

Soil Bank' Payments Announced For County

MENTS from the govern- ment's "Soil Bank" acreage re- ceiving to be in county. Many in county, who have been unable to plant a cotton crop because of the drought, will receive the benefit.

county is 138 pounds of lint cotton per acre, according to ASC Office Manager Tommie Moore, who returned Tuesday from a district meeting in Childress, where details of the plan were made public.

Payment will be based on 15c per pound. It means that the government will pay an average of $20.70 per acre on cotton kept out of production. A strange condition of the plan (which Moore was unable to explain) is that the $20.70 per acre payment is for cotton which has not been planted, because of adverse weather conditions, or because the farmer kept it out of production in anticipation of the "soil bank" payment.

On the other hand, if the land has been planted (that which is to be placed in the "soil bank") and the crop must be plowed up, and the average payment is only $6 for each retired acre. In either case, a farmer will be allowed to place no more than half of his cotton allotment in the "soil bank."

Wheat payment, on the other hand, seems to work in reverse. If the land has not been planted, average payment will be $4 per acre. If it has been planted but not harvested, payment will be $6 for each retired acre.

Land retired to the "soil bank" must be kept free of noxious weeds. It must not be grazed and no productive crop may be harvested from it during the 1956 calendar year.

Mr. Moore said some of the county committees are absent and that advance plans must be made for the program. He said it could be Monday before his office could begin receiving applications. He said applications must be filed before July 20.

An Editorial

WITHIN about six weeks voters in four counties that comprise the 88th Representative District are going to elect a man to represent them in Austin during the next term of the Legislature. The decision will vitally affect the future of West Texas because the next Legislature has been termed the most important since the Civil War. All of Texas needs honest, sincere and experienced representation. It can not afford to experiment. Representative Elbert Reeves is one of Texas' outstanding statesmen. His record as a lawmaker and his character stand resolute above the obnoxious slime of cheap politics; a man dedicated to the service of good government. We, who know Elbert Reeves, know this to be true. That is the reason Motley county in the past has voted almost solidly to support him. We know that he has fought our battles in the halls of the Legislature and fought them well. His record is an open book and should have returned him to office without an opponent. He has been at his post constantly and the legislation he has sponsored will be a lasting monument to his statesmanship. One bill alone which he authored has brought more than $21 million to the school children, needy families and old people of Texas in surplus commodities.

Strategy of Elbert Reeves' opposition is to break up the phalanx of votes in his home county, because they believe he can not be defeated in any other manner. Despite the fact that Motley county has the smallest vote in the district, it presents a formidable obstacle in the face of opposition.

If Elbert Reeves' political opposition have calculated correctly, we, the citizens of his home county, can render him a great service and at the same time render ourselves a greater service. We can each have a part in his campaign by working for his re-election. We can isolate the traitors to the cause of good government; we can close up the shops of the hate merchants and the rumor peddlers. We know Elbert Reeves. We don't have to depend on any promises or chance. We have one of the best State Representatives in Texas and we can send him back to Austin if we will each take a personal part in his campaign. The informed, fair-minded and grateful voters in three other counties are willing to help us but the responsibility of his re-election may well rest with the voters in his home county.

Mr. Wilbur is a "numismatist" (look it up, we did) and has followed his hobby over many years. Many of the rare coins he displayed here were gold pieces, some with a face value of $50 and worth many times more because of their scarcity.

White Star Struck By Heaviest Rains

"SPOTTED RAINS" are again playing hide and seek with Motley county farmers and 1956 crop prospects.

Time in which to plant cotton is rapidly passing.

A series of rain storms struck the western border of the county Sunday afternoon and dumped a flood into the lap of the White Star community. Estimates were that the rainfall there was from four to five inches. Flomot community is reported to have received from one to three inches of rain. Whiteflat areas caught from one-half to an inch or more and some hail. One observer said Tom Ball Creek was running bank full late Sunday afternoon.

In the meantime Matador rain gauges remained dusty (except for a trace shower) and Roaring Springs received only a shower.

The mercury shot up to 105 here Saturday for the hottest day of the year. Another series of rain storms Monday (lighter than Sunday) swept the northern part of the county and again filled later furrows in some areas.

An area of approximately five miles in each direction from Matador has not received enough moisture to plant. Conditions in other areas of the county are favorable with much cotton up to a good stand and growing rapidly. Best crop prospects are reported in the Whiteflat and Flomot communities and east in the Barton community.

