Mrs. Irene Long was named vice-president and Miss Lula Swin as secretary-treasurer.—Photos by Marion Woodruff.

EDITORIAL

AS A GRAIN OF MUSTARD SEED

If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed... nothing shall be impossible to you." Matt. 17:20. History of West Texas is replete with crisis. It is a land of contrasting climates, variable rainfalls, unpredictable weather; a land that has known years of great bounty and many of extreme scarcity. Its pioneers recognized and accepted its challenges.

Harry Campbell, President of the First State Bank and oldest native resident of Motley county says the years of 1892 and 1893 were years of great drouth that drove away many of the country's new settlers. He was a boy attending Matador's first school, located approximately at the present site of Eudy-Seale school, located approximately at the area around the school was a prairie dog town. He, and other boys, would catch prairie dogs with their hands because the little animals were too poor to run. They were starving to death. Northeast in an area between the Math Patton home and the river, the sand and soil was blown away from mesquite grove until it was easy to load a wagon in a short time. Prairie dog dens in this windswept section stood up high above the ground because of the packed, hard soil. There was no money except the less than 90¢ per hard soil. The fortunate who held ranch jobs, and the small day paid to the county on jack rabbit and coyote scalps, bounty paid by the county on jack rabbit and coyote scalps. But the rains came again and the land flourished and the settlers returned. They had faith in the country which they were eventually able to subdue sufficiently to make homes and rear their families. History shows that this country has had more drouth years than "good years" and that water has always been its greatest problem.

Drouthy lands have used irrigation since 5000 years before the birth of Christ. Here in our own area pioneer Mexican settlements near Quitaque realized that irrigation was essential to survival and produced crops from the sweet, pure water flowing from beneath the Cap Rock. Many sections of the west and Texas have long recognized drouth as something the people would be forced to live with, and accepting the problem, met it with irrigation. Great cities have risen out of the desert, and they have strong, stable economies. Los Angeles and all of Southern California is a desert, as is much of Texas, New Mexico, Utah and the Rio Grande Valley of Texas. The fabulous Plains at our door, never made any progress until the advent of irrigation. The great wealth of water under the Plains was untapped for half a century after the country was settled.

Adversity frequently becomes a blessing. The condition which the non-irrigated areas of West Texas face today could have been less severe if we had established a greater respect and interest in irrigation. Dams across our creeks and rivers and more wells is the long range answer to our problem. The and more wells is to keep faith in the country, and work immediate answer is as a family facing a problem, to increase the collective as a family facing a problem, to increase the present economy.

Rains will return as they have in the past, but the lesson we are learning today should be remembered. Our problem is a thousand times less crucial than it was to our pioneers. They had the courage to face the uncharted tomorrow; to leave us a legacy of experience and a pattern for the future. Faith.

Fire Department Answers 2 Calls

Despite efforts of the Matador Volunteer Fire Department, fire reported at 5:30 p. m. Friday destroyed a large amount of stock feed at the Matador Ranch, one mile southeast of Matador. The loss included bales and bundles of feed, fences, etc. Both fire trucks answered the call with one truck and firemen remained at the scene until 1:30 a. m. Saturday morning.

An alarm about noon Monday brought firemen to the A. L. Curry home in northwest Matador where a gas-fired water heater resulted in a fire. It is believed that a gas outlet in the baseboard was opened while the baseboard was being mopped. The accumulated vapor is believed to have been ignited by the flames under the water heater. Damage was held to a minimum.

Yams Studied As Aid To Farm Income Here

Cultivation of sweet potatoes in the fertile sandy and sandy loam soils of Motley county as a supplement to the area's farm and ranch income, was studied last week in south Texas.

S. J. Braselton, Jr., Roaring Springs implement dealer and irrigation contractor, accompanied by Douglas Meador, editor of the Matador Tribune, visited sweet potato country in Frio county southwest of Uvalde. They visited a single field where 100 acres of sweet potatoes were near maturity, with an estimated yield of 500 bushels of choice quality yams per acre.

Near Dilley, Texas they visited a processing plant where

Matadors Remain on Triumphant Journey

LIONS SEE MOVIE OF CROWELL GAME

Program at the regular meeting of the Matador Lions club held Tuesday in the Methodist church basement, was the showing of a moving picture of the Matador-Crowell game here on Burleson Field Friday night.

The film was shown following the regular luncheon at which 38 members of the Matador Matadors squad were guests. The excellent luncheon was provided by the Methodist women.

Announcements made by Boss Lion Bill Seale included appointment of committees to arrange the annual Lions Carnival slated for October 20.

Activities of Tailtwister Barnhill included admission of Lion John Stevens to the exclusive $21 club, a group inside the Lions membership whose achievements are outstanding.

