DEMOCRATIC Byrd Howard, 54, above, itinerate (nondenominational) evangelist, paused briefly in Matador last week, en route westward. He said he has no trouble with speed laws on the radar-controlled highways. He averages 25 miles daily. Traveling with his wife and six children, he said his destination was Portales (he has since been seen in the vicinity of Brownfield). He has his children with him. They are: Ruth 21, Mary 16, Martha 14, Dorcus 9, and two boys, Paul 19 and Phillip 11. The family's home is Sweetwater but they travel most of the time. They had been in Phoenix, Arizona until the first of the year when a trek back east to Arkansas was started. Four donkeys worked abreast to the van were shod with shoes cut from Arkansas state tires. Howard said he used to be a blacksmith. Jovial, smiling, answering questions, Howard told a group gathered around his mule-power house-trailer: 'A lot of you fellows will be riding in these if Southern Democrats don't quit voting Republican.' Howard has his van and trailer equipped with hydraulic brakes taken from an automobile. When the photographer squatted for a 'low angle picture' the inquiring mule in the foreground pointed his ears toward him.—Photo by Douglas Meador.

Haley Confronts Parr and Defies His Support

By Sam Kinch, Star-Telegram Writer

SAN DIEGO, July 18—J. Evetts Haley promised George Parr in a speech Wednesday that if elected governor he will put the Duval County political boss "where he belongs."

He heaped the South Texas politician in his air conditioned den in San Diego with a hail of abuse as he later solicited on the sun-baked streets surprised by Spanish-speaking voters.

Haley asked everyone for a pledge to support Parr, whom he admitted to stay with an opponent.

Parr greeted the gubernatorial candidate cordially, declaring he was the first to call on him this year.

In spite of the unfriendly tone of the signed statement handed to him, Parr said he would be glad to see Haley on any return visit, and wished him good luck.

Haley stroled into Parr's suite of offices, which were crowded with voters waiting to be questioned at the near-by courthouse connection with a city election contest.

Many of them wished Haley well, too.

After he introduced himself, Haley remarked he had read where Parr was supporting Price Daniel, but could support anyone in the race except Haley.

"I couldn't support you— you've cut my throat," Parr joked.

"That's exactly what I'll do," Haley replied.

Fashions Made In Texas To Be Shown During State Fair

The best of Texas-made fashions will be modeled in 34 free style shows during the 1956 State Fair of Texas Oct. 6-21.

More than 300 manufacturers all over the state have been invited to participate in the fourth annual Texas Fashion Roundup competition.

The "blue ribbon fashions" judged as the best will be the ones shown at the fair.

The free shows will be presented in the Women's Building twice daily during the fair, except for Sunday, Oct. 14. There will be additional showings on the three Saturdays and the first Sunday of the fair.

Nationally known judges for the event will represent the national fashion scene, the retail merchant, the consumer and children's fashions.

Judging will take place on Aug. 17 and the winning garments will be shown Oct. 18 in a private preview for manufacturers and designers.

An Honoree-of-the-Day will be presented at each of the fashion shows during the fair.

The blue ribbon fashions will be available in retail stores throughout the Southwest at the same time they are being shown at the fair.

Mrs. Leah Jarrett, director of the fair's Women's Department, said that manufacturers should have their entries in her office by Aug. 13. The fashions to be judged will be divided into more than 100 categories.

The fashion competition and shows are sponsored by the State Fair in cooperation with Dallas Fashion Arts, Inc., a non-profit organization devoted to the promotion of Texas fashions.

RUDDER LENDS PRESTIGE TO JOB AS LAND OFFICE COMMISSIONER

McINTOSH, Texas—Earl Rudder, who has served as Land Commissioner since January 5, 1955, is being elected to a second term in his office. Rudder's platform consists of two points: (1) Under his administration public confidence in the Veterans Land Program has been restored; (2) The General Land Office is now operating under new and unprecedented efficiency.

Rudder took office shortly after the veterans' land scandals first rocked the state.

He is a veteran himself—one of the country's greatest heroes of World War II. As a Ranger commander, Rudder on D-Day personally led his troops up the 100-foot-high cliffs of Normandy to destroy a German coastal battery. He was shot twice, but accomplished his mission.

General Omar N. Bradley, commander of U. S. Ground Forces in Europe, recently wrote in his memoirs that the D-Day assignment he gave Rudder was the most difficult he had ever given any soldier in his entire military career.

