By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Bright islands appeared on the side walk where the lights of shop windows were spread like carpets in a long hall.

The rain was steady, rattling through the skies, beating on awnings and plate glass. Little cones of water seemed to rise from the sidewalk where the raindrops hit and the girl pulled the cape closer about her shoulders. Earlier in the evening she had been hungry but the thought of food, awakened by the odors from a cafe, caused her to shudder. She looked at the sky and the rain was gentle on her cheek as it mingled with tears. Drunken with misery, she staggered a little on a rough place in the walk, then turned a corner onto a street which held no light, except the red glare of a city. The rain falling thru dead branches overhead sounded like the whispering voices just beyond the reach of audibility and once she heard distant laughter. She was suddenly cold at the thought of a man's laughter she would never hear again and his face looked at her from the darkness. Slowly the girl turned the key in the lock and stood in the room a moment before pressing the light switch. A broken heart heals so little when rain is falling.

Our boots scraped at intervals as our horses followed the two dim trails on a wagon road skirting the empty river bank. The soft quality of music from creaking saddle leather and plodding hoofs in the sand, had silenced our conversation when the wide hand of a cloud covered the sun. At a point where the broad expanse of river lay before us, the wind had started to whip bewildered eddies of sand and started them scurrying like frightened children. Our horses raised their heads and pointed their ears towards the movement, then dropped again to the easy walk which we had held during the afternoon. Before we started to climb out of the valley slender cottonwoods high above us were swaying the empty bird nests in their branches like the arms of young mothers holding small blankets that had once held life and warmth. Snow was falling before we reached the windmill and we dismounted while our horses drank. We shook hands and darkness was near, a tide rising out of the close and heavy horizon. I heard that branched away from the barren and trodden hearth about the water trough and soon his shadow ceased to move against the darkness. Birds have built many nests in tree branches and forgotten them since our parting, but memories of our friendship ride serenely on winter storms that must sweep across the river into eternity.

Whenever fear shapes a destiny the blunder must be concealed under an extra heavy coat of achievement.

Laughter is a lighthouse which protects lives from destruction when the tossing seas of adversity reach high on the strong wall of its tower.

I would rather possess the faculty of forgetting that which I desire to forget than a perfect memory.

Our troubles deserve to be robust since we usually devote most of our lives to perfecting them.

Often the cruelty of truth is as temporal as the rebuke of a stern but devoted parent.

Driftwood from the sea of life was there in the great hotel lobby, men and women who had tasted the bitterness of years, and the young awaiting the convenience of fate. Each kept the secret of individual fears, pain and hopeless tomorrows. Only one dared defy the future with a spotted shield of courage; a grimy and ragged newsboy hurrying from chair to chair.

MORE SNOW FALLS

Motley county received more needed moisture over the weekend as light rain and mist turned to sleet and snow late Monday, which fell in blinding flurries thru the night, causing deep drifts that blocked highways in the Panhandle and West Texas areas. The new precipitation fell on snow which still remained on the ground from last week.

Under a clear sky and bright sunshine, the snow had practically disappeared here late Wednesday.

I wish to announce my candidacy for the office of District Attorney of the 110th Judicial District, composed of Dickens, Motley, Briscoe and Floyd counties, subject to the action of Democratic primaries in July.

I have just returned from 44 months service in the army, 28 of which were spent in the Pacific. I ask no special consideration because of such service. I did no more than my duty just as hundreds of men and boys from these four counties did, and just as did the people at home who worked and produced and bought the bonds and paid the taxes and did without that we in the service might be better provided for. My own sacrifice was nothing compared to that of many, many others and I feel a debt of gratitude to those I cannot express. My service was something I owed to my country, and my country owes me nothing in return except the right to live and die and earn an honest living in this great free land which gave me birth and which is home to me. And so I say to the people of the district that I base my candidacy not on my wartime service but on the service I am qualified to render you and will render you in the District Attorney's office.

