TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Tottering in the wake of a youth-spurred world, an old automobile waddles through the street with pebbles thrown from wheels of younger vehicles clattering against the broken windshield. Decay is eating through the wrinkled, tin hide and a consumptive pallor covers the chapped paint. A torn, rusty, fender sways like the futile wing of a monstrous bird trapped in the net of despair; fumes of burned oil cling to the faded upholstery as sinister smoke from a crematory blown into the purple dusk of evening twilight. The motor, like a tired heart, pounds against metal ribs and drives faltering energy to the stumbling wheels.

Not many license plates ago the automobile throbbed with an eagerness that is the heritage of youth. Impulsive strength and majestic beauty swept by as it passed with the grace of a swan on a mirrored lake. The upholstery was grey plush then and the instrument panel was polished ebony trimmed in silver.

So much that is beauty is only decay in transit.

Every spring new leaves come to an old trellis of memory as I recall the atheist's flower garden with its red, red roses and blue violets beside the row of lemon trees. He lived in a small white house on a quiet street, a thin, smiling man possessed of bonhomie disposition, who smoked a fragrant pipe and watched the galaxy of color in his flowers. Strangers often paused to admire the garden and children sometimes played on the thick carpet of grass near his door. Perhaps I should pity his pagan soul for never a glimpse of paradise instead of remembering the red roses dozing in the sun.

Riding a pot-bellied mare, I drove the milk cows ahead of our emigrant wagon, into the pungent cedar brakes toward the river. My bare feet were pinched between the stirrup leathers of a dried, narrow-forked saddle, but I did not mind the hurt for ahead lay broken country and emancipation from the thralldom of the plains. We made camp on a sand bar where willow bulrushes grew and my father kindled a cheerful fire from abundant driftwood. My mother sliced some cold mush to fry after a few strips of bacon and made coffee in a lard bucket. My brother and I had only bonny-clabber but it was a glorious meal for in a short time the moon climbed above high, rock-girded bluffs, and coyotes hidden in the gray shadows, bayed the stars. There is no taint of indigence in mouldy bread broken across the board of adventure.

No other peace rests the soul as steady rain cloistered in the night and trouncing the roof like a votary sentry guarding the enchanted estate of somniphany.

Death was hiding in an old prairie-dog hole on a mesquite flat and the cowboy's companions shot his crippled horse after they had carried the silent rider to the chuck-wagon and pilloved his head on a bag and beneath the fly. They turned the herd loose the next day and followed a buckboard across the hills to town.

The cowboy's bed-roll and saddle were left with the wagon until one afternoon a saffron-haired girl rode into camp and asked for the things that had belonged to him. There were no tears in her eyes as she unrolled the bed and took a bundle of letters tied with a piece of hobble rope. Her voice was soft and even as she asked to meet his friends, shaking the hand of every man, then she wrote an address on a wrapper from a coffee package with the request that the bed and saddle be forwarded. Stepping easily into the side-saddle, she rode out across the flat beyond the herd to a secluded spot and burned the letters; a small flame in the cooling furnace of day. When the last ribbon of smoke had vanished, the golden

Seized Drink Explained In Board Letter

Sheriff's Department Receives Advice In Liquor Cases

The title of liquors seized from offenders of liquor laws remains in the person charged until conviction is established according to a letter received by Sheriff L. A. Carlisle's department this week from C. A. Paxton, Chief Supervisor of the Texas Liquor Control Board. Some question has arisen in this and other counties regarding the disposition of seized liquor for medicinal and other purposes and the letter is a reply to an inquiry made from the local sheriff's department.

Advice Is Given

The letter received by Sheriff Carlisle is as follows: "Answering your letter of the 17th instant, this is to advise you that liquors seized from any person against whom criminal charge is filed for the violation of the law must be held in trust by the sheriff of the county in which seized until such time as the criminal charges are finally disposed of. In the event of a final conviction the title to such liquors automatically passes to the State and it is then incumbent upon the sheriff to offer them for sale at public auction after due posting of notices. The proceeds must be remitted for deposit in the State Treasury after deduction of costs.

Until a final conviction is had, the title to these liquors remains in the person from whom they are seized. Therefore it would be unlawful to dispose of them for medicinal, or any other purposes as contemplated in your letter."

