MRS. W. R. CAMMACK IS VICTIM CAR ACCIDENT

Mother's Day Ends In Tragedy When Tire Blows Out

Mother's Day ended in gloom for Matador and this vicinity when word was received late Sunday that Mrs. W. R. Cammack had been instantly killed in an automobile accident near Guthrie as she accompanied her husband, County Judge W. R. Cammack, home from Abilene where they had been to visit Mrs. Cammack's parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. Z. Cagle over the week-end. Judge Cammack suffered severe bruises of the left thigh and left upper arm and extreme shock. The accident occurred about five miles north of Guthrie on Federal Highway 83. Judge Cammack declared that in meeting another car he was forced to drive over a slight ridge deposited by the highway grader when a left tire blew out causing his car to skid into a shallow borrow ditch and overturn. It is believed Mrs. Cammack died instantly of a broken neck.

Local Car Is Following

The second car to reach the scene of the accident was driven by Elmer Stearns, accompanied by Mrs. Stearns, his brother, Alvin Stearns, L. J. Barkley, and Emmitt Donovan, all of Matador. The four men, joined by Mrs. Stearns at Abilene, were returning from a fishing trip at Junction. Mrs. Cammack's body was brought to a Paducah funeral home and Judge Cammack was rushed to the Richards Memorial Hospital for medical treatment and examination. From this point news was phoned to Matador of the tragedy. Judge Cammack's car, badly disabled, was taken to a Paducah garage.

Jennie Helen Cagle was born in Cook county, Texas, January 16, 1885 where she spent much of her girlhood. She was married to W. R. Cammack at Decatur, Texas, May 15, 1906, and had been a resident of Motley county since that time. She was a member and active worker of the Baptist church. Her friends were legion and this entire section bears grief at her tragic death.

Besides her husband she is survived by one son, Cecil C. Cammack, Dallas attorney and three daughters, Mrs. Wilbur Park of Crockett, Mrs. Frank Cole, Galveston, Mrs. P. J. Baron, McCamey, her parents, Rev. and Mrs. T. Z. Cagle of Abilene, two sisters, Mrs. W. D. Starcher of Sour, Mrs. W. R. Snow of Abilene and one brother, Price Cagle of Seagraves.

Funeral services were held at the First Methodist Church here Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, by Rev. J. R. Hicks of Canyon, Rev. H. M. Weldon and Rev. D. D. Denison of Matador. Interment was made in the Matador East Mound cemetery.

SERVICES ARE WELL ATTENDED

Services at the local churches were well attended Sunday, for special observance of Mother's Day. Quartet singing and choir specials were included in the morning services at the Methodist Church, and Rev. C. D. Pipkin conducted a baptismal ceremony for five children, four of whom were his grandchildren.

Those who were baptized were, Shirley and Charles, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Pipkin, Terry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Pipkin, Dona Cecelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Pipkin, and Carolyn, daughter of Mrs. Sanders.

Rev. A. C. Huff, district missionary, who conducted services for the Baptist congregation at the morning hour, delivered an inspirational address, and the special Mother's Day offering for the building fund amounted to over $140.00. Rev. Huff was unable to remain for the evening worship hour and for that reason, services were dispensed with.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Swearingen returned last week from a trip to Phoenix, Arizona, having accompanied her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Spears and Ruby Spears on their trip.

HOPPER POISON MIX STATION OPENED HERE Government Offers Poison And Bran Free To Farmers

Poisoning of grasshoppers in Motley County is well under way, according to Frank A. Buckley, county leader in grasshopper control. The county mixing station at the Farmers' Gin, Matador, was opened Tuesday for actual dispensing of the poison. Arrangements were completed by Buckley late Monday for mixing the materials on a large scale as they are called for by farmers and ranchmen. Joe Berry Meador is in direct charge of the mixing station, assisted by youths furnished by the National Youth Administration.

Those wishing to obtain the poison mixture should go directly to the seed house of the Farmers' Gin where all necessary materials are available, Buckley stated. No charge is made for the service or for any government materials, which include one hundred pounds of mill run bran with each gallon of liquid sodium arsenite. The farmer must furnish an amount of cottonseed hulls equal to the amount of government bran furnished. He may also include molasses or other materials at his own expense. The proper amounts of all ingredients, including the full amount of water, must be thoroughly mixed before leaving the mixing station, and the mixture must be all scattered within 24 hours according to government rules. Placing in piles or lines is prohibited as a caution against loss of livestock.

