TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

When the fates march over my estrate face with hobnail shoes and Lady Luck returns my lark to a package tied with barb-wire, I am afflicted with pangs of shame. To suffer disgracement is an ailment peculiar to the man animal and seldom tolerated by nature. Except for the effort required I could profit by having a dandelion plant preserved in clear plastic; an inspiration to view when symptoms of defeat have been tried every thing but a dandelion. Dandelions have selected sections of my lawn from which I project protective liberation of personal labor I dig out one by one, only to discover on the following day that other plants are thriving beneath the palliated grass. A hidden flower bud will rise during the night and a fluff ball of pure seeds will be ready for distribution by the breeze at dawn. It is a losing fight altho I have tried everything but a dandelion. If I possessed one tenth the tenacity of a dandelion I could quarry one success after another until I had sufficient material to build an enduring pile of dreams.

Youth is a period in life that passes like the light of a runway star but leaves delightful pages on the memory.

Simplicity endures because its roots feed from the rich soils of truth.

When the trail herd had started moving like a noisy mirage and brown fingers of whirlwinds, the dark, lanky cowboy left easier. Leaving Texas was like exchanging stiff, sweaty clothing for soft, clean cloth. He gripped his horse toward the stream of clear water, touching the lathering flanks with his hands. He stepped from his saddle, balancing with his hands on sandstone rocks and drank liquid with his face with the cold wash when he had finished. The cattle moved easily and rapidly until sundown. After supper he drew an early guard and was glad. The herd bedded down quickly and he was left to the stargazing and his thoughts. Back at the wagon with other riders who had been relieved of their guard, he unrolled his bed, pulled off his boots and fell on the old saggans, exhausted, but sleep did not follow when he closed his eyes. A red moon rose while he looked at the sky, outlining a distant white canyon on walls in a strange and fantastic pattern. His hand moved about under the thin pillow until he felt the small paper inside the flour-sack slip. He slipped his hand inside and removed the paper, briefly pressing the lock of hair between the folds. Quickly he crushed the paper in his hand and buried it in a small hole which he dug in the soft earth. It was like destroying a little bridge into the past, leaving only the trail ahead, and weariness pressed gentle fingers to his eyes.

Little prisoner in a copper bowl, the vine presses against an alabaster wall in futile struggle. Outside the birds are singing and the sweetness of rain drifts like rare perfume; storm winds have tossed other vines in rank confusion but the sun is shining and the earth is moist and hot. A yellow ceiling light and faucet water fester buds where the joy of life is striving to bloom.

The mellowing years have some compensation. A man forgets the cause of many fears.

RETURN FROM TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Sims and small son, Stevie, returned home Tuesday night from a trip which included a visit with his sister, at Denver, Colorado, and a visit to Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming.

PART OF THE CROWD attending the "get-acquainted" party, Friday night, June 30, preceding opening July 1 of the Joe Murrell Furniture company in the Jackson building, is shown above. The photograph was made by a Plainview photographer and one of many made during the evening when the 5,000 square feet of floor space and the street in front of the building was crowded to capacity. D. W. Pearce, manager of the store declared the crowd exceeded its capacity. Joe Murrell, former Matador resident was master of ceremonies. Many couples danced in the street late in the evening to the music of "The Boys of the Golden West" orchestra of Plainview. Local residents will be able to identify themselves in the above picture.

1,800 Miles Covered In Agent Tour

County agent Rufus Emmons returned this week from an 1,800-mile tour. He was one of the 29 county agricultural agents and vocational agriculture professors, who made the trip through the Southwest, studying range management, grasses and range conditions on 25 ranches in 14 counties, and Sonora experiment station.

The tour started at Stephenville on June 24 and ended at the same place, Sunday July 9. Ranches were visited in Stephenville, Brownwood, Brady, Mason, Menard, Sonora, Del Rio, Kerrville, Uvalde, Fredericksburg, Llano and Burnet.

Transportation was by school bus. Classes started at 6 a. m. field trips on ranches ended at 5:30 or 6 p. m.

"It was an interesting trip," Mr. Emmons declared, "and much valuable information was obtained. Most of the trip was through the oak area in the Edwards Plateau country, with rainfall about the same as Motley county. All the ranches graze sheep, goats and cattle. Goats are used for control of the oak brush.

"It was a valuable, interesting and hard trip. I am glad it is behind me and not ahead of me."

