I have been to Casablanca and the other side of the coast—I have been in swimming in the Mediterranean... "The war is over here in Africa and I hope the other part will be over soon... Public Urged To Aid Prevention Of Polio Spread

With the current incidence of poliomyelitis in Texas being somewhat over the seven-year median, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, is urging the public to cooperate in helping to prevent the spread of this crippling disease. "Children should not visit homes where poliomyelitis or symptoms of this disease are present. Promptness in diagnosing poliomyelitis is one of the most important factors in its control," Dr. Cox declared.

"Direct contact between persons is the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis and since carriers are difficult to determine, it is advisable to reduce to a minimum all human contacts during any outbreaks of this disease." Dr. Cox stressed the fact that a rigid program of sanitation is advisable since it has been suspected that flies and other seasonal insects may convey the virus or germ of poliomyelitis. He added that insect transmission has not been scientifically demonstrated but pointed out that sanitation is always advisable in controlling disease and that filth is likely to prove dangerous.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis are headache, fever, vomiting, unusual drowsiness and irritability, followed by stiffness in the neck and back. Children under five years are most susceptible and all children under twelve years should be watched for suspicious symptoms. Dr. Cox urged that a physician be called immediately if infantile paralysis is suspected. If the disease is definitely diagnosed, local health authorities should be contacted immediately and patients isolated for at least 21 days.

army, and I had the measles then, which I couldn't help. Ben, you might tell Schweitzer if he has any saddles handy he might send me up one. Would like to take a seat at some of these mosquitoes. They sound like dive bombers coming; and when they go by you know something went by too when you get through rubbing your head.

Say Ben, I noticed in the paper this last week where the Texas slogan wasn't in there. You know, the one about, "There is glory enough for any man to live and die a Texan." I have quite a bit of fun out of that. Most of the boys up here don't like Texas, so that is the first thing I show them when I get my paper.

You know before I left home I could talk our way of talking, but since being around so many different boys that talk different than I do, I will probably talk queer to you folks when I get back. We have quite a bit of recreation now. Have several ball teams. Most any type of an outside game that can be played, so it is not so bad up here after all. Of course sometimes I wouldn't mind being somewhere else, but I can stand it here if the boys can stand it on the front lines.

Since news is scarce will have to sign off. Just want to thank every one who has helped make it possible for the boys in the armed forces to get the paper. So long. A U. S. Soldier, Pfc. R. A. Smallwood.

From "Somewhere in Australia" comes the following V-Mail letter from Sgt. Robert A. Birchfield: "Dear Ben: I will drop you a few lines tonight to let you know I really enjoy the paper. I got another copy today, and really enjoy the home news now that I am so far away. We seldom ever get any

Biologist Warns Against Botulism

A poison so powerful that a teaspoonful is enough to kill 40,000 guinea pigs is not a good thing to take chances with, a leading Texas biologist has said in warning Texas homesteaders against the hot water method of canning for non-acid vegetables. This method does not destroy the bacteria that cause botulism.

The entire text of a statement on the subject by Dr. Asa C. Chandler, professor of biology of Rice Institute, Houston, and advisory chairman of the Houston and Harris county nutrition committee, has been circulated among agents of the Texas A. and M.

OLD NEWSPAPERS CONTAIN ARTICLES OF MUCH INTEREST

PUBLISHER'S NOTE:—Old copies of newspapers published in Matador contain the three following articles. "Alvin York—Man of Might," was published in the Matador Gusher, July 31, 1919. "Aviator Andersen Killed" was also published in the same issue. C. A. Lamb was editor. The article, "Buried Treasure Being Sought," was a front page story in the Motley County News, issue of January 8, 1915.

Alvin York — Man of Might

Sergeant Alvin C. York has been designated by many authorities the author of the greatest single piece of heroism of the war. He has been awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and the Congressional Medal of honor. When he returned from France the Tennessee Society of New York City went down the harbor in a banner-decked boat to bid him welcome. He was taken to a suite at the Waldorf Astoria and all New York exerted itself to make his stay a pleasant one.

In the Argonne Forest on October 8th, 1918, York—then a corporal in Company G, 328th Infantry, 82nd Division—killed between twenty and twenty-five Germans, captured 132, including one major and three lieutenants, and silenced thirty-five machine guns, thus breaking up an entire enemy battalion which was preparing a counter attack against the Americans on Hill 233.

All but seven privates and York of the company of sixteen men that had started out under the command of acting Sergeant Ber-college extension service. Dr. Chandler's statement is in harmony with recommendations on home canning given by Mrs. Elsie Gilkerson, county home demonstration agent.

Dr. Chandler believes the chances for accidents are too great to be worth the risk if people undertake to can non-acid vegetables or meats by the boiling water bath method. "Outbreaks of botulism will almost certainly occur," he said. "It is like having rattlesnakes on your golf course. You may keep your ball on the fairways and treat the rattlesnake with impunity, but sooner or later somebody a little less careful will suffer. By comparison (with botulism) rattlesnake venom is only mildly poisonous."

Bacteria that cause botulism grow in non-acid vegetables when strictly protected from air. Dr. Chandler said there is one case on record where the sports survived heating and germinated after 22 months. The poison produced is so deadly that a person has been known to die after eating one piece of a string bean.

nard Early at six o'clock that October morning had been killed or wounded when Alvin York's single-handed battle began. Machine guns rained their bullets on them before and behind. Six of the Americans had to guard prisoners already captured. One of them was so placed that if he came to York's aid he would be instantly killed. The steady hand of the Tennessee corporal at his trigger alone stood between them and capture or death.