Rudder was decorated for bravery in action seven times by three governments—the United States, France and Belgium.

Rudder, the only veteran in the race for Land Commissioner, has been commended for his work in the Land Office by the American Legion and the VFW.

Rudder's first act on assuming office was a wholesale cleanup of the veterans' land program. Not a single whisper of scandal in that program has been heard since. With legislative help, the program has been decentralized—a County Committee must now screen the veterans' transactions before they may be submitted to the Veterans' Land Board, which Rudder heads. This control at the county level has greatly speeded up the cleanup, Rudder says.

Rudder also has restored order and efficiency in the Land Office. This office handles about $84,000,000 of the public's money each year—mostly funds which support Texas public free schools. The money is derived principally from lease of public lands to oil and gas companies.

Elementary Elim

The Diary of Mary White

May 13, 1956, Sunday
The day was lovely and planes flew overhead every few hours. Everyone seemed to have somewhere to go but that somewhere was not Elim. A dog team went to Moses Point just in case one of them had a mail sack for us. No such luck.

May 14, 1956, Monday
The day was fair and speculation was high even in the classroom. The children weren't looking for letters but it has been weeks since they have seen a movie. Would Alaska come? (Alaska is synonymous with Alaska Airlines here.) No drone of motors was heard. By noon the children were beginning to look disappointed and I was seeing several times the postmaster and others had suggested that we sign a petition and send it to the Postal Transport Service in Anchorage. I sat down at noon and typed a complaint. I sent two boys to carry it to the people in the village. As soon as it was signed by every person of age, I wrote my little two-bit worth (as R. W. called it), put it in an envelope and sent it by a duck hunter who was headed to the flats above Moses Point. Having exploded I felt better and classes were progressing nicely when about three thirty o'clock a plane was heard. We ran to see. Aw shucks, only a big one going by! It was a silver colored DC4 and not our little red bush plane at all. To our open-mouthed wonder the big plane swooped over Elim and tipped its wings. Glory be! He had something for us. A dog team was on its way in a matter of minutes but how could we stand the suspense for three or four hours wondering if it had mail, freight, or a passenger. Our school radio is worse than useless because of some badly worn generators that cause static and besides all that we are not allowed a C.A.A. frequency on which to call. The National Guard could call them, however, and back came the joyful word that the plane had left three hundred pounds of first class mail. It was nine o'clock when the mail arrived on two sleds and the children begged for the movie I was selfish and wanted to read my letters so I used the perfectly good excuse that school children shouldn't be up so late knowing all the time that the kids could take it better than their teacher could and she had no intentions of going to bed anyway soon. We were through with letters a little after twelve and I was even tempted to read a chapter in my new book. I made myself forego that pleasure, however, for I knew one chapter would call for another.

May 15, 1956, Tuesday
Guess the loss of sleep weakened my moral fiber, intestinal fortitude, or whatever you call such things. As soon as the children had drunk their hot chocolate and knew that it was time for classes to begin they began to beg for the movie. There were three films but they had looked them over and had come to a unanimous decision. It would be Montana Cattle Queen first. I pretended to be horrified at the idea, knowing all the time I was going to show the picture. I wanted some more work done in sanding the garden spot and I saw my chance to get it done willingly. They promised twenty buckets of sand each with fervor so we saw Montana Cattle Queen when we should have been adding, subtracting, and spelling. They worked like little bees this afternoon and I wasn't one buck short although some of the faster ones finally went to the aid of the slow and the little. The whole garden spot is now sanded. We searched again for a place dry enough to play volleyball but had no luck. Had a geography lesson from three fifteen until four o'clock. So there was instruction today. We won't comment on the finite quantity. Show again tonight for the Moms and Pops. I read my new book while they looked so everyone was happy.

May 16, 1956, Wednesday
Among the new books that came on that wonderful mail delivery two were entitled "Alaska Today" and "The Flying North". This latter is a story of all the early bush pilots and important early flights. Just couldn't resist reading excerpts from it to the older interested. They knew some of the pilots personally and had heard of others. We all got a laugh about the pilot who flew one hundred and ninety miles from a village to Fairbanks. He had wondered all the way why his plane seemed tail heavy. When he landed inspection revealed three little Eskimo girls from the village. They just wanted to see the show they said; so he took them to the show, fed them their supper plus ice cream, found them a room for the night and flew them home the next day. Was thrilled to learn in a pamphlet from Juneau that an aviation school was to be set up in Alaska under the auspices of ANS. It will train mechanics, stewardesses, etc. and will be free for the native children. I passed this on to the older boys and girls and you could see their faces light up for airplanes and air travel are their fascination. The most of them never saw even a bicycle but they are all familiar with planes.

