

RAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Depended high above the dark shape mountains, the moon like a silver marble and the like bits of broken glass left children after play. A rowdy danced between the sage and stirred the cool ashes beside the coffee pot and these neighed somewhere in the breeze of wind-clawed canyons. The pistol shot echoed before the sound had died away and feverish silence began its dying while the night spread its wings on the rough grass. There is no sequel to my mystery kept by the Pecos, night wind and the stars.

Despite the alkali spot on my and my advanced respect for Pan will probably have a successor. At least my confidence in a certain type of literature has not perished after a life partially devoted to proving its deception. For a few more years I am assured the magic to the universe and the cornucopia of wealth, health and fame. I must have also observed they live too long.

He may prepare the menu but the individual has the privilege of choice from the selections on the cafeteria counter.

Play has no conscience. Its moments are the noble hours, devoid of time; a merciless regular.

When the white tapers of life have burned low it is not to end liberation to ideals of childhood or destroy the faith that roots on the walls of reality.

During the wearied hours of night when sound is an outlaw, the earth trembles and speed and weight before the conveyors pass. I find new measures of thankfulness. Perhaps secret prayer escapes my lips on the island of red and green and reflects on the moving mass of new automobiles instead of innumerable designed for death. So many roads in this fierce world are burdened with less hope and traffic.

When in a strange city and desire a good meal without the element of chance, I have found it to be a reasonable reliable method of selecting a cafe. I go to the counter and order a cup of coffee and then run my hand beneath the board. If the discolored chewing-gum indicates that the restaurant is well patronized by women, then I place my order, because it is natural that women will select the better ones. Usually the more gum the better the food.

Altho I know little about ratio, seems, considering the number of people in this land, the matter of time and distance and luck. I may never again meet the lady I once met in a day somewhere in New Mexico. We had traveled through an empire of bear-grass and sand during most of the day and the heat remained in the steel mesh like a brick kiln at sunset. The train had stopped at a small town of adobe houses and the depot when I approached the water-cooler and filled a paper cup with ice water. I did not see the lady until after the train had lunged and I held the paper in my hand. The water was on her white voile and she was shivering with cold in her eyes. I was too embarrassed to apologize and she was too angry to express her resentment. Riding with a drunk in the smoker the remainder of the journey to California, I considered the following train.

Life's pathway has many tunnels which offer no choice but to stumble forward in the darkness until the sunlight is above again.

SHEEP RAISING IS PROFITABLE HERE

Experience Local Farmers Proves Its Practibility

Sheep raising in this county has proved to be a profitable phase of livestock farming as a result of two years' experience by local farmers, according to J. Rufus Emmons, county agent.

The industry does not require expensive equipment, or heavy labor, but does require study and continuous attention. Early fall is the best time to begin the flock, and good grade ewes and a purebred ram are preferable for farmers starting a sheep ranch.

In most cases, lambs are most profitable if made ready for market at four or five months, and they should weigh 65 to 75 pounds. Wool pays for expense and labor.

Farmers Listed

In order to prove that sheep raising is a profitable enterprise, a partial list of sheep raisers is given below.

W. I. Rushing bought 25 sheep in 1938 for $18, and lamb and wool receipts for that year yielded $114.78. In 1939 he purchased 15 head for $75, and received $225.50 this spring, making a total of $367 on $158 investment for the two years.

Malcolm Jameson of Whiteflat bought 33 head for $107, and receipts netted $319. Farris Fish received $950 on $676 investment in 208 sheep.

Elbert Reeves paid $75 for 25 head, receipts totalling $218. George Gray purchased 24 head for $48 and received $141 this spring from wool and lambs.

Advise More Flocks

Emmons stated that it would be beneficial to every farmer and rancher in the county to have a small flock of sheep.

Request Made For Pictures And History

The Tribune again requests its readers for early pictures made in this county and interesting history of pioneer incidents, as work is started on the third Pioneer edition to be released late in August.

Demand for the past two pioneer editions has exceeded original plans since much effort and expense was spent in presenting a true history of this section, suitable for keeping over a period of years. Present plans are to publish an even more extensive edition this season with more pioneer pictures and feature stories.

Work is being started earlier this season than on the past two editions and it is hoped the response will be as generous as before. Only clear photographs can be used. Interesting incidents and histories of families not used in previous issues are wanted.

Denver Lions Arrive For Private Zoo

L. B. (Bob) Robertson received two large lions Monday from the City Park Zoo of Denver, Colorado, which he will add to his private zoo at Bob's Oil Well filling station at the intersection of Highway 18 and 28.