The Bill Seale car left Matador Saturday morning and reached Shreveport, La. that night where they attended the Louisiana Hayride radio show. Miss Edwards was interviewed on the program and heard here.

Miami Beach's Fontainebleau Hotel will be International headquarters, but the Texas delegation will make headquarters at the Dillido Hotel, Miami.

COUNTY AGENT
PALLMEYER SAYS:

REFUND INFORMATION ON FEDERAL GAS TAX

The following list of statements are to clear up misunderstandings on obtaining refund of the federal tax on petroleum products used on the farm or ranch.

Farmers are to submit their claim for the refund of 2¢ per gallon on gasoline purchased during the period of January 1—June 20, 1936.

This claim must be made between Form 2340 on which the claim is to be submitted may be obtained at the County Agent's office. A copy is being mailed all farmers in the ASC news letter.

A farmer may also request Federal tax on gasoline used by a custom operator, or neighbor used on his farm, in connection with harvesting or production of an agricultural crop.

Farmers must keep a record to verify their claim.

For return of tax on diesel fuel and special motor fuels used on the farm, this claim must be made by the person making the first tax paid sale of the fuel.

According to a statement from Ellis Campbell, Jr., District Director of Internal Revenue, gasoline used in pick-ups and trucks

Highlights and Sidelights FROM YOUR State CAPITOL

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN—Next month, for the first time in 24 years, Texans will be asked to vote—not only on a general election but directly on issues.

The State Democratic Executive Committee members have approved the placing of three questions on the primary ballot. Voters can express their desires for a new constitution.

Legislation exempting a school from compulsory attendance at integrated schools.

Legislation "perfecting" the anti-interracial marriage law.

Use of interposition to halt federal encroachment on state rights.

Majority approval presumably would constitute a mandate for action by the next legislature.

Historically, such voter referendum elections have been held in 1901, 1907, 1913, 1920, 1924, 1932, 1936, 1940, 1944, 1948, and 1952.

In 1932 Texans voted overwhelmingly in favor of repealing the federal prohibition amendment. A year later the legislature followed suit and repealed the amendment.

This was the last referendum submitted until this year.

In other action the State Executive Committee certified a list of 31 candidates for statewide office. It ignored a charge by the Legislative Committee that Ruben Senter filed that Price Daniel's name was ineligible to appear on the ballot because he had not resigned his U. S. Senate post.

Fort Worth was selected by the committee as the site for the Sept. 11 state convention. Principal business at that time will be naming new party officers and deciding on a general election platform for the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

GOP Chooses Corpus

Texas Republicans will hold their August 28 state convention in Corpus Christi. GOP nominees for state office, presidential electors, a new state chairman and a general platform will be decided upon at that time.

Selection of the convention site was made at the party's state executive committee meeting in Austin.

Committee members sent Pres. Dwight D. Eisenhower a telegram asserting their confidence that he will carry Texas and be re-elected in November.

Redistricting Urged

Demands that Texas congressional districts be realigned were heard at both political party meetings.

Texas was allotted an additional congressman after the 1950 census. Since the legislature has rejected redistricting bills for the past two sessions, the extra man is elected by the entire state.

Bill Elkins, candidate for congressman-at-large, told the Democratic executive committee the main plank in his platform is to have the office he seeks abolished.

Republican National Committee member Jack Porter said the GOP legal committee might seek federal court action to force the legislature to redistrict.

"It's not fair to have the same representation from districts of 100,000 as you do from areas with more than a million," Porter charged.

Pearson Blamed Again

In a report made public by the Insurance Commission, TVman Drew Pearson received the blame of the blame for luring Texans into investing money in the now defunct US Trust & Guaranty Co. The report was based on answers to questionnaires sent draft purchasers by the state legislator's office.

Questionnaires were answered by 3,608 purchasers. They represented investments of $4,711,122. Nearly half of them charged Pearson with influencing them into buying. This because of his personal, oft-repeated statement that "You can put your trust in U. S. Trust."

Because Pearson personally recommended the purchase, the TV broadcaster several months ago pledged to refund all "profits" made on his commercials. As of this writing the Insurance Commission's records do not reveal any such repayments by Pearson.