Tom Harris New Manager Springs Pool

Tom Harris, former Matador secretary, has completed an agreement with the Matador Land and Cattle Company to assume management of the Roaring Springs swimming pool located about three miles south of the city of Roaring Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris will move to the popular west Texas vacation spot this week and assume personal management of the pool and grounds. The Roaring Springs pool has been operated by a number of the Matador Company for a number of years and is visited by a larger number of people each year.

Besides the splendid bathing pool, the immense falls and springs of water which tests over 99 percent pure, the vacation grounds are rich in natural beauty with abundant shade and the wide expanse of a sandy river which affords the effects of a seashore. Located at the springs is one of the two historic markers placed by the Centennial Commission in Motley county in 1936. A short distance from the marker may be found large holes in the sand rocks where the Indians ground their corn before the conquest of the white man. The great springs of pure water, the shade trees and fine grass in that locality provided an idea camp ground for the Indians.

In addition to operating the pool, Mr. and Mrs. Harris will also operate a sandwich and cold drink stand for the convenience of visitors. Arrangements may be made for special swimming and picnic parties, Mr. Harris declared.

The pool and equipment has been thoroughly reconditioned for the coming season. A new and larger light-plant has been installed and more lights are provided for the pool and surrounding grounds. Free water, wood and shade are provided for picnic parties.

Air Mail To Have Special Service Here Connections With Air Lanes During Air Mail Week

Matador will have its part in the national observance of Air Mail Week, May 15 to 21, according to postmaster E. F. Springer, who is planning to transport mail to Floydada on Thursday, May 19 in event he is unable to secure a "feeder" plane for service from Matador on that date. The "feeder" planes are scheduled to visit many South Plains towns on Thursday, including Spur, Floydada, Lockney, Ralls and others. The "feeder" planes will carry mail to Lubbock where it will be put aboard regular mail planes flying from Amarillo to San Antonio. Mail posted here on the morning of May 19 will be delivered as far away as New York and Los Angeles on the following morning, according to plans.

Cooperation Is Urged

Cooperation of mail patrons of this office as well as other offices in the county is urged in order to aid in the celebration of 20 years of air mail service in the United States. Postmaster Springer declared that he hoped many business firms as well as individuals would use air mail more than usual during next week and that this post office would be able to make a good showing of letters sent by air mail next Thursday. A special cachet showing the location of Matador on the map of the United States will be used on all mail going out of this office during Air Mail Week, Mr. Springer declared.

Death Claims Aged Mother

L. B. (Bob) Robertson, while on a fishing trip at Junction, Texas, was called Friday on account of the sudden death of his mother Mrs. Nannie L. Robertson, 79, at her home in Henrietta, Oklahoma. Mrs. Robertson is believed to have died of a heart attack during her sleep either Thursday night or early Friday morning. She failed to respond when her son, W. H. Reynolds, with whom she resided, called at her door. She had apparently died peacefully in her sleep.

Funeral services were held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon and interment made in the Henrietta cemetery. Mrs. Robertson had made her home in Henrietta for the past 17 years.

A devout member of the Christian church during her entire life, Mrs. Robertson had many friends who grieve at her sudden passing. She had visited in the home of her son here on two different occasions and had made many friends in Matador who join her bereaved son and family in their hour of sadness.

Mrs. Robertson was preceded in death by her husband, J. A. Robertson, five years ago. She is survived by three sons and one daughter, W. H. Reynolds, of Henrietta, A. G. Sweeten of Henrietta, L. B. Robertson of Matador and Mrs. C. C. Gardner of Ponca City, Oklahoma.

midnight campaign to see the voters and his record and age are such that his friends believe him well qualified to administer the duties of the high office of Railroad Commissioner.

"My philosophy is that if we can educate the young and take care of the aged, then we have laid the foundations of a lasting prosperity," he said. "When we spend money for education, it is an investment in the future of America. By spending today, we build for tomorrow."

Precaution Of Snakes Given

AUSTIN, Texas—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, urges everyone to be careful to prevent snake bites in the country. In Texas the chief offender is the rattlesnake, and, contrary to common belief, it does not always rattle before it strikes.

