Judges stated, "The Motley County Tribune Centennial Edition had overall neat appearance and clean layout. Nice choice of subject and good continuity with local angle."

Attending the convention was Carla Meador and Barbara Armstrong.

Speakers for the event included Selden Hale, Chairman of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice and John Sharp, State Comptroller.

Seven journalists were inducted into the newly established Panhandle Press Hall of Fame, two of them posthumously, at the Saturday noon luncheon. "They personify those qualities to which we all should aspire: an interest in our community and an unquenchable dedication to printing the truth. In honoring them, we remind ourselves of the things we should hold important in our profession."

Mr. Nelson, one of the honored inductees, was born in Ferris, and began his journalism career 59 years ago. In 1934, Nelson started his first newspaper, The Roaring Springs Reporter. He worked with Douglas Meador, longtime editor of the Matador Tribune, for some time, before going out on his own.

Thirty-four members and spouses of the Texas Agricultural Lifetime Leadership Program (TALL) embarked on a 2 week journey to Argentina on February 28, 1992. The purpose of TALL is to develop leadership skills and broaden our knowledge of agriculture. During the two year program, the TALL members take 12 trips, one of which is international.

Our first stop in the country was Buenos Aires, the nation's Capital. Argentina has a population of 32 million people, of which 12 million live in Buenos Aires. Argentina is about one-third the size of the U.S. in total land area. Being in South America, the climate is a direct opposite of ours. Summer was ending, the weather was warm but pleasant.

Argentina has been under democratic rule since 1983. Before then, the country went through periods of great instability, mainly military rule. Argentina has undergone great turmoil in recent years. The biggest problem has been runaway inflation, in excess of 1,300% per year. The country has been fairly stable the last year.

The primary purpose of our trip was a study of the country's agriculture. Argentina has a large amount of beef cattle production. We toured Liniers Cattle Auction, the largest of the world. The area around Buenos Aires is called the Pampas region, which is similar to the Midwest, especially Iowa. This is the most productive agriculturally. We saw intensive farming operations of corn, sunflowers, soybeans and wheat. They use little inputs in their farming (fertilizers, herbicides or insecticides). Yet their yields are good because of abundant resources.

We viewed a large family farming and ranching operation near the small town of Chilvilcoy. The operation was impressive and well managed. They use a crop and pasture rotation system. None of the cattle are fattened on grain, they are all fed on pasture. The pastures consist of alfalfa and grass mixture. Even though the beef is grass fed, we ate some of the best steaks while in Argentina. The day at Chilvilcoy will never be forgotten. We met with the Lord Mayor and other community leaders. We were hosted to a champagne reception at the Police Chief's home. We toured an art museum and were treated to a Tango Show. The genuine hospitality of the people of Chilvilcoy will stay with us forever.

Later in the week we flew to northern part of the country. It is a more tropical climate. We visited the Las Marias plantation. This 40,000 acre operation grows tea, mate (like tea), pine timber and beef cattle. They process and package the tea and mate on the plantation. From Las Marias we went to the Iguazu Falls. These falls are similar to Niagra Falls and are truly spectacular. A helicopter ride over the Iguazu Falls is an experience of a lifetime.

It is impossible to summarize a two week trip to a foreign country in a few words. The experiences gained and the people met will be remembered for a lifetime. We have problems in this country, but they pale in comparison to the problems faced by the peoples in other lands. However, we must learn from other countries' mistakes if we are to remain the best place in the world to live. This TALL experience will be remembered for a lifetime.

As the whirlwind crew of Joe Meredith applies a final coat of paint, a healing coat of plaster, or a well placed nail, the first phase of the Motley County Museum renovation is coming to a close.

With it comes a deadline for those families who wish to be included on the first two Memorial Name Plaques which will hang in the newly painted lobby. Just fifty-eight spaces remain, and they are expected to go fast. Once the goal of 198 names is reached the plaque name plates will be engraved. For $100, which goes to the support of the museum project, a family name or individual name may be added.

