TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

Life has the precision of a delicate instrument regulated to permit us to bear sublime joy and the flame of unhappiness by living only a second at a time.

Mass of another twilight was open and the golden hinges of dawn were ajar. White, brittle frost covered the sand dunes and naked willows looked down on the sandy river with the timidity of discreet maidens who had not expected a door to be unfastened. Scattered holes in the river were frozen like pieces of a broken mirror tossed along its winding course. Near the end of the bridge a cotton-tail rabbit tried desperately to hurry, dragging half a maimed body. Flames of brass were licking the lid of day as the animal found refuge behind a clump of sage; to wait a little longer for release from the bondage of pain. Agony and beauty may often be viewed through the same prism.

Clabber and whey sky made a tent above the purple foothills of the caprock. Misty in the winter dawn, the vista might have been the pattern of a staircase to eternity.

Only the assiduity of the stars is able to keep the sacred and terrible records that might reveal the change in human lives had one more word of prayers been spoken.

Some delicate quality in the girl's face concealed the nearness of clouds like night hides the arrival of tears hurrying to their appointment with a distant dawn. Her eyes were the tragic and pleading eyes of a dove that calls vainly for its mate; reflecting pain that has been delayed in reaching its destruction. She was small and lonely against the winter night, waiting for the great bus to open its hesitant door. Three drowsy passengers emerged from the darkened interior and stood blinking at the garish station lights, then drifted away into the close forest of shadows. The door closed like a clinched jaw and the bus shuddered as the big wheels became animated. The girl watched it sucked into the vortex of night, then closed her eyes for an instant as if to shut out a little misery. A tall, tanned man was standing in front of her when she looked again. He was smiling. She screamed a little soft stream of joy and was in his arms. Light snow was falling but they were sheltered by the secure tent of affection and did not notice.

Several times in my wandering through the swamps of lassitude that surround the cove where my ship of dreams could find room to anchor, I have come close enough to the body of achievement to hear breathing and small perspiration—only to become excited and hurry to safety.

Beneath many a wave of laughter are hidden rocks of heartache which only the current of time can level. Alibi of the courageous, the smile pleads for the clemency of hopeless tomorrows, now drunken with the foul wine of deceit. But the fabric of faith is woven close and strong to shelter the heart after its other garments have decayed; when the storms of loneliness are blowing. Yearning in belief is a partial form of achievement.

Final Rites Held For Native Son

Death, striking with tragic regularity claimed another long-time resident and native son of Motley county when Joe Lancaster died in the Quannah Memorial hospital Sunday morning about 3 a. m. Mr. Lancaster had been in failing health for some time although he continued to manage Magnolia service station until recently. He was taken to the Quannah hospital in a McDonald ambulance Saturday but his condition, due to a stomach ailment, was so grave, that medical aid was without avail.

Joe Speegal Lancaster was born east of Matador in the old Clements community (now Fairview), December 20, 1902 and died January 19, 1947. Age 42 years and 29 days.

Funeral services were held Monday, 2:30 p. m. at the Matador Church of Christ with Minister Leonard Dennis officiating and interment made in the Matador East Mound cemetery.

Mr. Lancaster lived his entire life in Motley County and had many friends who join his survivors in bereavement. He attended school in the Clements community and worked as a stock-farmer for many years before moving to Matador. He was a member of the Church of Christ and the Matador Masonic lodge.

He was married to Miss Jessie Lee Archer October 12, 1928, and to this union two children were born, both of whom survive. They are Joe Harold and Palma, both high school students.

Besides his wife, other survivors are: one brother, Jim Lancaster of Matador, and two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Clowers of Matador and Mrs. Merwin Seager of Los Angeles, California. The funeral services were conducted by the McDonald Funeral home. The body lay in state at Mr. Lancaster's home from 4 p. m. Sunday until burial time, Monday. Masonic services were held at the grave. State School Official Says Average Teacher Salary Here Is Only $1,431

Looking at the teacher pay check, perhaps "it pays to be ignorant." The best educated people in Matador, its school teachers, have an annual earning of $1,431. Tragic condition of the school teacher's salary which is driving many educated and experienced men and women from their chosen profession to seek a "living wage" elsewhere, was brought to the attention of the Matador Lions Club members Tuesday in a short address by Luther Burkett of Haskell, Deputy State school superintendent. Mr. Burkett commended Matador on the high standard of its school system, especially its qualified faculty, all of whom have degrees and ten years of experience, which he says is the best of any school in the 22 counties he serves. However, he deplored the salaries paid here which average only $1,431 per year. He stressed the importance of a qualified faculty and said many schools had been forced to resort to a sub-standard of teachers because qualified and experienced teachers had gone to more lucrative Obtaining this recognition means that Matador schools have maintained their high scholastic standing through wartime problems.

