TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Drifting into the sunset as an estrayed brigantine plowing a golden sea, the alabaster cloud is grounded on the reef of twilight where cool winds bear fragrance of sage and cedar from the seared path of the sun. Presently the subject and the artist have vanished with a cadent portiere left suspended by purple ribbons hanging over the cornice of sky; a piece of beauty torn from the silent loom which weaves fine garments for the soul.

Abandoned wagon roads are covered with mesquite grass like brands on an old cow standing motionless in the sun and a loco plant is blooming where once moving wheels ground the barren dust in narrow trails. The past's last load has been freighted across a frontier rich in the clay which men shape images after the patterns in their hearts, and the wagons have moved on to the parquet of forgotten things. Time moves so close after the brief victory of dreamers, to erase with a fixed finger, every trace of the conquest and return a cleaned slate to the ages.

My broken promises are as flowerless vases along the ledge of years and I am shaken by attrition when I count the prayers which God has found worthy of fulfillment.

Tempo I seem ungracious for gestures of sincerity, but with the formidable weight of a shirt on my bright red back I find difficulty in appreciating the conventional greetings of jovial friends. My last memory of a similar condition is permanently associated with a treatment applied by my father which did not seem to do me any good, but rather to spread the affliction. Soliloquy: A picnic is like an imbibing spree; you have more fun before you start, and then things continue to get worse.

Many a self-made man is reluctant to admit that fate had him tied and blindfolded while the saddle of success was being strapped to his cringing back.

Rust has consumed most of the thin gold band holding two rain-washed pieces of glass in a pair of old spectacles found on a lonely mesa. A frost of prismatic coloring clings to the lenses as the essence of many suns drained into a small vial and chilled by the blast of northern roaring through winter nights. One of the frail temple-clamps crumbles at the touch of a hand again, as if in protest at being aroused from slumber in peaceful arms, after lonely days and nights against the soil.

Perchance the scenes have changed since the quaint spectacles were lost to the silence of years and the eyes that once looked through them may have found more sublime vistas beyond that fog-laden river bordering eternity.

A young man needs to become old before he is willing to accept the counsel an old man tenders.

Many of the seeds I have planted beside the trellis of ambition have matured into gourd vines instead of the vivid morning-glories illustrated on the package of my hopes. At the age when I matri-culated into the estate of two su-penders and shoes, the head of a detective agency accepted my application for a position on his force. After a few weeks initiation to the colorful profession, which allowed time to write my entire acquaintanceship on the firm's attractive stationery I was given an assignment. But the theme of glory is often confusing; I was made nightwatchman over an abandoned lumberyard across the river by two weeks. At the end of two weeks I received a ten dollar bill in a letter from my mother, and purchased a ticket home, to begin a treatise on how to become a railway mail clerk.

State School Fund Per Capita Pay Boosted To Highest Mark On Record

$22 Per Scholastic To Allow Schools $4,700,000 More

AUSTIN, July 6.—Public schools of Texas will receive approximately $4,700,000 more from the state per capita apportionment during the year starting next September 1 than ever before in history.

The board of education voted today, 6 to 2, to boost the allotment from $19 to $22 per scholastic. An effort to set it at $21 had failed on a tie vote.

Balance Leads To Increase
An estimate of the comptroller's department that the available school fund would have a balance of $3,117,899 September 1 led to the large apportionment increase. That would mean a gain in the fund of $1,638,253 during this fiscal year.

Until June of last year, the per capita apportionment was only $17.50. The board then allowed a supplemental grant of $1 for the 1935-36 year and fixed the allotment for the 1936-37 year at $19. The state has approximately 1,560,000 children of school age.

Proponents of the increase to $22 said a reduction in the tax rate would benefit only large property holders. They pointed out that homesteads up to $3,000 valuation already were exempt from the state ad valorem levy.

School men from all parts of Texas urged that the raise be granted. They said schools were badly in need of more money to lengthen terms, boost teacher's salaries and repair buildings.