While only two years of age the lions weigh approximately 400 pounds each and were shipped in heavy boxes similar to those used by circuses.

Mr. Robertson is constructing a strong, iron, concrete, rock and wood cage for the giant jungle beasts, 14 feet by 20 feet and 7 feet high. The new arrangement will be enclosed by a rock wall and later the other structures of the zoo will be made to conform with the new plan.

Fifteen members of the Matador Lions Club were presented with emblems of 100% attendance during the past year at the regular luncheon-meeting of the organization held in the basement of the Baptist church Tuesday. The emblems were presented by Boss Lion Henry Pipkin a few moments before he surrendered the helm of the club to newly elected Boss Lion G. E. Hamilton.

New Member Installed

B. F. Simpson of Northfield was introduced and welcomed by the club as a new member at large. Visitors included Miss Billie Lawrence of Matador, Judge Marshall Formby, candidate for State Senator and Dudley Brumet, both of Dickens. Miss Lawrence made an interesting address regarding her experiences in taking the Federal census in the city of Matador. June Teenth Celebrated By Negroes Here

Hilarity reigned in the city's colored addition yesterday as Negroes from Matador, Floydada, Plainview, Turkey, Roaring Springs, Dougherty, Quitaque, and other surrounding towns joined in celebrating "June Teenth."

It was in 1863 that Abe Lincoln, climaxing a bloody Civil war, proclaimed, "They shall be free," and long ago, June 19 was set aside as a national holiday for the emancipated slaves.

Some of the Negroes spent Tuesday night guarding the large barbecue pit over which simmered choice cuts of mutton, chicken, hogs, and goats. The barbecue was served free to visitors.

Baseball Games Played

During the afternoon baseball games between Floydada, Matador and here. Last night dances were held here and at the Old Settlers' tabernacle at Roaring Springs.

In charge of the Matador celebration were John White, Ray Barrett, and Lee Harris.

Celebrations lasted until late last night, but the Negroes were up and about this morning, giving individual opinions of the outcome of the fight tonight; for Joe Louis, idol of the dark race, will battle Arturo Godoy, challenger of the heavyweight crown, in New York.

Candidates Line Up For July Handicap

Singers Will Meet Sunday At Flomot

The Motley County Singing Convention will gather at Flomot Sunday, June 23rd, for its first semi-annual meeting of the year. This will mark the 49th consecutive year which the organization has held its convention.

Presiding officers of the association are: F. M. Casey, president; T. M. Dixon, vice-president and Lora Stephens, secretary.

All singers in this section are especially invited to attend, and it is suggested that everyone bring a well-filled basket in order that a hardship might not be placed on the Flomot community in preparing "dinner on the ground."

An enjoyable program has been arranged, and a number of quartets have accepted invitations to participate in the singing.

Altho only one charter member of the organization, W. J. Whitworth, is living, several from this vicinity have been associated with it almost from the time it was begun. These include Mrs. Margaret Newman, W. R. Cammack and G. E. Hamilton of Matador; Mrs. John Smith of Roaring Springs, and the late A. B. Echols, W. R. Tilson, T. N. Edmondson, J. L. Burselson, and Wade Martin.

FIREMEN MEET ENDS SATURDAY

Matador delegates to the annual convention of the State Firemen's Association held at Houston last week returned home Saturday. They were Fire Chief Roy Smith and Firemen Harmon Mills, Dick Groves, and Brooks Calloway.

Work of the convention included advocacy of lower insurance rates which are now fixed in proportion to the number of fires in each city.

Delegates also took part in various races including a hook-up and pumper race in which Harlington won first prize of $300 with a time of 17.4 seconds.

Olan Culberson, candidate for Railroad commissioner, was re-elected secretary of the association for the 22nd time. Hugh Martin, fire chief from Crosbyton, was elected fourth vice-president.

Next year's convention city will be Wichita Falls.

War On Hoppers Wages In County

War against grasshoppers is waging in the county under direction of J. Rufus Emmons, county agent. Poison is distributed to farmers from a poison room opened June 10 at the Farmers' Gin and operated by Joe B. Meador.

There have been reports of hoppers in all parts of the county, and the pests are becoming a menace to crops. The insects must be exterminated in early stages of growth in order for the poison to be of most benefit to farmers.

"If every farmer would get 100 pounds of poison to distribute along fence rows of farms and pastures, it would help to rid the country of the pests," said Emmons.