Likewise, those families wishing to add brands to the Centennial Branding Board should do so as soon as possible. A brand and name may also be added for $50 while supporting the guest for the colorful heritage of Motley County. These panels will be stained, framed, and hung in the spacious downstairs hallway.

Tax-free donations may be given to Hazel Donovan, Glenn Woodruff, Charlie Johnson, Barbara Armstrong, Marisue Potts, or left at the First State Bank.

During the second phase, the museum will be ready to receive artifacts and historically important items for display. Volunteers will be needed to accession and catalog acquisitions approved by a committee already in place.

Expected to be a main attraction on the top floor of the old hospital building will be restoration of the operating room, a hospital room, and the 1920's bathroom highlighted by the original ceramic and black and white asphalt tile floor. Furnishings of the era, transoms, call buttons activated by an ingenious string system will be represented.

El Progreso Club Hears Program On Conservation

CONSERVATION — THE KEY TO THE FUTURE

El Progreso Study Club met Thursday, March 26, 1992 in the Senior Citizens building for a program on Conservation. Mrs. Joe (Loys) Campbell called the meeting or order and regular business was taken care of. She told of the Santa Rosa District Convention held in Quanah March 24, 1992. El Progreso Club came home with a 98 on their yearbook, first in Project Report, first place in Education - School Issues, first place in Continuing Education - Library/Literacy, first place in Arts - Literature & Drama, second in the Texas Heritage category and third in Arts - Literature & Drama. Those attending the convention from El Progreso were Club President, Mrs. Loys Campbell, Mrs. Dale (JoEita) Bumgardner and Mrs. Bob (JoAnn) Dickson.

Mrs. Frank (Laverna) Price, former club president, presented the program on conservation as she had worked so many years in the ASCS in Floydada, retiring not too long ago. She, in turn, asked her son-in-law, Ronald Bailey, who is District Conservationist for Eastland County to tell and show via slides what conservation is and does. In her introduction she stated he was a graduate of Texas Tech in 1965 with his degree in Agricultural Education. He taught in Clarendon from 1965 to 1968 and entered the Soil Conservation Service in 1968 having been in the offices in Anson, Abilene, Longview, San Antonio and Eastland. While in Eastland he has been very civically oriented having served as president or chairman of the many and varied activities of the town and county. His hobby is historical research and was instrumental in researching and writing the History of Eastland County with another person, so it is evident Ronald Bailey is not only interested in his work of soil conservation but the community in which he and his family live.

Mr. Bailey began by describing what conservation really is and how it affects all of us, urban or rural alike. His many slides showing the ways of conserving land with wind strips, terracing, contouring and cover crops, showed how much work there is in preparing fields and areas for conserving our land. He stated that when fields are grazed too heavily they may become barren because the animals eat the leaves, leaving the roots of preparing land for "saving the soil" such as spraying, grubbing and then reseeding the land where plants will hold the soil.

Once wildlife aspects were not considered but we have become much more informed about their habitat and what can be done to help them live a more productive life. He also stated "city" people will pay "big bucks" to come hunt so farmers and ranchers try to protect the wildlife for their hunters. As to water conservation he remarked we have no control on rainfall, streams build up, wash out roads cause untold damage especially if houses are built too close to streams that may rise or lakeshores that could have floodstage limits. He cautioned the group if ever building around a lake to be wary of where the flood area could come to and built up-hill from it, protecting your house and property. Flood control dams do alleviate flood waters as they are control means of keeping the water at a more even stage. They let the water out slowly. One project Mr. Bailey and his group took an interest in was a hill going away from the Eastland High School down to the football practice field. It was rocky, washed-out and a very ugly way for getting from the school to the field. Through his office they used their practices to make a concrete walkway for the boys to go down the hill and seeded the hill to Kline and Bluestem grass to control erosion. It was such a huge success many top government people came to observe the project. A pollution abatement system was mentioned as being used in the Stephenville area where the dairies are situated. He conducts contests, speaks at banquets where some of the children don't really know that milk does not come originally from a box, conducts tours showing the conservation practices, conducts radio and T.V. programs on his types of work and speaks to anyone who wishes to learn more about how to preserve our land. He and Mrs. Price both mentioned how the ASCS and SCS work hand in hand with each other to conserve our land in the approved ways that have been set forth by many years of study and work.

