Library Officials Say Realignment Would Hurt Area

West Texas libraries could receive less funding if the state's 10 library dis-tricts are realigned to include an 11th district, members of Lubbock's library

The proposed realignment could put Amarillo in competition with Lubbock for the West Texas Library System of-fice, currently housed at Mahon Library. Nancy Hill, head of the library system office, said the realignment is part of a move to create uniform state service

Under the current alignment, Lubbock County and 28 other counties - stretching from Upton County to Bailey county - make up a state library district.

If approved, the new library district would combine the 14 northern-most counties in the Lubbock district with 26 Panhandle counties.

Hill said the changes also would place Lubbock and Amarillo in the same system, creating a competition for the office she currently heads.

City librarian Jeff Ripple said some library officials are trying to postpone action on the realignment until the state's Sunset Advisory Commission reviews the state library system in 1995.

The library board voted unanimously in favor of a resolution supporting the cash. The resolution will be forwarded.

dealy. The resolution will be forwarded to the Working Group on Uniform State Service Regions and the Texas State Library and Archives Commission.

Hill claimed that adding an 11th district sould increase administrative costs and concentrate a disproportionate amount of state funding in large metromount of state tentains, and political areas.

With the change, she said funding for Houston libraries would leap to more than $38,000, while the new Lubbock/Panhandle, system would receive $8,000 per library. Out of the $8,000 per library mentioned by Mrs. Hill, administrative costs for the sysem has to be taken out as well the rest can be used for collection development (book purchases). On the local level this change would be most harmful your chances of serious injury or death are reduced significantly if you wear safety belts. An estimated 24,886 lives were saved by safety belts from 1983 to 1990," Ms. Thomas said.

"In 1982, before any State had a belt use law, America buckled up an 11 per-cent rate. Use of safety belts has more than quadrupled since then in response to increased law enforcement efforts and public information campaigns. An encouraging as these results are, it's not enough! People are still being killed on our highways because they didn't take the three seconds needed to buckle up. That's inexcusable!

Ms. Thomas also stressed the importance of using safety belts even if your car is equipped with an air bag. "Many people don't realize that air bags are only effec-tive in a front-end collision. You still must wear a safety belt in case of a rear-end, side impact, or rollover crash. For the best possible protection, use the air bags."

Amy's Anecdotes

by Amy Woolsey

We all want to be successful. It just things we sometimes don't want to do, takes a little more effort to get it. We have to be positive and fair. We have to do and we have to tell ourselves we can do it.

Success

If you think you are beaten, you are; If you think you dare not, you don't, If you'd like to win, but think you can't, It's almost a cinch you won't.

If you think you'll lose, you're lost, For out in the world we find Success begins with a fellow's will, It's all in the state or mind.

Life's battles don't always go To the stronger of faster man But soon or late the man who wins Is the one who thinks he can.

70 years later, relief still lasts longer than the taste.

Back in 1919, pharmacist William Buckley was hard at work creating a new cough remedy for his family and customers. The good news was his original blend of Canada Balsam, Pine Needle Oil and Menthol relieved coughs and congestion fast. The bad news was it tasted bad. But when people discovered that the relief lasted longer than the taste. Soon everyone was taking the plunge

To this day, Buckley's Mixture does not contain sugar, alcohol, antihistamines or decongestants. It still tastes terrible, but it sure works. Use

Teen Drivers Suffer Shocking Death Toll on American Highways

(DM)—Every two to three weeks, the equivalent of an entire senior class at a typical high school is killed in motor vehicle accidents. Last year alone more than 6,000 teenagers died.

Over the past decade there were 74,000 teenagers died.

Ore the past decade there were 74,000 teenage driving deaths, more than from all diseases combined. The National Safety Council estimates the financial cost of teenage deaths and injuries at $10 billion each year in medical and insurance costs, property damage and lost wages. But there is no way to place a price tag on thousands of tragically ruined young lives, according to the growing number of government leaders, traffic safety officials, activists and insurers reacting to the carnage on U.S. roadways.

"More than forty percent of all teenage deaths last year were attributable to motor vehicle crashes." says Peter O'Rourke, Director of California's Office of Traffic Safety and former chairman of the National Association of Governor's Highway Safety Representatives. "This is all the more shocking since it's occurring despite major U.S. advances in encouraging seat belt usage, reducing drunk driving, and producing safer automobiles."