Roaring Springs Resident Succumbs

C. D. Wilson, 79, resident of Roaring Springs the past eight years, and father of Deputy Sheriff Jinks Wilson, died at his home Monday, after an illness of ten months, and funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Big Rain Reported

Information received by the Tribune near midnight last night indicated a "wash-out" rain had struck the west edge of the county near 8 p. m. yesterday.

It was reported an area in the neighborhood of the Bob Martin ranch home north of the river was like a great lake, with fields apparently "washed away". Extent of the rain storm was not determined but observers of the cloud believe that the section affected was along the line of Cap Rock and probably northwest.

Showers fell here late yesterday but left little more than a trace in the downtown business section.

School Transfers Deadline August 1

School transfers from one district to another should be made during the month of July. County Judge and Ex-Officio School Superintendent C. W. Giesecke has announced.

"We are expecting a large crowd and some good singing visitors from out of the county," Mrs. G. W. James stated in making the announcement. A cordial invitation is extended the public to attend.

HERE FROM MONTANA

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Riley of Miles City, Montana, were Matador visitors last Thursday and brought greetings from an old timer from this section, William (Bill) McCrea, early day cowboy. Mr. and Mrs. Riley had been visiting relatives, Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Latham and O. G. Latham of Petersburg.

Draft Law Recalled

Seriousness of the Korean conflict was reflected last week when Congress reactivated the draft law for men between the ages of 18 and 26. Texas has 65,338 men classified 1-A in this age bracket.

The US Army recruiting office in Amarillo will serve "in all probability" as induction center for draftees throughout north-west Texas and part of New Mexico, the Amarillo Daily News said yesterday.

Texas Wednesday received a quota of 1,005 men in the 20,000 man draft call. Orders call for delivery of the quota as soon as possible and not later than September 30.

Amarillo recruiting station officers declare they expect that this area's quota may be filled by volunteers.

It was explained that when actual drafting begins, draftees will be referred to the induction center by various local draft boards.

Last week the Plainview Local Board No. 45, which includes Motley, Floyd, Hale and Swisher counties, listed three in this county eligible for registration (born in June 1932). They are: Lowell Don Whitaker, Flomot; William B. Watson, Roaring Springs; and Jasper Watson Townsend, Matador.

All of Miss Medlen's ex-students from Roaring Springs and vicinity will serve as sponsors for the party and the public is cordially invited.

The celebration honoring Miss Medlen has been given wide publicity through an Amarillo radio station and daily newspaper. The Tribune has been assigned to provide a complete coverage, including photographs for an Amarillo newspaper.

WHERE ARE THE 594 WELLS?

According to the Lubbock Sunday Avalanche-Journal, Motley county has 600 irrigation wells from which farmers water 60,000 acres. Since the Tribune attempts to do a hit-or-miss job of reporting the area's progress and has neglected to report about 594 of the irrigation wells, the article is of particular interest to us.

The intriguing article is by C. W. Ratcliff, veteran Avalanche feature writer, who has probably suffered thirst to a greater degree in Motley county than any other area where journalistic duties have called him.

An editor's note at the heading of the article says all figures on agriculture and livestock are from official government statistics. If the Avalanche-Journal's editor, Chas. A. Guy, had anything to do with the article (if he even read it) a greater complexity is involved. Charlie Guy attributes much of the density of molecules around his girth to eating at Matador relatives' tables. In younger days he hunted and walked over much of the county. He is certainly informed about the county's irrigation position. Those of us who know him do not believe that he is a man who will take government figures loosely unless it be census figures.

Six Wells Known

The Tribune Monday assigned its ablest reporter to trace down the missing irrigation wells. He found County Agent Rufus Emmons who promptly accused the Matador weekly of sending in a report of 600 irrigation wells to the government. When the proud but conservative county agent had finished counting, he could name but six wells used for irrigation in the county. He suggested that garden plots watered by windmills might be looked upon as irrigation projects, but doubted the total acreage would amount to 60,000. Mr. Ratcliff and Mr. Guy, please tell the Tribune where the 600 irrigation wells are located in Motley county. If you are going to show them to us you had best bring along a jug of drinking water or whatever beverage big town journalists drink.

On the other hand it is more than probable the figures are a mistake, or some typesetter added a couple of zeros to six and three to 60 in his own editing of the copy. Nearly every country editor enjoys reading a mistake when it is in someone else's newspaper. Gosh, we don't even have 600 oil wells by curb-stone estimates.