The appointment was made by County Judge Wm. R. Cammack Saturday afternoon. Judge Cammack said that 14 applications had been made for the vacancy.

HAPPY AS LARKS Prisoners' Songs

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jailer noted that the 16 prisoners in the east wing of the Sangamon county jail appeared happy as larks the last three days. Frequently one would burst out into a care-free song and the others would join in.

Paul Hannon, jail committee chairman, disclosed the reason for the musical enthusiasm. Hannon, on a visit heard an off-noise buzzing sound during a lull.

He said the buzzing came from a file and saw. The prisoners had not only been working over bars of music. They'd gone thru two bars in a cell window.

Hannon said the songs were stilled when the file and saw were taken away.

SCHOOL'S CASH IS TAKEN BY THIEVES

The Matador high school and grade school buildings were broken into Friday night and $10.90 of basketball change and library fines was taken from the safe in superintendent Bert Ezzell's office, according to Sheriff John Stotts.

Entrance to the high school was made through a south window, and the grade school was entered by breaking into the front door.

The files and safes of both offices were ransacked and the outside lock to the door of the home economics department of the high school was broken.

Apparently, the only article missing from the grade school was a knife that was supposedly in the office.

There has been a series of similar robberies in other schools ranging from Pampa to Odessa, said Stotts.

Later reports disclosed that the Floydada and Tulla schools were robbed the same night and amounts of more than one hundred dollar were secured.

Banquet Tickets On Sale This Week

Jester Now Governor Of Texas

BEAUFORD H. JESTER

Beauford Halbert Jester of Corsicana was inaugurated thirty-seventh Governor of Texas Tuesday noon in impressive ceremonies accompanied by tumultuous demonstration of homage and affection by thousands of Texans gathered in Austin from all parts of the state.

Bands blared, airplanes overhead dipped in salute, choruses sang victory songs and the citizenry cheered in wild acclaim.

The man who was Governor during all the trying days of World War II went out of office Tuesday with a smile on his face. His administration saw a $33,000,000 deficit in the treasury grow into a $37,000,000 surplus.

When the inauguration ceremonies were done, Coke Stevenson of Junction stuck a crumpled white Stetson on his head, surveyed the multitude who had come to cheer his successor and for a moment stood alone as the crowd dispersed. The center of attraction were Beauford Jester and Allan Shivers.

Matador B team also won over Lockney with a score of 29-13.

Greater importance than deciding district honors will be placed on the game scheduled at Spur January 28, in which the two teams will play off their tie position. Fans believe the winner will be well forward in the round robin schedule, winner of which will be awarded the right to play the winner of the district tournament. Winner of this tournament will represent District 4A in the regionals on March 1.

Superintendent Bert Ezzell declared the district games will have reached an approximate climax when the gun sounds at

Store To Observe 5th Anniversary

One of Matador's younger enterprises, the Matador Drug, owned by Kenneth Jeffers, is celebrating its 5th anniversary this week. Mr. Jeffers opened the store in January, 1942. A native of Motley county, Mr. Jeffers returned to Matador to operate the store from Floydada where he had been employed by a drug firm for a number of years.

In a page announcement in this issue of the Tribune, the Matador Drug pays tribute to the loyalty of friends and customers during the past four years and offers especially priced merchandise during the birthday observance.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeffers returned Thursday from Ft. Worth where they attended an inter-state convention of Rexall dealers. Five states represented at the meeting included Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico.

Matador Hatchery Opens New Season

New electric equipment installed by the Matador hatchery is now in operation and delivery of the first 1947 hatch was started February 14th, according to Lewis Newman, manager. Baby chicks are ready each Monday and Friday.

