FLOMOT'S SUNRISE CEREMONIES BEGIN MEMORIAL RITES

Placing Of Wreath At Honor Roll In Tribute Pageant

Memorial Day ceremonies were held at sunrise today in the Flomot Cemetery with Joe L. Speer and Rev. J. E. Lee officiating. Those in attendance included a delegation of American Legion and V. F. W. members from Matador and other towns of Motley County. In turn, the Flomot group will attend here beginning at 10 a. m. Wreaths will be laid in the four other towns of Motley County today and small flags will adorn the grave plots of those who gave their lives in America's tragic wars.

First peace-time Memorial Day services will be observed in the county today in a pageant of tribute, starting here at 10 o'clock with a parade of all ex-servicemen of both World Wars I and 2, who will march in uniform from a point in the south part of town, down main street to the honor roll on the courthouse square.

Here, Lt. Governor John Lee Smith will place a wreath before the names of Motley County's servicemen and servicewomen, following invocation by Rev. G. E. Turrentine and reading of the roll call of veterans who lost their lives during the two wars.

A firing squad will fire a salute to the memory of the war dead, and taps will be sounded.

John Lee Smith will lay the wreath at the foot of the city's honor roll on the courthouse lot. The decoration will symbolize a feeling of gratitude toward five World War I dead, four World War II victims, and 26 Civil War veterans who are now resting in East Mound Cemetery. Similar programs will be held in other cemeteries of the county.

Invocation by Rev. G. C. Tiner of Roaring Springs, reading of Scriptures by Rev. J. E. Lee of Flomot and Whiteflat, prayer by Rev. E. N. Goodie of Flomot, and choir hymns directed by Roy Reeves, will precede introduction of the speaker for the occasion, by Howard Tra-week.

TRAIL DUST

Time has worn deep tracks in memory of that cold and rainy Sunday afternoon. Soaked through the thick soil overland, water dripped from the light pine boards that covered the new dugout. My companion was a boy my age, thin, freckled and clad in damp rags. His shoes were laced with strings of colored calico. The air was warm and fragrant with the odor of freshly-baked bread which my mother had made. The hunger of body and soul was in the boy's eyes as I moved the white, pressed butter of golden butter was on a table; a pot of honey was on the shelf. The hour was an adventure. It was his first time to experience the miracle of having more by sharing with other.

TRUSTEES APPOINTED

At a meeting of county school trustees May 27, Giesecke was appointed county trustee-at-large to succeed Elbert Reeves who resigned a few days previously.

Love is the spark from an anvil when the heated metal of youth is struck by blows from the hammer of destiny; beautiful for a fleeting instant.

Mercy wears a soiled robe on prairie where heavy wheels of the chuck-wagon have crushed the mesquite and sage into muddling soil. Silence covers the error and pain of the empty round-up grounds. No trace remains of the flames from white-hot irons burning soft hair and under hides on the flanks of little calves. Red blood is caked on snow-white faces. Sweet dew on the sage and wild flowers in the wind but pain retreats a little at a time.

In our eagerness to purchase access at a bargain we may make the mistake of paying for less than our best.

True quality is cheapened when the egotist seeks to become impressive. It is impossible to become great without first being humble.

Once I complained when the laundry did not iron my shirt to perfection. Now I am grateful merely at its return.

Low clouds like red flames flying into the sunset and the grotesque music of frogs, came a trivial memory of childhood. I walked a cowpath that paralleled the winding wagon track between trees and scrub bushes. Warm mud pushing between my toes produced an ecstasy that belongs to the world of little boys. On hearing the plodding hoof-beats of the horse, I stopped in a sheltered place and watched. Riding sedately in a side-saddle, the woman held the reins with an ease of ease used to riding. She was sobbing softly and removed a white handkerchief from her waist pocket at intervals. I had never seen her before nor did I ever see her afterwards. The instance was my introduction to the ageless and answerless question of woman's tears.

Light wore her sables of sorrows like a forsaken woman meditating at the river's shore. Her washed stars looked down from their mezzanine of eternity with the wind playing gently on dates of space. There was no light in the great house; the horse corral was empty. A pair of boots still bearing the high-heeled spurs of fern lay near the gate.

Fame without friends must be a great banquet table set for only one.