Precaution Of Snakes Given

About seventy-five percent of all bites occur on the lower extremities and could be prevented to a large extent, by wearing high top boots or leggings. About twenty percent occur on the hands and arms. Care should be exercised in not putting the hands in invisible places when climbing rocks, and to look before picking up anything that may be obscured by vegetation, brush or rocks.

If one is bitten, prompt action is necessary and a physician should be obtained as soon as possible. No time should be lost in removing the poison by suction; this can be done by a suction cup. First, a tourniquet should be applied above the wound, so as to increase congestion, and assist in washing out the poison. A cross cut incision with a sharp, clean knife or razor blade should be made over each fang mark, or preferably to connect the two fang punctures. These cuts should be at least a quarter of an inch deep and at least that long. Suction should be applied for at least a half hour. The tourniquet should be released every ten to fifteen minutes for a minute at a time.

If bitten by a snake, do not run or get over-heated; do not take alcoholic stimulants; do not use potassium permanganate to cauterize the wound (which is now known to be of no value as an antidote; and do not depend on home remedies.

NELSON FAVORS TEACHER AND

LUBBOCK, Texas— Financing of the teacher's retirement system and the provision of more support for rural schools will be two major issues before the next regular sessions of the Texas Legislature, Senator G. H. Nelson of Lubbock, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, declared this week.

"Since I attended East Texas State Teachers College at Commerce and later taught in the public schools of Texas for three years, I know the problems of the school teachers and trustees from first hand experience," Senator Nelson pointed out.

"The people of Texas ordered the Legislature to establish and to finance a teacher's retirement system. The Legislature already has passed a law which forces teachers to contribute five percent of their salaries to a retirement fund, but the Legislature has failed to provide the state's part. The financing of this retirement system is a sacred obligation of the state, and the state must do its part. I have always voted for the revenue needed to finance the system, and I shall continue to work to get the needed money," he asserted.

Declaring that too frequently rural schools in Texas are handicapped by limited equipment, inadequate libraries, short terms, poor building, and underpaid teachers, Senator Nelson asserted that, "This situation must be corrected by providing the state aid needed to equalize opportunities between town and country schools."

Only Your Mileage Merchant
 OIL-PLATES YOUR ENGINE

Do you need any reminder of what oil you bought? Not if it delivers smooth long mileage that you can't forget! Then here's the real big value of the little drain tag you get from Your Mileage Merchant:

he marks it with your mileage today as you change to his patented Conoco Germ Processed oil, and then you can keep tabs on how far you go before you ever need another quart in your OIL-PLATED engine.

OIL-PLATING is exclusive with Conoco Germ Processed oil. The patent-guarded Germ Process forces this oil to "magnetize" on to the working parts in the form of implanted slippery OIL-PLATING. The parts that used to wear worst and make your oil "rub out" fastest, now possess this all-over, deep-seated OIL-PLATING. It can neither drain down while your engine is stopped, nor let loose in all the whirl of 4,000 revolutions a minute. Therefore OIL-PLATING, done only by Your Mileage Merchant, distinctly tells you why your Germ Processed oil and your car money won't be doing a "disappearing act." Continental Oil Co.

"CANDID" BABY PICTURES

HAVE you ever thought of taking a series of "candid" or "off-guard" pictures of the baby in his lighter or more active moments, and saving them in a special album entitled "We Knew Him When"?

Any parent who owns a camera can build up a splendid collection of pictures such as this, and, if your baby is like most babies, the same pose or expression will never pop up twice.

A small baby is probably the world's ideal subject for "off-guard" pictures, because he is altogether lacking in camera consciousness. Once he learns that you won't let him chew the corners of the interesting black gadget, or pull the shiny piece of glass out of the front, he dismisses the matter and proceeds to more important things. Thereafter, you can shoot away to your heart's content.

You don't need a high-speed miniature camera to take "candid" pictures of this sort. A speedy lens is helpful, because then you can use higher shutter speeds and catch the youngster when he is trying his skill at somersaults or endeavoring to smash his rattle to pieces and see what makes it work. But a box camera will do the work pretty well if you are careful to watch for momentary pauses in the action. Even the most industrious baby comes to a brief halt now and then.