Former County Attorney

Long before the war materialized I cherished the ambition to serve the people of my district as their district attorney. I have prepared myself and worked toward that end. I have gone to (Continued On Page Two)

New Cafe And Service Station Opened Thursday

Opening Thursday on Highway 7 in the location formerly operated by Rosa's cafe, the Matador Cafe and Service Station under joint management of Jim Ward Jeffers and Jack Jernigan, added another name to the city's rapidly growing business roster.

The service station, which will also serve as bus depot for the Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico coaches, handles a complete line of Skelly gas and oils. It is under management of Mr. Jernigan. Work has started on the foundation of a 14 x 14 annex which will house the service station and bus depot, when completed. Rest rooms have been completely remodeled and modernized.

The cafe, under the management of Mr. Jeffers, has installed the fixtures of the former Magnolia cafe. Two capable cooks, Mrs. Jess McBride and Mrs. Isabell Muse, prepare menu items which include lunches, dinners, sandwiches and short-orders. Mr. Jeffers is aided in the front by Mrs. Viola McBride.

Plans are underway to pave the entire driveway, as soon as labor and materials can be obtained.

The public is cordially invited to visit the new place of business.

Howe Hines is new Assessor-Collector

Howe Hines has accepted the position of tax assessor-collector for Motley County, in the office of Sheriff H. H. Courtney, and began his new duties this week.

The office was formerly held by Ward Rattan, who recently received his discharge from the U. S. Navy, and has resigned from the position to devote his time to farm and ranch interests here.

Lewis McDonough, employed by the Matador ranch and Motley county has reduced the coyote population more than any other trapper whose catch has been recorded in the county. Operating much of the time in the Northfield area where hydrophobia-infected coyotes have been causing serious livestock losses, Mr. McDonough has a record of 55 coyotes and five bob-cats in October, 105 coyotes and five bob-cats in November and 88 coyotes and two bob-cats in December. Because of the danger of hydrophobia, he does not skin the animals.

An intense poisoning campaign conducted by the Department of Interior, wildlife division, was scheduled to start yesterday, in order to rid the Northfield area of all hydrophobia-infected coyotes. The poisoning drive will extend over Childress, Cottle, Hall and Motley counties and is the result of a meeting of county agents, members of commissioners courts and interested citizens on January 8th. The meeting was attended by County Judge W. R. Cammack and commissioner Bake Simpson, and E. G. Pope of Lubbock, District Government trapper.

Records here show that Motley county paid bounty on about 1,290 coyote scalps during 1945 at a cost of $1,837.50 ($1.50 each). Payments were made to approximately 125 persons.

Rail Officers Are Elected

Two new officers have been elected by the Quannah, Acme and Pacific Railway Company, according to announcements from office of Chas. H. Sommer, president, St. Louis. Quin Baker has been elected Vice President in charge of operations with headquarters in Quannah, succeeding Mr. A. F. Sommer, deceased.

W. L. Richardson has been elected vice president in charge of traffic with headquarters in Quannah.

Both elections were effective January 15.

H. Courtney, reporter.

Mrs. Simpson conducted an interesting quiz on important dates in January and also read two poems, appropriate for the beginning of the new year. Plans were also discussed to give prizes to demonstrators both in Home Demonstration and 4-H club work.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the council presented Mrs. Krause a glass coffee-maker in appreciation for the work. Mrs. Krause reported that a new agent to fill the vacancy of her resignation would probably be here by the 15 of February.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Faris who have been spending the month with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Jacobs returned to their home in Harris, Ark., on Saturday.

VETERAN'S TALK

By Bryan C. Handley Service Officer

This is a continuation from last week of the discussion of Readjustment allowance for Veterans.

A self-employed Veteran may receive payments of $100 per month if he meets the initial requirements and these special requirements. (1) That the Veteran be residing in the U. S., (2) be fully engaged in "self-employment" for profit in an independent establishment, trade, business, profession or other vocation and his net earnings be less than $100 per month.

The Veteran must report each week to draw the allowance for unemployment and once each month to draw it for self-employment.