Cotton Price Jump Adds $15 Per Bale

OLD KING COTTON is at present commanding more than usual respect from farmers, buyers and businessmen of the south after Monday's high, wide and handsome market added $15 to the price of a bale.

A short crop spurred a $10 bale advance on futures, the daily limit on the New York Cotton exchange, and sent the price for a bale in the actual cash market up $15 to $190 or 38¢ a pound, the highest since May, 1948. Cotton cloth prices moved upward, foreshadowing probable clothing price increases.

A Motley county ginner yesterday declared it was probable that the price of cotton would go to 40¢ per pound, altho he admitted the price was being affected to some extent by the war and might suddenly lose its Monday gain in event of a change in the nation's international situation.

Cost Of Living Up

The entire cost of living is being affected by the Korean war. High consumer incomes and big appetites for meat got the credit for sending meat prices higher at retail. At the same time, pork chops on the hoof hit new highs for two years on some of the nation's livestock markets.

Cattle went to the highest price level in a year. In Chicago the American Meat Institute said the meat price rise was due to strong demand coupled with normal seasonal decline in the number of animals being sent to Market.

Bakers said costs have been mounting steadily, "primarily labor." Cocoa, coffee, sugar, hides and tin continued upward.

Meat prices went up one to four cents a pound in New York stores. A chain store sold sirloin steak at 97¢ a pound. The same chain said prices might go up in Philadelphia later in the week. In Salt Lake City beef went up one to two cents a pound wholesale, with a retail hike expected. Retail meat prices went up one to four cents a pound in Chicago.

A Matador merchant declared that he had been advised coffee would go to $1 per pound. Sale of tires, sheets and other items expected to become scarce in the event of all-out war, is showing an increase here.

Most merchants declared, however, that there is little indication here of hoarding merchandise. The automobile market is lively, with many customers trying to hedge the future with a more dependable car in the event manufacture is suspended.

National leaders have urged the public to refrain from "war scare" buying, declaring there is an abundance on hand and nothing to warrant buying above actual needs.

Since the Tribune attempts to do a hit-or-miss job of reporting the area's progress and has neglected to report about 594 of the irrigation wells, the article is of particular interest to us.

The intriguing article is by C. W. Ratcliff, veteran Avalanche feature writer, who has probably suffered thirst to a greater degree in Motley county than any other area where journalistic duties have called him.

An editor's note at the heading of the article says all figures on agriculture and livestock are from official government statistics. If the Avalanche-Journal's editor, Chas. A. Guy, had anything to do with the article (if he even read it) a greater complexity is involved. Charlie Guy attributes much of the density of molecules around his girth to eating at Matador relatives' tables. In younger days he hunted and walked over much of the county. He is certainly informed about the county's irrigation position. Those of us who know him do not believe that he is a man who will take government figures loosely unless it be census figures.

Six Wells Known

The Tribune Monday assigned its ablest reporter to trace down the missing irrigation wells. He found County Agent Rufus Emmons who promptly accused the Matador weekly of sending in a report of 600 irrigation wells to the government. When the proud but conservative county agent had finished counting, he could name but six wells used for irrigation in the county. He suggested that garden plots watered by windmills might be looked upon as irrigation projects, but doubted the total acreage would amount to 60,000. Mr. Ratcliff and Mr. Guy, please tell the Tribune where the 600 irrigation wells are located in Motley county. If you are going to show them to us you had best bring along a jug of drinking water or whatever beverage big town journalists drink.

On the other hand it is more than probable the figures are a mistake, or some typesetter added a couple of zeros to six and three to 60 in his own editing of the copy. Nearly every country editor enjoys reading a mistake when it is in someone else's newspaper. Gosh, we don't even have 600 oil wells by curb-stone estimates.

Grass-Killer, TCA, May Soon Be Ready For Texas Farmers

COLLEGE STATION—A powerful grass-killer which goes by the name of trichloroacetate—TCA for short—may soon be available generally to Texas farmers.

TCA, which is already being manufactured by several large chemical companies, is one of the best known eradicators of Bermuda grass and Johnson grass. Although recommended for grass control for several years, it has not gone on sale to the public in small packages.