Refreshments of cake, coffee and tea were served by Mrs. Bob (Nell) Clem and Mrs. Harry (Pearl) Patten from a Spring-decorated table to those mentioned and Mrs. R.C. (Callie) Giesecke, Mrs. Frank (Lola) Pohl, Mrs. Ted (Bailey) Elliott, Mrs. John (Josephine) Hamilton, Mrs. E.A. (Dorothy) Day, Mrs. Robert (Winifred) Darsey and Mrs. Furman (Beverly) Vinson.

Arts & Crafts Club Learns New Craft

by Winifred Darsey

The Motley County Arts and Crafts Club met Monday, April 6, at the Matador Senior Citizens Building for its regular meeting.

It was a day of cheer and merriment as the members made ornaments, toys, and gift items from bread dough.

Mrs. Tonya (Simpson) Multer from Garden City taught the workshop. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Paul Simpson. A most excellent and charming teacher.

The members found themselves in a sticky situation now and then but overcame it by adding just a little more flour. It gave a feeling of ade-ja-ju, only we worked with flour instead of meed (remember meed pies!)

A covered dish luncheon, at noon, with delicious and savory food was enjoyed.

Work continued after lunch. Betty Simpson, President, held a lengthy business session.

A workshop of oil-painting is on the agenda for a summer program.

The next meeting in May has been arranged for club members to meet at Woodruff Studio on Dundee St. for an all-day meeting. If weather is permissible the club will have a day at Roaring Springs Ranch Club of painting, sketching, or whatever. Lunch in a paper sack, or at Woodruff Studio, the same thing is planned. This could be catch up day in some work on art unfinished.

Members present were Joy Archer, Sybil Brandon, Devonne Dillard, Pauline Hand, Geraldine Key, Lorene Lancaster, Winifred Lee, Joyce Meredith, Una Simpson, Bertha Stearns, Betty Simpson, Sue Seigler, Elsie Thacker, Dora Watson, Marion Woodruff and Winifred Darsey.

The club enjoyed a lovely visitor, Mrs. Frances Jones, of Benning Oaks, sister of Betty Simpson.

THE IMPORTANCE OF FAMILY MEALS.....

Over the years, much attention has been given to the influence of parents as teachers of young children. Parents evaluate toys for their educational value. Television programs are monitored and judged on the basis of what is being taught to children. Books are reviewed for the impact they have on young readers. Vacations are even planned in terms of educational value. Many things parents do are conscious strategies for teaching their children in formal ways.

Yet some of children's most basic learning experiences take place in the many informal situations that occur daily in the life of the family. These informal occasions for learning include all the times the family members are together, doing ordinary things such as getting dressed, doing household chores, and eating. Of these ordinary, recurring events in the life of a family, the family meal ranks among the most important. However, many families today overlook the significance of family mealtime and scarcely plan any meals together. They are giving up time available for family members to sit and talk with each other; simple arithmetic would total this time up to ten or more hours weekly.

Observing family members during mealtime can provide clues to how well each member is doing and how well the family is getting along. The way members talk with one another at the meal gives an accurate picture of how the family interacts away from the table. In fact, a number of studies of families in the past have been conducted by simply observing families while they were eating.

Children are introduced to and learn many habits during mealtime. Habits related to manners, attention, and conversing are formed. Traits of courteousness, appreciation, consideration, and respect are developed.

The family meal also serves as a vehicle for the transmission of family culture, traditions, and customs. A child learns from the parent. Observing role models from one meal to the next, over a period of time is an effective way of reinforcing patterns of behavior.