Regarding policies of the hatchery Mr. Newman said, "We plan to hatch from the best of our eggs which are from pullets and hens carefully bred to live and lay through a long period of usefulness. They have been raised on green pasture and Red Chain feeds supplemented with the Borden company's Ration-ayed milk from our cows. Such background insures vitality on storage that will invigorate the chicks to produce maximum profits for poultry raisers."

Those desiring baby chicks should place orders in advance, Mr. Newman declared.

Demonstration Of Hoeme Plow, Jan. 28

A demonstration of the famous Graham-Hoeme plow will be held at the Dr. J. G. Ketchersid farm, 1/2 mile east of Bob's Oil Well on the Roaring Springs highway, Tuesday January 28, according to an announcement made this week by the Matador Implement Company, Hoeme plow dealers.

The demonstration will start promptly at 2 p. m. and a factory representative will be on hand to conduct the work and explain functions of the plow. New addition to shop equipment of the Matador Implement Company, is the steam washing device which removes all grease, oil and dirt from tractors and automobile engines. Soapy water charged with steam is applied directly to the engine under pressure.

similar to that used in paper sacks, which officers found. The paper, they said, if placed there at the time the bodies were, indicated a comparatively recent date, or, if blown there by the wind, or carried by a packrat, indicated nothing of importance.

Dr. C. R. Wofford, Plainview dentist, said a lack of wisdom teeth in the skull indicated a young person. He also noted that the teeth were mottled with the stain peculiar to this country.

Kenneth Kirkpatrick, Paul Main, and several other Petersburg boys found the bones at the entrance of a small cave below the north rimrock of Blanco canyon about two miles east of the Ralls-Floydada highway. The scene was two miles from the nearest farmhouse and about a mile and a half from the nearest point automobiles could reach, officers said.

Deputies Earl Cooper and Ben Hopper dug up other bones this afternoon definitely establishing two skeletons and possibly a third, that of a baby. The skull was thought to be that of a woman in her early twenties. Some of the bones were partly decayed and there was no flesh. Some officers said they detected "odor" and the ground was "greasy". Also under study was a piece of brown paper,

SKELETONS OF TWO ARE FOUND NEAR FLOYDADA MONDAY

FLOYDADA, Jan. 21—Floyd county sheriff's deputies late today were investigating the finding of a skull and parts of at least two skeletons in Blanco canyon by a group of Petersburg boys on a hunting trip Monday.

Conflicting evidence, some indicating the bodies were placed there in comparatively recent months, and others indicating the bones may be those of Indians buried 75 or 100 years ago, was being sifted by officers here and by Hale county officials. The skull showed a fracture, believed from a blow.

Laying House Sanitation

WITH cold winter here, the nation's flocks will spend practically all of their time under cover. Poultry men, farm flock owners and even the "back-yarders" must consequently check laying houses and other poultry units to see that they are weatherproof, comfortable, and arranged for efficient handling.

Interiors that can be cleaned easily again and again promote effective sanitation which is one of the fundamentally best ways to ward off and check poultry diseases.

Smooth hard walls and ceilings free of holes or crevices enable the operator to rid the premises of dirt, parasites and germs with a minimum of effort and time with cleaners and disinfectants.

Because of its smooth, rock-like surface, asbestos cement has become a favored material for lining the interiors of poultry units. It can be easily cleaned with hose or brush and it will not deteriorate under any moisture or temperature conditions. The large boards are handy to put on and they provide a tight, maintenance-free interior which rodents will not eat through.

Willie Goes to School at 23

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Everybody's joshing Willie Wells about going back to school. They remember when Willie would hide out in the woods—scared to bring his report card home to Pa.

But under the G.I. Bill of Rights, Willie (who has a wife and baby) is getting a free education at the Agricultural College. And Uncle Sam is giving him a fine report: "Department, excellent; Progress, above average."

That goes for all those undergraduate veterans. Like Willie, they appreciate an education more than ever now. They're industrious and well-behaved—their favorite beverage is milk, or a temperate glass of beer. For them the "three R's" seem to mean: Responsibility, Resourcefulness, Restraint.

From where I sit, cynical folks who thought veterans wouldn't stick to steady habits of work and moderation—have their answer in "undergraduates" like Willie.

"If the kids come to your house after a game, give them chili, bread and butter, a bowl of fruit."

Smooth Line Social Asset to 'Teen-Agers

A SMOOTH line is the most interesting distance between two points of conversation. Practically everybody has a line. Or maybe you're just developing your own brand of chit-chat.

