

Cosden Oilers Defeat Mexican Tigers, Seven To Two

Bengals Get Seven Hits

Resley Whiffs Even Dozen Of Mexican Tiger Batters

By HANK HART
Cosden, with a new twirler on the mound, conquered the Mexican Tigers Wednesday in a 7-2 inning affair, 7-2. Resley, a new find of the Oilers, limited the Bengals to 7 hits which were well scattered. Although he weakened considerably in the final two innings, his mates had established a lead which the Tigers had little hope of overtaking. He baffled quite a few of the opposition by whiffing an even dozen of the Striped Cats.

Lopes-Stopa Spurge
Although Lopes ended Dutch Moxley's batting spurge at five straight hits, the fleet center fielder put the game on ice in the first frame by blasting a mighty circuit smash into deep left with two mates aboard.

With Resley holding the opposition into complete submission, the Oilers replicated their feat in the second when Shet West doubled to bring Cosden and Resley across, both of whom had reached first on errors by the Tiger infield. West later crossed the plate on Morton's bingle.

No further damage resulted in the third despite Pat Patton's triple into right center. The Oilers scored their final run in the fifth when Moxley walked, later scoring on Baker's outfield fly.

Tigers Score In 6th
Fierro and Albert Garcia teamed up in the sixth to chase a run across the plate and give the Tigers their first taste of scoring. Fierro scored from second on Garcia's double.

The Cats returned in the seventh to score the last of their two runs when Tony Garcia came home on his brother Juan's fly into the gardens.

Thursday the Oilers get their second test of the week when they meet a team from Stanton. The game, to be played on the West Third diamond, will begin at four o'clock.

SPORT SLANTS

By ALAN GOULD

At the risk of boring you with this foot-racing business, I'd like to say a few more words about those two great rivals, Glenn Cunningham and Bill Bonthron, who will battle each other again down the stretch of a one-mile duel this June on Princeton's fast cinder track. At least, everybody hopes it will be fast, because either of these stoutly built lads has it in him to do the mile in the astounding time of 4:06 or even better.

Out west, the idea has grown that Bonthron and Cunningham are not anxious for a renewal of rivalry with Cunningham, whereas the fact is the Tiger athletic authorities took the initiative in promoting one of the most interesting track meets arranged in years, featuring these two marvelous runners.

I happen to know that Bonthron, personally, was so anxious to meet Cunningham again that he was willing to go out to Milwaukee late in June for the National A.A.U. championships prior to sailing with the combined Princeton-Cornell team to England this summer.

Tiger Bill was naturally delighted when he discovered Cunningham also was eager enough for the fray to make his fifth or sixth trip of the year from Lawrence, Kan., to the eastern front for a special race.

A GREAT SUMMER SCHEDULE
These two renowned milers between them have a great program for the summer campaign. Bonthron may go to Milwaukee for the National A.A.U. meet so that he and Cunningham will have two good cracks together at the record. Following that Tiger Bill sails with the college team for England, where he will match strides with his Oxford rival, Jack Lovelock, in the White City stadium, just outside London, on July 21.

Cunningham, on three successive Saturdays, will run against Bonthron at Princeton, take the train to Los Angeles for the National Collegiate, then return for the A.A.U. championships at Milwaukee.

Our latest information is that the reports of Lovelock's knee injury were a bit exaggerated and that the slim New Zealander will be in prime condition for another record-breaking contest with Bonthron this summer. He declined the bid to come over for the Princeton invitation meet, June 16, but was obliged to do so because of his studies; rather than any personal objection or lack of condition.

RECORDS FALLING FAST
Two of the track and field records that were the toughest to crack for years were the mile and the shotput, yet both have now been battered beyond recognition, within less than a year's time.

Until last summer, only one runner, Ladoumègue of France, had negotiated the mile under 4:10. Since then, Cunningham has done it twice, Bonthron and Lovelock once each. All three figures to hang up some further startling performances before they get through this season.

Meanwhile the ease with which Big Jack Torrance of Louisiana State has been heaving the 16-pound ball to record distances is positively shocking to old-timers. The other day Torrance let go an exhibition heave of 56 feet 6 inches which is more than three feet beyond the present listed world record. He has done 55 feet, 1 1/2 inches in competition.

As if this were not phenomenal enough, Stanford has a 54-foot shot-putter in John Lyman and there's no telling what these boys will do when they get together.