For example, if the parent criticizes of "talks about" a neighbor at one meal, chances are this pattern will be repeated (as well as the words which were used). The person being criticized may change from meal to meal, but the act of criticizing will persist. The criticizing will become acceptable behavior and be reinforced because it is repeated...the same is true of more desirable behaviors including expressing appreciation. Parents need to be aware of the value of mealtime in promoting personality traits they would like to see in their children.

The mealtime behaviors of families are unique to each family. However, there are common types. Personal observation and evaluation will provide clues to mealtime characteristics in the family household.

1. "Pistop" Meals. Characterized by little conversation other than "yeah", "gravy", "gotta go", "mustard", and "yuck". These meals have much in common with the impersonal behavior one experiences at a fast-food restaurant when the object is to eat and run!

2. Cold or Hot Warfare Meals. Characterized by cold shoulders and stares, purposely ignoring each other or by openly hostile behavior spiced with cutting, nagging, and abusive remarks directed at one or all the members. Squabbling is often the main dish served!

3. Dart-throwing Meals. Characterized by the continual criticizing of others outside the family. Persons become targets for derogatory remarks!

4. Human-interest Meals. Members bring up and talk about interesting bits of information. The conversation may be directed to personal experiences, world events, or future plans. The focus is on events, occurrences, issues, and goals. People leave the meal with positive feelings about what has happened or what could happen.

5. Ritual Meals. Similar to the human-interest meals, but with the added feature that the meal has meaning or tradition about it. Certain rituals are performed that have meaning to the members, such as the serving of a favorite dish or a special seating arrangement or table decorations and/or favors. Holidays and special events call for ritual meals, but some families plan them weekly.

Families need to consider mealtime as opportunities not to be missed. Hectic schedules and school and work considerations have to be reconciled, but giving up time for the family to sit and eat together is a significant price to pay; and the impact on the family closeness cannot be denied.

This time change wears me out! I get used to one time and now it goes and changes on me! I love this time because we have longer afternoons, and it's nice when the weather's cooperative. But the mornings get to me. I'm not sleepy until around 11:00 p.m., so when 6:00 a.m. comes, I just want to stay in bed. This time makes me ready for summer. I really like this time change. But I bet by the time I get used to it - it'll change on me!

Dear Students:
Thank you for sharing your views and your suggestions with me. Your messages tell me that you are willing to play your part in keeping our Nation free, strong, and prosperous.

It is heartening to know that you have the determination to help meet the challenges that our country faces. ### HELP FOR DEALING WITH DIVORCE

This is the second article in a series regarding divorce: Flashbacks may occur. They are reminders of the past relationship. Some of them may be good. However, during the first part of the divorce, they will probably be bad. Any good ones may surface later after the anger has been worked through. Flashback can even pop-up in the next relationship. That can cause some interesting situations. These can be detrimental unless they're properly identified and dealt with.

One thing to remember, emotions are functioning in a survival type mode - at an all-time low. One may do and say things they would not normally do or say. Attitudes may be more calloused. Actions may include habits that are not normally becoming or their character. Don't be too quick to judge that person. Here are some quick hints that will help in the long run: (1) don't make a big decision by yourself, enlist the help of someone you trust; (2) when things seem overwhelming, take one thing at a time, get organized, prioritize; (3) having the feelings of being on-the-go may not be all bad. It helps keep the sanity. Be wise though. It's expensive. You may notice a vocabulary change from "ours" to "mine" or from "us" to "I" - plural to singular.

The next article will deal with some other "normal" reactions and emotions of divorce.

Surge Shootout To Demonstrate Irrigation Technique Performance

FLOYDADA -- The first High Plains Surge Shootout will take place April 14 at the Floyd Stansell farm near the Sandhill community. It is a friendly competition and educational event, pitting surge valves of various manufacturers against a conventional furrow irrigation to move water from the top to the bottom of a field.