Sleeper Awakens, Refreshed, to Find Roof Is Blown Off

GRAETTINGER, Iowa, May 26—Farmer Con Brekke spent a restless night in bed. When excited neighbors awoke him at dawn Wednesday, he admitted rolling over a couple of times at 1:30 a.m., when he thought he felt the house shaking. "But I went right back to sleep," he said. "They showed him the roof of his house, blown off in a tornado and his barn and outbuildings reduced to match-wood by the storm."

Lions Night Promised As Gala Affair

Keen Interest Shown As Program Of Box-Supper Completed

Keen interest is being shown in the Matador Lions Club box-supper to be held at the school gymnasium Tuesday evening at 7:45. The annual frolic will include many outside the membership of the civic club since the proceeds of the affair will be used to maintain the city park and wading pool, it was announced last week.

Boss Lion R. E. Campbell mailed notices to all members early in the week requesting they make plans to attend the box-supper and invite any friends who might be interested in the park and pool as well as the evening of frolic.

Part of the message read: "As proceeds from this supper will be used to maintain the park and wading pool for the summer, we are sure that you will give this occasion your heart support. Perhaps you have friends who are not Lions but are interested in our park and wading pool. Be sure to give them an invitation to come and bring their best girl and a box of eats for this worthy cause."

Last Frolic of Year

"This club, which is made up of such good Lions as you, has the name of 'doing things' in a great way. It will be our last meeting of this nature for this year. Let's push this over with a 'bang'."

Precipitation Heavy In Panhandle And More Promised

With a total precipitation of 2.05 inches of rainfall registered in Matador Monday night and Tuesday, reports indicate that Motley County is well-soaked and that planting the next day or two. Many declare that crop prospects are the best here at this time of the season in several years.

The rainfall was received with little wind and no hail, also some farmers declare that they may be forced to plant over part of their crops because of wash-outs. Range conditions in the county are improving daily and cattle are declared in good shape.

Over Panhandle Fort Worth, May 24—More rain fell Monday night and Tuesday in the Panhandle, the South Plains and North Central West Texas. Rains also extended into Southwestern Texas.

As in the preceding 24 hours, rainfall was heaviest in the Lubbock section, although there were heavy downpours in Howard and Martin Counties and Fort Stockton reported three-quarters of an inch. There was nearly an inch and a half of moisture at Midland and the rains were general in those sections.

Mitchell County received its first general rain of importance in months.

It measured 1.65 inches in Colorado and vicinity.

The rain throughout Scurry County averaged more than one inch and there was almost an inch all over Borden, while the average in Kent was fully an inch. Cottle and King Counties received as much as two inches of moisture.

In the southwestern quadrant of the rain belt, precipitation ranged from two and one-half to three inches over Martin County, filling all tanks and lakes. Cloudy skies early Thursday morning promised more rainfall and reports from Dalhart declared a deluge of 2.64.

Bank Will Observe June 3 As Holiday

The First State Bank, Matador, will observe as a holiday, June 3, Jefferson Davis' birthday, rather than taking Monday, May 31, in lieu of Memorial Day, which falls on Sunday this year, according to an announcement by officials of the bank.

Although Memorial Day is recognized and is usually observed as a legal holiday, it was considered best to observe only the Thursday holiday this year since both days fall in the same week, and being closed the two days would result in added work for the bank employees.

with 3,711 manufacturers who supply him; another with 1,050; another with 729—and so on. All one can see of the money is its endless flow from buyer to seller, which instantly makes the seller a buyer again and the buyer a seller with wages all along the line.

"Yes," some wisecracker says, "and plenty of it sticks that never comes back." Well, we often wish that everyone could have a grandstand seat overlooking the whole industrial process, to see how far such a remark is true.

Money figures are useful in showing which way we are going as a nation, and for the first four months of 1937 they are reassuring. In the first quarter of this year Ford Motor Company spent for materials 271 millions, as against 199 millions for the first quarter of last year, and 70 1-2 millions for wages as against 54 millions for the first quarter of last year.

THE DAY OF SPEED BY E. A. CARLOCK

It is a general belief that we have more disasters now than in any period of history in the past. This is mostly error. The truth is we have faster news service, radio, and every manner of fast news travel that our forefathers did not have.