MRS. PATTERSON ADVANCED FOR COUNTY DUTIES

Mrs. Ora Patterson, who has served for some time, in the capacity of County Supervisor for Motley and Dickens counties in state-wide tax survey operations under Works Progress Administration, has been appointed to the post of Area Supervisor, with jurisdiction over two additional counties, King and Cottle. The appointment, which lacks only authoritative approval to make it official, was made on the recommendation of Judge Edgar Hutchins of Lubbock, District Supervisor of district 17 which comprises 24 counties, including Motley.

Recent changes in the administration abolished the Wichita Falls, Abilene and Big Spring districts, merging the counties into other districts, which resulted in the addition of King and Cottle counties to the Lubbock district.

Only five supervisors in the 24-county district were retained, and Mrs. Patterson holds the unique position of being the only woman supervisor connected with this work.

NUDISTS SWIM AT CHILDRESS

Nudists have taken advantage of the hot weather of the past week to bath in the old city lake, two miles southwest of the city, gathering there in rather large numbers men and women, boys and girls. Clothing is left on the bank, with bathing suits tabooed, and a run is made to see who can go under first.

Possibly this publicity should not have been made. Also, there are reasons to believe others would be welcomed, as it is not an exclusive society, but it is distinctly understood that snoopers, curiosity seekers are not welcomed. The participants go bathing in the lake for the purposes of recuperating after a hard day's work, not for sight-seers. —Childress Index

Amid the cheering of an enthusiastic membership while the year's brilliant achievements were summarized, Lion Fay Jacobs stepped to the helm of the Matador Lions Club at the regular meeting held at the Baptist Church Tuesday. Campbell appointed as the Boy Scouts house committee; Elmer Stearns, Jim Peeler, Clyde Bartlett, U. L. Wille and B. F. Tunnell.

Quiet Fourth Sets Pattern For Holidays

Perfect Record Made Over Entire County As Peril Passes

With the ominous wings of death hovering over a berserked nation Sunday and Monday while a two-day summer holiday passed Motley county set a perfect record for conduct and caution. Not a single complaint was made to the sheriff's department, nor was there any report of accident, Sheriff L. A. Carlisle said yesterday. Many Matador citizens departed late Saturday to take advantage of the full two days holidays at various pleasure resorts while others remained at home or made short one-day trips. Activity in the business section of the city Monday was less than that of a usual Sabbath as most business houses had closed. In the late afternoon only restaurants and filling stations remained open.

No Fireworks Noticed

Sheriff Carlisle said that he did not know of any firm selling fireworks in Matador for the holiday and that he did not observe any display.

Death Takes Big Toll

America's Fourth of July accident fatalities soared to 495 Monday as the 161st Independent day anniversary celebration drew to a close. However, only two of the deaths were directly attributed to fireworks.

PASTURE SLOPE TERRACE MADE AT WHITEFLAT

Taking advantage of the federal range improvement program which provides payments for terracing pasture land, Robert Wilkinson of Whiteflat has just completed a system of terraces on fifty acres of pasture slope. The ridges were built on level lines spaced approximately ten to fifteen yards apart and were calculated to be of sufficient size to hold all of the rainfall which may occur between the terraces.

Although scattering mesquite and considerable smaller brush occupied the treated land, the county terracer, by which the terraces were built, was able to plow out the smaller and dodge the larger of these obstructions. No grubbing was found to be necessary. Two rounds with this large machine was found sufficient to construct a ridge of substantial height and body. All of the dirt used was taken from the upper side to increase the water holding capacity of the terrace and to minimize the area of sod disturbed.

Hopper Advance Is Stayed As Farmers Storm Many Fronts

Ten Tons Of Poison Bran In Campaign

Indications on some farms that grasshoppers are slacking in their destructive advance are mingled with reports of new and increased depredations on many others, as the government poisoning campaign continues in this county. One hundred gallons of liquid sodium arsenite has been issued to date, which has been mixed with ten thousand pounds of government bran and an equal quantity of bran and cottonseed hulls furnished by the farmers.