This month Farmers Insurance Company is iaunching a program that will send 16,000 agents in 28 states directly into homes to offer counseling to newly licensed drivers. The Youth Education and Safety (Y.E.S.) program is designed to instill a stronger sense of responsibility in the nearly one million young drivers insured by Farmers, according to Executive Vice President William H. Braddock.

"New drivers often lack experience and maturity, so it's critical that they take driving as the serious, potentially hazardous activity that it is," says Braddock.

O'Rourke also cites attitude as the single biggest edge parents can crease the chances of their dying in an automobile."

He also recommends that parents insist on seat belts and restrict night time driving, noting that four out of ten fatalities occur between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m.

Mixing alcohol with youthful inexperience is also often a fatal combination. Research indicates that female teens with blood alcohol concentrations of .05 to .10 are 54 time more likely than their sober counterparts to be killed in single vehicle crashes, with males 18 times more likely.

"The Y.E.S. program is a partnership with our customers," said Farmers spokesman Braddock. "We're reaching out to both the parents and youthful drivers we insure with a comprehensive educational program which identifies dangerous driving behaviors and calls for the establishment of family driving rules."

calls for the establishment of family driving rules."

Although Farmers' Y.E.S. program is designed to help new drivers of both sexes, Braddock notes that young males are twice as likely to die in an automobile as females, and that of all age groups the 19-year-old male proportionately has the most traffic deaths.

"There's this invincibility attitude with young males," he notes. "They really believe that it can never happen to them. We're trying to change that, because it obviously is happening—to thousands of young people every year."

High Plains cotton producers will have their thoughts about current Texas Seed laws voiced in Austin Tuesday, May 12. Wayne Huffaker, President of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, will travel to Austin to present those thoughts to a legislative sub-committee looking into the issue. The committee's purpose is to determine if anything needs to be done regarding seed laws during the next legislative session.

The PCG statement will include a call to maintain the formers right to eath to maintain the farmers right to catch planting seed. PCG will also urge that any changes made to current seed laws be ones that provide a framework encouraging development of new varieties within replant a significant amount of cotton acres every year. To overcome these obstacles producers use some of the highest seeding rates in the Cotton Belt.

Averaging 17 to 20 pounds per acre, High Plains producers have been known to plant as much as 30 pounds of seed per acre trying to get a good stand of cotton. Even if they do get a good stand the first time there is still a reasonable chance that at least some of that cotton will need replanting.

Growing cotton on the High Plains means two very important criteria have to be met. Both of them relate directly to the amount of planting seed used by High Plains producers. First, the amount of planting the producers of the produ seed planted means it must be at a reasonable cost per acre. Producers frequently have to absorb this cost two or three times on part of their cotton acres each year. Shame Upon A Nation

George Washington, in his farewell speech, entreated this country to "avert the course that has hitherto marked the destiny of nations." Every student of history knows that all nations of the past have risen and fallen by five well defined steps. These are: (1) Freedom; (2) Wealth; (3) Glory; (4) Corruption; and (5) Barbarism. The courses of nations long gone have not deviated from this pattern. This is all too well etched on the pages of human history.

In a moral backwash of crime, social unrest, political corruption, economic turmoil and piritual condusion, our nation is in need of right answers. It appears that in t of chaos and confusion we as a nation have turned from the direction of God only to rely upon human wisdom. No society or nation long endures where the Word of God is not a literary ingredient. The Bible must be a dom-nant factor in our family circles. Our friends should feel its influence from ur lives. The teachings of the Bible need to impact our business world. Where the Word of God is a focal point, the blessings of God abound. Following (4) which is corruption, comes (5) Barbarism! Is this to be the destiny of a great nation "Conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposiion that all men are created free and equal"? Patrick Henry declared, "It is natural for man to indulge in the illusions of hope. We are apt to shut our yes against a painful truth, and listen to the songs of the Siren until she transforms us into beasts." The Word of God is desperately needed in our national life. The Psalmist said. "The entrance of thy words giventh light; it giveth nderstanding unto the simple." (Psalm 119:130).