In tests run at the Texas A. & M.'s Blackland Experiment Station in Temple, sodium TCA gave a 90 percent kill in 21 days and a 100 percent kill in four and one-half months at a cost of 41 cents per 100 square feet.

Directions Given—Farmers who obtain the eradicator in bulk are advised by M. K. Thornton, agriculture chemist at Texas A&M, to mix it at the rate of one-third to three-fourths of a pound per gallon of water.

About one gallon of the spray will be needed for each 100 square feet of area, depending upon the size and density of the plants.

If applied during the months of June and July, this amount of TCA will kill practically all the Bermuda and Johnson grass on the land.

Thornton says the chemical is particularly useful for the eradication of grass from fence rows, roadways, small spots in fields, and areas that are inaccessible for machinery.

However, since it can be purchased only from its manufacturers at a high cost, the compound is not a practical eradicator for large areas of grass.

Normally, some drying of plants can be seen in about 24 hours after the spray is applied. Thornton says. Most of the plants which are going to die will be dead within a week after being sprayed.

Hot, dry conditions with a moderate amount of moisture in the ground are favorable for spraying with TCA. The compound is water soluble, and it penetrates the ground in addition to acting on the tops of the plants.

Clean Silver the Easy Way

Here's a new way to clean silver quickly. Cover the bottom of a large porcelain enameled utensil with a piece of aluminum foil. Measure in enough water to cover the silver and heat to boiling. Add one teaspoon of salt and one teaspoon of baking soda for each quart of water. Immerse silver so that each piece touches the foil. In about two minutes the tarnish will disappear. Remove the silver, rinse thoroughly and dry with a cloth. The glossy finish of the porcelain enameled utensil cannot be stained by the tarnish and will be easy to clean when the task is completed.

Ford Opens Truck Economy Survey

Ford Motor Company and Ford Dealers of America have launched a nation-wide Ford truck economy run, which is comprehensive truck operating study that will cover a six-month period ending December 31, 1950, according to Glenn L. Woodruff of Matador Auto Company, Motley county Ford agency.

The Ford economy run, Woodruff declared, will include thousands of Ford truck owners all over America who will keep complete day-to-day records of their actual truck operations, including every mile traveled, every load hauled, every gallon of gas and oil consumed and total repairs and maintenance. Harold Allen of Flomot is Motley county's entrant in the Ford Truck Economy Run. Allen's truck, a Ford F-1 pickup model, can be identified by the orange and black shields which are mounted on all trucks throughout the nation that are participating in the run.

Every Ford truck model, from 95-horsepower pickups to 145-horsepower Big Jobs, and every truck-using vocation is represented in the Ford Truck Economy Run in sufficient numbers, Woodruff declared, so that results are expected to demonstrate not only the economy of Ford Truck operating economy, but to establish a realistic "yardstick" for all truck-using industries as well.

It is possible that the study will reveal interesting facts and figures as to what models and equipment items are best suited to specific types of duty, Woodruff added, and perhaps may indicate the need for additional new truck models, such as the Ford Parcel Delivery Truck, which was recently introduced in the multi-stop delivery field and which doubles the load area of conventional panel trucks without increasing wheelbase length.

KNOWLEDGE OF PHARMACY

The most expensive ingredient in every prescription . . . . .

. . . . . Your physician gives you a prescription—just a little slip of paper—but to compound it correctly, our pharmacists may have to draw upon the world's resources. It is not uncommon for a prescription to require drugs and chemicals gathered from a score of countries purified, blended and compounded as only skilled pharmacists know how, to make the medicine that exactly fits your needs. We take pride in having ample stocks to make this possible.

Pied Pinions
BY MRS. M.

Since receiving that nice three pound tin of Swift's last week (gift of Swift & Co., to editors and publishers attending the Texas Press Association meeting last month in Fort Worth) together with a brand-new cook book, the editor has been anticipating all sorts of delicious pastries and other table delicacies. Well, he can dream, can't he?

And speaking of Press conventions, we've been attending these affairs nigh on twenty years now, and haven't burst into print yet. We thought at this last one, our time had finally arrived, when the flash bulbs flashed in our direction, and a reporter secured our name along with those at the same table. But did the paper print that picture? Like the unsung heroes and heroines of the movie industry, ours was the "face on the cutting-room floor".

