special levies, the four to eight months deficit was overcome by the school fund and a cash balance of $2,500,000 on August 31, end of the fiscal year, the board reported.

The $17.50 apportionment has been in effect only once previously, in 1929. It was $16.50 for the present school year and $16 for the year before. If the statutes had not limited the maximum apportionment to $17.50, the apportionment could have been $19 or $20.

A reduction of the present 35 cents per $100 valuation ad valorem looms likely, inasmuch as the apportionment would not take up all of available school funds. It was estimated that a balance could be shown in 1936-1937 if the rate was cut down to 32 cents.

Calculations were granted to the state funds by the $17.50 apportionment. The state also provided $5,000,000 for rural aid and school benefit equalization, the largest in its history.

Visitor Injured Accident On Way From California

Sister Mrs. Charlie Keith Victim Of Car Wreck Near Pecos, New Mexico

Mrs. Albert Navetta, accompanied by her small son, Andrea, of Los Angeles, Calif., suffered from painful injuries last week when the automobile in which she was riding with friends enroute from the west coast, turned over after a rear tire had blown out on the highway near Pecos, New Mexico.

Mrs. Navetta and son were on their way to Matador to visit their way to the sister, Mrs. Chas. Keith, at the time of the accident.

Under Doctors Care

After the accident, Mrs. Navetta was taken to the hospital here and immediately started for the New Mexico city and brought the week victims to Matador. The child received only a minor scratch. Mr. Navetta has not since her arrival here and is declared serious. It is declared possible that skin will need to be grafted over a severe laceration near the right knee.

Cause Is Unknown

The direct cause of the accident is unknown. The automobile was being driven at a moderate rate of speed, between 30 and 35 miles per hour when the machine blew out, causing the gravel at the road side. The wheel then collapsed before the car turned over. All tires on the car were new.

Mrs. Navetta and son expect to visit here for two or three months.

FOR ANY MAN TO LIVE AND DIE A TEXAN.

TEXAS 1936
CENTENNIAL
EXPOSITION DALLAS

SOMETHING IS WRONG HERE

In a news story under a Stamford date line. The Dallas News of Sunday quotes D. A. Barden, manager of West Texas Chamber of Commerce, to the effect that West Texans are falling all over themselves in support of the Texas Centennial.

Well, maybe they are—but we haven't seen any signs of it. Perhaps we haven't been talking to the right people.

West Texas will support Dallas wholeheartedly in its strenuous efforts to stage the chief centennial celebration, since Dallas has in fair competition won this honor and heavy responsibility. One reason for this is that West Texans pride themselves on their broad viewpoint and will work for anything that is good for the state as long as it is not bad for West Texas.

It is entirely possible that Mr.
Barden said nothing of the kind.
Perhaps the story was sent out by some overly ambitious Stamford correspondent, thinking that to do would be all right.

But if Mr. Barden did say what
The News reported him as saying,
it is our opinion that he might better have used the space to tell the story of what at least a part of West Texas thinks of the centennial racket so far.

He might better have said, as we see the matter, that West Texas resents the policy of the centennial gang in thus far ignoring West Texas in the matter of centennial appropriations.

He might better have pointed out that the only centennial part assigned West Texas thus far is the dubious honor of helping to foot the bill.

He might better have pointed out that in the way of official appointments West Texas has received little more than a nosethumbing and that West Texans in the South Plains section, at least, can't see where the big blow out it going to help them at all—although it will cost them money in the long run.

The Morning Avalanche consistently has supported the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The Editor of this newspaper is serving a third year on the directorate and has never knowingly lost an opportunity to give the organization full credit whenever it has performed a job for the territory it seeks to serve.

But we fall out with WTCC in its policy of taking slaps lying down and we think it would do better to become militant in its representation of this area.

It is a matter of record—not only as regards the centennial but in Austin official circles, as well—that the state's motto is
"to hell with West Texas."

This section has been turning the other cheek for slaps so long that it's getting tiresome.

What we need to do out here is put on our fighting clothes and slap back—slap back hard.

And if the West Texas Chamber of Commerce doesn't feel like scrapping for West Texas' rights,
it might just as well disband.

West Texans wholeheartedly
supporting the centennial!

That's either hooey—or there are a lot of West Texans sound asleep on their rights.—Lubbock Avalanche.

LOUISIANA FLIGHT

We hear a great deal about the ancient doctrine of States' rights.
Opponents of strong central government are firm in their faith and fairly well entrenched in a constitutional position. Nor is there much question of the policy
as a public one as long as the State governs itself well. For the dire possibility in the inherent State right to settle its own affairs, it is only necessary to look across the Sabine River at our neighboring State of Louisiana.

Everything that Senator Long has done in Louisiana is in accord with the forms of local State self-government. The result has been to set up a practical dictatorship, controlling the courts, the Legislature and the National Guard, II, as is quite probable, a majority of Louisiana voters are opposed to what has happened in their State they have no assurance (a) that they will be allowed to vote or (b) that their votes will be counted if cast. Yet there is no relief open to them.