Civil Immunity Denied Officials

Public officials are not immune from civil liability for acts in connection with their duties. An Austin district judge ruled in a case involving two former employees of the Insurance Commission.

Examiners Larry W. Blanchard and Robert R. Butler are among more than 50 defendants in a $6,890,000 damage suit. It was filed by the state legislator against those allegedly responsible for the 1954 collapse of the big General American Casualty Co. of San Antonio.

Parr Trial Delay Expected

Another six months delay seems likely before the trial of George B. Parr on income tax evasion charges takes place. Parr's plea to have the trial in Laredo, rather than Austin, was rejected by the US Supreme Court. U. S. Attorneys promptly asked Judge Ben H. Rice of Austin for an early setting, preferably in July. But Parr's attorneys said they will file for a rehearing before the Supreme Court. Such action could keep the case from coming up until January of 1957.

Parr was first indicted in 1954. He is charged with filing false returns in 1949, 1950, and 1951 and failing to pay the government $86,600.

Birth Certificate Bottleneck

State Health officials are urging parents of children who will enter school for the first time next fall to avoid the "birth certificate bottleneck." In past years thousands of requests have swamped the department in September. An estimated 260,000 children will be eligible to enter first grade this year.

Short Snorts—Soaring Heat and Lack of Rain

Withering Texas crops and pastures in all areas except the high plains, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The high plains still are green after three consecutive months in Texas construction history. The $168,102,823 contract in May brings the 1956 total to $572,000,000. That is better than the record year of 1953. Eleven South Texas counties have been quarantined against shipments of citrus fruits from Mississippi, Florida, Louisiana and Alabama. Purpose of the State Agriculture Department's ban is to prevent a possible infestation of the Mediterranean fruit fly into Texas groves.

The Diary of Mary White

March 14, 1956, Wednesday
A long day in school. Saw men with shovels and snow shoes go by the window and return in groups of twos and threes at intervals. The funeral for the baby was at four o'clock. No fires had been built for these people have no embalming methods. The church was quite uncomfortable to me. I wasn't dressed in a fur parka. A window box some previous teacher had made served as the coffin. The artificial flowers made by the sewing circle looked very nice.

March 15, 1956, Thursday
A break in the clouds about ten o'clock sent our hopes up again like a batted balloon but some little weather goblin soon punctured same. At four o'clock it was snowing so fast the children couldn't see how to throw snowballs at each other on the way home. Snow doesn't slow up class routine tho' so I am one tired female tonight. "What" jibe the tired old bones, "will happen next!"

March 16, 1956, Friday
The old bones got their answer this morning. Went in about six to light the lunchroom stove. I use it to cook my breakfast. Months ago we put a new burner in the cookstove in our quarters. Evidently we didn't install it correctly. It won't cook... just simmer. Lunch room hadn't heated too well past day or two so I decided to clean out the fire pot. It is about sixteen inches in circumference. About three-fourths of one inch was still fastened. The rest had melted loose. I blanched at the thought of how close we had been to a fire. Cornflakes for breakfast but what could I cook for lunch. I substituted honey for cooked apples, and cheese for the soup I had intended. Later I put the pots of water for the soup on our stove just to see if they would boil. It steamed a little so I poured out the packages of soup in at eleven o'clock. At twelve we served it though it had never boiled. It wasn't bad if you were hungry and I was. Surely glad it was Friday.

ed all afternoon putting a discarded burner they found somewhere into our stove. At five o'clock they lighted it and it got red hot. Glory! We had french fries and hot bread to go with our cans.

March 17, 1956, Saturday
R. W. and Harry worked on lunch room stove all morning. The kitchen had been green and white but for a while today the color scheme was green and black. Marion Segock, a neighbor who works for me occasionally came this afternoon and scrubbed it up. Both stoves now work nicely but no one is in the mood to cook so we have just perked the coffee and knick-knacked. (Guess that's not really a legitimate use of the word but I've often heard it used that way so I'm saying it too.)

March 18, 1956, Sunday
Mail! An explanatory and exclamatory word today. It has been two weeks and two days in arriving. Sick baby bundled aboard and some other passengers. Pilot promised to return tomorrow and get remaining passengers. No film and no packages so the postmaster revealed when he had finished sorting. Dejected children's faces and grown-ups not much more cheerful. But it didn't last for long. Back they went to their play. It was a nice sunny day for a change and must be used to the fullest. Wood hauling and fishing were much in evidence. The Whites were busy reading. Those who have been in Alaska two years say we will get to the point where mail day isn't exciting and the home town paper isn't read. Maybe? But then they didn't come from our home town!