May 17, 1956, Thursday
This was one good day to get through. The excitement of the new had died away and it was just plain old last minute lessons that were just about as inviting as left over flour gravy. By noon I was ready to quit and the children had. When I finally dismissed them at four o'clock I was so nauseated that I was headed for the bathroom. I stayed abed for a while and it helped but at six o'clock I still could not face food and when yours truly can't eat, something is wrong. Several more plunges to the bathroom and with the aid of the aspirin bottle I managed to get to sleep.

May 18, 1956, Friday
Refused to get out of bed this morning. I knew there was nothing wrong except a nervous stomach caused by a let down from nervous tension but I decided to take advantage of Friday and get a three day rest. If it becomes necessary we can have our all day picnic on Saturday instead of Friday and get in the same number of school days. You never interfere with anything else up here if you decide to change your schedule. R. W. went seal hunting or to be more truthful, went out to watch the seal hunters. Theretha and Roger roamed the hills. In between jaunts they came in to eat. I stayed abed and rested the entire one 3:00 a. m. to 9:00 p. m. sunlight hours.

May 19, 1956, Saturday
Cloudy and cool. No real rain, only showers. Ice still in the bay and runway still too wet for bush plane. Hunting still not hot although many in the village are out for three or four days at a time. Took pictures of one cogruk that was brought in. Of course, the picture will be of the dog team, sled and the hunter for the cogruk had to be cut into about three sections in order to get it on sleds. A large one weighs close to fifteen hundred pounds according to a native estimate. I have hunted in dictionary and encyclopedia for information on this animal. I can find nothing that describes or even mentions him. I am quite sure there is such an animal though for I see them bring them out of the sea. (to be continued)

This space has been bought and paid for by friends of H. A. C. Brummett without his knowledge. Most of us supported the present District Attorney ten years ago when he ran for this office. Some of us supported him four years ago when he was re-elected to his fourth term, but we now sincerely believe that fourteen years is too long for one man to hold such an important office. Recent developments, such as the land scandals, have demonstrated to the people of Texas that good men can serve in public office too long.

H. A. C. Brummett is a pioneer West Texas lawyer, well qualified for District Attorney, and he has promised the people of this district that he will not try to serve two masters by engaging in the private practice of law. We sincerely believe that a vote for H. A. C. Brummett for District Attorney will be a vote for better law enforcement.

Vignettes of a Vacation Ended:
Mail is one nice angle of a vacation; that which you receive while away from home (if you have left a forwarding address), and that which accumulates during your absence.

For instance there was a letter from Mrs. Hunsucker (Mrs. Brewster) Baldwin out Socorro, N. M. way, whom we visited a short while when we made a recent week-end trek to Albuquerque. Her letter also was forwarded to us in Florida, and re-forwarded from there. This ardent and faithful fan-friend wrote, "I enjoyed receiving our Tribune on Saturday — why don't you go to Florida every week?"

Also in the re-forwarded bundle was the clearest announcement ever, from the M. B. Carrolls of Henderson, formerly of Matador. A staff of music contained six notes labeled "Moyes, Jo, Ann, Ted, Kay, Sue." At the top was the message, "A new Note has been added to the Carroll Staff", and at the bottom was another staff containing one little note, and the name under it, "Joy Lynn", June 6, 7 the 6 o'clock. (Mrs. C.) had penciled on the backside, "I give up! Ted will just have to remain out-numbered."

We were saddened during our trip with the news of the death of Brother Carroll's mother. She was with them most of the time they lived here, and a more gracious southern gentlewoman we've never met.

The re-forwarded bundle of letters contained further, a letter of appeal from the "City of the Angels" in California and the pen of one who signs himself "Your devoted slave and well-wisher". To quote the entire contents would be too, too revelatory, but in part the writer declares that he has missed this column, has gradually gone into a decline and hardly ever eats more than a pound and a half of filet mignon, etc. He scores us to not further neglect our social obligation, but take up your pen again and write our inspired column once more; and confesses, "I also might add I do read Trail Dust too... that is not bad either..." and closes "... breathlessly awaiting the resumption of Pied 'Pinions'."