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Thompson are the proud parents of an eight-pound boy, born Sunday, May 13. Mother and son are doing nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. McKee were visitors in Highway Community last Sunday.

All persons born or reared in Van Zandt county, Texas, are urged to attend the Van Zandt rally day, to be held in Lubbock City Park, the fourth Sunday in May. Come and bring a basket lunch. There will be singing throughout the day, especially songs in the Old Sacred Harp.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Durham and children, of Dunn were visitors in the R. M. Gillman family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Clay and little daughter, Dorothy, and Mrs. P. P. Coker and children, Margaret, Lynn and Robert, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Clay.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Summers, and family, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Richardson and daughter, Emma, Joe, were guests Sunday in the O. A. Crane home in O'Donnell.

This community and especially the school were greatly saddened over the death of Fanny Louise Summers, which occurred May 17.

Fannie Louise Summers, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Summers of the Vealmoor community, was claimed by death in Big Spring Monday night at 10:30 o'clock, May 16.

Fannie Lou had been sick with throat trouble, but was thought recovered. She was taken ill early Monday morning, and death came the same day from complications resulting from the throat trouble.

Fannie Lou was born in Johnson county, near Lillian, September 27, 1924. She was preceded in death by a little brother. She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Summers, a brother, William, and a baby sister, Ivy Ellis.

Her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hancey, of Luther, also survive. The following aunts: Misses Vio and Anna Hancey, Mrs. V. G. Doyle, Mrs. Otto Cook, Mrs. Glen Barber, Mrs. Carl Peterson, and uncle, John, R. E. Myrie, and Sam Hancey, and Jake Summers, of Burleson, Texas. Two aunts residing in Dallas.

Burial was at Bethel cemetery at Luther, Rev. Virgil Jackson, Knott minister, and Rev. Vesta Clinton conducted the services.

Eberly Funeral Home was in charge at the grave.

The following poem dedicated to the deceased, has been sent for publication:

Twins on the 7th day of May
God sent an angel down to earth

In the search of a flower along the way
It was to be one that could be transplanted,
Up in that Heavenly garden so fair;
For just any kind of flower on earth
Will not grow in that garden up there.
So He selected a beautiful rose bud,
Just opening up in bloom
It was a darling little girl,
Her life had ended so soon,
And the years will be lonely without her,
It has made us clearly see;
That we must prepare to meet our Beloved
If with her we want to be.
So if she had lived to have been a woman,
And so many great things had done;
The honors would have been nothing to compare.
With the victory for Jesus she has
For up in that heavenly garden,
And dwell forever and ever
There at Jesus' feet.

MURDER AT MOCKING HOUSE
BY WALTER C. BROWN

Chapter Six
BULL NIGHT

Twenty-four uniformed men were drawn up in two parallel lines across the Broad Room of the Fourteenth Precinct, the most out-of-the-way police district of the city. The men wore their heavy winter coats, for it had turned bitterly cold and a howling snowstorm was under way. During the afternoon the storm had made several false starts, with brief flurries, but now the flakes were whirling furiously against the steaming windows, driven by a shrill northwest wind. Lewis finished the roll call. "No

K, Sergeant," each time the round of calls was completed. A drowsy quiet settled over the Fourteenth Precinct Station, a gray stone building at the extreme end of Woodbine Avenue, just a matter of ten minutes' walk from the county line.

Sergeant Lewis sat behind the railing at the raised "charge" desk. Tiring of the paper, with its mid-winter dearth of sports news, he turned a ruminating eye toward the windows and with stolid calm watched the pounding and spattering on the panes.

Over in his corner Byers had discarded the telephone headpiece while he indulged in a game of pinocle with Officer Connolly. They played with silent concentration, the only sound emanating from their game being the sharp clap and rattling of the cards.

Lewis sat down again. He stared at the calendar pad on the opposite wall. Its bold, black markings proclaimed that this was Tuesday, January tenth.

He rustled his newspaper impatiently. He hated prolonged silences. Small talk was as necessary to him as meat and bread. So, when Clymer turned out the papers from his machine and deftly sifted out the carbon sheets, Lewis pounced on the opportunity.

"Say, Clymer, did you ever hear of a Thirteenth Precinct? This is the Fourteenth and Butler's got the Twelfth, but where's the unlucky number?"

The typist leaned back in his chair and considered the question. Finally, he shook his head. "I never heard of one, now that you mention it," he admitted.