In days gone by it took months and even years for people to learn what the outside world was doing. A person's neighbor was within a radius of a few miles. Today the world is our neighbor. Even as young as is our country, a battle was fought a month after peace had been declared.

We are living in an age of speed. Not only is this true of transportation, but it is also true of thought, action, desires and the ambitions of men. It is very doubtful if this is the correct way. In fact we can be sure that we are lighting the candles at both ends at the same time, hoping that we will have double light and that the candle will burn longer thus lighted than it would if only one end was on fire.

As far as residents themselves are concerned, your car is just as safe standing on the street unlocked as it would be at home in the garage. But for several months to come this and every other part of the country will be overrun with transients, and quite often the temptation of an unlocked car is too great for one of them to overcome.

Always lock your car. It is a temptation to the man who desires to get somewhere else in a hurry, and believing he can use it for that purpose without being apprehended, he doesn't hesitate to take it. Eventually you may get the car back. But you have helped on his way a boy who might have gone straight and had you not placed temptation before him. Always lock your car.

work. Every observer who has been here for any length of time is accustomed to the enthusiasm of new administrators who come in with each successive administration and voice their determination to speed things up. In a few months these enthusiasts have succumbed to the Washington climate, and a few of them ever keep up the pace they set for themselves.

Vacations Necessary
That is why vacations are such an important element in the scheme of things in Washington. It is not possible to move the capital to a more invigorating climate, but it is possible for everyone whose official duties permit it to get away for long periods and come back refreshed. Even the lowest clerk in a Government office gets a 30-day vacation on full pay every year. It would be cruel not to grant them that privilege. And the higher one's Government job, the longer and more frequent the vacations.

President Roosevelt has set an all-time record for vacations. He has not done quite so much traveling as President Taft did, but he has spent more time away from Washington than any previous President ever did. Mr. Taft traveled 115,000 miles, practically all of it in the United States, during his four-term.

Mr. Roosevelt so far has traveled only 105,000 miles since his first inauguration in 1933. His itinerary has included every state in the Union except New Mexico and Arizona, most of our island possessions and many of the British colonies. He has visited five foreign nations as President, though he has not gone to Europe. Only one President ever went to Europe while in office. That was President Wilson, who made two trips across the Atlantic in attending the Peace Conference.

New Legislation Delayed
With the Presidential example before them, the impatience of members of Congress and high Administration officials over the slow progress of events here is quite understandable. They too, want to get away and relax. That is why it becomes increasingly unlikely that any but absolutely essential legislation will be passed at this session. It is the general feeling that, no matter what he may propose, the President cannot hold Congress here very long after the Supreme Court issue has been laid to rest.

The eagerness of the legislators to get away from Washington is not wholly the desire to escape the summer climate. A high proportion of them want to find out at first hand from the people and politicians of their states and districts just what the voters think now about the policies and proposals of the Administration. Probably the most important political question among Democrats, particularly those from the South is: "How far will the voters follow us if we come out openly in opposition to the President?" That such a move is one which many of them would like to make is undeniable.

Some Administration officials are aware that the South does not like many parts of the New Deal program as developed thus far. There is a feeling, reflected in the cloakrooms of Congress though not voiced on the floor, that too much emphasis is being placed upon the interests of organized Labor, which is a concern of the North rather than of the South. Also the interest shown by some of the Administration's left-wing advisers in the Negro problem is giving Southern statesmen considerable concern. That is something in which the South resents any Federal meddling. It is the South's problem, and the South insists upon handling it in its own way.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Washington, May 26 (Autocaster)—Although the end of the Congressional session is still weeks and perhaps months ahead, official Washington is beginning to think about Summer vacations. So far this Spring Washington's climate has been quite bearable, but the stifling Summer season is close at hand. In Summer nobody in Washington ever does anything which can be avoided. Every year which passes emphasizes the mistake which was made by the Founding Fathers in locating the Nation's capital in this miasmic swamp on the banks of the Potomac. It was one of the conditions imposed upon the newly-formed Republic in 1787 by the delegates to the Constitutional Convention held in Philadelphia just 150 years ago.