So here it is again, with misgivings, and a promise of maybe more later.

Miracles Of Medicine And A Mother's Prayers Pull Teen-Ager Through Crisis

(Editors note: The following article from the Arlington Journal will be of interest to friends in this area. Wynona Rice was born at Roaring Springs and is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rice, Sr., of that community, and has many relatives and friends there. She would appreciate letters and cards from anyone. Her address is Room 356, Harris Hospital, Fort Worth, Texas.)

Wynona Rice, a 15-year-old, 98-pound, 5-foot 1-inch Arlington girl, lies gravely ill in Harris hospital, Fort Worth.

But her being there at all is a miracle of modern medical treatment and the miracle of a mother's prayers.

Doctors said they had done everything possible for Wynona, and that her slim hold on life was ebbing away. But the report last Monday morning was that Wynona was much improved, and the hospital said Tuesday that she has a good chance to get well, although her recovery will be a long-drawn-out process.

She has Bright's disease, stubborn and tissue-poisoning malfunction of the kidneys which none of the antibiotics have yet brought under control. But bed-rest, glucose feedings, blood transfusions and a special diet, combined with the sick girl's fighting spirit, have pulled her through the worst part.

Wynona was admitted to the hospital Monday (July 9). Only that morning she had taken $20, she had saved from pay checks as car hop at the Dairy Queen on East Division street and made a down-payment on a beauty course at a Dallas beauty school.

Peacock Beauty salon had promised her a permanent job when the course was finished, and Wynona wanted to work steady to help her mother, Mrs. Geneva Prewitt so she wouldn't have to work so hard at the two jobs she holds to support the three girls in her family.

Feared illness
She told her mother after she had signed up for the beauty course that she was afraid something would happen that she might get sick and not be able to take the course.

Mrs. Prewitt works days as a maid at the Pike motel, then works evenings at the Dairy Queen. She is a widow and has two younger children as well as Wynona to support. Hard as it was, she was getting along fine until the past week. Wynona's critical condition meant that someone had to be with her in the hospital day and night and Mrs. Prewitt hardly left the child's side all week.

Mrs. C. E. Carmichael, at the motel, took over the maid duties and helped at the hospital as much as she could. There was no docking in the pay check for the maid's time off. She contacted various agencies trying to get help for the distraught mother, but there seemed little that could be done. An aunt of the two little children took them home with her to Gainesville until the emergency was over.

Instead of the beauty course which would have meant so much to Wynona and her mother Wynona is faced with long months in the hospital. She's a brave young lady and independent as they come. But there are many things which would make the days pleasanter for her—things which the average teenage girl takes as a matter of course, such as summer pajamas, toilet articles, magazines, stationary, and pen. And most of all, cards and letters. Encouragement.

CANDIDATES...

Reeves of Matador for the office of state representative, 88th District, was the next speaker. Instead of aiming his initial blows at his opponent, he criticized Matador Tribune editor Douglas Meador for his editorial in June 21 issue which urged the support of Reeves, Meador, at the rally in the capacity of a reporter, made no comment.

When Reeves went before his audience he defended the editorial and his newspaper friend then quipped his opponent with impressive statistics pertaining to his record in the Legislature. At one point where he defended his vote on raising the beer tax, he mentioned that Childress county has scheduled a beer election.

Ehrle broke into his opponent's speech to say "Yes, and I am dry." Reeves ignored the interruption and continued his talk.

Opponents Are Friends

Two candidates seeking the office of Motley county sheriff were also speakers at the rally. Their attitude toward each other was on a different basis. They are good friends. Deputy Jinks Wilson who made the opening political address, talked but two or three of his allotted 15 minutes. He solicited the votes of his listeners and closed by praising his opponent, J. D. Spray, for his clean race. Spray was the last speaker and talked but two or three minutes, soliciting votes, then complimented Wilson for the manner in which he had conducted his campaign. Observers say the race is an unusual one with the two candidates remaining on the best of terms throughout the campaign.

Talent On Program

The rally at Flomot was not all political arguments. Talks of the speakers were interspersed by talented performers. Musical pantomime numbers received resounding applause.

Outstanding on the program was a baton twirling performance by Miss Carleen Andestad of Hyattsville, Maryland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Andestad, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ross of Flomot.