Lewis rubbed his chin. "I guess the fellows who laid out the Precincts were superstitious."

The Sergeant flicked over the open leaf of the police "blotter," which bore the same date as the calendar pad. There was not a single scratch of writing on its blue-lined surface. "It looks like a shut-out, all right," he commented. Byers glanced at the clock. It indicated ten minutes to nine. "There are still three hours left, till midnight," he said. "On the next 'pull' I'll tell the boys to get us some business," he jested.

The Sergeant smoothed down the sheet. "Not much chance now—on a night like this. I never drew a total blank before. It must be something like a record."

A silence fell, and they listened to the wind lashing the snow against the windows with unabated fury. "It must be a couple of inches deep by this time," Lewis observed. "If this keeps up all night everything will be tied up."

There was an angry buzz from the switchboard and a tiny white bulb glowed. Byers scurried across the room and adjusted the earpiece, flinging a glance at the clock as he slid into the chair. It was two minutes to nine.

"Fourteenth," he spoke into the mouthpiece.

"Morris-1638," came the reply. "Any orders?"

"O.K., no orders." Then he dropped the crisp, official tone. "Don't get your feet wet, Morris. I'll call, and listen—we haven't a thing on the blotter. Can't you fellows give us a little action?"

"Nothing doing tonight," came back the answer. "You're lucky to be inside. It's cold as hell," was Officer 1638's forceful, if somewhat mixed, metaphor.

Byers placed a check mark after Morris' name on the list posted at his elbow. For the next few minutes the little lights continued to flash and at the conclusion of each report Byers checked the name of the patrolman. With some he exchanged brief, bantering remarks, but always cut out swiftly to keep the line open.

"Sergeant, no report from 1645—Hamill." There was a note of surprise in Byers' voice.

Lewis frowned. It was eleven minutes past the hour. Connolly withdrew his attention from the cards for a moment. "Perhaps he's coming in with something," he suggested, hopefully.

"Whether he is, or isn't, we'll be hearing from him shortly," was the Sergeant's opinion. Byers kept his earpiece clamped on and amused himself drawing curlicues on a piece of paper. At nine-twenty he glanced from the clock to Sergeant Lewis, still turning pages.

A moment later, the outer door banged and every one looked in that direction, expecting to see the thing on the blotter. Can't you stamping in from the hall. Instead, a snow-plastered and storm-buffed figure appeared, hunched and muffled beyond recognition. It was not until the man had shaken off most of the clinging snow that plastered his front, unwound a muffler and removed his hat that Lewis recognized the newcomer. It was Howard "Sheriff" Doyle, the special crime reporter for the Daily Ledger.

Doyle treated the Sergeant to a quasi-military salute. He hung his hat and overcoat on a hook. "Howdy, Sergeant. Howdy, boys," was his breezy salutation. "Seen anything of Detective Barry up here tonight? Or Steve Harper?"

U. S. Capitol Building were shrouded in a dust storm that had blown eastward from the drought-stricken plains of the middle west.

Shooting—
H. G. Wells, famous British author, visited Washington recently as a guest of Eugene Meyer. The former government official, now turned publisher of the Washington Post, sent one of his best reporters to the airport to interview Wells on arrival.

Well, proved very reluctant copy even when the reporter, unwittingly, jumped into his cab for the trip to town. As one journalist to another however the Britisher finally relented enough to talk about the forthcoming filming of one of his books.

He added he had to "get back in July for the shooting."

The reporter—who had spent several years in London as an American correspondent—knew the ground-shooting didn't start until around mid-August but he dutifully recorded that Wells would be back on Scotland's moors in July.

Next day Wells complained lightly to Meyer about his reporter who didn't understand that "shooting" was American slang for taking a movie.

What he probably neglected to say was that the reporter paid the cab bill for the mixed-up interview.

Footprints—
The latest tale affording official and social Washington a chuckle concerns the school teacher who had been drumming the story of Robinson Crusoe into her class. One morning she decided to see how retentive their memories had been.

"Tell me," she asked, "whose footprints Robinson Crusoe found on the desert island?"

After a painful pause, one bright youngster raised a hesitating hand and half-cried:

"Mrs. Roosevelt's."

Notes—
The Senate meant business when it decreed that all $1,000,000 corporations shall furnish lists of salaries and bonuses paid or be punished.