To Pastor R. C. Pile and the congregation at the Possum Trot Church, back at Pail Mall, Tennessee, in the valley of the Three Forks of the Wolf River, where York is second elder and the leader of the singing, the heroism of the sergeant is attributed to something more than human power. In the little white church on the hill several years ago, the towering, flame-headed mountaineer "got religion." It is a vital, all-enveloping, everyday sort of religion that they get at Pastor Pile's little church.

When Alvin York was drafted into the army on November 14, 1917, he was a conscientious objector. Most of the members of the Possum Trot Church were conscientious objectors. When he went away to Camp Gordon, Ga., he went with a troubled conscience. Captain E. C. B. Danforth, his superior officer helped to clear up his doubts. It is said he read to him the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel, "Son of man, speak to the children of thy people, and say unto them, When I bring the sword upon a land, if the people of the land take a man of their coasts, and set him for their watchman; if when he seeth the sword come upon the land, he blow the trumpet, and warn the people; then whosoever heareth the sound of the trumpet, and taketh not warning; if the sword come, and take him away, his blood shall be upon his own head."

Alvin York is a silent man. It was all his interviewers could do to get him to answer "Yes" and "No" to questions. He did not seem to care to talk about his exploits. "I did the best I could and that was all I could do," and "I couldn't do anything else but fight," were about all the expressions he would make. "I am going to be a preacher," said Sergeant York when the interviewer managed to ask him what he intended to do in the future.

Aviator Andersen Is Killed
All of the people of Matador who knew E. M. Andersen will sadly learn of his death which occurred a few days ago at Love Field, Dallas.

Mr. Andersen in making a spinning nose dive had reached an altitude of about one hundred feet above the earth and was preparing to turn upward again, when the right wing of his plane snapped in two and the ship of the air came crashing to the ground thus causing his death.

It was not given me to see Mr. Andersen but twice, and then only for a short time, but his appearance betokened the admirable gentleman which his intimate acquaintances say he was.

In a talk with Doug Hodges a few hours before starting on the trip which proved to be his last voyage through the air, he said words similar to these: "Remember me to my friends at Matador; some of them are dear to me." We understand that Lieutenant Andersen had planned a ten days' vacation trip to Matador to be made soon. But he cannot make it now; for he has gone on that long vacation from which none ever return.

occurred a few days ago at Love Field, Dallas.

Mr. Andersen in making a spinning nose dive had reached an altitude of about one hundred feet above the earth and was preparing to turn upward again, when the right wing of his plane snapped in two and the ship of the air came crashing to the ground thus causing his death.

It was not given me to see Mr. Andersen but twice, and then only for a short time, but his appearance betokened the admirable gentleman which his intimate acquaintances say he was.

In a talk with Doug Hodges a few hours before starting on the trip which proved to be his last voyage through the air, he said words similar to these: "Remember me to my friends at Matador; some of them are dear to me."

We understand that Lieutenant Andersen had planned a ten days' vacation trip to Matador to be made soon. But he cannot make it now; for he has gone on that long vacation from which none ever return.

BURIED TREASURE BEING SOUGHT
A few days ago Web Cammack of this city visited the site of old

Teepee City, the early county. On his arrival he was surprised to see the camp of Mexicans had made small settlements at different places.

Mr. Cammack stated that Mexicans were very reticent in answering any questions which are seeking however there is a story to the effect that one of the wealthy gentlemen of the city had buried his entire hoard in the vicinity.

Web states that some ago a few gold pieces were in the ruins of one of the saloons there and he thinks the Mexicans have a map of the location of the treasure seeking.

"Reliable Ginners"

Notice To Cotton Farmers:

We can now get you a dusting machine for killing flea hoppers, boll weavils and worms.

If you need one of these machines come in and place your order. You may not be able to get one later.

We have enough feed meal, cotton and mixed feed to last until about August 1st.

If you have any cotton seed to spare we would like to buy them so you might have enough to run in August and make more meal to supply milk and butter for children, and the boys at the front.

Thanks for your prompt attention.

Yours truly,

The directors approved a motion to entertain Matador school honor students, from the sixth grade up, at the completion of each six weeks of school work.

Approval was made of a project to level the playground near the Scout Hut and also the cutting of weeds near the building to remove a fire hazard. The club approved sponsorship of the tin can salvage drive now under way in the county.

Future sale of tickets for any affair other than the club's own activities was banned from regular luncheons, as being irregular to approved by-laws and constitution.

The Methodist revival, was the featured speaker on the program. He was introduced by program sponsor Rev. W. B. Swim. The title of his address was, "National and Spiritual Liberty." Outlining the vast problems which confront the nation at war, he said, "... we must fight with our moral and spiritual defenses... we know that as a nation, we can not live apart from the rest of the world... before us in the post war era is the problem of remaking a nation for we will live in a new world in that period. The world we knew before the war will be changed... a spirit of sacrifice is needed but our spiritual resources is now and will continue to make our nation strong."

CATTLE BRAND BILL IS VALID, MANN DECLARES

AUSTIN, June 23—Famous old Texas Cattle Brands will pass into the discard unless they are re-recorded within two years from Oct. 1 under an act of the last legislature which Atty. Gen. Gerald C. Mann had ruled valid today.

The opinion, answering questions asked by the county clerk of Harris county, held also that the present owner of a brand has a preferential right for two years after Oct. 1 to record the brand. If he fails in that time, another person may claim and record it. Mann held also that the law applies to re-recording brands and marks for horses and mules as well as for cattle.

The new law was designed to clear the records of brands that are no longer in use and to bring the brands up to date. Mrs. Florence Penley, state representative of Uvalde, said the two year's time in which to record brands was allowed so that no hardship would be felt by ranchmen now in military service.

Another opinion of the attorney general's department advised Montgomery county officials that a contract with experts for appraisal of tax values on oil, gas and public utility properties in the counties is invalid.