That's what a line is—a fund of small talk flavored with an individual's personality. Holly Miller reminds 'teen age readers of nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer.

"A line doesn't have to be insincere just because you think of things to say beforehand and they come out easily," she counsels in the magazine.

"Special features are what make a line your own. Here's one—nick-name friends for famous people. Call girl friends Hedy or Lauren and watch them preen. Fellows get a kick out of being referred to as Superman or Hope."

"Twist your own double talk. Original superlatives and epithets for your own use. Something a duller character would call 'swell' might be 'gee-gosh-gorgeous' to you."

"Listening is part of a good line. Learn how to draw out a new acquaintance with easy questions. Practicing your line is essential, she adds, suggesting that the family is the best audience for breaking in a new catch phrase or joke. If the reception is lukewarm, polish the story up a bit before springing it on the public."

STEVENSON'S RECORD PRAISED AS LONGEST GOVERNORSHIP IS CLOSED

AUSTIN, Jan. 20. A tall, raw-boned figure of a man today strode uphill across the capitol grounds from the governor's mansion at 1010 Colorado street. Coke R. Stevenson, alert and vigorous at 58, climbed the back stairs and entered his office on the second floor of the big pink granite capital building where he has been serving as governor of Texas since Aug. 6, 1941.

He wasn't on the job quite as usual at 6 a. m., but it was still long before most state employes punched the clock.

Coke Stevenson, known to political and personal friends and foes alike as a hard-working, methodical and consistent operator in whatever he was doing, got on the job much earlier than most men would have for his last full day as governor of Texas.

After all, there wasn't an awful lot of work left to do.

For Stevenson, there was little left in the office but the cleanup of an administration which has been his longer than that of any other man in Texas history.

Accomplishments Cited
While the outgoing governor's friends point proudly to the fact that under his administration the condition of the state finances was vastly improved, the highway system enlarged and public welfare aid stepped up, Stevenson himself probably takes more personal pride in some other less spectacular accomplishments.

For example, he had learned as a county judge that Texas was doing far from all that it should for its wards, such as the insane. He set out to improve their circumstances—first of all to remove them from the status of prisoners. To accomplish this aim he enlisted the aid of his old friend, the late Weaver H. Baker of Junction as chairman of the board of control. The eleemosynary institutions have subsequently been enlarged, their capacities for treating patients and other wards greatly improved, the mentally ill need no longer be kept in jails and the departing governor considers this humanitarian effort one of his greatest contributions to the state.

Record Is Upheld
In his first inaugural address more than five years ago, Coke Stevenson said he would be willing to leave his record as the basis for judgment on what he would have accomplished as governor when he stepped out. He put it this way:

"It is my fervent hope that my term of office will be characterized by honesty and efficiency in every department of our state government; that we can have an era of happiness and peace, of thrift and industry of devotion to Christian ideals under the widening influence of solid education, where refinement and culture go hand in hand with material progress.

"I earnestly request the cooperation of my colleagues in the public service. May we collectively evidence an earnest concern for the rights and welfare of every citizen regardless of rank or station.

"I am conscious that a happy people must sacrifice to achieve, without which we leave no worthy history or record in the halls of fame.

"If the register of time shows some achievement along these lines, I will be happy and contented with the verdict of mankind."

Matador will remember Coke Stevenson as the genial guest speaker, who took time out from a busy schedule during war-torn and anxious hours, to come to this small western town to deliver the principal address at the seventh annual Father-Son banquet in February, 1944.

Enrollment At Tech Nears 4,500 Total

Nearly 4,500 students began enrollment for the spring semester at Texas Technological college this week, it was announced Saturday by W. P. Clements, registrar.

Monday thru Friday was given over to pre-registration of those who were enrolled during the fall semester in order to give them priority before additional enrollees are accepted.

The 4,497 students who have begun registration are from the 5,366 who enrolled last fall, of whom about 400 have withdrawn from school during the semester, Clements said.

On the basis of last week's pre-registration, the registrar estimated from 5,500 to 6,000 students will attend Tech this spring. "We will have all we can take care of," he said.

Clements said prospective students still are having difficulty in finding places to live, and he already has been asked to return transcripts of some who planned to enroll but have been unable to find rooms.