The Department of Justice is working under cover to head off New York communists conspiring to bring about a revolution in Cuba.

A movement is on in Congress to include grants to public schools in 22 states as part of federal relief.

NRA is about to make efforts to enforce codes in little businesses within the states. The Senate is expected to turn down the House bill offering $25,000 reward for every dead bandit.

NEW YORK
By James McMillan

Charges—
Some of New York's leading all-verities have a mad on at the U. S. Treasury.

They are flooding their Congressional contacts with complaints that the Treasury is rigging the silver market for its own benefit.

They accuse Mr. Morgenthau of buying silver on decline in order to lay by a fat profit for the government when the metal is nationalized at 50 cents. They further charge him with tactics designed to depress silver prices to obtain a better bargain. Three specific allegations are made on the latter score.

(1) That publication of the list of silver buyers at his instigation was planned for its barish effect on the silver market.

(2) That he has caused conflicting reports to be issued about the government's intentions regarding silver—thereby inducing fluctuations the Treasury could count on in advance.

(3) That he has used the Treasury's acquisition fund to buy American dollars in Shanghai for the purpose of cheapening the Shanghai dollar. The point is that world silver prices are largely governed by quotations in Shanghai exchange.

These charges are privately admitted to be based on deduction rather than actual evidence. It's true that a single purchaser has been buying the metal in large quantities recently but disinterested sources attribute that to British rather than to Mr. Morgenthau. As for conflicting reports—neutral observers have been by no means unanimous about their ultimate destination and their chances of reaching it. It's not impossible that the Treasury has been indulging in the maneuvers described by its opponents but they would have a tough time proving it in court.

Most informed New Yorkers rate the row a teapot tempest, but recognize that it may have embarrassing political repercussions.

Mandatory—
New York can't get excited about the federal argument in Washington as to whether silver remonetization shall be mandatory as a policy. Authorities comment that the President would retain full freedom as to method of carrying out the policy which leaves the situation for the near future exactly where it was before. "If it makes Bernah happier, why not? That's about all the difference it would make."

Of course such action would commit us legally to eventual bimetalism—but if the President were not enthusiastic about this ultimate objective—he could easily arrange to spend a mighty long time on the road.

Target—
Samuel Seabury's effort to put Lehman on the spot with his challenge to the Governor to denounce the Democratic legislators who opposed the New York City Economy Bill will be followed up. He and Kingsland Macy conceived the idea as a two-edged sword. If Lehman accepts the challenge it won't help Democratic harmony. If he ignores it he will add usefully to the store of first class material being gathered against him as a political target.

Macy—
Republican State Chairman Macy wasn't pleased by the selection of McGoldrick for Comptroller. He had ideas of his own about a successor to Cunningham. The result is increased tension between Macy and LaGuardia. Macy feels the Fulton victory would not have been possible without his help and would appreciate a few more signs of gratitude from the city administration.

Issue—
Interested bankers learn at 11:30 a.m. that Lehman proposes to pay all interest on Germany's external debt entirely in scrip hereafter. Technically this would be exchangeable at 50 per cent of its par value but the Reichsbank won't guarantee even that.

Up to now Germany has been paying 30 per cent of her interest in cash and the rest in scrip exchangeable at 67 per cent. The outlook for foreign creditors gets darker every day.

Easy—
Local insiders understand that the Soviets have a system of government financing all their own. They expect to raise nearly two billion dollars for their second Five Year Plan by the expedient of compelling the workers to contribute one to two months' salary. It's so easy. The factories simply deduct the amounts from the pay envelopes—and the workers have to like it.

Sidelights—
A battle is brewing between Recovery and Tammany wings of the local Democracy as to which shall name the candidates for comptroller this fall. Nathan Straus Jr.,

Lions Defeat Herald 11-8

Victory Pulls Lions Out Of Cellar Position In Soft Ball League

Ye Olde Beantle took hereditary spite upon his old enemy the Lions to the score of 11 to 8 to climb safely out of the cellar position in the City Softball League.

The Herald Typelice had much difficulty in getting together on their signals or something, outside of letting several sure putouts fall safely between two men they let too many go between two legs, and both fallings produced a total of 11 errors.