The program is being coordinated by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in cooperation with the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1. Registration and refreshments will begin at 9 a.m. The Sandhill community is west of Floydada at the juncture of FM 378 and FM 784.

Surge valve dealers and manufacturers will set the controls on their valves in the contest to optimize the surge operation. Surge irrigation can move water down a field in as little as half the opportunity time as conventional continuous irrigation, explained Dr. Rose Mary Seymour, Extension Service irrigation engineer.

"However, the effectiveness of surge irrigation varies from field to field and is dependent on things such as soil factors, field slope and water flow rate. Thus, the surge dealers will be challenged to choose a surging technique that will best fit the field of the contest," Seymour said.

Surge irrigation is superior to conventional furrow irrigation because it reduces the water and time required to reach the end of a field, the Extension Service specialist said. Irrigators benefit from reduced pumping costs and the ability to irrigate more land in a given amount of time.

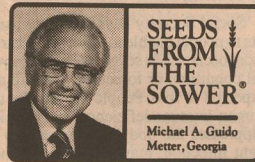

"Surge also reduces labor for gated pipe users because a surge valve allows two sets of furrows to be irrigated before pipe is moved," Seymour said. Typically, with conventional irrigation, pipe must be moved after every set of furrows.

Surge valve and surface pipe dealers and manufacturers sponsoring the Surge Shootout are Beep Irrigation, Cobbco Sales Co., Diamond Plastics, P&R Surge Systems, Inc., Solar Surge and Waterman Industries, Inc. All will have their products on display.

An educational program on surge and related topics will be conducted from 10 a.m. to noon, during the Shootout. Featured speaker will be Leon New of Amarillo and Joe Henggel of Ft. Stockton, both irrigation specialists with the Extension Service; Ken Carver, assistant manager of High Plains Underground Water District, and Seymour. Several experienced surge irrigators will relate their knowledge on surge management. Lighthouse Electric Cooperative, Floydada, will provide lunch.

Additional information may be obtained from Mike Mallett, Floyd County extension agent, telephone (806) 983-2806.

A preacher said, "Our lesson teaches that if you're a Christian you'll go to the land of everlasting bliss. But suppose you're not a Christian - where will you go?"

"To the land of everlasting blisters," cried a boy.

There are only two places - heaven or hell. All men can choose heaven or hell - not both. All men do choose heaven or hell - not both. Which do you choose?

"Let me think it over," you say. But while you're thinking it over, if you don't choose heaven, you choose hell.

"Eternity, where will you spend eternity? 'Tis heaven or hell for you and me. Now make your choice - which will it be?"

Sharp Announces Spring Taxpayer Seminar

(AUSTIN) - "Texans shouldn't have to contact Austin when they need to have a tax question answered," State Comptroller John Sharp says, announcing that his office will conduct a free seminar on state taxes in Lubbock on Thursday, April 16, 1992.

"Not everyone can get to Austin for tax assistance. So, we are taking tax services to the people," said Sharp.

Kay McCall, from the Comptroller's Lubbock field office will be on hand to meet and discuss tax questions at the Godeke Library, 66th & Quaker, at 2:30 p.m.

"Our agency experts will be delighted to sit down with you, one-on-one, detailing which state taxes may affect you as a business person, assist you with sale tax forms, or provide information that can be useful in the future," said Sharp.

Those taxpayers who cannot attend the free seminar can call the Comptroller's toll-free tax hotline for additional assistance at 1-800-252-5555.

For more information about the free seminars, call the nearest Comptroller field office. In the Lubbock area, the number is 806/745-7971.

FmHA Takes Leadership Role In Fight Against Aids

TEMPLE -- In an effort to halt the speed of a deadly disease and the equally harmful rumors which follow it, the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is taking a leadership role in informing its employees of the realities of Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS).

Texas FmHA State Director, Neal Sox Johnson is attempting to promote increased awareness of the HIV virus, and life-threatening illnesses such as AIDS which result from it, by stamping out misinformation in the workplace.

