George Gray Seeks Discarded Watch

George Gray is seeking a watch he tossed in the post office lobby wastebasket about ten days ago. Believing in keeping accurate time Mr. Gray had kept two watches over a number of years so that in event of failure in one of the time pieces, he could rely on the other. However, both of them failed at once and he sent them to Paducah for a repair. When he received a package from the Paducah jeweler he opened it in the post office and removed one of his watches, which he placed on his wrist, and tossed the box in the wastebasket. Later he was informed that both watches had been sent to him in the same box. He made a frantic search of the waste basket and found the box but the watch was missing. His want-ad will be found in this week's Tribune.

Supply Of Tires At Low Ebb

Within these United States are 21-million essential motor vehicles and at present only 4-million tires are available. That is the serious picture that the people of this nation must face according to T. J. Hendricks of Lubbock, District OPA tire inspector, who was in Matador early this week.

War Price and Rationing Board Chairman C. A. Pitts, said yesterday that unofficial estimates anticipate as much as one third of the nation's automobiles may be out of operation by fall because of the tire shortage.

Every car, pickup, truck and tractor owner is asked to weigh the disaster which may result from loss of the nation's transportation system, to avoid every possible needless mile and to repair every tire that is possible to repair.

Recaps Are Required Mr. Pitts said it would be absolutely impossible for any motor vehicle owner to secure a new tire, if his tire report shows that a recap of any of the five tires has been authorized, but ignored by the owner. The recap must be secured before the ration board will consider an application for a new tire.

Mr. Pitts also declared many owners were neglecting to secure required tire inspections. If an inspection date is neglected, no tire orders can be issued for a period of 60 days. "A" ration holders must have tire inspections every 6 months, "B" holders every 90 days and "C" holders every 90 days and trucks every 60 days or every 5,000 miles. Any tire which has been authorized for recapping, the order disregarded and later "blows out" is forever lost to the vehicle owner and cannot be recapped. All applications for tires must be complete in every detail before being submitted to the ration board.

Tin Cans Now Have Cash Value

Don't throw that empty tomato can in the trash. Uncle Sam wants it and millions more like it. He must have all the tin in this country if war production is to retain and increase its pace. An acute shortage of copper has developed, according to a memorandum from Governor Coke Stevenson to County Judge W. R. Cammack, and tin is essential in the mining of copper. Here is the lead paragraph in the War Production Board Bulletin No. 65, which accompanied the memorandum. "The copper situation in the United States has become very critical. Due to this acute situation in copper, the demand for tin cans to be used in the precipitation mining of copper has likewise become critical."

Cans Have Cash Value

Tin cans, one gallon size and smaller, which have been flattened, now have a cash value. However, the average family will not be able to sell enough tin cans to retire. If the ends have been cut out, the labels removed and the cans flattened, they are worth $6. per long ton (2240 pounds), loaded on freight cars, provided the freight rate is not more than $6.00 per ton to Dallas or Houston, where processing plants are located.

It is believed the price offered for cans will pay for some operation plan which will make it possible to collect and load the needed war tin. The government needs the tin and every patriotic family will cooperate in making all possible empty cans available to the salvage drive.

At present Judge Cammack has not announced any plan which may be applied to this area, but residents are asked to process and retain their cans until they can be collected sometime in the immediate future.

I'm cutting down expenses. REDDY: H-h-u-u-m-mm. Then you need about 500 pounds of candles a month to give you the same kind of good light. D'you know what that'd cost? MAN: Nope. But I guess it'd save me money. REDDY: Well, let's do some figuring. That many candles would cost you about $200— MAN: Wow! I couldn't afford that. My monthly electric bill is only three dollars or so. REDDY: Well, that's just about average. But remember that only about 85c of it goes for light. The rest pays for electricity to run your radio and refrigerator— MAN: Say, that's not so much when you come to think of it. REDDY: Right! Electricity's cheaper than it's ever been. You're getting about twice as much for your money as just 10 or 15 years ago. MAN: How can that be? My bill hasn't changed. REDDY: Maybe not. Think of the bigger and better lamps you're using and the electric appliances you've added. Fifteen years ago, did you have an electric refrigerator? MAN: No-o-o. REDDY: Radio? Electric mixer? Air conditioner? MAN: No... Say, how come I get so much more electricity for about the same money I used to pay? REDDY: That's easy. Experience. Training. Well-balanced business methods. Science In The News

By ORSON D. MUNN, L.H.B., LL.B., Sc.D.
Editor, Scientific American

WAR lives literally off the fat of our land, for the basis of many explosives and other materials of war is glycerine, and glycerine is obtained from fats.

Consequently, the success of the waste fat salvage campaign conducted by the War Production Board and the Committee of the Glycerine and Associated Industries is of vital importance to the Nation's welfare.

If all the housewives of America cooperate in this drive, some 360,000,000 pounds or more of waste fats can be salvaged annually—enough to produce the glycerine needed to make 540,000,000 pounds of smokeless powder or correspondingly large quantities of nitro-glycerine, dynamite, essential drugs and antiseptics, and many other necessities of war.

All the housewife has to do to participate in this important salvage campaign is to make it her regular practice to strain all used cooking greases, after they have served their full use as food, into any clean can and store it in a cool place. When the can is full it should be taken to the local meat dealer, who will buy it and start the fat on its way to war. Three weeks after the dealer receives a pound of waste fat it has been made into glycerine and is being used to make some product our armed forces must have.

Here, for example, is what one pound—only 31 tablespoons—of waste fats means to the war production effort: It will supply enough glycerine to make the powder required for four 37 mm. anti-aircraft shells or 10 shells for a .50 calibre airplane cannon. This same amount of glycerine will be sufficient to fabricate three cellophane gas-mask bags or to make enough synthetic resin to camou-flag one-fiftieth of the surface of a large tank. Glycerine also is needed for the recoil mechanism of big guns, for depth bomb release devices, to make dynamite, and many other essential war products.

The reason why housewives are urged—begged, in fact—to help end the glycerine shortage by saving their waste kitchen fats is this: Glycerine has always been obtained for American uses as a by-product of other manufacturing operations, chiefly from the making of soap. The soap makers normally imported much of the fats and oils they used from the Pacific areas, now cut off by the Japs. With the war on, these manufacturers cannot make enough glycerine for peacetime uses, much less to provide for the greatly expanded needs of wartime consumption. Other sources of fats must be opened up, and the greatest of these sources is the American kitchen. Fats that ordinarily are poured down the sink, to the detriment of the drainage pipes, are rich in this desperately needed glycerine. Over a billion pounds of fat and grease were wasted every year in American households before Pearl Harbor.

All that has to be done to tap this source is to obtain the cooperation of housewives in getting the used fats from the kitchen to the processing plants where the glycerine can be extracted and started into war use.

From this you can readily see that no amount of waste fat is too small to save for salvage. Only by saving every drop, in fact, and delivering it regularly to the meat dealer, can we prevent the oft-quoted phrase, "too little and too late," from being applied to our glycerine supply.