Pickle and Harris were the mighty men at bat for the Lions, both getting a home run apiece and Harris hammering out a triple. McMahon contributed a double to the Herald's score. The Lions batted five times to eleven for the Typelice.

thousand in the prosperous year of 1929, fell to 58 in the dark year of 1932. Children are now measurably less likely to contract communicable diseases than they were four years ago. Even tuberculosis, so often aggravated by undernourishment and poverty, has definitely decreased. This is true of pneumonia and of half a dozen other diseases which thrive on hardship. According to Doctor Lewis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the entire United States registration area showed only 28 starvation deaths in 1930 and 33 in 1931. While Doctor Dublin's report has been challenged, of one thing we can be sure: Hunger has not been severe enough to be reflected in the general death rate.

Deaths from suicide have increased considerably. More than 22,000 persons took their lives in America last year. But the suicide rate had been increasing for several years prior to the depression. The latest insurance figures indicate that the suicide rate has actually begun to decline—another indication of the nation's new spirit of courage and hope.

Many factors contribute to explain this good fortune. Outbreaks of influenza have been few and relatively mild. Weather conditions have helped. The unemployed have at least been saved from occupational hazards and overwork. Those on part time have had more leisure and more open air and sunshine. Others have been benefited by the necessity of eating and drinking more sparingly. As a nation we suffer more from the excesses of life than from restraint.

Most important of all has been the heroic work of the health services, of the medical profession, of social workers, and of men and women in every community who are determined that their neighbors shall not want. The unemployed have received not merely relief but education in healthful living. Better health information has been distributed and absorbed during the depression than at any other time in our history.

Why then need we worry? We are emerging from the depression in better health than when we entered it. Medical science continues to advance. But the health services which did such wonderful work during the hard years are now being quietly reduced. Laboratories are being closed. Doctors, nurses and investigators are being laid off. Many counties are entirely without health services. Others are economizing extravagantly. Atlanta, Georgia, is cutting its health budget $37,000; Paterson, New Jersey, $32,000; Cleveland, Ohio, $96,000; Seattle, Washington, $99,000; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, $165,000. Among the states the record is similar. Maryland is reducing her public health expenditures from $496,484 to $346,332; South Dakota from $42,710 to $25,050; Alabama from $534,703 to $438,564. Mississippi cut the 1932 appropriation of $27,769 down to $18,000. These figures are ominous. Public health work is ordinarily not in the hands of politicians. Accordingly, when the need for economy comes, health services are cut down without arousing the opposition of politicians.

If shortsighted officials are economizing by crippling public health services, they are striking directly at your health and that of your family. Doctors, like other people, must pay their bills and take care of their own families. Yet doctors usually are the last creditors to be paid. Hospitals find their incomes from paying patients gravely reduced, while charitable contributions have dwindled. The medical facilities of the country, which have served us so well, are in great danger because of lack of funds. The medical profession can't carry the burden of caring for the health of the poor. Communities must, themselves, assume part of this burden. Social agencies must be supported. To all classes medical attention must be made available. The increase in the cancer rate, an alarming rise of 16 per cent in the last two years, suggests that too many have postponed visits to their doctors. Early diagnosis of this malady increases the chance of cure. What is true of cancer is

They hit it with everything but a BUZZ SAW!

See "G-3"—the tire that gives 43% longer non-skid mileage!

HOW they mauled this newest Goodyear on the test fleet! Brakes "went out" in 8 hours—had to be relined every 72. Day and night, they scuffed, dragged and mauled these tires—but the "G-3" All-Weather kept right on rolling!

That's the tire we're offering you today—at no price increase! A tire built to stand up on the new, modern, high-speed, quick-starting, quick-stopping cars—and keep its grip 43% longer!

A tire that gives more safety—more miles of traction—on any car!

It keeps the famous All-Weather Tread—but makes it wider—puts more tread blocks in the center of the tread—more rubber—an average of 2 pounds more—in the tread! And it can do all this because it has the extra resilience, extra endurance of Super-twist—a patented Goodyear ply material in the body of the tire.

Come in and see it! It's the greatest buy in years. It costs more to build—but there's no extra cost to you!

WARNING!

Watch the rest of the industry try to copy this amazing tire. Watch them try to duplicate Goodyear's claims. But, remember, you have to have "non-skid" before you can have "non-skid" mileage. And to have "non-skid," you have to have GRIP where you see it here—GRIP in the center of the tread—the place where it counts, because it's the spot where the tire contacts the road. Look at the grip on this Goodyear Tire and ask yourself why buy any tire that lacks this safety?