"The only way to fight a disease is to first know what it is," said Johnson. "If you aren't keyed into the facts, then the chances are slight that you're keyed into the solution, or for that matter prevention."

In this pursuit, the State Director has issued a policy statement on how his agency will deal with the potential effects of the disease. He has similarly taken to informing FmHA employees of the realities of the disease through pamphlets, seminars, Employee Assistance Counselors, the availability of Telephone Hotlines.

"Texas FmHA has a tradition and commitment of sharing for employees," Johnson conveyed, "by maintaining a safe and healthful work environment."

The policy statement informs employees of the truths, and untruths behind the HIV virus. It furthermore sets forth the guidelines for handling issues that could arise when an employee is affected by AIDS.

Among the items discussed in this statement are the declarations that AIDS and AIDS-related illnesses will be treated in the same manner as any other catastrophic illness. Permanent employees affected by these conditions are covered by qualified Agency benefits and policies relating to insurance, health and disability benefits, non-discrimination, and equal work opportunities.

In designing the policy statement, the State Director and his staff kept in mind three fundamentals which Johnson feels should be assumed by the other businesses and civic leaders in the community:

First, that all medical information obtained from employees with AIDS or any of its related conditions should be kept confidential. Second, that the personal integrity of employees stricken with the disease should be regarded with the compassion one would assert to any person affected with a life-threatening disease such as cancer or heart disease. And finally, that employees suffering from this illness continue to be valued employees who may wish to maintain their normal lifestyle, including continuing their careers, for as long as their condition allows, and that every reasonable accommodation be provided for them as long as they continue to maintain an adequate level of performance and medical evidence does not indicate that there is a threat to the health of the employee(s) or to others.

"Based on an overwhelming preponderance of available medical and scientific opinion," said Johnson, "there is no evidence that the AIDS virus is casually transmitted in ordinary social or occupational settings. Therefore, co-workers have no basis upon which to refuse to work or withhold their services for fear of contracting the disease by working with an AIDS-affected person."

For these reasons, Johnson has made it clear that employees who engage in such refusals or who harass or otherwise discriminate against an AIDS-affected employee will be subject to disciplinary action. Additionally, no special consideration for transfer requests will be made for employees who feel threatened by a co-worker's AIDS-related condition.

"Recognizing the need for employees to be accurately informed about AIDS is the crucial thing," Johnson said. As a result, the Texas Farmers Home Administration has devoted itself to making available general information about the disease to its employees. Along these lines, it has affirmed the following AIDS Hotlines: 1-800-342-AIDS (Nationwide, open 24 hours, 7 days a week), 1-800-344-7432 (Spanish-speaking operators, open 8 am to 2 pm, 7 days a week).

HEALTH NEWS

TRANSDERMAL NICOTINE PATCHES

Smokers can now resist the urge to light-up patching up with a 2-inch strip called the transdermal nicotine patch.

This small patch can be attached daily to the upper body for six to eight weeks. A gradual reduction in the dose of nicotine administered through the patch helps a person stop smoking without symptoms of nicotine withdrawal. Symptoms of withdrawal include irritability, lack of concentration, anxiety, restlessness and an increased appetite.

The surgeon general and most physicians have long warned of the health hazards of nicotine, but many long-term smokers have found that quitting isn't so easy.

"Transdermal nicotine therapeutic systems are good news for people trying to give up smoking," said Mina Horne, R.N. at Methodist Hospital. "The patch's ability to deliver medication at a constant rate into the bloodstream and reduce the frequency of drug induced side effects makes it easier for the patient to adhere to the therapy."

The skin has natural absorbing qualities that allow a steady concentration of the drug into the bloodstream, enabling the dose size of certain drugs to be reduced.

"The only side effects I've heard of from the transdermal nicotine patch have been a slight skin irritation where the patch was placed and some sleep disturbances. Continuing to smoke while wearing the patch may result in a nicotine overdose, making the individual very ill," Horne said.