Two Teachers Elected Here Fill Faculty

Two teachers elected at a recent meeting of the Matador school board complete the faculty for the local school system according to a statement released by superintendent B. F. Tunnell early this week. Bert Ezzell of Tipton, Oklahoma, was elected as high school principal to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of B. F. Harbour, who has accepted a similar position at Olney, Texas.

Mr. Ezzell received his B. A. degree from the Abilene Christian College and is at work at present doing summer work at Texas Technological College, Lubbock, towards a Master's degree. He has been coach of athletics in the Oklahoma school for the past two years and his work has merited high praise. During college he held a position of leadership, being editor-in-chief of the college year book, president of the college "A" club and an outstanding student. He lettered four years in football, basket ball, tennis and track.

Lubbock Man Elected

Paul Eubanks of Lubbock, who has been engaged as a teacher in the Benjamin school, was elected to teach the upper grades of the grammar school, although definite assignment of his work has not been made. His work in the Benjamin school with junior-age students has been outstanding and he will fill a long felt want for an additional man teacher in the upper grades, Mr. Tunnell declared.

Successful Revival Concluded Sunday

Rev. Marvin Williams, dynamic young evangelist from Kress, conducted the preaching services and was assisted by Rev. Denison. Rev. Frank Beauchamp, pastor of the Methodist Church at McAdoo, was in charge of the singing and young people's work, reporting good results in his contact with the youthful church attendants.

City's Water Supply Given State Rating

Highway Signs Soon To Tell Travelers Of High Approval

Ranking with fifty other Texas cities, Matador's water supply has received an A or excellent rating and highway signs will soon be erected in four directions from the city to notify the traveling public that the water here has been approved by the state health department. A letter from the state health department to Mayor Geo. T. Edwards, in part, is as follows:

"Dear Sir—
It is with a great deal of pleasure that we are able to advise you that your city drinking water supply has received an A or excellent rating. This has largely been due to the improvements which you have effected and represents a great increase in the factor of safety.

"Therefore, in testimony of this satisfactory situation, we are herewith authorizing you to erect on all your public highways a permanent marker notifying your citizens as well as the traveling public that the public water supply of Matador has received the approval of the Texas State Health Department. Our signed agreement permitting this arrangement is attached to this letter. This public approval is a distinct honor for your city water supply; and in fact, has been awarded to approximately fifty supplies in the state so far—"

The letter is signed by Geo. W. Cox, M. D., State Health Officer.

"THERE IS GLORY ENOUGH FOR ANY MAN TO LIVE AND DIE A TEXAN."

THE PENDERGASTS

To those who have been keeping up with the developments in the Kansas City vote fraud cases, the open letter which the federal grand jury has issued has an ironic quality that is almost ghastly. Several score underlings in the Pendergast machine have been indicted, tried and convicted in connection with the vote frauds of last year. Various lesser functionaries in the organization face prison terms for the parts they played in the orgy of ballot-changing, fraudulent counting, and intimidating of voters, in the election last year. And now a federal grand jury admits that it can find no basis for indictment of Tom Pendergast himself or of his nephew and chief lieutenant, James M. Pendergast. No evidence has been found that these two were responsible, in any real sense, for the changing of the ballot. The grand jury had been urged by federal judges to stop after the higher-ups. Its letter says, in effect, that it has identified the higher-ups, but that it cannot indict them. The public is called upon to believe that the men and women who have been found guilty committed their offenses on their own initiative without direction or inspiration from the organization's leadership. That is how the matter stands, in law. Neither the grand jury nor the public can believe any such thing, in the moral sense. The gratification which decent-minded folks feel over the convicted cases which have been obtained in these cases is lessened by two considerations. One is that the leaders of the machine cannot be among those indicted. The other is that authorities have done nothing to bring the guilty ones to justice, and that had it not been for the federal courts, the disclosures never would have been made. The political machine headed by Tom J. Pendergast is one of the most powerful ever to function in this country. Starting in Kansas City, it presently had that city firmly in its tenacles. Later it broadened its field of action, and in recent years has dominated Democratic politics in the state as a whole. One of Missouri's senators is a Pendergast henchman, the other is under obligations to the Pendergast machine. Observers have said that Tammany, in its palmiest days, was never as efficient an organization as that of Pendergast. The indictments and convictions have discredited it to some extent, but it remains to be seen whether they have lessened its power. The answer to that is with the voters, not with the federal courts.—Wichita Daily Times