I realize that this is not exactly the following day but there comes a time when the pitcher must be refilled if any more is to pour forth. I had to do some studying in order to get the days back in focus.

April 29, 1956, Sunday
A long day with some much needed relaxation and also some much-needed-to-be-done work accomplished. One woman came to visit right in the middle of my siesta. I knew she wanted something but I couldn't guess and she took forever to ask. I had a picture of her entire family and she wanted the negative. I forgave her though for she told me that her son, Fritz, had gone to Moose Point to get the mail since they thought that Alaska Airlines had dropped it off there this morning. R. W. spent the rest of the afternoon and early evening trying to look around the point and see a dog team coming.

Occasionally I heard him say through his teeth, "Well, Fritz, what the — — — Anybody can be slow." Fritz got home about ten thirty and we got to bed after midnight which is an unthinkable hour for me.

"MY OPINION IS —" Young Citizens of Matador whose pictures were made in February when a representative of Wolitz Studios, Des Moines, Iowa, visited here, braved a severe blizzard to reach the studio. The blizzard and an epidemic of measles prevented many from visiting the photographer. The engravings were supplied the Tribune by the studio. In the above group, top left to right are: Frank 1 year, Chris, 3 years and Mark, 5 years old, children of Rev. and Mrs. Ray Manning whose 11-year old daughter, Linda is shown in bottom row, first at left. Others in the group are Sonja, 11 years, and Eddie, 4 years, children of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hale.

April 30, 1956, Monday

That late hour had its effect today in a way that fairly startled me. Two-thirty is recess time so I dismissed them with a curt, "You may go now." One fourth grade girl walked by my desk and said softly, "I go home now?" (Remember their questions are always said like statements.) "Why should you go home now?" I asked. "You sleep. You need good sleep," she smilingly replied. "Br-r—other! That's being grouchy when it is obvious to even a child that you are off the beam."

May 1, 1956

Well, teacher had a little more sleep so things went a little better today. We got through nearly all the schedule even the black juice. For the past two days it has been raining. Because the snow is all off the trail and we can no longer haul by dog sled we dare not waste the water that falls. Grudgingly we turned the gutter pipe in to the reservoir. Our roof catches snot as well as rain. In mixing the water into dry milk the white elements overshadow the black elements but today we had clear lemon juice and the black was quite visible. Comments were varied and facial expressions ran the gamut. I assured them that it wasn't poison and that I intended washing my hair in it to see if I couldn't have all dark hairs instead of so many white ones. They smiled at each other out of the corners of their eyes as if to say "dumb gussok". Gussok or however the word may be spelled is their word for "white man".

May 2, 1956

In Texas vernacular I "broke in" the cooks this morning I left ten cans of powdered eggs on the cabinet with instructions for them to mix and cook same. "Ah-nee-Kah", the children say. (That's the equivalent of Holy Cow.) To mix two table-spoons for our breakfast is a chore so you can see what I let them in for. The children exclaimed delightedly when they saw the scrambled eggs on the trays however so guess it was worth the trouble. The day was warm and little rivers caused by melting snow ran everywhere, but, don't imagine too much for we still have plenty of snow. The dog teams still come and go on the bay. The ice is just now good for traveling, so they say!

May 3, 1956, Thursday

An uneventful day and tolerable only because it was so close to Friday. We did have one break in the monotony this afternoon. I had some filmstrip sent to me from the Nome office. The names of two of them were Eskimo Life in the Summer and Eskimos of North America. As is always the case, I suppose, these emphasized and even exaggerated the bits of peculiar Eskimo culture that were true before the advent of the white man. To these children the pictures were just plain false. When the sentence under one picture said that Eskimos drank walrus and seal blood the children nearly fell out of their chairs. We decided, en masse, that Elim should get a slide camera and make something a little more up to date for state-side children to see. Wanted to throw all work aside tonight and go see the new baby, but annual report instructions had a line under the must be in by May 10. I knew that for me it must be tomorrow's mail. The report nor the school census either were hard to make but I detest them and usually end up by detesting myself for putting off until the last minute. (to be continued)