During the winter months, most of your "off-guard" baby pictures will be taken indoors, and many of them at night. Amateur photo bulbs supply enough light for the night snapshots, and your film dealer will have booklets or leaflets showing how to arrange them. With lights arranged properly, the night snaps are almost as simple as those outdoors in sunshine.

In shooting the off-guard baby pictures, watch for expressive gestures and fleeting expressions, and train yourself to catch them instantly. Snap tears as well as smiles, for they will help you remember your baby as he is now. And, whenever you put a picture in your special album, write under it the day and year when it was taken. That will help make the book a day-by-day biography which grows in value as the years roll by.

HOME MAKING STUDENTS RETURN FROM SAN ANTONIO

Marjorie Ruth Campbell, Nell Green, Junior Sherwood and Miss Ovel Lytle returned from San Antonio Sunday where they attended the Homemaking rally.

The party reported the most enjoyable trip of any they ever had. The trip was beneficial from both educational and entertainment standpoints. Marjorie Ruth represented the school in the contest and Nell went as a club delegate. The contests were judgement of problems on all different phases of homemaking and the girls were to select the most appropriate exhibit for the average family with an average income. Nell and Miss Lytle attended meetings concerning club work. Friday night, they attended the banquet on the roof garden of the Gunter Hotel. Students from Lanier High School of San Antonio presented a lovely program of Spanish songs, dances and modeling of costumes. A Spanish orchestra also played during the banquet.

They found San Antonio a very entertaining city. Some of the places of interest visited were Breckenridge park, the Randoiph field, Fort Sam Houston theatres of the city and large department stores. They were busy sight-seeing, attending meetings, going to theatres, shopping and motor boat riding.

The party returned by the train and went through the Capital of the State University campus. Junior attended the State meet.

Galveston has extended invitation for the rally to be there in 1939. It is hoped each Homemaking student attending Roaring Springs school will next year to be a representative to the rally.

Baptist Church Notes

Last Sunday was a fine day with us. Our Mother's Day Program was surely fine and impressive. In the absence of the pastor who was unable to be there on account of illness, Bro. J. Loyd Manen brought a fine message. We feel that everyone present was greatly helped by the fine sermon. Bro. A. C. Huff, our District Missionary, will be with us Saturday night, May 14, Sunday and Sunday night. We hope that every one will come to hear Bro. Huff. He is a forceful speaker and a spirit filled man. Our motto is "Onward and Upward." You are always welcome at the Baptist Church.

Safety in Numbers! New Figures on Road Maps Help Drivers

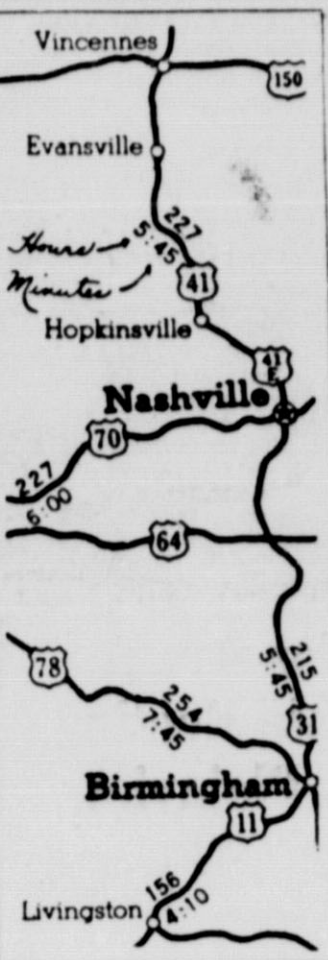

POINCA CITY, Okla. — Numerals that indicate the average driving time from town to town in hours and minutes have been added to United States maps issued by the Conoco Travel Bureau, America's largest free travel service which is maintained by the Continental Oil Company. This new automobile safety development is the most advanced road map improvement in recent years.

The new driving time figures, which are printed in red beneath each mileage figure, are expected to save the driver the trouble of calculating his own probable time and to encourage him to think in terms of reasonable time of arrival instead of the distance he has to cover.

Continental's driving time figures are the result of long investigation and careful checking of practically all of the well-travelled roads in the country. The hours and minutes as they appear on the new maps represent effective but reasonable speeds under normal traffic conditions and over dry roads.

