Art Is Subject Of El Progresso Meet

An interesting and instructive program on the subject of "Art" was given before members of El Progresso Study Club, meeting in regular session January 11, in the home of Mrs. Ted Dudley.

Program leader was Mrs. G. E. Hamilton, in the absence of Mrs. Henry Solomon. Roll call was answered by, "What art means to me". Miss Thressia Godfrey gave a very interesting paper on "Arts and Crafts'" and had a beautiful display of her own handiwork in wood-craft. Mrs. U. L. Wilie, president, was in charge of a brief business session preceding the

Use 'Magic Bead' to Pep Power of Plane Fuels

PAULSBORO, N. J. - A closely guarded process called "magic beads" is being used in the manufacture of a high octane blended aviation gasoline to give greater range and driving power to B-29 Superfortresses and other combat planes, it was disclosed recently during an inspection tour of the 100 million dollar Socony-Vacuum Oil company refineries here.

The "magic beads," resembling necklace baubles, are used as a catalyst - to cause a chemical change in material while remainng unchanged themselves, company officials said.

A vast still, described as a "ther-nofor catalyst cracking unit," was pened at the refineries last August. It was the first east of the Rocky mountains to use the "magic beads" and now produces 11,000 barrels of the high octane gasoline daily.

Dr. Kubie Describes Lack Of Manpower as Critical National Emergency.

in psychiatric manpower, with war ties. neuroses expected to take a sharp here as "constituting a national emergency," and as "the most crit- livered. ical manpower shortage in the country today." The speaker was Dr. Lawrence S. Kubie, one of the country's leaders in psychiatry, now . special consultant to the army air surgeon, who addressed the meet ing commemorating the 25th anniversary of the establishment of the Austen Riggs foundation, founded in 1919 "to extend the benefits of Dr. Riggs' treatment to individuals who were unable to afford its cost."

Millions of Potentials. foundation, directed by a board of trustees, a medical advisory board and the Austen Riggs associates, continues in the village of Stockbridge, Mass., the medical practice of the late Dr. Austin Fox Riggs, a practice restricted to the care and treatment of the mild nervous or functional disorders, that have come to be designated more recently as emotional disturbances.

Our mental hospitals house at all times 600,000 patients, a large majority of whom are psychotic. An additional large number is out on discharges or parole, but require intermittent care and supervision. According to various estimates there are also 100,000 amentias (temporary insanities) in our institutions, and about 2,500,000 amentias are cared for at large in the community.

On top of all these there are at all times, Dr. Kubie stated, "between 3,000,000 and 6,000,000 individuals in the country whose neuroses are sufficiently disturbing to require specific psychotherapy at one time or another.'

Neuroses that are the result of combat, Dr. Kubie said, constitute only a small percentage of the postwar addition to the problem of the neuroses. Estimating that by the end of the war the total number of Kubie continued:

Need Is Urgent.

"Without the war, many among these same men would have proven vulnerable to the strains of civilian life. Over the course of 10, 20 or years these men would have their periods of neurotic difficulty. What the war has done, however, had been to precipitate within few short years the outbreaks of neurotic disturbance that would otherwise have been spread over . generation-neuroses that were born in peace, and bred by neglect in childhood and adolescence.'

There is an existing need for 19,-000 to 20,000 trained psychiatrists, Dr. Kubie said, whereas we now have only 3,000 to take care of our cases. The need for psychiatric social workers has also been estimated at 10,000 and we also need thousands of clinical psychologists. whereas only a few hundred are available in each category."

This shortage of psychiatric manpower, Dr. Kuble added, is "the rehabilitation program must pass."

VISITORS HERE

Mr. and Mrs. John Patton of Morton, were week-end visitors here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Patton. They were ac companied by their daughter, Mrs. Frank Huntsucker and her husband, who is editor of the Cockran County Headlight. Mr. Patton disclosed that he had sold his business at Morton and that he and his wife were moving to Oregon to enter business.