When all the awards were made to the various papers for excellence in general appearance and other divisions, we felt a little as though we had let our own subscribers down because the Tribune wasn't a winner. Of course we can think of no particular reason why it should be, and the best excuse we can think of because it wasn't, is that it wasn't entered.

To all you kind friends who have been asking for the return of 'Pied Pinions', we point out that it has been said, 'tis best to let sleeping dogs lie. However, you asked for it, so here it is.

P. S.—And to all you nice people who have turned in news items this week, we say, thanks a million! You don't know how much we do appreciate having locals turned in to us instead of our having to get them the hard way — by hunting them out. See you next week, maybe.

Reed Making Vigorous Race For Lt. Governor

A state government, like a family, should live within its income, W. O. Reed, former Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives, declared this week as he vigorously pushed his campaign for Lieutenant Governor.

Reed, who is now serving his ninth consecutive term in the Legislature from Dallas County, is well qualified to speak with authority on economy in government, for he has actually done something about it.

He was the author of the pay-as-you-go law which put Texas on a cash basis and prevents the Legislature from spending money it does not have. While Reed was Speaker in 1947-48, he directed legislation which resulted in a surplus of over $90,000,000 in the general revenue fund at the end of his term.

"Additional taxes are not the answer to the rising cost of state government," he declared. "I am definitely opposed to any kind of a general sales tax, income tax or gross receipts tax."

"I firmly believe that if common sense and practical business economy are used in running our state, Texas can halt the runaway cost of governmental expenditures."

Reed, who is the oldest member of the Texas Legislature in point of service, is an attorney who worked during the day and attended school at night to obtain an education. He co-sponsored and actively supported the Veterans Land Law.

As a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, Reed has declared that he will support a more efficient, long-range farm-to-market road program; legislation to make Texas highways safer; the development of our soil and the conserving of the water supply of Texas, to aid our parched towns, farms and ranches; continued support of rural electrification and rural telephones for our farm and ranches.

"As your Lieutenant Governor," Reed stated, "I pledge that I will strive to give the people of Texas the same progressive debt-free government that I helped direct when Speaker of the House of Representatives in 1947-48."

Former residents, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Bradley of Childress were visitors here Monday.

Replying to a communication forth in one-two-three fashion his views on old-age assistance.

He wrote Yates as follows:

"Your first question is, 'Do you favor the removal of the ceiling on old-age pensions and payments to needy children and dependent blind?' My answer is yes.

Farmers Urged To Promote Cotton Classing Program

One application for Smith-

the farmers in an organized cot-

This was pointed out today by Leil O. Buchanan, who is in charge of the Lubbock cotton classing office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Admin-

"The popularity of this cotton improvement program has increased so much in the last few years that applications must be filed early in order to prevent a log-jam just before the deadline," Mr. Buchanan said, explaining that it takes at least 15 days to process applications and then deliver supplies of forms to gins, warehouses, compresses and other agencies approved to take samples of cotton.

Auto Is The Safest Place When Lightning Strikes

WASHINGTON—Those who dive under the nearest bed at the first crash of thunder or flash of lightning may gain some comfort from the current issue of the National Geographic magazine.

First, forget the bed and head for your car. It's one of the safest places you can be because the steel body will conduct the current away from occupants.

The same holds true for airplanes.

F. Barrows Colton reports that your chances of being killed by lightning in the United States are about one in 365,000. That is despite the fact that over the earth there are some 44,000 lightning storms every day, with 100 lightning flashes every second.

Moreover, some strokes at their peaks generate temperatures as high as 27,000 degrees Fahrenheit. It is "turned on" only 35-millionths of a second during the 20,000-mile-an-hour flash.

Lightning also streaks between two clouds, or within a single cloud far more often than between a cloud and the ground. A flash may speed more than 10 miles between two clouds, and it may race to the ground from a distance of only three miles.

However, Colton disproves one axiom that may be disarming. Lightning can and does strike the same place twice. It has hit the Empire State building in New York as many as 12 times in 20 minutes, and as often as 50 times a year.

Another feature recently discovered is that lightning may strike upward from the ground. That is because it is really a high-speed flow of current back and forth between powerful electric charges.

The charges accumulate not only in the thundercloud but in the ground below. In fact, the current flowing up out of the ground is probably the one that does the damage.

Colton reminds that "if you heard the thunder, the lightning did not strike you. If you saw the lightning, it missed you. And if it did strike you, you would not have known it."