FLAGS TO FLY AT GRAVES OF WAR DEAD ON MEMORIAL DAY

WASHINGTON—An American flag will be placed on the grave of every dead U. S. soldier over the world on Memorial Day, Maj. Gen. T. B. Larkin, Army quartermaster general, has announced. The flags, totaling 291,895, for each of the World War II victims now interred in temporary overseas graves, are being flown to such distant points of Guadalcanal and Alaska. "When the sun comes up on Memorial Day all over the world, it will shine upon an American flag sympathetically and reverently placed on the grave of each of our honored dead," General Larkin said.

BOYCE HOUSE
"Gives You Texas"

Texas has had many colorful figures on the bench, like Judge Roy Bean, the saloonkeeper, and Emanuel Dubbs, the buffalo hunter, but history has rather slighted Colonel Smithers (we'll call him that), who was justice of the peace at Fort Griffin when that town was the liveliest spot on the frontier. Justice Smithers was a former army officer. He held the rank of colonel during the war between the States, but with the close of hostilities he had to step back to his permanent rank as lieutenant. He came to Fort Griffin for a tour of duty shortly after the war and after a time resigned and settled down near the fort to make a home. The judge was well regarded in the community and when the citizens came to see the need of a justice of the peace he was elected to office without opposition, and held the post until the fort was abandoned and the Griffin 'Flat' became a county village. The ex-colonel, so say those who knew him, was one of 'the boys', always ready to take part in a game of chance, or go the rounds of the saloons, and more than once, after a festive night, he appeared on his bench in the morning sporting black eyes and a swollen countenance. But this didn't in the least interfere with his administration of justice. Sitting back in his chair, he would assess a fine on his comrades of the night before without the slightest hesitation, notwithstanding their looks of astonishment and their muttered comments. But they knew better than to protest too openly for the Colonel used more than law books to back up his decisions.

John Farris Fish To Graduate From New Mexico School

(Special To the Tribune)
John Farris Fish, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Farris Fish of Matador, will receive a High School certificate from New Mexico Military Institute on Tuesday morning, June 4, 1946. Young Fish has been enrolled in the High School division for two years, and is completing the Basic Course in the Senior Cavalry Unit of their O. T. C. He is one of fifty cadets from

He kept in the pigeon holes of his desk, prominently placed so that all might behold, an ornate brass-barreled horse pistol and a long-bladed Turkish knife, and when the effects of too much firewater made some of his defendants obstreperous, Smithers emphasized his decisions by letting his right hand rest near the butt of the pistol or the hilt of the knife. It seemed that the weapons, commonly called "The Colonel's peace-makers", had the desired effect for the justice never had to use them. The big horse pistol became almost legendary.

Texas included in the total of one hundred seventy-four who will receive High School certificates at the graduation ceremonies. Sixty-eight per cent of the cadets receiving High School certificates enrol in the Junior College division, and may become graduates of New Mexico Military Institute after completing the two-year course. Enrollment at New Mexico Military Institute, Roswell, is limited to 586 cadets. Of this number, one hundred seventy-two are from Texas. Thirty-one states and foreign countries are represented in the geographic distribution of cadets this year. Mr. and Mrs. Fish will leave Saturday to attend the graduation exercises.

AGRICULTURE:

An outstanding contribution of recent agricultural studies is the development of scientific methods of soil conservation. Let us see why this is needed. Vegetation is nourished by a few inches of topsoil containing the minerals which stimulate growth. Left undisturbed, nature replenishes these minerals as necessary, conserves moisture, and keeps it friable in various ways, such as by the action of earthworms. However, when the same crop is harvested repeatedly and nothing is done to replenish nature's store of plant food, the top soil becomes impoverished and is less and less productive.

Formerly this seemed unimportant. Men whose farms wore out moved to rich virgin fields, but now that we have used up so much of nature's bounty, we realize that robbing the soil is a national tragedy. Another answer as to why AAA—and why public assistance is offered to conserve our nation's soils. Impoverished topsoil produces poor crops lacking in vitamins and minerals. Animals feeding on these crops have less vigor, and poor bone formation. In contrast, good mineral rich soil produces full verdant crops which provide animals with life-giving vitamins, minerals, and proteins needed for growth.

