RAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

It is its cloak of green with brave sublimity, the sun's ornate splendor from the record of dew-kissed unfolding at dawn, the heat of spring and summer, the lightning that shook the hills in its madness. The hours of its tranquility; the winds are an omen of desecrated beyond the futility curtain. Between us is an ironical bond of understanding, like travelers who do speak. Youth is the passed which has left only traces of its delicate perfume the thorns and leaves.

Unmolested tracks cross the other side of the river where the range of young trees around the water. Perhaps he is riding for another outfit over the river where the range of young trees around the water. Perhaps he is riding for another outfit over the river where the range of young trees around the water. Perhaps he is riding for another outfit over the river where the range of young trees around the water.

Side of sopping brown ham with a hot biscuit, nothing more personal satisfaction than listening to some well-timed flattery. I love affairs seldom return about the staircases of matrimony, especially when we have repeated storm warnings of what they may present.

Thousand demons danced on my head and held lighted candles to my throat when I was. The clock had run down and I was in my garret room. I was aware of the fever of a deep hunger for some of my mother's voice footstep brought tears to my eyes. A loneliness that twists its fingers in the sore flesh of the heart.

Some brands many a knotty trick by mistake, or carelessness, otherwise it would be impossible to explain the presence of colors moving with threads to greener pastures.

Lewis Lisenby Dies After Car Accident

Funeral services were held from the Matador Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, for Lewis Lisenby, 28, who died Sunday night at 11:45 in the hospital at Floydada, where he was conveyed for treatment of injuries sustained in a highway accident Saturday night.

The accident occurred eight miles east of Floydada as Mr. Lisenby was returning from that place, to his home near Roaring Springs, when his pick-up collided with an oil truck going west on the highway. Immediate amputation of his left arm was made at the hospital, and death resulted from concussions and skull fracture.

Driver of the truck was only slightly injured. He said that apparently Lisenby's car hooked the rear bumper of the truck when Lisenby was attempting to pass on the highway, and that both drivers lost control of their vehicles. Sheriff Lee Howard of Floyd County said he was told. The victim did not regain consciousness before he died.

Born at Whiteflat, Lewis Edward Lisenby, only son of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Lisenby, was born at Whiteflat, Texas, January 11, 1915. He died October 10, 1943, at the age of 28 years and 9 months. On September 23, 1935, he married Miss Ola Garner of near Turkey, to which union were born three children. They are: Beverly Joy, 6; Clayton Lewis, 3; and Paul Roy, ten months.

He was reared in the Montgomery community in the north part of the county, and had made his home near Flomot until a little over a year ago when he moved to a farm southwest of Roaring Springs.

Rev. H. L. Burnam of Spur, former Baptist pastor at Whiteflat, conducted the final rites, assisted by Rev. R. L. Jameson, retired Methodist minister of Whiteflat. Interment was made in Matador East Mound cemetery under the direction of Harcastle Funeral Home of Turkey.

Originally planned for night, the game will be called at 3 p. m. in the afternoon since a transformer can not be obtained for the lighting equipment. ## Veteran Cowboy Succumbs

Uncle Jack Carr is dead. Jack B. Carr, 78, veteran cowboy, Motley county resident for over 20 years and active until a few years ago when he was retired by the Matador Land & Cattle Company, succumbed at the Traewick hospital here about 5 a. m. Thursday morning.

Funeral service were held at the Methodist church at 1 p. m. Friday, by Rev. Bob Jameson, and interment made in the Matador East Mound cemetery, beside that of his wife, who died in 1925. He had been in failing health for a number of years.

"Uncle Jack" Carr had spent his life in the saddle. He had worked on many of the ranches in west Texas and was known by cowboys everywhere. Born near Weatherford, Parker county, Texas, May 13, 1865, he died in Matador, October 7, 1943, age 78 years, four months and 24 days. He was married to Miss Mary Price of Parker county and to this union five children were born, one whom survives. He is Cpl. Frank Carr of Fort Dix, New Jersey, unable to attend his father's funeral. Mrs. J. S. Carr, a sister-in-law and Mrs. J. E. Holman, a niece, both of Seymour, attended the funeral. Cowboys Attend Funeral

All cowboys from the Matador ranch range wagon attended the funeral. Tall, solemn cowboys, their tanned faces, smooth from fresh shaves, their worn boots polished, veterans to the youngest hands, all paid homage to their friend, the veteran rider. "Uncle Jack's" friends were numbered by those who knew him, and included most of the residents of Matador and vicinity. Most Matador business houses closed for the funeral services.