Whatever else may be said for the doctrine of States' rights,
there should be some provision for the Federal Government to intervene and see that the electorate of Louisiana votes without duress on its State government,
under the supervision of impartial Federal officials and disciplined by the bayonets of the regular army.

But Louisiana is a victim of States' rights which for the moment
are merely Long wishes.

their confreres in ludicrous make-up. In "Romance in a Glass House" starring Dolores del Rio, her lines were "Achilles lead the Attack", but when she beheld the actor made up as "Achilles" her risibilities were tickled and she burst out laughing, not once, but many times, before she could control herself sufficiently to speak her lines. "Achilles", instead of representing a heroic figure, suggested more a "sap" hence the merriment. Nor was this all, when he drew forth his sword to fight for his lady fair, someone in the audience sneezed and the sword of the mighty Achilles fell clanking on the floor.

There are moments when even seasoned actors lose their mental equilibrium when they behold

Nearly everyone who heard Kate Smith sing on the radio was entranced by her luscious voice. Then she entered pictures and as she tipped the scales at high three hundred pounds, she represented a disgusting, ludicrous figure and her picture was a complete failure. The other day I heard the "play-back" of a man's voice. It was glorious, reminding one of Caruso in his palmy days, without the forced emissions of breath at the end of his arias. After a time I beheld the owner of this glorious voice that had entranced us all by its sheer beauty and volume. He was a small, insignificant figure, without poise, or commanding personality.

One might paraphrase the old saw and say "Some actors should be heard but not seen".

"Peaches" Brownings, whose only claim to recognition was the fact that she "made First page" in connection with her bizarre marriage to an old, wealthy, but silly man.

She is now in Hollywood, with her press agent, you guessed it—she wants to get into pictures. If the great majority of the movie public were of a higher grade of intelligence, this would never happen. There are so many nit-wits who want to look at people who have achieved cheap notoriety, that such people as "Peaches" will always have a following, especially at first.

H. H. WILLIAMSON NAMED DIRECTOR EXTENSION WORK

Succeeds Late O. B. Martin As Chief

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, July 7.—H. H. Williamson, who has been connected with the agricultural extension service in Texas since 1912, has been appointed director of the service, it was announced today by S. G. Bailey, secretary of the board of directors on Texas A. and M. college.

Williamson succeeds O. B. Martin, who died unexpectedly a week ago today. He has been connected with the service ever since his graduation from Texas A. and M. college, serving as state boys' club agent, district agent, assistant state agent and vice director. He took the latter position in 1927, when Martin became director.

Miss Mildred Horton, who has been state home demonstration agent since 1924, was appointed to the newly-created position of vice director of the home demonstration service.

The board, which met last night, voted to apply for $550,000 from PWA funds for the erection of three new dormitories on the campus here and for $205,000 for one dormitory each at the junior colleges at Stephenville and Arlington.

In addition, the board voted to offer the government a site for a postoffice on the College Station campus. The present postoffice is in a small building off the campus. The board voted to discontinue the school of vocational teaching as a separate unit of the college. Its departments will be transferred to various other schools, eliminating duplication of work and reducing overhead expense.

Certain proposed changes in the college's policies relating to student life and discipline were rejected by the board. One would have broken up the military units in housing of students in dormitories. Another would have made a cafeteria out of the mess hall. Good news was provided for faculty members and school employees when salary increases authorized by the recent legislature were voted insofar as available funds will permit.

July Advised As Month To Dig And Fill Trench Silo

Extension Service Offers Details Of Beneficial Work on Farms

Over a large portion of Texas July is the month in which to dig and fill the trench silo. It may be filled with corn, red top cane, seeded ribbon cane, hegarri, kafir, milo maize, etc. Be sure these crops are ripe; however the leaves on the upper half of the stalk should be green. If these crops are cut too green the silage will contain a surplus acid and as a result will sour the cattle, if fed liberally. The riper the crop the greater the feed value of the silage. Be sure and wet the walls of the trench silo as it is being filled, as well as the silage itself. More water will be required if the whole stalks are placed in the trench than will be necessary if the stalks are chopped with a silage cutter.

Covered With Sand Fill the trench about 2 feet above the level of the ground so as to allow for settling. Cover with enough dirt to be sure to keep out the air. It is the presence of air that spoils silage and not water. If the silage settles to where the dirt over it is lower than the level of the ground, water will run in and cause cracks in the dirt which will permit air getting to the silage. Cover the silage with at least six inches of sand or 12 inches of clay dirt. The walls of the trench silo should be sloping so that the silage will pack against the walls as it settles. If the walls are not sloping the silage will pull away from the walls as it settles, thereby making a crack, which will permit air getting to the silage and spoil a lot of it. The width and depth of the trench should be governed by the number of cows to be fed from the silo. On the average dairy cows will eat about 35 pounds of silage per head per day. It will be necessary to take off about a six inch layer from top to bottom each day. A silage weighs approximately 25 pounds per cubic foot; 10 cows would therefore consume about 350 pounds, or 14 cubic feet of silage daily.