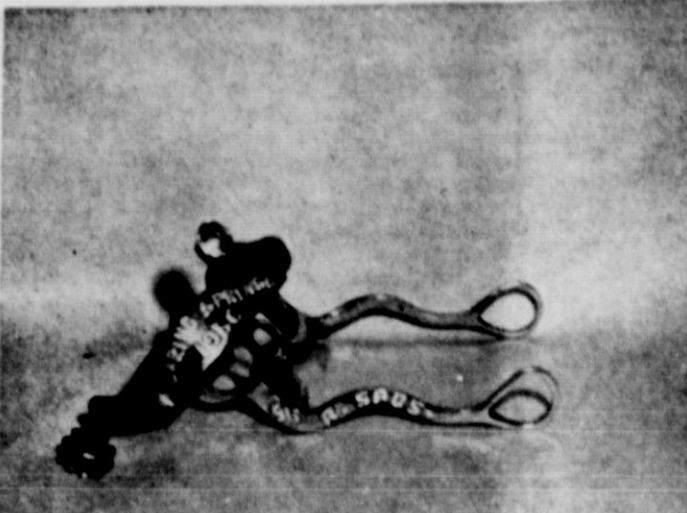

Miss Andestad is an expert baton twirler, and is one of a six-girl team of national champions two years ago. The high school team won the Lions International contest in Atlantic City last year and the girls were also declared champions in six foreign countries.

Miss Andestad, who, with her parents, is visiting relatives in Flomot, will enter high school (at her home in Maryland) as a senior this fall.

18-YEAR OLDS MUST BE PROMPT IN REGISTERING

AUSTIN, Texas—More than 32,000 Texans registered at local draft boards in the state during the first half of 1956, practically all of them 18 years old. However, the board experienced difficulty in getting them to register promptly.

Federal law requires men to register on their 18th birthday or within five days thereafter. Colonel Morris S. Schwartz, state Selective Service director, pointed out:

Under present draft regulations and policies, no one is drafted under age 22 in Texas except volunteers and delinquents. But the law obligates males to register at 18.

Since the present law was enacted in 1948, all males born since August 30, 1922, have had and now have a legal obligation to register, except those not yet 18.

A man who fails to register as required, upon prosecution and conviction, is subject to fine up to $10,000, or five years in prison, or both.

"Altering of registration certificates, or the carrying of registration certificates by unauthorized persons is subject to the same punishment," Schwartz said.

He pointed to the recent case of a youth in Houston, who received a 10-month sentence from a federal judge upon conviction of having registration certificates printed for the purpose of selling them to youths under 18.

Some boys under 18 want the certificates, as it helps them to buy beer at public taverns.

Increased Pensions?

My opposition is mailing old age pensioners of Motley county, letters promising them that he will support an increase in monthly pension checks. This promise has become a standard political implement for those cruel enough to use it.

I want and need your votes very much, but I will never need a vote so much that I will make a false promise to my friends who have reached the autumn of life.

To keep the record straight, consider these facts: No man can promise you an increase in the size of pension checks and keep that promise. The only possible way is through a constitutional amendment which has been approved by the votes of the people of Texas. And, the most important factor in the process is that funds must be provided, otherwise the legislation can not go into effect.

Most of you know that I supported SJ87 which increased funds from $35 million to $42 million for needy persons over 65, needy blind over 21 and needy children under 21. That is almost $10 million dollars MORE THAN ALL the ad valorem (property) taxes collected in the state.

You received but a slight increase in pension checks because the number of old age pensioners increased a vast amount until now we have 225,000 persons on old age assistance, more than any other state except California, which has a general revenue deficit of $50,000,000, while Texas operates on a cash basis.

Many of you have been receiving surplus commodities for which I am extremely grateful. A bill which I authored, created the surplus commodities division within the State Department of Welfare. Since my bill became a law, more than $21 million worth of these commodities have come to Texas for the needy at county levels, for school lunch rooms and state hospitals. I reiterate these facts merely to keep the record straight.

Many of you citizens on the old age pension rolls have known me all of my life. You know that I will work for your welfare at every opportunity — that I will strive to create new opportunities to make your lives more comfortable; your futures more secure. You have my record to prove that I am your voice in the legislature. You know that I will not make any promises that I can not fulfill, even at the expense of defeat. I want very much to be re-elected your representative, but I will not misrepresent the facts and build false hopes in your hearts to secure the office.