Thunder cannot be heard more than about 18 miles. Sounds of artillery fire carry much farther. Lightning manufactures, right out of the air, about 100 million tons of valuable nitrogen fertilizer every year. Fertilizer manufacturers, using the same electric-spark method take nitrogen from the air more efficiently than nature's haphazard way.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

There it Was— Right in The Middle!

Easy Roberts mowed his lawn early last Saturday. Then he sat on the porch, and watched Handy Peterson cutting his grass.

The Roberts' property and the Peterson's border each other with no hedge or fence between them. So, when Easy notices Handy had left about a four-foot strip unmowed along the boundary, he walks over and asks why.

"That's your land," says Handy. "Mine ends here. See, it lines up with that oak tree across the road!" Easy didn't think so, so they went up and down looking for the surveyor's marker. Where did they find it? Right in the middle of their "no man's land!"

Well, they both grit and take turns finishing the job and then retreat to Easy's for a friendly glass of beer together. From where I sit, a little searching around for the truth of the matter often shows that the other fellow is as much right as you are—at which point the whole thing doesn't seem as important anyway.

POLIO TREND IN TEXAS WORST IN HISTORY

AUSTIN—The highest weekly outbreak of polio in the history of Texas, 124 cases, was reported Wednesday by the State Health Department.

State Health Officer George W. Cox said the new cases, which occurred during the week ending July 1, brought the total to 948 for the first six months of the year.

Cases last week were reported for 38 counties, six of them with no previous incidence of the dread crippling disease. Polio has now been discovered in 122 of the state's 254 counties, as compared with last year's outbreak for a similar period of 683 cases in 100 counties.

The old record of 121 cases for a single week was set on Aug. 6, 1949. That polio season saw 2,355 cases for the entire year, but health officials believe that figure will be dwarfed by the end of 1950.

Dr. Cox advised parents to be especially alert for polio symptoms in their children, and cautioned that a physician should be consulted immediately if a child develops nausea, high fever or soreness in the muscles and joints.

Brown, Frio, Guadalupe, Lampasas, Mason and Zavala counties all reported polio for the first time this year. Each had one case.

Bag Limit on Quail Reduced on Plains

New hunting and fishing laws for the Panhandle, effective Sept. 1, reduce the bag limits on quail and the limits on black bass, crappie and channel catfish.

The regulations, under recent legislation giving the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission regulatory authority in the Panhandle, were enacted at the regular meeting of the commission in Austin.

The new regulations are the result of observations by game department personnel and a series of hearings in more than 20 Panhandle counties in which sportsmen were given an opportunity to express their recommendations.

Dove season in the Panhandle will be Sept. 1-Oct. 15 and the bag and possession limit will be 10 birds. This is the same regulation that has been in effect for several years.

Quail season will start Dec. 1 and run through Jan. 16—the same as in previous years. Bag limit will be 10 birds and the hunter may have not more than 20 in possession. Previously the bag limit was 12 birds and the possession limit was 36.

Deer and turkey season will be from Nov. 17 to Nov. 26 in all counties of the regulatory zone except Armstrong, Randall and Briscoe. No open season is scheduled for those counties, due to recent restocking operations. Limit will be one buck and two gobblers.

New limits on crappie and channel catfish are 15 per day and not more than 30 in possession. Previously limits were 25 per day with no limit on possession.

his possession not more than 200 minnows.

The commission recommended a 45-day duck and goose season, starting Nov. 10. Duck and goose seasons are set by the US Fish and Wildlife Service, after receipt of recommendations from the states.

The Panhandle regulatory district comprises these counties: Randall, Potter, Oldham, Gray, Roberts, Hemphill, Motley, Cottle, Dallam, Hartley, Childress, Collingsworth, Sherman, Hansford, Moore, Wheeler, Donley, Hall, Hutchinson, Carson, Deaf Smith, Armstrong, Palmer, Castro, Swisher, Briscoe, Lipscomb and Ochiltree.

LUBBOCK, Texas, July 12—A small twister, which caused no known damage, was reported to have hit the ground in a rural area northwest of Snyer between Levelland and Lubbock about eighteen miles due west of Lubbock.

The Lubbock Weather Bureau and Reese Air Force Base weather officials confirmed reports of the "baby" tornado and said it consisted of one small funnel which had dipped from the overlying clouds which blanketed the South Plains most of the day and left heavy rains in the western section of the area.