According to the February 1992 issue of P&T, the transdermal drug delivery offers many advantages over conventional drug administration.

* When drugs pass directly through the skin into the bloodstream they bypass the gastrointestinal tract, avoiding the neutralizing effects and the breakdown of the drug that occurs in the stomach, intestine and liver.

* Rate controlled transdermal systems produce much steadier concentrations of drugs into the bloodstream, reducing side effects.

* A once daily or weekly regimen is easier to follow than taking oral medication or injections.

* It is easy to discontinue treatment by simply removing the transdermal patch.

For more information about Methodist Hospital's smoking cessation program called Smoke Stoppers or the nicotidom transdermal patch, contact Mina Horne, R.N., or Frank Horne at Methodist Hospital's LifeStyle Center at (806) 793-4386.

Boll weevil experts from across Texas and the U.S. gathered in Lubbock Thursday, April 2, for Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG) 1992 Boll Weevil Technical Advisory meeting.

Program personnel, government officials and research scientists gave reports on the 1991 PCG Boll Weevil Diapause Control Program, the status of boll weevil eradication programs across the Cotton Belt, and current boll weevil research projects.

Roger Haldenby, Boll Weevil Program Coordinator, commented with concern that boll weevil populations are expected to increase significantly from the levels seen in 1991. He noted that among the factors causing the increase are a larger-than-usual buildup of boll weevil populations in the already heavily infested Rolling Plains to the southeast of the program area and the mild, moist conditions of the past winter.

Haldenby's predictions for 1992 were echoed by scientists from both the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in their reports. The researchers also reported on the development of new tools for improving program management strategies.

They explained a computer modeling project developed over the past three years that accurately predicts boll weevil survival during overwintering and forecasts emergence timing in the spring. This information has already been applied to choosing a more accurate uniform planting date for various counties.

Dr. Ted Wilson, Professor of Entomology at Texas A&M University, described how the prediction model is being integrated into a geographic information system (GIS). The GIS will enable both the diapause program and individual producers to predict levels of emerging weevils, emergence timing, and forecast population growth patterns and the associated risk to adjacent cotton fields.

PCG Boll Weevil Steering Committee Chairman Steve Verett expressed appreciation to all the agencies involved in keeping the 3.5 half million acres of High Plains cotton free from the ravages of the boll weevil.

High Plains cotton producers are set to gather for the 35th Plains Cotton Growers Annual Meeting on Thursday, April 9. The meeting will begin at 9:00 a.m. in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center Banquet Hall.

Speakers for the PCG meeting will be Jesse Moore, Director of the USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service Cotton Division, and Paulette Zakrzewski, Senior Governmental Affairs Representative for the national Cotton Council in Washington, D.C.

Topics to be discussed by the speakers will range from the status of the USDA classing system to the environmental pressures that will be facing cotton producers in the near future. Moore is expected to discuss recent changes in the classing system and some proposed changes that will be evaluated in the future. Zakrzewski is expected to discuss the environmental situation from a legislative standpoint and what it could mean for producers in this area and across the Cotton Belt.

"We are confident that producers will find this year's meeting especially helpful," says PCT Executive Vice President Donald Johnson. "The information that our speakers are expected to provide will help producers prepare for the future by being aware of potential issues and what effect they could have on their own farm."

In addition to the guest speakers the PCG membership will be given updates on the Boll Weevil Diapause Control Program and the Plains Cotton Improvement Program.

The PCG Board of Directors will meet at 1:20 that afternoon to elect 1992-93 officers.

Social Security Tips

by Mary Jane Shanes

NEW AIDS PUBLICATION AVAILABLE

A new Social Security publication explains the kinds of disability benefits available for people with AIDS or who are disabled because of HIV infection. The publication is designed to answer questions about Social Security or Supplemental Security Income (SSI) disability benefits.