MANY OTHER THAN TEXANS IN ARMY READ THE TRIBUNE

Reading of the Matador Tribune by men in the armed service is not confined to boys from Motley county and this area, according to a letter received by publisher Douglas Meador this week from Staff Sgt. J. W. Smith of Virginia, with Headquarters and Headquarters Company, AGF, Army War College, Washington, D. C., dated 7 October, 1943.

The letter is as follows: "Dear Mr. Meador: Not all readers of the Tribune are Texans. We of Headquarters Company Supply read Trail Dust and the Service News every week and only one of us is Texas born. He is Tech. 3rd. Gr. Curtis R. Taylor, and by the way, the proud father of a seven pound baby boy. The kid is strictly G.I. having been born on September 30 — pay day.

"Taylor has no idea that we are writing you and we would greatly appreciate it if you would print the good news of his increase in family in your Service News. You may say that the mother and baby are doing fine and the father is expected to recover. Thanks for the paper and all."

Thanks to you, Sgt. Smith, and here is your letter printed on the front page of the Tribune. The Tribune appreciates its readers and welcomes strangers to its columns.

Last week the Tribune added 25 new servicemen and other readers, including some changes in addresses. The circulation hook is full again this week with changes and new subscribers. The Tribune expresses sincere appreciation for the following unsolicited contributions to the boys-in-service paper fund made since last issue: E. D. Lawrence $2, Clyde Gilbert $1, Harrison George (Flomot) $5, Mrs. W. R. Dirickson $2, Mrs. Grover Price $1, Lt. Bert Ezzell $3, Pfc. Haskell J. Hamiter $1, Ben Edwards $2, Randall Whitworth $1, Lt. Fred G. Simpson, Jr. $2.50, R. W. Amick (Flomot) $1, Don Martin (Ranger, Texas) $1.50, Mrs. Bill Edwards (Whiteflat) $1.

Wife Held Captive As Slayer Drives Away From Crime

Weldon Westmoreland, 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Westmoreland of Matador was shot to death by a plumber at Dallas White Rock lake, Thursday afternoon, Charles Beals, 44, and Reynolds Nelson, 52, surrendered to Dallas officers Friday morning. Beals admitting that he fired the fatal shot.

Funeral services were held here at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon, at 3:30 by Rev. W. B. Vaughn of Lockney, former Matador pastor, assisted by Rev. W. B. Swim.

Weldon Westmoreland was born at Anson, Texas, May 20, 1919 and moved with his parents to Motley county the following year. He had spent his entire life here, attending Matador schools, and continuing to tend his father's farm after his marriage to Miss Melba Gregory of Paducah, September 10, 1940. Of quiet, unassuming disposition, always attending to his own affairs, his tragic death was received with severe shock by the entire community. The church building filled to capacity with sympathetic friends, and large floral offerings bore silent testimony of his many friendships. Events Are Reconstructed Shocked with grief and strain after her harrowing experience, Mrs. Weldon Westmoreland reconstructed the events of her husband's slaying, for the Tribune, Monday.

Leaving Matador late Wednesday, October 6th, Mr. and Mrs. Westmoreland set Dallas as their destination where she planned to enter a beauty school. Arriving in Ft. Worth about 6 a. m. Thursday, they stopped at the home of a friend, Delma Parks, and rested until about 10:30 a. m., driving on to Dallas. Still tired from the all-night drive, and driving about Dallas, they decided to stop off the road bordering White Rock Lake, unroll a blanket in their car and sleep for a while in a tree-screened space near a stream. Shortly after their arrival they were approached by two strangers, one carrying a rifle and the other a 22 pistol. They introduced themselves and began talking.