A final requirement that must be met under either program is that (1) the Veteran must not receive increased pension or compensation under Part VII (Vocational Rehabilitation) for the period applied for or (2) must not receive a subsistence allowance under Part VIII (Education) for the period applied for.

The representative from the Texas Unemployment Compensation Commission handling these claims has established an itinerant service in Paducah, Childress, Plainview and Dickens. Check with this office for the dates.

For detailed information concerning these allowances or answers to any questions that you might have will be gladly given at the Veterans' County Service Office.

Parents-Teachers Have Interesting Programs Recently

Two interesting programs were presented before recent meetings of Matador Parents-Teachers Association, with a group of high school students appearing before the organization in the meeting held January 9.

"Speaking for the high school students, both boys and girls, I, as well as the rest of these students, appeal to you parents," spoke Mary Price. "We teenagers ask for more entertainment than an occasional party and the show."

Jolene Bloodworth, Gordon Russell, John Ketchersid and Jerry Hays completed the group on the program presenting recreational needs of the teenagers. They asked for help in securing a motion picture projector for both educational and recreational purposes of the school.

The project receiving the most discussion was a swimming pool for the community, the students suggested that the pool be built in the large memorial building that is being planned for war veterans. It was pointed out that the pool could be heated by a central heating system in the building, and could therefore be used the year around.

Many other needs of the school were discussed. The P. T. A. has agreed to play the high school girls basketball team in an effort to raise funds for the motion picture projector.

Recent Marriage Is Announced Here

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Green of Roaring Springs are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Frances Neil, to Bayne L. Stevens, on December 27th at 7:30 p.m. in the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stevens of Cambria, Michigan. Rev. H. W. Flickinger performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride was attended by Miss Glenna Stevens, sister of the bridegroom, and a cousin, Carl Clark served as best man.

Members of the Board of Trustees were guests of the organization at the regular monthly meeting held early in December.

The subject, "Post-war Plans for our school" was presented by Mrs. Raby Webb, who outlined plans for the future from the parents' standpoint; to stress the ideals of honesty, courtesy and ambition in pupils and also respect for school property, to strengthen the departments of math, history, spelling, public speaking, and music appreciation, and to add new subjects to the curriculum, as shorthand, public school music, school band and choral club, physical education, manual training and public speaking for high school. It was further suggested that the school should participate in Interscholastic League contests.

Mrs. Campbell gave a report for the budget committee, and in a business session at the close of the program, Mrs. Webb reported a total of 78 members in the association.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Cudd and children, formerly of Matador, who have been making their home in Floydada for the past several years, are moving to Slaton, Texas.

Miss Chloye Fulfer of Lubbock spent the week-end here visiting her mother, Mrs. W. M. Fulfer.

school and studied, four years in law school. I am proud of my profession and look on it as one of service to humanity. I practiced law in Floyd County for more than four years before I entered the service, three and a half years of which I was county attorney. I was re-elected for another term after I was in the Army but resigned because I could not be in the office and because I thought the people were entitled to a county attorney.

As county attorney I worked long and hard and I am proud of all times with the other county officials and with the law enforcement officials of other counties, the State and Nation. I was at their service and the service of the people day and night. I invite you to inquire of any official with whom I worked or of anyone who knows me concerning my ability, the work I did and my willingness to be of service at all times.

No Trading Out
If the people of the district see fit to elect me, I shall do my best to be a fair, clean and hard-fighting prosecutor, the kind of a district attorney I think you want, the kind to which you are entitled. If elected, it is not my intention to usurp the powers of the juries and grand juries of the district nor to invade their province. Rather I shall look upon it as my duty to assist and advise them in every way I can. I shall not do "trading out" to obtain pleas of guilty just to save myself work. The Constitution guarantees every accused man the right of a fair trial before a jury of his peers; I shall see that every accused man receives that constitutional right. I shall not accept private practice that might in any way interfere or conflict with my official duties.