Lion Stevens has recently become the father of a boy—a boy with four sisters.

Showing of the Friday night game picture had added interest with Coach Clifford Bradshaw explaining the plays (and frequently asking the film to be run back so that the points he explained could be better observed). He selected decisive work of his team and also pointed out faults that will be further observed by the team in order to effect correction.

Mrs. Morgan Rogers left Monday to return to her home in Truth or Consequences, N. M. after an extended visit here with her mother, Mrs. J. M. Jackson and other relatives. Her sister, Mrs. Pat Sheridan, and Mrs. Jackson accompanied her home.

Wallop Wildcats Here With 38-12

ROLLING ALONG on a triumphant journey, the Matador Matadors performed here Friday night in the undefeated pattern. They overwhelmed the Crowell Wildcats in the final period before a standing, cheering crowd of home fans. (Data is from Lubbock Avalanche report in Saturday's issue.)

After leading 13 to 6 at the half the Matadors scored one touchdown in the third period and 19 points in the final quarter, while holding the Wildcats to a single touchdown in the third quarter.

Quarterback Dayton Graham ran 30 yards for the first touchdown early in the first quarter. After that he passed to right end Garland Cartwright for two more, one a play in the second period that covered 50 yards, and the other on an 18-yard play in the final period.

After Graham's first tally, halfback Printiss Gidney of Crowell climaxed a 50-yard scoring drive with a one-yard plunge to tie the game.

Then came Graham's first pass to Cartwright and the Matadors had a lead they never gave up. Gidney scored Crowell's second touchdown in the third quarter when he powered over left tackle for five yards.

Left half Charles Renfro went 63 yards over left tackle in the third, fullback Arvin Ellithorp ran 21 yards around right end in the final quarter, right half Pat Green ran two yards and a Graham to Cartwright pass for 18 yards wrapped up the scoring.

Center Franklin Thrasher and end Cartwright were outstanding on defense for Matador, and tackle James Doyal and guard Ray Thompson were outstanding for Crowell in line play.

The game was even through the first half but the Matadors had too much for the Wildcats in the second half.

SCORING SUMMARY

Matador: touchdowns, Graham (30-yard run), Cartwright two (50-yard pass and 18-yard pass), Renfro (63-yard run), Ellithorp (21-yard run), Green (two-yard run). Extra points, Green, two, by runs.

Crowell: Gidney, 2 (one-yard run, five-yard run).

Captain Jimmie Don Green won the toss, so the Mavericks received from the south goal of Burleson Field. Touchdowns for the Mavericks were by Thomas Young and L. D. Martin. The one extra point was made by Guy Campbell. The final score of the game was tied, 13-13. Last year the score was 7-7. The Mavericks next game will be at Estelline, October 4.

Eighth Grade News

Yesterday a nosy reporter was touring the grade school classes and was quite surprised, after visiting many quiet, studious classes, to find what appeared to be a "rock and roll riot" in the eighth grade room. The reporter was soon greeted by a patient Mrs. Edwards, who explained that the class was working on history projects pertaining to Pioneer life in the good "ole" U. S. A. Further exploration in the room revealed some excellent replicas of flatboats, log cabins, sod huts and one elaborate steam boat. Several people were working on posters and charts of different kinds. Over in a corner were two girls who were still "on the fence" about what to make, and only one day left to hand in the finished work!

Meet A Senior

The senior of the week in Raynita Kay Dunning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dunning. Nita started to school at Matador and has been going here ever since. While in M. H. S., she has participated in almost all activities offered. This year she is cheer leader, senior class treasurer, president of the Choral Club, 2nd vice-president of F.H.A., and basketball captain. After graduation Nita plans to attend West Texas State College and major in physical education.

Challenge Offered

Would you like to improve your vocabulary? Beginning next week, in each edition of the school news, a new word will be presented. The students will have the opportunity to look up the word and tell Mr. Reeves the meaning of it. The first person to do so will receive one fourth of a merit. Be sure you are the first! The word for this week is SPELUNKER.

Mr. Leathers and his wife, from Clarendon, made the Seniors' photos. Seniors are anxiously waiting to see their proofs, which should arrive in the next few days.

The Diary of Mary White

Hi, after a long summer! That I have not written does not mean there has been no activity or that in my mind's eye I was seeing nothing. I am not an author in any sense of the word and I can write only as I feel, or as there is a need for me to put my thoughts on paper.

By the end of May, I felt that life here was becoming a bit everydayish for me and that it must be doubly so for those just reading about it. A second year of such might have some news events and facts, but a great deal would be repetition, so I thought it time to discontinue my day to day account of happenings, which were begun primarily as a personal letter to my friends in Washington and Texas. I wrote several friends saying that I thought it was time to discontinue the daily account. They wrote complimentary letters in return and stated they would still like to receive the letter.