Feeding the Nation
In pioneer days, our country was almost entirely agricultural and every farmer scratched from the soil barely its own year-around meager existence. In 1820, 71.8% of our workers were on the farms. Gradually, however, our agricultural existence has grown up an expanded in this land of thrift, invention, ambition and enterprise until in 1940, through the new science of agriculture, coupled with labor-saving machinery, only about 17.6% of our workers were required on farms. Nevertheless, this much smaller proportion of workers and people on the farm has been able to produce plentiful food supplies for our own approximately 140 million population and for considerable export of certain foods to other nations all over the world.

There is not a doubt that both in the health and economy of our nation, soil conservation is of paramount importance. Methods which have been provided

The History of Coffee

The fragrant cup of coffee which makes us civil every morning and renews us so often during the day links many nations in a long and romantic history. Just when it first appeared as a beverage no one can say exactly. But that it was an Arabian discovery seems very likely in view of the fact that coffee grew wild in that part of the world before the ninth century after Christ, and fanciful Arabian nights tales have been handed down about the first brew.

The most popular legend concerns Kaldi, an Arabian goatherd, whose dull life on the hillside made him a gloomy Joe indeed. But he picked and ate some of the berries his goats were fond of nibbling, because he noticed that after eating these berries, the goats became gay creatures. Kaldi himself became a new man. Thereafter coffee berries were indispensable to his diet, and so carefree and lively did he become that he often jived his goats in a merry dance.

A monk, to whom Kaldi confided his experiences, prepared a drink from the beans and served it to the members of his order. They found the beverage sustained their energy and helped them to pray and meditate longer, so they adopted the drink and cultivated the plant.

Gradually the popularity of the beverage spread to Turkey, where, in 1554, the first public coffee house was established. It was introduced to the Venetians in 1615, the French in 1644, the English and Viennese in 1650, and it was brought to North America in 1668. But promptly the power of the beverage to stimulate clear thinking and plain talking converted the popular coffee houses into discussion clubs. And political debate that exploded into dissension, direct action and resistance made coffee houses the targets of tyrants like Charles II of England, who termed them seminaries of sedition.

But, according to Disraeli, London and Paris coffee houses of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries held the mirror to "the manners, the morals and the politics of a people."

Here in colonial United States, too, the coffee house became the meeting house of the town fathers, and after a time changed from purely social centers to focal points of merchant trade and political discussion. Daniel Webster called Boston's Green Dragon Coffee House "the headquarters of the American Revolution."

The Dutch took the coffee plant to South America back around 1718, with a result that every sixth grader knows. Today's coffee plantations in Pan-America produce three-fourths of the world's coffee. And because we are the world's greatest coffee drinkers, of course we're the biggest customers for the Pan-American yield. All previous invoices were topped in 1945, when the United States imported 20,279,690 bags of coffee, each containing 132 pounds!

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Barton are this week announcing the marriage of their daughter, Miss June Barton, to Ben F. Keltz, III, which took place at Vernon Saturday afternoon, May 25. Following account of the marriage is from the Vernon Daily Record:

The home of Mr. and Mrs. James Holladay, 3002 Wilbarger, was the scene of simple but impressive nuptial rites performed Saturday afternoon uniting Miss June Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Barton of Matador, and Ben F. Keltz, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Keltz of Whiteflat. Mr. and Mrs. Holladay witnessed the double ring ceremony which was performed by Dr. E. S. James, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Vernon.

For recitation of the vows, the couple stood before a floral setting of gladioli flanked with cathedral candles in wrought iron candelabra. Crystal vases in matching wrought iron stands stood on either side, holding large bouquets of white snapdragons, gladioli and roses. Potted palms supplied greenery to the otherwise all-white setting.

The bride entered the living room unattended as Mrs. Guy Puckett playing the professional from Wagner's "Lohengrin" and "always" was offered during the ceremony, played softly.

The bride was a smart picture in a lovely dress of ice-blue crepe, designed with a long fitted basque bodice. The round neckline was ornamented with a single strand of pearls and the white of the necklaces was repeated in her accessories. The latter included a crownless brim hat festooned with pale blue maline with small sweetheart roses among its folds. Her flowers of gardenias completed the bridal costume. She wore a sixpence in her shoe for luck.

Mrs. James Halladay, sister of the bridegroom, wore a street length dress of black sheer and a shoulder corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Keltz is a graduate of Matador High School and later attended Texas Technological College at Lubbock for two and one-half years.