In each case, consideration has been given to the nature of the route and to whether there are an unusual number of hills, turns or other features. For example, where a distance of 182 miles of flat straight away in Arizona requires only 4 hours and 30 minutes at a safe pace, the same distance in the West Virginia hills requires 5 hours and 27 minutes.

The driver is expected to make allowances if he is in the habit of driving unusually fast or slow or if he encounters bad weather or heavy traffic. In test use, motorists seem to have no difficulty in learning how much allowance to make after a few trials, and the easy calculation of the probable hour of arrival appears to set a standard that removes some of the uncertainty and makes for more comfortable driving.

CORTEZ'S PALACE, CUERNAVACA, MEXICO

One does not visit the pink palaces of Cortez at Cuernavaca solely on account of its historical associations—one goes there now to see the famous murals painted by Mexico's greatest artist—Diego Rivera.

This mural is seen on the walls of a rear gallery, up-stairs. It is open on one side from which a magnificent view of the surrounding country can be seen—valleys and snow-capped volcanoes. This mural was the gift from the late American Ambassador—Dwight Morrow—Lindberg's father-in-law to the city of Cuernavaca. Mr. Morrow gave the artist carte blanche as to the subject matter for this painting. When completed he was satisfied with the mural as a work of art but not entirely in sympathy with the theme depicted. "And, why did you paint those Mexican priests all looking like scoundrels?" To which the artist replied, "I have lived all my life in Mexico and that is the only kind I have ever seen." This retort must be taken with the proverbial pinch of salt.

Like all of Diego Rivera's murals this one at Cuernavaca, has for its subject the Conquest of Mexico—the Exploitation of the poor Indian by the Spaniards. The Mural, however, ends on an optimistic note—showing the uprising of the agrarian element under the brilliant leadership of the famous Mexican patriot Zapato.

Below this mural one sees details of Mexican life done in monochrome, taken from the Aztec codices.

This mural here in the Cortez Palace, although not so large in scope as the one—The Evolution of Mexico—as seen in the National Palace in Mexico City, has greater artistic unity and is a finer work of art.

THE FALLS OF ST. ANTHONY—CUERNAVACA

The average man does not associate Mexico with waterfalls—or any water at all for that matter. He thinks all of Mexico is but a vast, arid desert. On the contrary, there are lakes here—one seventy miles long, and waterfalls and rivers, not to mention magnificent scenery, gorges and snow-capped mountains.

The Falls of St Anthony are located just on the outskirts of Cuernavaca and repay a short visit. By a series of stairways, one descends a rocky gorge. Even before one sees it, one can hear the thundering of its waters as they roar their way downward. From a high rocky shelf that projects over an underlying pathway, the waters take a flying leap and throw themselves with wild abandon into the churning waters of the circular pool below, so cool and green with its rocky sides defying the passing of time.

The stairways leading down to this circular pathway around the sides of the gorge are dotted with vendors of all kinds, things to eat, mostly souvenirs of the place. Some insist that you pose for your picture with the background no less than the falls themselves. All these people of course, detract from the charming, rustic beauty of the scene—where the waters in their final plunge find their last resting place in the bottom of the gorge.

A LOCAL PANTEON...

On my return to Cuernavaca, I stopped a few moments to inspect the local cemetery as it was alive with people decorating graves and celebrating in general. It was the national holiday "The Day of the National Holiday." "The Day of the Dead."

As I have given a more detailed description about this macabre subject before, suffice it to say I saw many merchants vending things to eat before the gates of the Cemetery. Things sizzling in hot, smoking grease, colored liquid with chunks of strange looking fruit floating about on the surface, beside ice-cream cones that were very popular with the small Mexican children. The people entering the gates were all loaded with bouquets of flowers, candies, and things to eat. After placing the flowers and the candies on the grave they proceeded to eat their dainties. It was a sort of picnic in the cemetery. The tombstones too were different than any I had ever seen before—they were a bright blue, turquoise—some were a gaudy pink, while others were a light jade green.

Home With The Livestock.

Or "It Happened One Night"

In travelling about Mexico, I resorted to various means of transportation: train, motor, bus, boat and plane. They all had their good points, but to a second class bus belonged the dubious distinction of transporting live-stock in connection with freight, human and otherwise.