CLAIMS BEING PAID OLD-AGE BENEFIT PLAN

Social Security Has Try-out As Payment Made 48 States

DALLAS, June 7.—The Social Security Board announced today that 5,390 claims for lump-sum and death payments had been filed with the Bureau of Federal Old-Age Benefits, as of June 1. These claims were received from each of the 48 states and from the District of Columbia. None had been received from Alaska and Hawaii on that date. The report, issued by E. L. Tutt, manager of the Dallas field office of the Social Security Board, showed that New York, with 776, and Pennsylvania, with 610, lead all States in the number of claims filed. In the southwestern region, 127 claims had been filed in Texas 52 in Louisiana, and four in New Mexico.

Only 43 claims have been disallowed for payment out of all of those filed, according to the report. "There has been little delay in the payment of claims," Tutt stated. "The average length of time for payment of lump-sum benefits to eligible employees at age 65 after the receipt of the claim is approximately 3 weeks. However, payments to estates of eligible wage earners take an average of about 1 week longer." This difference in length of time, it was explained, is due to the necessary variation in procedures. A life claim, it was pointed out, involves little more than checking the name and account number and establishing the age of the claimant and wages received. In the case of a death claim, State laws relating to priorities and exemptions, if funeral and last illness expenses have not been paid, must also be considered. In addition, there is a considerable variation of procedure depending on whether or not a will has been probated and who files the claim.

Jackson Square, New Orleans—A park in the city is like an oasis in a desert, a refreshing, peaceful region amidst an ugly section where turmoil and strife hold forth. And Jackson Square in New Orleans was no exception, as I came upon it in my rambles about the Old French Quarters. Years ago, the negro slaves gathered in a vacant lot once a week to dance, sing, laugh and have a good time in general. While they were doing this they were re-charging their battery of vitality that much hard labor had almost exhausted.

The white man has set aside parks with grass, trees, benches, flowers, monuments and bandstands where he, too, may rest and find temporary surcease from his arduous labors.

In this park, like most others, one sees in the main, loafers, squirrels and pigeons with a sprinkling of a few others. An equestrian statue of "Stonewall" Jackson, astride his prancing charger, gives this square its name. While I was looking at it I saw a bird alighting on Jackson's bronze head which he later on soiled. What a wicked bird, he showed no respect for the Southern High Command, or perchance he hailed from the north.

Buildings surround Jackson Square on three sides. Two sides are taken up with the Pontalba Buildings (high class apartments of former days), while the St.

Louis Cathedral and the Cabildo complete the third side. The fourth one is open to a view of railway tracks, warehouses and is not particularly edifying. As I glanced at the Pontalba Buildings I noticed many entertained initials among the scroll work of the 'iron lace' balconies. The two letters thus repeated many times were "A" and "P" and were the initials of the father (who built these buildings) and his beloved daughter.

I glanced at the occupants on the park benches. Here I saw many poor, despondent men, out of work and funds, and old men sunning themselves in the autumnal haze and dreaming perhaps of their past life when they were young and gay. Then there were loafers and tramps, some of them scanning the passerby with an appraising glance to see if he were worth the effort to panhandle.