Mrs. Westmoreland said she talked to Nelson for a short time and that her husband and Beals strolled a short distance away. Subsequently her husband went to their car parked by the side of the pavement, on the bank above the location and brought back a rifle belonging to Freeman Thacker of Matador, which he had borrowed for possible squirrel hunting on the trip. Mrs. Westmoreland said she left her husband and the stranger and went back to the car, while Nelson went to another car parked nearby. She waited for her husband and heard several shots fired, which she presumed to be target practice. Finally she started calling her husband and he answered her calls (See WESTMORELAND page 4)

Crippled Children's Hospitals In Need Of Canned Foods

George Springer, Potentate's Aide of Khiva Temple A.A.O.N.M.S., for Motley county, has just received letters from the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children in Shreveport, Louisiana, Saint Louis Missouri, and the Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children at Dallas. They are all in need of canned fruits, vegetables, jellies, and jams. Everyone can have a part in this worthwhile humanitarian enterprise by bringing just one can, jar, or glass from their shelf at home, either home canned or store purchased to Mr. Springer. "Let us help and do our part in Motley county and see that these poor unfortunate children have the things so essential to their health," said Mr. Springer.

Ruth Rushing Is Married In Dallas To Sgt. Chant Lee

Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Rushing announce the marriage of their daughter, Ruth, to Sgt. Chant Lee of Panquitch, Utah, now stationed at Camp Bowie, in a ceremony performed Saturday, October 9 in Dallas.

Vows were exchanged before W. L. Oliphant, Minister of the Oak Cliff Church of Christ, who officiated, and three attendants, Miss Helen Hill of Matador, and Lt. and Mrs. Robert Cherrington of Panquitch, Utah.

The bride wore a soft blue dress with brown accessories, and a corsage of roses.

Mrs. Lee will remain in Dallas where she is employed by the write-up division of North American Aviation Inc., until November 1, at which time she will go to Brownwood to join her husband in making their home there.

Mrs. Lee was reared here, and was an outstanding student in high school. During her senior year she was editor of the school news, and following graduation, attended Abilene Christian Col-

Wedded pinions

Our only claim to fame now is that we know, personally, a lady who still owns a good pair of nylon.

To one whose sense of direction is nil, and instructions must needs be very explicit even to the extent of requiring, in some instances, a diagram with 'X' prominently marked, it seemed little short of miraculous to us that two people could get together in a city as large as Chicago, with no advance arrangements made. It did happen though, about a month or so ago when Paul Fulfer, of the U. S. Navy, wired relatives here to notify his wife, who was visiting with relatives in Dallas, to meet him in Chicago on a certain date. When his wife received the message, she had about an hour to make her arrangements to leave, but she did, and sure enough, when her train pulled in, there was her husband, waiting at the gate, among a thousand or so other individuals. As simple as that, altho we are informed that Chicago has more than one station—we've never been to Chicago.)

We can't even locate our spouse in a door-to-door canvass of this community's some dozen or so business establishments, including only one bus stop.

Brightening up the downtown section are several beauty spots which are attracting much attention. Mrs. Clements' colorful flower park with fall flowers in full bloom, at the side of the Matador Hotel; the bright yellow leaves on the row of American elm trees in front of Traweck Hospital, which gradually loosen their hold to settle lightly, as an afghan patterned in gold, across the sidewalk; the bed of scarlet geraniums at the Methodist church nestled between the two sets of steps leading to the entrances.

Before going to Dallas several months ago, Mrs. Lee was employed here in the office of the Memphis Production Credit Association.

extra tire, with perhaps the wheel thrown in for good measure, let us refer you to one of the most accommodating citizens of our acquaintance. He is man's friend indeed as well as in need, and a recent experience of his is a true example of the much publicized "Spirit of the West."

This man of whom we speak, was enroute to a distant city recently when he passed a stalled car containing an aged couple. By the side of the vehicle stood two young women, who helplessly surveyed the deflated rear tire. Not only did this accommodating fellow stop and offer his services, but in addition, after it developed that neither party had adequate tools with which to repair the damage, he offered his own spare, which was brand new, to take them on their way. And, when it developed further that his extra did not fit their wheel—he put wheel, tire and all, on their automobile and sent them on their way, with the promise that they would leave his wheel and tire at the first town where they could get their own tire fixed.

Not until he was well on his way again, did the hero of this story begin to be uneasy. After all the people were rank strangers to him; how did he know that they would keep their promise. To complicate matters, the pick-up he was driving was new and owned in partnership with two brothers. His anxiety almost ruined the business deal for which his trip was being made.