Social Security pays disability benefits to people unable to work for a year or more because of a severe mental or physical condition, or to people who are not expected to live. People infected by the human immunodeficiency virus, which suppresses the body's natural ability to fight infection, may qualify when they are no longer able to work, or when they are, must severely limit the amount of work they do because of the disease.

The leaflet, entitled A Guide to Social Security and SSI Disability Programs for People with HIV Infection, describes the kinds of benefits available, explains how Social Security evaluates a person's disability, and provides helpful advice on what a person can do to expedite the claims process. It also provides an overview of special rules designed to help you return to work.

Social Security pays disability benefits through the Social Security disability insurance program to people who have worked under Social Security, and through the SSI program to people with limited income and assets, including children. A person may qualify for benefits under one or both programs depending on his or her circumstances.

HOSPITAL PASSES MEDICARE SURVEY

Crosbyton Clinic Hospital recently received notification from the Texas Department of Health that, once again, it has passed Medicare's Conditions of Participation. Therefore, the hospital's Medicare certification has been renewed for another year.

According to Hospital Administrator David Clark, the hospital receives an annual inspection from Medicare surveyors representing the Texas Department of Health. During the survey, hospital departments are inspected, policies reviewed, managers interviewed, bylaws are evaluated, and other various administrative protocols are followed to ensure that the quality of care delivered meets acceptable standards.

According to Clark, this year's survey was complimentary of the improvement in quality assurance activities taking place at the department level.

According to Clark, "Every month our department managers hold quality assurance in services where problems are identified, corrective action plans are developed, and follow-up action is resolved. As a result of these monthly Q.A. exercises, our employees are much more sensitive to continually improving their skills and delivering better care. The end result is a satisfied patient."

"This ongoing process of striving for quality and looking for ways to improve our services requires employees to be committed to the principles of Continuous Quality Improvement (CQI) - a relatively new and important concept in the healthcare industry. We believe that attaining quality is an ongoing process, not a state of being."

"I'm very pleased with our outstanding doctors and employees. All 102 of our employees were involved - either directly or indirectly - in helping the hospital prepare for this year's Medicare survey. I'm happy to announce that our efforts paid off."

Clark also noted that, according to a recent auditor's report, Crosbyton Clinic Hospital is among the lowest cost providers in West Texas.

TO TRAIN UP A CHILD

As parents we are given an awesome, but beautiful opportunity. We have the opportunity and the command to teach our children. It isn't something forced upon us something we can fake, but is simply a reflection of what should be in our hearts and souls. Jesus said, "Where your treasure is, there will be your heart also." (Matt. 6:21). We, as parents, should let our speech and our actions reflect where our treasure is. Jesus should shine thru in every phrase of our lives. God promises great blessings for this kind of living. All too often, however, we choose not to take hold of the opportunity. Kids are not stupid! They see plainly where our treasure is. Religious talk and pious actions will not fool them, but a living epistle to be known and read will be the greatest gift we as parents can bestow on our children.

As parents we need to study with our children, encourage them to attend Bible classes, devotionals and Christian fellowships, and also good Christian Universities. We need to take the time to know the friends our children have, and to guide them to wholesome friendships. The Bible says to "Train up a child in the way he should go..." Are we training our children? Will they be the growth of our congregation that can be counted on? Look at our congregation 15 years ahead. Will our children be our strength?

The following paragraph was left off the story of Mrs. Vesta Cooper's birthday, which was printed in last week's paper, in the Whiteflat news:

All of her children attended the happy occasion, Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper and Melvin Cooper of Milan, N.M., Calvin Cooper of Groton, Connecticut, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cooper of Lubbock, Mrs. Vernell Cooper Hanna of Abilene, Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Norma) Stoneman of Spur and Mrs. Martha Jo Shacklett.

Of the grandchildren and great-grandchildren attending, it should have read Ashley and friends, Pansy Fox and Charles Stoneman, Jr., of Slaton, and Barry Meffert and Shane of Blackwell and John Hanna and Ryan Langer of Abilene.