Apart from the others I saw a middle-aged, bespectacled American lady who was knitting and talking with a Chinese gentleman of evident culture and refinement, a tourist in the West. Two civilizations, poles apart, were here represented and I thought of Kipling's dictum about the East and West never really meeting. He was right, only in the narrow sense do they ever meet, but in a larger one, owing to their mental processes, they never can.

Then I left Jackson Square, and wandered over to the St. Louis Cathedral.

Average July Rainfall 1.61 Records Show

Crop Prospects Hang In Balance During Next Few Weeks

With Motley county looking toward the sky as one of the finest crop prospects in history hangs in the balance of the next few weeks a study of the rainfall records kept by J. H. Sample was made yesterday. During the last ten years an average of 1.61 inches of rain has fallen during the month of July in Matador. The accurate record which Mr. Sample has kept of every rain for the past twelve years, reveals some interesting data. In the year 1930 no rain fell here in July; in 1926 only .18 inch was recorded and in 1934 only .48 inch fell. While 1926 had less than one fifth of an inch during July, the year had the largest total (29.11 inches) since the record was started. 1927 had 1.41 inches of rain in July but the lowest total (11.63) since the record was started.

July Is Key Month
Mr. Sample, who has made a study of rainfall here and the effect of weather conditions on crops said that he believed rain in July was most important to a good cotton crop, however, in some instances there had been exceptions. He declared that he believed we are due to receive ample moisture before the month is out or early in August. His records show 2.24 rainfall during June this year. The July rainfall for the past ten years is as follows: '27, 1.41 in.; '28, 2.56 in.; '29, .84 in.; '30, none; '31, .92 in.; '32, 1.80 in.; '33, 4.42 in.; '34, .44 in.; '35, .83 in.; '36, 2.86 in.

THE PENDERGASTS

To those who have been keeping up with the developments in the Kansas City vote fraud cases, the open letter which the federal grand jury has issued has an ironic quality that is almost ghastly.

Several score underlings in the Pendergast machine have been indicted, tried and convicted in connection with the vote frauds of last year. Various lesser functionaries in the organization face prison terms for the parts they played in the orgy of ballot-changing, fraudulent counting,
and intimidating of voters, in the election last year.

And now a federal grand jury admits that it can find no basis for indictment of T. J. Pendergast himself or of his nephew and chief lieutenant, James M. Pendergast.
No evidence has been found that these two were responsible in any less degree than the counting of the ballot. The grand jury had been urged by federal judges to open after the higher-ups. Its letter says, in effect, that it has identified the higher-ups, but that it cannot indict them.

The public is called upon to believe that the men and women who have been found guilty committed their offenses on their own initiative without direction or inspiration from the organization's leadership. That is how the matter stands, in law. Neither the grand jury nor the public can believe any such thing, in the moral sense.

The gratification which decent-minded folks feel over the convictions which have been obtained in these cases is lessened by two considerations.
One is that the authorities have done nothing to bring the guilty ones to justice, and that had it not been for the federal courts, the disclosures sever would have been made.

The political machine headed by Tom J. Pendergast is one of the most powerful ever to function in this country. Starting in Kansas City, it presently had that city firmly in its tenacles. Later it broadened its field of action, and in recent years has dominated Democratic politics in the state as a whole. One of Missouri's senators is a Pendergast henchman, the other is under obligations to the Pendergast machine. Observers have said that Tammany, in its palmiest days, was never as efficient an organization as that of Pendergast. The indictments and convictions have discredited it to some extent, but it remains to be seen whether they have lessened its power. The answer to that is with the voters, not with the federal courts.—Wichita Daily Times

CLAIMS BEING PAID OLD-AGE
BENEFIT PLAN

Social Security Has
Try-out As Payment
Made 48 States

DALLAS, June 7.—The Social Security Board announced today that 5,390 claims for lump-sum and death payments had been filed with the Bureau of Federal Old-Age Benefits, as of June 1.
These claims were received from each of the 48 states and from the District of Columbia. None had been received from Alaska and Hawaii on that date.