Also a graduate of Matador High School, the bridegroom likewise attended Texas Tech and was a sophomore at the time of his enlistment in the Navy. He was an ensign in the Naval Air Forces when he was recently discharged.

Immediately following the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to Ft. Worth and Mrs. Keltz will reside in Whiteflat where Mr. Keltz is engaged in farming.

Strict Measures Necessary In Curbing Polio

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, has issued the following statements and suggestions concerning the control and prevention of poliomyelitis which is now occurring in certain sections of the State.

Until recently it was generally believed that this infection is transmitted by means of discharges from the respiratory tract. It is now believed that poliomyelitis may be another of the several gastrointestinal infections. Therefore, control measures must include clean-up campaigns and improvements in sanitation.

Strict sanitary measures must be observed in all communities. Stringent efforts should be made to eliminate the house-fly and to destroy its breeding places. All mosquitoes and mosquito breeding places must be eliminated at once. Every effort should be made to institute approved garbage collection systems immediately. Safe water supplies must be assured.

Where adequate municipal sewage disposal systems are not in operation, it is vitally important to promote and maintain sanitary septic tanks and outdoor privies.

All swimming pools should, under rigid supervision, maintain those standards approved by the Texas State Department of Health. This necessarily includes maintenance of proper chlorine level. Where such standards are not maintained, those pools should be closed immediately.

sufficient personnel to maintain approved sanitation should close one or two hours a day so that employees can assist in maintaining cleanliness and high sanitary standards.

Every effort should be made to secure approved milk. Rats and mice should be eliminated. Maintain in the home the same sanitary standards that are necessary in community life. Particular attention should be paid to personal hygiene. Excreta from cases and contacts should be handled and disinfected with the same scrupulous care as in typhoid fever or bacillary dysentery.

Over-exertion in children should be avoided. Children should not visit homes where there is illness. Polio cases should be quarantined for 14 days and adults who work in food establishments should be particularly instructed in personal hygiene. It is advisable to reduce to a minimum all human contacts, especially in children during an outbreak of this disease. It is not advocated that schools, churches and theatres be closed.

Early symptoms of infantile paralysis are headache, fever, vomiting, drowsiness, followed by stiffness in the neck and back. When suspicious symptoms appear, a physician should be called immediately.

TRIBUNE MAY NOT FEEL CURRENT PAPER PINCH

Exemption from the effects of the acute paper shortage may be the fate of the Tribune.

Word has been received that all regular customers of the Kurr Paper Company of Amarillo may be able to receive their usual quota of the scarce item for the next year. The Tribune has purchased its paper from the firm for the past eight years.

Several large daily papers have already felt the shortage to the extent of going to publication with four-page editions. Others, such as the Star-Telegram, have discontinued publication of want ads on early week days.

According to news stories which have been appearing in daily papers, the shortage will probably become worse.

with parents transporting students. Present tax rate in the Matador district is now eight times the Fairview district rate, although Fairview receives just as much benefit from the schools here as do local residents. Matador and Flomot were shown to be carrying the blunt of the tax burden; increasing costs without sufficient tax areas.

The board declared that Whiteflat district, may, if desired, continue its elementary school, provided a daily average attendance of 20 or more is shown, while sharing in the Matador high school district combine. Matador schools, long denied state aid, would become eligible under the new set-up. Taxes would be lowered here and more funds would be provided to operate the modern high school plant. Ample busses would be provided to all districts. The proposed plan would not change the Barton school set-up since it is already coming to Matador. The Barton bus could be operated to the fullest extent in transporting Whiteflat students.

The tax rate in the Fairview district (now 30¢ per $100 valuation) would be raised to an equal with the Matador district (which would be lowered). Bus transportation would be provided for the Fairview district. It is estimated the Matador tax rate will be reduced from 35¢ to 50¢.

all property owners will pay an equal share of school costs. It will also result in tax-savings to many property owners who have been carrying an unfair share of taxes over a long period of years.

Factor in the election is that a majority vote in the proposed districts (not each of the original districts) is all that is necessary for the proposition to carry.

In event Whiteflat decides to continue an elementary school, students will have the option of either attending in their home community or coming to Matador.

Significant of population trend is the commencement exercises held in the county this year. Only 48 students graduated from all three of the high schools in the county.