I believe in the suspended sentence for boys and young men who are first offenders and who have shown they are not bad but have just made a misstep. Of course, the suspended sentence law should not be permitted to shield hardened offenders, and I shall try to use it judiciously with the advice of the grand juries, juries, law enforcement officials and other interested and qualified citizens, considering always the best interests of the boy and of society.

On Juvenile Delinquency

A great deal is being written and said about the problem of juvenile delinquency. It is more of a problem in the cities. I have a strong feeling that the boys and girls of these four counties are as fine as any the world has ever seen and I have every confidence in them. If those of us who are adults will do our part the boys and girls will do theirs. I am a great believer in the old saying that there is no such thing as a bad boy or girl. With proper guidance boys and girls do not go wrong. It shall be my duty to work with the homes, schools and churches, to assist them with their problems and in providing that guidance. I shall go a long way to keep a boy or girl out of trouble. It shall be my duty to help them be good citizens and I shall never shirk that duty.

I enter this campaign not as the candidate of any clique nor group, and I enter the race with malice toward none; I shall end it that way. I shall do my utmost to keep the campaign above personalities. I feel that I have built myself a place of respect in my community; I shall do nothing to jeopardize that position. Here is my home and here shall I live, able to look any man in the eye with a clear conscience.

Qualified

In offering my candidacy for the consideration of the people I do so with the conviction that I am qualified by training, experience and disposition to fill this important office of district attorney. If you feel that I am thus qualified I shall appreciate your vote. And if you feel that I am the man for the job I shall appreciate your saying a good word in my behalf to your friends and neighbors. In return I shall owe you my undying thanks and loyalty, and, if elected, I promise to make you and all the district a hard-working hard-fighting, always fair-minded district attorney.

Sincerely,

JOHN B. STAPLETON

"Hey, Ref—aren't you out of bounds?"

In basketball or business, Americans expect fair play all down the line. In basketball, the referee is there to see that the game is played according to the rules. But he's not a player.

In business, the referee is the government, which establishes regulations for fair practices.

But when government goes beyond governing and into business and competes with its own tax paying citizens, the American tradition of fair play is set aside. The referee then becomes a player, and he takes advantages that are denied to all the other players in the game.

Take government-owned or subsidized electric power systems, for example. They pay no taxes. When they need money, they call on our U. S. Treasury funds and get it at little or no interest. If they have losses, through political management, why worry? You, as a taxpayer, will have to take care of that.

Business-managed power systems, on the other hand, do not have these special government privileges. They pay their full share of taxes, pay fair interest on any loans.

It is a tribute to American self-reliance that tax-paying, self-supporting companies supply over four-fifths of the tremendous amount of electricity used in this country.

The same forethought and experience which furnished the required electric power to win a global war will continue to assure America dependable—and cheap—electric service for a postwar world. And businessmen can do the job better than bureaucrats.

Sugar Saving Tip

Cranberry sauces, relishes and desserts can be made with half corn syrup and half sugar while citrus marmalades make any good cranberry treat taste better without adding any sugar.

OPEN YOUR HEART...

WHAT CAN YOU SPARE THAT SHE CAN WEAR?

● Clothing that you may consider old can bring new life to some suffering person to whom war brought despair and destitution.

Goal of the Victory Clothing Collection is 100,000,000 garments, plus shoes and bedding. If your contribution seems negligible, bear this in mind: Every garment you give means one more human being saved from cold or sickness or possibly death.

About 25,000,000 people overseas received clothing collected from Americans last spring.

but for every person clothed so far, a dozen more remain virtually threadbare. Your spare clothing will be distributed free, without discrimination, to the victims of Nazi and Jap oppression in Europe, the Philippines, and the Far East.

In most any town or city overseas there is someone who can translate English. You can help build international friendship by writing a simple, friendly letter to pin to the clothing you contribute.

Dig into your attics, trunks, and closets today... dig out all the clothing you can spare... take it to your local collection depot soon.

What YOU Can Do!

- 1 Get together all the clothing you can spare.
- 2 Take it to your local collection depot immediately.
- 3 Volunteer some spare time to your local committee.