I felt that should I continue to write, it would have to be mostly what I thought and felt and that besides being of no interest, might prove offensive to some.

A resume of my summer thinking reveals that I have not wished to talk about Alaska. What I have seen has made me a bit sick at heart. At times my thinking hinges between discouragement, resentment and just plain bewilderment.

The first group assignment we had in the Mt. Edgecumbe workshop this summer was to list the changes made in Alaska in the last twenty years. Oh, it was an impressive list from a Stateside angle — technical progress, more industry, more machines, more money, more schools, more churches, and more medical services. Like a powerful steam roller the dominant culture of the United States has rolled right over this land, establishing itself and its claims, but by the same process crushing these pitiful little Arctic cultures right out of existence. The results, a mangled and broken people; not a pretty sight and not exactly complimentary to the U. S. methods.

Our schools in their original setting are good; in fact, they are wonderful. But to pick up school in its entirety, with stateside text, teachers, and custom, and fling it at a little child born into a foreign culture with its parents speaking a foreign language to its teacher, is something else indeed. To ask them to absorb, respond and carry on is a bit strenuous and borders on an intellectual miracle. May I say, to their credit, they have very nearly performed it.

Our monetary system is good but to dump it suddenly into the lap of a people who have never had one, is cruel. During the second World War the United States government, for the first time, noticed and got frantically busy in Alaska. In its defense program it needed man power, so it drew on the native manpower. Agents went into the villages and recruited all available men. They flew them to the worksites in planes, gave them housing, good pay checks and when the season was over, flew them back to their native villages and gave them unemployment checks all winter.

The next year the process was about the same until practically every village in the land had tasted of the heady wine of cash. They acquired tastes and desires for what it would buy without the least understanding of the U. S. government, its functions and finances, and without any idea as to the value and wise use of money. They liked an unemployment check better than a pay check because it allowed them to live in their native village. They liked a welfare check even better, because then you didn't have to leave home at all. There is absolutely no stigma attached to such in their thinking. They have no conception of taxes. As far as they are concerned Uncle Sam has a pot of gold and it never runs low. We think of them as shiftless and lazy because they are content with welfare, but because we were free with something they did not understand, it does not necessarily follow that they will adhere to our line of thinking. Christianity is the supreme good in our culture. In a few instances a marvelous job has been done of preaching the Kingdom of God on earth to isolated villages. But — for instance, in Nome there are ten different denominations preaching and proselyting to the utter, utter confusion of the native peoples. Besides the preaching from the pulpits, the lives of the whites in Nome shout louder than all. Is it any wonder that the natives think of bars and churches in the same category? Old Satan must rub his hands and smack his lips with relish over the situation!

Now there are many good people from the States in Alaska, but a goodly percent of the whites are people whose character and conduct was not the highlight in their home community. The poor Eskimo has absolutely no criteria with which to distinguish the desirable from the undesirable. The white man drinks and laughs and has fun, so drinking is the thing to do. The white man is loose in his relationships with women, so adultery is an acceptable mode of behavior. They actually think so. Mothers are proud of a daughter who can interest a white man, regardless of the motive. Marriage, if it follows, is fine but it plays no part in the original relationship.

I had a long talk with the teacher of cultural anthropology in the University of Alaska this summer. I asked him if this promiscuous condition had always existed among the Eskimos and Indians of Alaska. He said that it was definitely not so. Among early Alaskan cultures were found some of the strictest codes of virtue to be found anywhere.

Surely now you can see cause for the discouragement I mentioned. The bewilderment? In the course of a few days I shall enter the classroom to face approximately forty children destined to grow up under these conditions. As God is my judge,

I don't even know how to begin much less how to achieve. But find some way to help. I must, and should I write a day to day account, it would not be of adventure and strangeness in Alaska, it would be of the gropings of a poor old teacher to in some way help these children to span the gap that lies between their culture and mine, so that they may make the transition safely instead of being led into false paths.

Were I a great soul or a great writer this might make a good story, but I am neither. So, though I must, as they say in Texas, hoo my row, at the same time I hesitate to write of such.

For never before in Ford's field has there been a body with so much extra bracing so firmly anchored to its foundation. And you can choose from three big Silver Anniversary V-8's with up to 245 horsepower. There's also a new Mileage Maker Six with 144 horsepower, the most modern Six in the industry.

You can pick your Ford tailored to your desires and your budget, too! Choose from nine Fairlane or Fairlane 500 models or from five Custom or Custom 500 models. Or take your pick from Ford's five longer, lower, new station wagons. Whichever model you select, you'll get a car that's been re-invented from the wheels up!