How Would You Like to Live in the "Good Old Days"?

★ Back in grandfather's time, during the final quarter of the last century, things were quite different. There were no movies, no airplanes, no automobiles, few bathrooms, practically no efficient electrical appliances. If you contracted diabetes or pernicious anemia, your days were numbered. Your blood just "changed to sugar" in the former, "to water" in the latter.

There was little protection against virulent epidemics. Smallpox vaccine was the only biological on the market. When diphtheria or typhoid ravaged a community, there was nothing to do but wait it out in hope and dread.

Yes, a return to the "good old days" would mean, among other things, the sacrifice of the major portion of the contribution of medicine and pharmacy to your health and well-being.

Polar Explorers Have Trouble Reaching Little America Base

By Jim G. Lucas

ABOARD MT. OLYMPUS OFF LITTLE AMERICA. We've reached Little America, yet we haven't. It's just another one of those quirks of the Antarctic, and, as usual, not a favorable one.

We came upon the Ross ice shelf only a short time after we had fought our way through the ice pack. We had hoped for a final break when we reached our goal, hoped we might find conditions favorable to our mission. Today we learned the worst—there will be no respite. Deal Telling Blows

Admiral Richard Cruzen and expedition leaders know now we must fight to establish a base on the barrier. In quick succession the Antarctic dealt us two telling blows. First there was a communications blackout. We were unable to contact anything and the radio silence was disheartening. Incoming messages were garbled.

Second, we know it will be a difficult task to reach Little America, only 6 feet above the Bay of Whales. Officially, Admiral Cruzen says landing conditions "are extremely unfavorable."

There's No Easy Way

The mouth of the bay, a mile and a half wide when Admirals Byrd and Cruzen were here in 1941, now is only 400 yards across. The size of the bay itself has shrunk. Worse, there is no easy way up the slopes. After an initial reconnaissance, Admiral Cruzen reported ice pressure had demolished the ramp which was expected to facilitate our passage to the top.

The barrier rises abruptly from the bay. The surface of the ice is tortured and torn in wicked pressure ridges which only the most skilled can conquer. The bay seems filled with unbroken ice. It will be necessary for the icebreaker Northwind to spend possibly 24 hours clearing a way so the Yancey, the first cargo ship in line, can get to her moorings. But the Northwind is scheduled to leave almost immediately for a rendezvous with the carrier Philippine Sea outside the pack on Jan. 23. The radio blackout prevents Admiral Cruzen from changing plans.

One Favorable Aspect

There is one favorable aspect. The top of the barrier is reported smooth. But until we can find a way to travel the last 60 feet—after coming 10,000 miles—we are as effectively barred from Little America as if we had never left Norfolk, Va.

Yesterday, however, a group of 11 men, led by Dr. Paul Siple covered miles of pressure ridges and crevasses to the old camp. Most of them were veterans of the last Byrd expedition and they found everything just as they left it in 1941.

Ham, chicken, steaks and bacon were still good and ready for the skillet after being thawed out. Enough canned goods to supply 25 men three months were in the camp. Marine Capt. Vernon D. Boyd of Arlington, Va., even found a journal with its pages well preserved because of the lack of moisture.

To Select Site

Tomorrow a landing point and camp site must be selected. Admiral Cruzen will lead a reconnaissance party which will include Lt. Halvor Iverson of Savannah, Ga., who commands the expedition's underwater demolition team. The men will use explosives to help clear the trail. The sight of the barrier is awe inspiring and bewildering. As far as the eye can see, both east and west, is a blinding panorama of pure ice. Over the scene is a thunderous silence which even our presence could not disturb. Our helicopter suspended in midair like a curious louse lent an eerie aspect to the scene.

It's colder than it has been at any time on our trip. It was uncomfortable in the pack, but this is the cold of antiquity—an accumulation of centuries of low-zero temperatures—blowing off the barrier and into the marrow of our bones.

Already we are looking ahead fondly to March 15—the day we start our return to civilization.

Proper Diet Will Prevent Pellagra States Dr. Cox

Pellagra, although not a communicable disease, is one of great concern to public health officials in Texas for many people die of pellagra in this state every year. The disease is caused by the lack of certain essential foods, and as it comes on slowly may not be recognized until the victim begins to have the more serious symptoms such as sore mouth, stomach trouble, and reddening and scaling of the skin.