Virginia, Maryland, the Carolinas and Georgia feared domination by the northern states if they assented to the capital remaining in Philadelphia, where the Continental Congress had its headquarters.

Indeed, although Philadelphia was the largest city in America at that time, the feeling against it was so strong that for the first two years of our national existence New York was the seat of government, which moved back to Philadelphia only after the compromise of a completely new city, on lands donated by Virginia and Maryland, had been arrived at.

Location Unfortunate
Nobody could foresee then what a gigantic institution the Government of the United States was going to become. And nobody realized the enervating quality of the climate in this particular spot. That is not a matter of latitude, for there are hundreds of cities much farther South in which it is possible to live and work in comfort the year around. Most of those, however, are at high altitudes or situated near enough to salt water to get the refreshing effect of the sea breezes.

In Washington midsummers there is no escape from the steaming humidity, unless one is fortunate enough to have the air-conditioned halls of Congress and some of the new executive buildings in which to seek refuge. That's me—Your Mileage Merchant
I'LL OIL-PLATE YOUR ENGINE

Nobody but a Conoco Mileage Merchant like me can Oil-Plate your engine, because nobody else can change you to Conoco Germ Processed oil. There's a patent on it. The Germ Process is not like all the processes that "take away" from an oil— sort of like making skim milk. Instead of that, after the oil is refined in every right way, something altogether extra is put in Germ Processed oil. This is a great discovery, because then a genuine plating of oil is able to form in your engine. If you would imagine a slippery skin of oil really grown to every working surface—and not just floating around—that's a picture of Oil-Plating. A plating can't flow down while your car is parked, so you won't punish your Oil-Plated engine doing all the stopping and starting you please. Or if you're hitting a pace all day—maybe even pulling a trailer up the mountains—it does not make Oil-Plating rub away. That's letting you out of all the worst wear, at the same time that your Conoco Germ Processed oil is saving you quart after quart.

NEW BUSINESS DECREASES

New charters granted during April totaled 141 against 143 the preceding month and 140 April last year. Capitalization totaled $2,294,000, increases of 12.2 and 69.8 per cent over the preceding month and the corresponding month last year.

There were substantial increases in the number of charters granted the manufacturing and oil groups compared with last year and sharp declines in the number granted to public service, real estate, building, and transportation groups.

GOOD THING TO KNOW

An easy way to stamp hooked rugs is to draw design on paper, then trace all lines on design with wax crayon. The more wax you can get on the better. Then lay wax side down on burlap and go over it with a hot iron. This will stamp the rugs as good as any you can buy.

WEEK'S BEST RECIPE

MACARONI AND HAM—One medium size can cooked macaroni in cheese sauce; one cup ground cooked ham; one-half cup bread crumbs; one tablespoon melted butter. Place a thin layer of macaroni in a buttered casserole and top with a layer of ham. Repeat layers, until all are used. Mix bread crumbs with butter and sprinkle over top. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about twenty minutes, or until well heated through and crumbs have browned. Serves four.

A STYLE HINT

The vogue for white influences many materials this year. The new tweeds have white thread mingled with pastel or darker shades. White polka dots of all sizes are still very smart. Check and plaid materials show a lot of white and white stripes, ranging from the shadow to the thick bar stripe. White stitching and white braiding are also largely used on dark tailored suits.

IN THE KITCHEN

The flavor of hot prune juice may be improved if a little spice and lemon juice are added. A little mustard spread over chops or steaks to be broiled or baked will greatly improve the flavor. Leftover cooked ham blends well with veal, pork and beef in salads, sandwich mixtures, potpies, and hash.

●First and Fourth Generations "Meet"

"John Deere" in the person of Monte Blue (left), motion picture star, and Charles Deere Wiman, great grandson of the man who gave to the world the steel plow 100 years ago this spring, came together recently at one of the centennial celebrations being held this year in honor of the pioneer plow maker. On the battered old anvil is a replica of one of the first plow bottoms made by John Deere. This photograph was made in Moline, Illinois, at an employe celebration. Moline is headquarters of the John Deere organization and Mr. Wiman is the fourth of the family to hold the post of president. Blue appears in the blacksmith's costume he wore in the romantic motion picture dealing with John Deere's development of the self-scouring steel plow.