The report, issued by E. L. Tutt, manager of the Dallas field office of the Social Security Board, showed that New York, with 776, and Pennsylvania, with 610, lead all States in the number of claims filed. In the southwestern region, 127 claims had been filed in Texas
52 in Louisiana, and four in New Mexico.

Only 43 claims have been allowed for payment out of all of those filed, according to the report.

"There has been little delay in the payment of claims," Tutt stated. "The average length of time for payment of lump-sum benefits to eligible employees at age 65 after the receipt of the claim is approximately 3 weeks.
However, payments to estates of eligible wage earners take an average of about 1 week longer."

This difference in length of time, it was explained, is due to the necessary variation in procedures. A life claim, it was pointed out, involves little more than checking the name and account number and establishing the age of the claimant and wages received. In the case of a death claim, State laws relating to priorities and exemptions, if funeral and last illness expenses have not been paid, must also be considered. In addition, there is a considerable variation of procedure depending on whether or not a will has been probated and who files the claim.

Jackson Square, New Orleans—A park in the city is like an oasis in a desert, a refreshing peaceful region amidst an ugly section where turmoil and strife hold forth. And Jackson Square in New Orleans was no exception, as I came upon it in my rambles about the Old French Quarters. Years ago, the negro slaves gathered in a vacant lot once a week to dance, sing, laugh and have a good time in general. While they were doing this they were re-charging their battery of vitality that much hard labor had almost exhausted.

In this park, like most others, one sees in the main, loafers, squirrels and pigeons with a sprinkling of a few others. An equestrian statue of "Stonewall" Jackson, astride his prancing charger, gives this square its name. While I was looking at it I saw a bird alighting on Jackson's bronze head which he later on soiled. What a wicked bird, he showed no respect for the Southern High Command, or perchance he hailed from the north.

Buildings surround Jackson Square on three sides. Two sides are taken up with the Pontalba Buildings (high class apartments of former days), while the St.

Louis Cathedral and the Cabildo complete the third side. The fourth one is open to a view of railway tracks, warehouses and is not particularly edifying. As I glanced at the Pontalba Buildings I noticed many intertwined initials among the scroll work of the 'iron lace' balconies. The two letters thus repeated many times were "A" and "P" and were the initials of the father (who built these buildings) and his beloved daughter.

I glanced at the occupants on the park benches. Here I saw many poor, despondent men, out of work and funds, and old men sunning themselves in the autumnal haze and dreaming perhaps of their past life when they were young and gay. Then there were loafers and tramps, some of them scanning the passerby with an appreciative glance to see if he were worth the effort to panhandle. Apart from the others I saw a middle-aged, bespectacled American lady who was knitting and talking with a Chinese gentleman of evident culture, and refinement, a tourist in the West. Two civilizations, poles apart, were here represented and I thought of Kipling's dictum about the East and West never really meeting. He was right, only in the narrowest sense do they ever meet, but in a larger one, owing to their mental processes, they never can.

Then I left Jackson Square, and wandered over to the St. Louis Cathedral.

Average July Rainfall 1.61 Records Show

Crop Prospects Hang In Balance During Next Few Weeks

With Motley county looking toward the sky as one of the finest crop prospects in history hangs in the balance of the next few weeks, a study of the rainfall records kept by J. H. Sample was made yesterday. During the last ten years an average of 1.61 inches of rain has fallen during the month of July in Matador. The accurate record which Mr. Sample has kept of every rain for the past twelve years, reveals some interesting data. In the year 1930 no rain fell here in July; in 1926 only .18 inch was recorded and in 1934 only .48 inch fell. While 1926 had less than one fifth of an inch during July, the year had the largest total (29.11 inches) since the record was started. 1927 had 1.41 inches of rain in July but the lowest total (11.83) since the record was started.