Paving work in Matador's five-block project has proceeded at a rapid pace during the past three weeks, two blocks having been completed and opened to traffic. The project will be finished by July 10, according to J. P. Smith, in charge of the job. Work is now in progress on the block south of the courthouse.

Mrs. H. H. Schweitzer and children, Houston, Bert, and Frances, left Wednesday for Prescott, Arizona, and other points, where they will visit relatives.

Committee Meeting Monday Certifies Names For Ticket

Candidates, exclusive of those certified by the state Democratic executive committee, know the order in which they will be listed on the primary election ballot. Those who were drawn for top positions are happy, for psychologically they have an advantage over their opponents.

The Democratic county executive committee headed by Pat Sheridan, chairman, met Monday afternoon in the county courtroom and drew names for positions.

The committee also decided that nominations in the primary would be decided by a majority vote which would mean a runoff in most races.

Here is the way candidates will be listed on the ballot:

"If I have missed anyone in my canvass, it was not intentional, and I invite your thorough investigation of my qualifications and solicit your consideration," he said.

War Supplies May Be Given to Red Cross

WASHINGTON — In connection with the $50,000,000 European relief appropriation now pending before Congress, Chairman Norman H. Davis yesterday sent the following communication to 3,700 Red Cross chapters throughout the United States:

"I want to emphasize that the results of the pending legislation are of great importance. The basic reason for the purchase of surplus food and other supplies for the relief of our people is that the Government does not provide for any other supplies for the relief of our people. The Government is proposing to finance the Red Cross and neither the Red Cross nor the Government has asked any financing by the Government. The Red Cross has an organization supported by voluntary gifts. The proposed legislation provides that the purchase of surplus food and other supplies shall be under the control of the President, but that he may act as the agency for the distribution of the surplus food and other supplies, the American Red Cross or any other agency as he may designate.

"The proposed legislation asks the Red Cross to distribute surplus food and other supplies to refugees and to enable the Red Cross to do a better and more complete job. The Red Cross will be keenly sensitive of the confidence thus expressed in the effectiveness of its organization. It will endeavor to render efficiently this supplementary service just as it tried to do in the past with respect to the distribution in this country of surplus Government wheat and cotton.

"The President's request to Congress called attention to the fact that the recommended purchase of surplus food in no way increased the burden which the American Red Cross has assumed, specifically said, 'The appropriation I am suggesting will supplement the Red Cross relief program. The needs of refugees are in addition to their need for food.'

"It must be made plain to everyone that it has not even been suggested that any money be paid from the United States Treasury to the Red Cross. These are the facts, and if the Red Cross successfully does the work it has undertaken, it will need all and more than the minimum of $20,000,000 for which it is now appealing to the American people. Every day brings new and urgent needs."

PLANS ADVANCE FOR STAMFORD ANNUAL RODEO

Veteran cowhands of Texas will gather in Stamford July 2, 3, and 4 for the eleventh annual Texas Cowboy Reunion. Membership of the Association, now numbering 1,800 includes the following from Matador, Texas: C. D. Bird, Mrs. J. L. Moore, M. J. Reilly and J. E. Russell.

Membership is limited to men who are actively employed as cowboys on ranches at least 35 years ago. Members who have paid their annual dues of $1 will be issued badges which entitle them to dinner at the oldtime cowboys' chuck wagon at noon each day and free admission to the rodeo and grandstand.

The Association will elect new officers at the annual business meeting, which will be held in the Will Rogers Bunkhouse, the headquarters building of the oldtime cowboys. Since both of the vice-presidents of the organization have expressed an unwillingness to serve as president, J. Ellison Carroll of Big Lake is being boomed for president of the association. Carroll is now a member of the board of directors and men prominent in the Reunion association believe his election is practically assured.

Among the new features added by the Texas Cowboy Reunion this year will be a Quarter-horse Show, in which 71,000 prizes will be awarded and a gaited horse show with prizes amounting to $480. Featuring the entertainment program will be the cowboy rodeo, with $2,600 in prizes, cowgirl sponsors' contest, old fiddlers contest, square dances at the Coombes Roundup hall and modern dances at the Reunion pavilion. Why MATADOR People ARE CHANGING to the modern GAS refrigerator!

Only Servel Electrolux freezes silently with NO MOVING PARTS

Women here and nearby, all over West Texas, who are buying their second refrigerator this year, are turning to the one automatic refrigerator with no moving parts in its freezing system—SERVEL ELECTROLUX! Nothing to wear, nothing to make a noise, now or years from now.