I was told that I must at least once travel by second class bus, as it was only in this way I could study the peon at close range. Well I am richer now for the experience—I did get close to the peon—too close in fact—I went further than that, I got close to his live-stock too. It all came about in this manner:

After I had exhausted the major and minor sights of Cuernavaca and Environs I was ready to return to my headquarters in Mexico City. I was told I could get a bus at five and every hour thereafter until eight, so I hid myself to the bus station and awaited the five o'clock bus.

But others it appeared had the same thought too—the place was crowded with people, dirty, laden with innumerable bundles, baskets, boxes, automobile tires, chairs, sandals and souvenirs for the kids at home. When the bus hove into sight a mad scramble ensued, a frenzied mob of peons laid siege to it. Did not even wait for the passengers in it to get out. I was caught in this human maelstrom. I felt a chair poking me in the back; I heard chickens squawking, babies crying, finally I got disentangled from this howling mob and started to breathe once more. I decided to wait for the next bus. But more people were now assembled than before—with more furniture, and impedimenta. I let this pass too. Came seven o'clock—it looked then as if all the inhabitants of Cuernavaca were trying to board this one. This was the worst yet. I let that one go too. But then and here I decided, come what might, the next one, the last one. I was going to board even if I had to commit murder to accomplish my ends. Then I was seized with an impulse and acted on it. I went to the Agent of the bus terminal and in scant Spanish—about half a dozen words—and with nodding of pantomime, I tried to get over to him my predicament in boarding the bus. Then slowly the solution of the problem as outlined by him percolated through the thickness of my skull. I was to board the next one by proxy as it were.

The agent would arrange with a small Mexican boy to wedges his way into the bus—probably by crawling between the legs of the adults, and then hold the seat until I got in. This for a consideration of course, cash in hand paid. When the 8 o'clock bus came, my understudy rushed away wildly to meet and board it. The last thing I saw of him he was dodging and ducking now this way, then that. In time I managed to get in—how, I don't remember—it all transpired as if in a dream. My boy relinquished his seat to me and with a "Muchas gracias, Senior," as I pressed a few Mexican coins into his little grubby hand, he was off. My savior.

I found myself seated beside a Mexican woman—she was very fat, more than forty, and not at all fair. She was completely surrounded with traveling impedimenta, bundles, bags, a chair, some sandals, a baby and a live chicken that she held beside her, head downwards. These were divided some on her port side and the rest on her starboard side. The chicken and I sat to starboard. Hardly had I wedged myself into my seat, when the chicken let out an awful squawk. I either had squeezed it or else perhaps stepped on its head. It kept up the squawking and I came to the conclusion that it resented my presence—a mere Gringor from the United States of America. It seemed the chicken had its pride, well, I had my pride too. It showed the utmost contempt for me, but it was mutual and I withdrew from it in haughty disdain. I proceeded to ignore it and looked about at my fellow passengers. They were all slumped down with their mouths swathed in their serapes and their shawls. Every Mexican is afraid to breathe in the night air—thinks it is deadly, hence this precaution. Just when I thought I had declared a state of truce with the chicken the baby on my seatmate's lap started to howl. The first prize to be awarded for leather lungs goes to this Mexican infant—then I suddenly felt an icy breath of air go down my spine. The window in front of me had slid open due to the rattling of the bus. I closed it, in a few moments it was open again. I again I closed it and this time I held it shut. In time this position made my arm feel numb. Now I began to be aware of a variety of odors—from humans, from sandals. I smelled my old enemy, the chicken. So I opened the window to let all these odors fly out of the window, when I got thoroughly chilled, I closed the window once more and held it shut. This went on for hours—and what a fine chance I had for studying the peon at close range—it was Mexico with a vengeance.

Then a glorious sight burst upon my view. It recompensed me for all the bodily discomforts I had endured. It was the City of Mexico as seen by night from the mountain heights. A vast lake of diamonds, or shall I say a great tray of scintillating jewels spread out on the floor of the valley. Towering far above were two giants to stand guard of this great treasure—the twin volcanoes—wrapped in their mantles of ebony night. And magnificently did they guard their vast shimmering wealth of display at their feet.