"When these symptoms appear, the disease has been present for some time," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer. "The longer an individual has pellagra the harder it is to cure. It is advisable, therefore, to watch for the early symptoms such as nervousness, indigestion, and burning of the hands and feet, and if these symptoms appear, treatment should be instituted at once. In its advanced stages pellagra may become so severe as to not only cause physical suffering but seriously affect the mind."

Pellagra is not contagious, Dr. Cox pointed out, and he emphasized that it can be prevented entirely by including the right kinds of foods in the daily diet. These essential foods include milk, fresh meat, and whole wheat products, brewer's yeast, salmon, as well as tomatoes and other fresh fruits and vegetables. The inclusion of these foods in the daily diet will prevent pellagra, and as in the case of any disease, it is better to prevent it than to try to cure it.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvis Lebow and children of Clovis, New Mexico, were here to attend funeral services of her stepfather, Doug Meador, today.

Carelessness And Ignorance Aid In Spreading Disease

Carelessness and ignorance represent two of the most powerful factors in spreading communicable diseases from man to man. No more emphatic example of this fact exists than the continued ravages of tuberculosis. In spite of the knowledge of its cause and spread, and of curative methods, tuberculosis is still a very serious problem not only in Texas, but throughout the United States, states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"It is true that tuberculosis is not first on the list of killing diseases, as it was formerly," Dr. Cox said, "but despite having been reduced to fifth place in Texas, it still is responsible for more deaths between the ages of fifteen and forty-five than any other disease. And this fact exists even though the majority of tuberculosis patients could have their condition arrested if it were recognized early and proper treatment applied. "Treatment of the early recognized case is essential. It is of equal importance, from a public health viewpoint, that the spread of this devastating infection be prevented. A more intelligent appreciation of this fact would result in the saving of thousands of lives.

"Where a diagnosis of active tuberculosis has been made, examination of all of the other members of the immediate family should follow as a matter of course. Tuberculosis runs in families, not because of any special susceptibility to the disease, but because it is communicable, being usually transmitted through close prolonged contact with the case."

Hopper-Type Feeder

LABOR saving devices put together in winter, when work is slack, will make the going easier during the rush seasons. Shown below, for example, is a mobile hay feeder which can be made from a discarded truck chassis. It will save time and labor, especially in feed lot operations.

The hopper-type rack permits the hay to be unloaded by the livestock, right out in the field. When emptied it can be easily returned to the barn for reloading, either by horse or tractor. A feeder of this kind can be moved frequently, thus avoiding mud spots, obtaining a more even distribution of manure and preventing excessive tramping down of grass.

The bed of the feeder can be made of planking and attached to the chassis by bolts. If an angle iron frame is used it can be welded to the undercarriage.

Reason precedes rules of every kind—not just those pertaining to safety—and every rule is established for the protection of those under its jurisdiction.

Plastics are making their home entrance in everything from window screens to furniture upholstery. Tharen Petersen points out in nationally-circulated Capper's Farmer.

These adaptable synthetics will be seen in many forms. Some will be pressed into fine films, some made into thread to be woven into fabric and some molded into thicker sheets, giving a leather-like appearance, she writes in the magazine read by 1,300,000 farm families. Now we can say "There's a Ford in your future at a lower cost", thanks to Mr. Henry Ford 2nd.

A Statement by Henry Ford II
President Ford Motor Co.

"ALTHOUGH more than one million of our customers are waiting for delivery of their cars at present prices, we are immediately reducing the price of every Ford car—some models as much as $50.

"This is our 'down payment' toward a continued high level of production and employment in the months ahead. We believe that the 'shock treatment' of prompt action is needed to halt the insane spiral of mounting costs and rising prices and to restore a sound base for the hopeful period of post-war production we are now entering.

"Let me review briefly the considerations which have led us to take this important step.

"The Ford Motor Company is in the mass production business. Mass production depends upon large markets. It will continue to succeed only if it can produce more and more at lower and lower cost so that more and more people can buy. Large markets begin to disappear when prices rise.

"The un-American spiral of mounting costs and rising prices has hurt everybody—some groups more than others. Many have not benefited from post-war wage increases, but have had to share the burden of resulting higher prices. Already, millions of American families are unable to buy the things which, in normal times, makes up their standard of living. In the short view, we can see inflation. In the long view, there is danger of depression.