Says Mrs. D. S. KAUFMAN, Abilene, Texas: "After 12 years of daily use, our Servel Electrolux is just as economical, just as silent, and trouble-free, as when it was first installed in our home. A representative of the local Electrolux dealer called on us recently in an attempt to interest us in trading for a late model; but we declined because our old one is still giving us such excellent service."

Isn't that the kind of a refrigerator you want to buy? Come in and see how easy it is to own a new 1940 Servel Electrolux.

ANSWER: Because beer's alcoholic content is low. Temperate, moderate nations of the world...and their people...prefer beer.

QUESTION: DO BEER AND ALE REALLY AID THE FARMERS?

ANSWER: Since re-legalization of the brewing industry has bought 25,000,000,000 pounds of farm products. That has helped farmers... particularly during the depression years.

QUESTION: JUST WHAT ARE BEER AND ALE MADE OF?

ANSWER: Beer is made by a natural fermentation process... from malted barley and other grains, hops, yeast, water. Nature makes beer. The brewer makes it good beer (and ale).

QUESTION: HOW MUCH DO BEER TAXES CONTRIBUTE TO THE COST OF GOVERNMENT?

ANSWER: Beer contributes $1,000,000 a day... $30,000,000 a year... to help pay the costs of government... local, state and federal. Everybody benefits from this contribution.

QUESTION: DO BEER AND ALE MAKE JOBS FOR WORKERS?

ANSWER: Beer and ale have already made a million jobs. This employment is wide-spread... all over the country. More than 100 other industries benefit from beer and ale.

QUESTION: HOW IS THE BREWING INDUSTRY COOPERATING WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS?

ANSWER: The Brewing Industry is actively on the side of law and order. A "self-regulation" plan to eliminate retail abuses has already been put into effect in a number of states in cooperation with law enforcement authorities. This plan is being extended. We would like to tell you about it. Write for an interesting free booklet. Address: United Brewers Industrial Foundation, 19 East 40th Street, New York, N.Y.

Pied Pinions

BY MRS. M.

Having finally overcome opposition from the editor to conduct a column in the Woman's Page, we herewith wish to introduce "Pied Pinions". Meaning: "To put into a mixed and disordered condition, as type; to mix and disarrange; hence to throw into disorder; to make a mess of." All of which probably signifies, literally, the ultimate character of these efforts.

Coincident with the decision to insert this corner, a friend handed us a Wedding Anniversary Chart, and her suggestion that it might be of interest to others was evidently timely, since a similar chart was issued by Miss Margaret Turner, society editor of the Lubbock Avalanche in her column, "The Woman's Angle", on June 12, as follows:

Wedding Anniversary Chart
First paper; 2nd, calico; 3rd, muslin; 4th, silk; 5th, wood; 6th, iron; 7th, copper; 8th, bronze; 9th, pottery; 10th, tin; 11th, steel; 12th, silk; 13th, lace; 14th, ivory; 15th, crystal; 20th, china; 25th, silver; 30th, pearl; 35th, coral; 40th, ruby; 50th, gold; 75th, diamond.

In comparing this with the one which our contributor handed in, we find these differences: 12th, leather; 30th, ivory; 40th, wool; and 45th, silk.

Further investigation (Funk and Wagnall's Comprehensive Standard Dictionary) discloses that the first is cotton; 2nd, paper; 3rd, leather; 5th, wooden; seventh, woolen; and 12th, silk and linen, the 30th and 40th agreeing with the first chart, and all three naming alike the 25th, 50th, and 75th.

So take your choice. Personally I am inclined to sympathize with the young woman on the I. Q. program the other evening, who rather triumphantly stated that there couldn't be a 75th, in answer to a question concerning the anniversary motif for that year.

We are glad to have our assistant back with us for the summer. If I remember correctly, it was about this time last year that we won the battle of the sexes, on our peace terms of having a Woman's Page, principally at her suggestion.

Origin of June Marriage Custom Still a Mystery

FOR the past two thousand years, June has been the traditional month for marriages.

In an effort to discover the reason for this preference, Green Palmer, Good Housekeeping writer, roamed the reference libraries for a story on it. The results appear in the May issue of the magazine. She could find no basic reason for the choice but she did find other interesting customs. For instance:

"The habit of pelting departing couples with old shoes also has a venerable history. The Anglo-Saxons had a pretty custom by which the father of the bride transferred custody of her person to the groom by handing him one of her shoes as a token. In order that she should take notice of the exchange, it was customary to rap her smartly on the side of the head with the shoe. This is no longer done.