In retrospect, it is this magnificent spectacle that I recall the most vividly but still, try as I will, I cannot forget my seatmate, the chicken, nor the manner in which it squawked nor the dirty looks it gave me.

ding during the warm weather months. She notes the savings to be effected if winter bedding and clothing is cleaned and wrapped in newspapers and sealed and put away until next fall. By using newspapers the moths will not get where printers ink is, therefore saving cloths and not any expense to putting them in moth proof bags.

With the season of flies and mosquitoes near at hand, Mrs. Butler is also encouraging her farm women friends to make sure the homes are well screened and the damaged screens repaired. She is asking each farm wife to check drainage and garbage disposal facilities, noting that dampness near the back doors is a great drawing card for filth-bearing flies. Elimination of places near the farm home where flies and mosquitoes are most likely to breed is another concern of Mrs. Butler. She is especially anxious that farm women see that weeds are kept at a minimum and that outdoor toilets be kept as sanitary as possible.

"Although screens are an important factor in health and sanitation," Mrs. Butler said, "we should not stop there. Every farm home can now have one or more inexpensive, home-made fly traps as an added precaution against serious disease outbreaks during the hot summer months.

Mrs. Butler is anxious to help her farm women in raising and keeping high the health standards and has numerous suggestions which she will gladly give to them upon request.

BEER STATESMANSHIP

From The Emporia Daily Gazette.

It has become obvious ever since the repeal of prohibition that the American brewers were determined not to make the mistake that the brewers made in pre-prohibition days. Then they tied up tightly with the distillers and beer was classed indiscriminately with liquor. The brewers are now trying to get away from distillers, and a year ago they adopted an independent code, pledged themselves to "conduct their business in conformity with established laws and in co-operation with the authorities." Further, they pledged themselves to support "duly constituted authorities for elimination" of anti-social condition in the beer business. They pledged themselves to get behind the "great body of retailers who sell beer as law abiding citizens" and also to back up authorities in preventing "beer sales to minors or persons who have drunk to excess." The code aimed high.

It was obvious that Kansas is the one place in the United States where the United States Brewery Foundation, which was back of the code, with offices in New York, could come and find a fertile field to try out the code. They sent a representative of the Foundation to Kansas. He went to work in a practical manner. He surveyed the beer business in the large counties of Kansas where, if anywhere, the code would crack. He went to the sheriffs and the county attorneys in these counties. He went to the Attorney General of Kansas and told the law enforcing officers everywhere that he wanted their help and he wanted to help clean up questionable beer parlors, places where they sold beer to minors, to drunks, where they kept open after the hours set down by the local authorities, where the beer dealers permitted hard drinks to be sold or sold them, and in general, this agent of the brewers back of the code made a genuine and certainly an effective campaign in Kansas to weed out the bad practices which tend to grow up where hard illegal liquor mixes itself with the sale of beer.

The Gazette knows definitely two cases where evidence was furnished by the Brewer's Foundation to close up joints. With the full cooperation of the local officers and representatives of the Foundation, public sale of beer can be made to operate should be conducted as any other business—breakfast, coffee or shoes. But away and evidently get away from the always will rest upon.

The representatives of the Brewer's Foundation wrote to The Gazette: "We stand ready with Kansas officials to enforce the law laid before officials in violation of the liquor some definite results attained. We pledge our efforts."

This is not idle talk. Apparently the Brewer's means business.

LOCAL CATTLE ARE TB TESTED

A retest of Motley County cattle for tuberculosis is being conducted at this time by Hubert L. Smith, veterinarian of the Bureau of Animal Industry. Frank A. Buckley, county agent, cooperated in obtaining the service for this county and in selecting competent assistance for Dr. Smith, who arrived at the county agent's office at Matador early Monday. The operation which is a free service by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, will require approximately three weeks time.

The retest for tuberculosis in cattle is a follow-up of the complete tuberculin test of all Motley County cattle made by the Bureau some months ago. In the original test only one animal in the entire county was found to be affected with the disease. The reactor was disposed of according to government regulations, which left this county entirely free at the time. It is not anticipated that the retest will reveal any new infection, but the process is necessary in order to give the county an accredited rating.

In addition to the test for tuberculosis, the Bureau of Animal Industry is also engaged in testing for Bang's disease in this county. Approximately thirty herds of dairy cattle have been tested regularly each quarter for the past year or more.