"The period since V-J day has been an unhappy and costly period of reconversion to peacetime production. Ford Motor Company has lost millions of dollars since V-J day, even after all tax adjustments.

"But the crisis of this wild aftermath of war seems to have been passed. Our own production, though still limited by material shortages, is now steadier. Productivity of our employees, which hit a new low during the period, seems to have started its return to normal. Ford Motor Company made a modest profit for the last three months of 1946, and we intend to continue to operate in the black.

"The American economy now stands at a turning point. Mounting costs and rising prices have warranted caution and hesitancy. There is even general fear that this dangerous, un-American cycle cannot be corrected without an economic recession. We think this fear can be dispelled by common sense and action. And among free men that becomes an individual responsibility.

"The Ford Motor Company therefore proposes to accept its losses since V-J day as an item of the cost of a great and victorious war. We are closing our books on that phase of our production history. We have decided that now is the time for us to make an investment in the future.

"Because they must build up depleted cash reserves or because they are still losing money, many businesses may not be able to follow suit. But we hope that our suppliers, our employees, and our other economic partners will back, each to his own ability, our attempt to return to the economic pattern which has helped to make America great—the principle that higher wages and a higher standard of living for all depend upon lower costs and lower prices through increasingly efficient large-scale production.

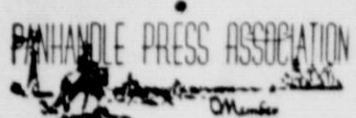

"We hope, as we move forward, that we will be able to reduce prices further, and that we will not be forced to raise them again to compensate for cost increases."

R. G. LeTOURNEAU TO SPEAK TUESDAY AT LEVELLAND

R. G. LeTourneau, millionaire industrialist who took God as his partner in business, will be guest speaker at an association Brotherhood meeting at Levelland, Tuesday evening, January 28, of the Hockley-Cochran association.

LeTourneau has attained renown on both continents for his famous Tournalay machine with which he constructs concrete homes, and among his several factories in the United States, is one at Longview, Texas. Recently his company announced shipment of the Tournalay machine to Sao Paulo, Brazil, and engineers from India also recently visited Longview to make a study of the plant there, with post-war reconstruction plans in view, to bring India to the same standard as other modern countries.

When Mr. LeTourneau first began the manufacture of his revolutionary house - building machine, he announced that he was taking God as his partner in business. He began by giving a tithe of his net income to the church, and it is said that he is now giving 90% of his income, in addition to his time, to church activities. One of his most outstanding works as a layman is that of filling some pulpits as guest speaker, every Sunday morning.

Several local men plan to hear Mr. LeTourneau at the Levelland meeting.

Jones Named New Chief

Marvin Jones, Panhandle congressman for 24 years, has been named to be chief justice of the United States Court of Claims by President Truman.

He was named to succeed Richard S. Whaley of South Carolina, who announced his retirement because of age last week.

Judge Jones has been a member of the court since 1940, when he was nominated to judgeship by President Roosevelt. He served as 18th Texas District congressman from 1916 to 1940.

He was one of the nation's leaders in agricultural affairs while a member of the House. He was ranking minority member in the House Agriculture Committee before the Democratic landslide of 1931. From 1931 until his retirement, he served as chairman of the committee.

During the war, Judge Jones took leave of the court to serve as war food administrator for two years. He also was farm advisor to the economic stabilizer. In the former post, he presided over the United Nations conference on food and agriculture in Hot Springs, Va., in 1934.

The jurist returned to the court in 1945, and has been designated an associate judge. He was a visitor to Amarillo, his former home, recently.

Dear Mr. Graham:

Mr. Sweet, who is with the Research Division of the Soil Conservation Service, and I made a moisture penetration check on your wheat land on your farm west of Silverton on September 24, 1946. We found that you had moisture penetration to a depth of fifty-two inches on land that has been cultivated with a Graham-Hoeme plow for the last two years.

Moisture penetration checks are also made on adjoining land of the same slope and same type of soil at the same time and we found moisture penetration to a depth of twenty-four inches on land which had been cultivated with a one-way plow.

Mr. Ely, who operates your farm here, asked that we send this information to you.

Very truly yours,