University of Texas co-eds do consider coquette a matrimonial bureau, they tell the dean of women's office. Of June graduates, 85 per cent plan to marry next year, 10 percent will marry and 5 per cent will go back home.

Then in the stillness of the night my mind went back to the days of our forefathers. They were confronted with the great god, War; they knew what it meant to have their homes, their families endangered. They could have quit, given up the uneven struggle, but they thought of the children of the future. They fought, and many of them died, so that my children would not some day be confronted with the same problem.

In many lands today, mothers are forced to give up their children—even the youngest. Dictators demand them—and dictators are all powerful. In peace as in war, they control business and industry, capital and labor, life itself. Men and women are told what work they must do. There is no prize for ambition, no hope for the man who would like to choose his own career.

How different it is in the United States! Here, governed by men responsible to the people, we choose our life-work for ourselves. This system of free enterprise makes the United States the world's greatest nation. Because men are free to dream and work as they see fit, scores of industries have grown great in America: the automobile, radio, telephone and electrical industries are just a few.

As typical Americans, the employees of your electric company are devoted to the American principle of working together, producing more of the good things of life and making them available to more people. Through their efforts electric service steadily improves; at the same time, its price steadily comes down.

What inspires the people of your electric company? The best answer is this: the employees of this company are proud of their part in keeping America great. They work as free men to bring better service and value to other free men. They are glad to create wealth instead of destroying it.

Vacation Rest For Children Is Advocated

"The child's day during vacation this summer should be scheduled to include a period of rest before meals, because uninterrupted, strenuous play tends to spoil appetite and may retard digestion," stated Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

EUROPEAN PALACES—

While in Europe, I visited a half-dozen royal palaces. The first one was the former Kaiser's Winter Palace in Berlin.

After leaving it I was all confused, bewildered—my mind was stimulating appetite, vigor and endurance. However, when carried out to the extent of bringing about definite fatigue, play and exercise often exert an opposite effect.

"The average child enters wholeheartedly into play both physically and emotionally. When allowed to play hard up to mealtime, he comes to the table in a fatigued, excited state with poor appetite, temporarily impaired digestive capacities and a tendency to gulp his food hastily. Therefore, a rest period before eating is of benefit to a child.

"Careful studies have also shown that excessive as well as insufficient activity reduces one's physical capacities. The reserve capacity of children is relatively small, varies with individuals and may be easily exceeded.

"Hard play in the evening up to bedtime usually disturbs sleep. The ill effects of overactivity are more likely to be observed in the spring after the relatively sedentary life of the winter season. Another period when play becomes excessive, is at the beginning of summer vacation when children have their first opportunity at day long physical activity.

"Properly regulated camps, city playgrounds and other community recreational facilities for the children offer model schedules for supervised play with a good balance of exercise and rest."

whirling with many kaleidoscopic images, a conglomeration of gilded splendor, endless rooms—nothing whatsoever stood out in sharp focus from all this great ornate mass—

The second palace visited produced a similar effect, but not to such a great extent. The ones that followed however, clarified my mental vision and then I was able to formulate my impressions, and get some sense and order out of all this mental confusion. In fact, the last two places that I visited began to bore me slightly, their magnificence and artificiality had begun to pall—my mind was filled to satiety. The rest of the time had entirely cleared away and all objects stood forth in clear distinct outlines.

When entering these abodes of royalty, we were requested either to don felt slippers—many sizes too large—or else we were told we must not step off the strip of carpet that ran through the center of the rooms. Both of these methods had their points. If we shuffled along the floors in our overly-large felt slippers, we had a chance at least to examine closely any article in the room, which from a distance might not have been clearly seen. But when keeping on the runner of the carpet, one did not constantly have to fear walking out of his slippers and marring the fine floors; but on the other hand, close inspections were out of the question.

The general plan of all royal palaces are similar in character. They are not identical, however, by any means. Some of the palaces are larger than others, some are adorned for the most part at least, in some color which was a favorite of the reigning monarch who occupied these premises. Thus in one palace crimson would predominate, while in another, yellow was favored, or green; or a deep carnation blue would cast its sapphire hues over everything.

The floors as a general rule were inlaid with light and dark rare cabinet woods mostly in the herring-bone design—beautiful examples of marquetry work. Great napless Aubusson rugs adorned some of the floors with their tapestry-like beauty.