Sized For Herds A trench silo six feet wide at the top, 4 feet wide at the bottom and 5 feet deep would be a good size for 10 cows. The trench should be 100 feet long to hold 30 tons of silage, or 3 tons per cow. To be certain that you have sufficient silage, you should put up 3 tons per cow. A trench silo 4 feet wide at the top, 3 feet wide at the bottom, 4 feet deep and 85 feet long, would be about right for 5 cows; a trench 10 feet wide at the top, 8 feet wide at the bottom, six feet deep and 90 feet long, would be about right for 20 cows.

One Ton For Each Cow Be sure to put up one ton of hay or bunched feed for each cow. The cows will eat some dry feed in addition to the 35 pounds of silage. Remember, the more roughage the cow will consume, the less grain mixture will be required. Hay and silage are cheaper than corn and cottonseed meal.

MAKING IT HARDER FOR BANK ROBBERS

Mechanical Devices That Impede the Work of Bandits Described by Bankers Association Official

The impediments which the hard working bank robber now meets in plying his trade among small as well as large banks are described by James E. Baum, Deputy Manager American Bankers Association in charge of its Protective Department, in an article in "Banking" published by his organization. "Protective equipment will minimize if not prevent loss," Mr. Baum says, "such as the silent automatic type of alarm, approved tear gas systems, several styles of bandit resisting enclosures and timelocks, or safes equipped with timelocks, which can be set for intervals of a few minutes. The silent automatic alarms operate in the beginning of a holdup and through action carried out by the bank employees in obedience to the bandits' commands. They are adaptable to the smaller banks which continue to be easiest targets for bank robbery."

Spur Laundry

THE SAME COUNTRY

By ROBERT V. FLEMING Vice President, American Bankers Association

There is a growing appreciation, both on the part of the people and the Government, of the earnest and sincere efforts being made by bankers to aid in recovery. It is desirable that we miss no opportunity to foster public understanding of the bankers' problems. We are living in an age of complex and upset economic conditions. Our affairs are closely inter-related not only within the confines of our own borders but extend to other countries throughout the world.

The Greatest Difficulty I think the greatest difficulty we have to overcome in America today is due to our impatience with the progress we are making towards recovery. We must realize that while the Government can help by directing some measures for relief and recovery, we must help ourselves by doing our share to give impetus to the Government's efforts. We have the same country and basically the same businesses, factories and people we had prior to the depression, and business initiative must step forward if real recovery is to be achieved.

The theory we often hear expressed that banks create business activity is wrong. Banking can only make a supplementary contribution to business activity. Bankers have the facilities and the desire to extend credit, but business must initiate activity by seeking the credit which is readily available to all worthy borrowers. Let it be said for business, however, that business men are as eager as bankers to contribute towards recovery. I think some of the trouble lies in the fact that too many legislative measures have been proposed for reform which leave an uncertainty in the minds of business leaders as to their eventual outcome and effect. Consequently, they hesitate to expand until the probable effects of such legislation are known.

CAUTION HEAT AND MOTOR STRAIN AHEAD! Image of a car on a road with a grid overlay.

To drive through Summer safely, you need high-film-strength oil!

Conoco Germ Processed Oil has 2 to 4 times greater film strength than plain mineral oils and resists heat better!

HERE'S THE PROOF... Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil Plain Mineral Oils

You do more driving—faster and longer driving—in Summer than at any other time. To protect your motor fully, your oil must have high film strength and maintain it at motor heats of 225° to 350°! Film strength keeps bearings and cylinders from wearing out—lack of it results in costly damage!

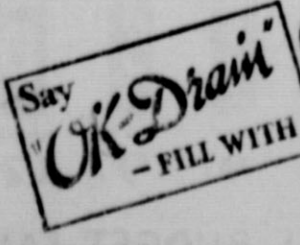

Plain mineral oils have little film strength and oils over-refined by new cleansing methods have even less. Moreover, these oils rapidly lose film strength as motor heat goes up.

Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil protects your motor better than any plain mineral oil because it has 2 to 4 times greater film strength and extreme heat does not lessen this advantage. (See chart at left.)

Road tests in cars equipped with both conventional babbit bearings and the new copper-lead, high-lead and cadmium-alloy bearings proved that Germ Processed, the first alloyed oil, protects all bearings from wear far better than plain mineral oils.

You can drive through Summer safely—and without a worry—if you say "O. K.—Drain" and fill with Conoco Germ Processed Oil—the oil with the "Hidden Quart" that never drains away!