Late that night, when he reached the appointed town and designated station, to find his tire intact, his relief knew no bounds. "If that tire hadn't been there," he confided, "I was just going to write my brothers to come get the pick-up, because I had my mind made up to get on the first bus and just keep traveling."

set afire by the explosion and sank in approximately three and one half minutes.

"Planes dropped rubber boats and life jackets, which assisted the survivors to remain afloat until rescued. The survivors were taken to Norfolk, Virginia, where many were treated for injuries sustained in the sinking. Although the body of your son was not recovered, upon reviewing the circumstances surrounding the loss of the vessel as reported by a formal Board of Investigation, I am reluctantly forced to the conclusion that your son lost his life in this disaster.

"I extend to you my sincere sympathy in your great loss and hope you may find comfort in the knowledge that your son gave his life for his country, upholding the highest traditions of the Navy. The Navy shares your sense of bereavement."

CARD OF THANKS

We take this means of expressing our most profound appreciation to our friends for their many acts of kindness and words of condolence at the death of our loved one, Lewis Lisenby, and for the beautiful floral offering tendered in his memory. May God's richest blessings rest on each of you.

Westmoreland . . .

two or three times. When she called again he did not answer and she became alarmed. Mrs. Westmoreland left the car and ran toward the spot where she had last seen her husband. She met Beals, whose head was partly covered in blood, and who started calling to Nelson, still in the car above. Beals told Mrs. Westmoreland that he had killed her husband and that he was going to kill her as soon as he got her to the car. She saw her husband's gun on the ground and attempted to pick it up, but Beals took it away from her and forced her to wash the blood from his face and head. He repeated that he had killed her husband, declaring that he had tried to hold him up. He told her he was glad he had killed her husband, then he grasped her arm, pushed her and forced her away from the scene, to his car parked by the road.

Did Not Believe Slayer

Mrs. Westmoreland had not been allowed to see her husband and did not believe he had been killed. She was forced into the front seat of Beals' automobile with Nelson at the wheel. She was kept here about 30 minutes while Nelson begged Beals for the keys so that they might drive away. Finally Beals surrendered the keys and they started driving around White Rock Lake. Some time later Mrs. Westmoreland was released, after the two men had asked her what she intended to do. She said she told her captors that she did not know what she would do because she said she was afraid they would not release her if she told them she would call the police. Finally released, she entered a cafe and called the Dallas police. After some delay two Dallas detectives arrived and took Mrs. Westmoreland back to the scene of the slaying, where they found her husband shot through the chest. It was not until then that she knew he was dead, possibly two hours after they had parked by the side of the road to rest.

Suffering terror and shock Mrs. Westmoreland was unable to tell officers the names of the two men, nor could she remember the license number of the car in which she had been kidnapped. Detectives held Mrs. Westmoreland in custody while they attempted to find clues of the slayers. Finally she remembered that Beals had possessed a small dog, which bore a collar and name plate. She remembered the dog's name and that it had been left behind when she was being forced into the car. Detectives told her the dog aided in bringing about the surrender of the two men the following morning. About two o'clock Friday morning Mrs. Westmoreland was released by the detectives after satisfactory identity had been established but she remained in the jail women's ward until morning, after fear was expressed that she might come to harm at the hands of her husband's slayer. Relatives and friends were notified of the tragedy early Friday.

Robbery Motive Advanced

Mrs. Westmoreland did not hear any of the conversation which led up to the slaying of her husband by a man he had met for the first time only a few minutes previous. Many friends here who had known Weldon Westmoreland all his life, advanced the supposition that Beals may have attempted to hold him up and that he resisted, with the result that he was slain. However, $65 was found on his body by the detectives. His father said Monday he left Matador with approximately $150 Wednesday and that he did not believe he spent more than $15 before he was killed. Contrary to statements made by Nelson and Beals, Mrs. Westmoreland said her husband did not drink with the two strangers and that she did not believe they were drinking.

Interment was made in the Matador East Mound cemetery. The following were pall-bearers: Freeman Thacker, Clarence Kifer, R. L. Brandon, Marvin Vaughn, Pvt. Howard Henson of Lubbock and Orville Latimer of Amarillo.

Besides his wife and parents, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Lamar Guthrie of Erick, Okla.

An article in the Sunday Dallas News declared that Nelson held as a material witness in the slaying, had been released under $2,500 bond, but that Beals still remained in jail and that no bond had been set.