The walls of the rooms are paneled in silk and satin brocades in silver, crimson, green, blue or gold. The same fabric is used also in the upholstery of the carved, gilded furniture. This makes for a very rich, harmonious interior. The furniture is also often adorned with gilded bronze, taking various shapes: griffins, sphinx, caryatides and the like. Desks especially are marvels of rich inlay marquetry work, adorned with ormolu, ivory and mother-of-pearl. The mantelpieces of the many state rooms are generally of carved marble or some semi-precious stone: malachite, lapis-lazuli, alabaster or onyx. Over the mantle one sees great tall, towering mirrors in ornately carved golden frames. In these mirrors the beauties of these state-rooms are multiplied, reflecting superb Flemish tapestries, brocaded panels inset in the walls, oil paintings (mostly of Royal relatives or friends) and great monumental moulds of crystal chandeliers scintillating, alive with prismatic colors—

On the shelf of the mantelpiece one sees magnificent vases of Sevres, Royal Dresden or Capo di Monte ware; clocks often encrusted with jewels, porcelain figurines of Meissen ware, photographs set in gold and jeweled frames. Most of these objects have been birthday or Christmas gifts from royal relatives. The ceilings of these rooms are works of art. Here are seen fine cloud effects silhouetted against the turquoise blue of the skies. Thru these grey mists, beautiful, rosy cherubs disport themselves with great glee and abandon, garlanded with roses and wreathed in celestial smiles—Tiepolo, the great Italian artist, was not above painting ceilings of this nature.

In the center of the rooms stand tables gilded and carved, adorned

Export Subsidy's Price Raising Effect Indirect

(This is one of a series of articles on the government in farming.)

By RAY DAVIDSON

Newest detail of Uncle Sam's venture in farming is the export subsidy.

This is one of the AAA features that is carried out completely away from the farm. The farmer does not see it happen; directly it has no effect on him or any of the rest of us.

Off-hand, the export subsidy looks like a matter of the federal government passing out money to foreign business men.

The subsidy on exports merely consists of the government paying foreign buyers with onyx and alabaster tops. On these various objects d'art are seen: vases, clocks, figurines, snuff boxes—The royal gilded beds stand on a dias and are rendered majestic by their great towering canopies of brocade silks and satins all gathered together under a great golden crown. Some of these beds do not even partake of the orthodox form, rather do they recall Lohengrin, in as much as they are in the shape of silver or golden swans of overwhelming dimensions.

The dressing tables, chairs, chaise-longues and other appurtenances are all in harmony. By and by all this decadent, musty magnificence is stultifying. One is surfeited with all this gilded artificiality and yearns to get into the open—into the fresh air, the sunshine, have the cool breezes blow about him and feel the luscious grass under his feet and see the blue of the sky above his head.

Then too there is something intangible hanging in the very air in these palaces. Here one perceives ancient court intrigues, cabals, that once filled these rooms. Jealousies at Court, petty bickerings of the servants, insincere flatteries on the part of the courtiers to curry royal favors, malicious, insidious gossiping running rampant thru the vast gilded halls—

Is it any wonder then that Marie Antoinette yearned to get away from all this and go out into the park and play at blind-man's bluff under the trees, to act the role of a simple shepherdess—anything in fact to get away from all the boring formality of complicated court-life and try to find the Blue Bird of Happiness somewhere in the open that had always succeeded in eluding them within the walls of the gilded palace.

I was of course, very glad to have had the opportunity to visit these abodes of European royalty, but like most people feel about New York, these palaces are good for an occasional visit, but for permanent residence they leave much to be desired—

DOG—
I saw a stuffed dog in a case one day—just an ordinary dog when it came to a matter of canine pedigree, but a most extraordinary dog in other ways.

As he sat there in his case in all his hairy immobility, the dog was greatly obscured by the great quantity of medals with which he was decorated. His name was "Owney" and I learned his history from a card affixed to the exhibit. Many years ago—in 1880, one cold, stormy night, this dog, wet and shivering, crept into an Albany, N. Y. Post Office and as he was not chased out, he soon crawled upon a heap of empty mail pouches and fell asleep.

On awakening, one of the mail clerks fed him with scraps of his lunch. Shortly thereafter, through his winning ways and keen intelligence, he wormed his way into the affections of the men. They fed him, stroked his kindly head, until his tail beat a violent rat-at-tat against the mail sacks, while all the time his fine, intelligent eyes blazed forth with great loving kindness and affection.

Then came the time when the mail-clerk took Owney with them on their runs across country. In this manner the dog traveled about, piling up a record of some 140,000 miles. Owney even went abroad—to the Orient, in fact, where the Mikado of Japan gave him a pass-port and the Emperor of China made him welcome in old Cathay. More than a thousand medals attest to his great popularity, medals received in various parts of the world.

The mail clerks considered Owney in the nature of a mascot, as a carrier of luck. Whenever he accompanied them on their runs, no accidents ever marred the occasion. In this manner, by his protecting aura, this good dog more than repaid them for his food and kind treatment that he received at their hands.

Even Terhune, the famous dog-oving scrivener, can tell of no more remarkable tale of a dog's love, loyalty and intelligence than is the story of Owney, the former mascot of the mail clerks.

so much per pound to buy American cotton.

It might be termed a "reverse tariff." Foreign traders who fear to tread U. S. shores because of tariff walls that keep their goods out, are paid a bounty to come here for cotton. This partly offsets the tariff's working against the farmer—particularly the cotton farmer.

Suppose the price of cotton is standing at 8 cents per pound. This price is paid by domestic and foreign consumers alike. The domestic market is a source of little concern, but the foreign market has been getting away for a number of reasons.

Suppose then, that the U. S. government offers to pay any foreign buyer 1.5 cents per pound every time he buys a bale of American cotton. This, in effect, makes American cotton cost the foreign buyer only 6.5 per pound, which would be 1.5 cents less than world price. Naturally he begins buying at this price, deserting Brazilian, Egyptian and other markets.

This increases consumption of American cotton and starts its price rising. This rise occurs on American cotton, while that of other nations remains the same.

The foreign buyer continues to buy here, however, as long as the price of cotton is a fraction lower than it is in other producing lands. Thus American cotton rises to 9.40 cents per pound, as far as the cotton farmer is concerned. Yet the foreign buyer who is paying 9.40 gets 1.5 cents back from the government and thus is getting his cotton for 7.90, a tenth of a cent lower than he can get it elsewhere.

Meantime, with the price rising to 9.40 for export cotton—about half the crop—it must have risen the same on domestic cotton. So the farmer gets an extra 1.5 cents (or nearly so—say 1.4) not only on foreign cotton but also domestically consumed cotton.

Thus, theoretically, every time the government spends 1.5 cents on the export subsidy or "reverse tariff," the farmer gets that 1.5 cents (or most of it), and another 1.5 cents (or nearly as much) from the domestic buyer who bought the other half of his cotton.

This, then, is the theory of the export subsidy. As for its actual workings, international economists must speak. But to say the least, it is planned to raise the price of cotton, and is another of Uncle Sam's ventures into farming—and his newest.

It was first introduced in mid-1939, with 1.5 cents per pound being offered. The ante was later reduced to .75 cent per pound, then to .40, as the order got lean.

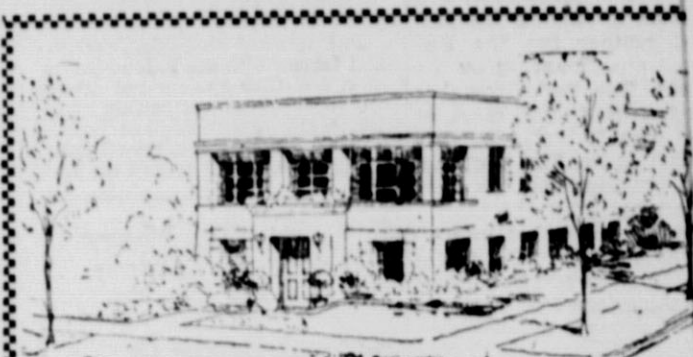

Next week's article in this series will discuss the soil conservation portion of the AAA program—which is the basic activity from which all other portions of the program—except the export subsidy—are anchored.

Marvin Jones Ends Career As Lawmaker

Marvin Jones, who will retire from Congress at the end of his present term to accept a place on the U. S. Court of Claims, has issued the following statement regarding his work as representative of the 18th Congressional District:

"It will not be easy to leave the work in which I have been engaged so many years, but sooner or later changes must be made, and the decision must be made at this time.

The work of the Committee on Agriculture has been of great importance, not only to our section of the country, but the nation. Hundreds of bills are referred to this committee each year. There are five subcommittees.

The preparation of these bills, the answering of numerous inquiries, as well as personal requests, have made the last few years very busy ones.

Served As Chairman

When I became chairman of the Committee on Agriculture in 1931, the Farm Board was the only agricultural legislation on the statute books, and the country was face to face with a panic.

Since that time provision has been made for soil and water conservation, research, the lowest farm credit interest rates in our history, the distribution of surpluses, tenant home purchases and other basic acts.

The ground work is done. That a national farm program is essential to the welfare of the entire country is now an accepted fact. While improvements will be made from time to time, the basic provisions have been enacted, and a solid foundation laid for a permanent program.

The people of the Panhandle have been very generous to me. It has been a pleasure to work for them.

I have not sought publicity, but I have sought to do a workmanlike job. All around may be seen the evidences of that work. I have never made a speech nor cast a vote in which I did not thoroughly believe—and I have never dodged a vote.

Expresses Gratitude

To the people of every county in the district, to the newspapermen who have always been generous, to the businessmen, to the farmers

ANNUAL RODEO AT CANADIAN TO BE JULY 4

CANADIAN, Texas—Bound by tradition to present the wildest, wooliest and most genuine reincarnation of the Old West, Canadian is busy preparing for the 18th annual Anvil Park Rodeo, July 3 and 4, the oldest outdoor rodeo in Texas from the standpoint of consecutive years in operation.

Long an outstanding feature in the year's entertainment in the Panhandle, the Anvil Park Rodeo this year will be the only big professional rodeo in the Northeast Panhandle. More than 11 cowhands will seek approximately $2,000 in cash prizes, plus many merchandise awards.

Stock for this granddaddy of Texas rodeos will be furnished by Beutler Brothers. Horses known for their bucking ability, Brahma bulls famous for their mean dispositions and agile bodies, long-horn steers which know how to run, and, above all, cowboys who are tops in their field, will lend an atmosphere impossible to find except at Canadian, the heart of the Old West.

A full program has been arranged by rodeo officials, starting with a dance the evening of July 2. Rodeo performances are scheduled for 8 o'clock the nights of July 3 and 4, and for 2 o'clock the afternoon of July 4. Dances will be held each night in the spacious auditorium in Canadian. Transportation, from the days of dinosaurs to the present age of streamliners, will be the theme of the parade starting at 5 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, July 3. The largest group of horses and riders assembled in Canadian since the nineteenth century will ride in the parade.

Latin-American Study Stressed At University

AUSTIN, Texas—Endorsement of the Institute of Latin-American Studies June 4—July 15 at the University of Texas has come from many sources. Dr. C. W. Hackett, Institute director, points out:

"That the work of the Institute dovetails in with the Good Neighbor Policy of the present national administration is borne out by a letter from Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles," he said.

Secretary Welles' letter read in part: "I have noted with pleasure the comprehensive and stimulating nature of the courses which are planned for the Institute.

"It is especially gratifying to know that you have been able to assemble such a distinguished group of scholars from both this country and the other American republics. I trust that the Institute will be entirely successful and take this opportunity to congratulate the University of Texas on an initiative which carries out several of the suggestions and recommendations made at the Conference on Inter-America Relations in the Field of Education last November."

The work of the Institute, Dr. Hackett explained, falls into four categories: (1) classroom instruction over a six-week's period; (2) a series of weekly public lectures given on the campus; (3) a series of eight radio addresses over the Texas State Network; and (4) a conference on international relations in the Western Hemisphere on July 2 and 3 to draw a larger number of scholars and publics from the United States and Latin America.

Large Stream Of Salt Water Flows From Test Well

CHILDRESS, Texas, June 17—Workers on the Texas company No. 1 B. P. Smith Land and Cattle company wildcat test 25 miles northwest of here tried in vain to night to stem a roaring flow of salt water, hurled hundreds of feet into the air by an undetermined gas pressure.

The freak "gusher" was still going strong late tonight after flowing steadily for 12 hours. The salt water blew in Monday morning, but it was not known what might have caused the well to "erupt." The well was shut down late last week when drillers reported they had struck a "cavity."

There were a number of rumors about the gas pressure. Some persons believed it to be helium, and others affirmed that it was not petroleum gas.

The water was hurled far above the 120-foot derrick. The well had been drilling at between 500 and 600 feet, and 16-inch casing had been set. The casing was being pushed out of the hole rapidly tonight.

Texas company officials, who have been drilling the well "tight" volunteered little information.

The test is located in section 97 block 9, H. G. N. survey. It was started as a 5000-foot test.
