

FDR CONFIDENT PROGRAM WILL BE CONTINUED

State Finance Unit Planned By O'Daniel

Agency Similar To RFC Would Aid New Industries

FORT WORTH, Nov. 11 (AP) — Governor-elect W. Lee O'Daniel explained plans today for a state finance agency that would push through his program of industrialization of Texas.

The agency, to be organized along the lines of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, would be capitalized at from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, with funds of the organization to be used for purchase of 50 per cent of the preferred stock of new industrial enterprises to be established within the state.

O'Daniel said Texas has the resources, facilities for research and the man power necessary for establishment of enough industries to dot the state with processing plants and factories, and deplored the fact that capital is proving reluctant to invest in the new industrial organizations necessary to utilize the abundance of natural resources and assets of soil and climate.

The governor-elect indicated he would prefer that business men take over the corporation in its entirety but declared the state would if they did not. Businessmen who object to the state entering the field of private finance will be given an opportunity to subscribe the stock of the corporation, he said.

Enterprises benefited by the corporation are to be required to retire the state-owned preferred stock out of first profits, and before any dividends are declared on the stock held by private stockholders, he explained, adding that adequate precautions would be taken to prevent any wildcat promotion schemes.

"Every enterprise that seeks state aid under this plan will be subjected to the most rigid scrutiny," O'Daniel said. "The corporation will be headed by men who are experts in this field. The men back of each enterprise will be carefully investigated as to their honesty and ability in the field they seek to enter."

O'Daniel declared that with hundreds of new factories in Texas, the tax load would be divided and thus lower taxes for each factory.

30th Convention Of P-TA Opens In Lubbock Tuesday

LUBBOCK, Nov. 11 (AP)—From all parts of Texas, delegates are on their way to Lubbock for the 30th annual convention of the Congress of Parents and Teachers which opens Tuesday. Attendance is predicted to reach the thousand mark.

YOUTH HELD IN JAIL

DALLAS, Nov. 11 (AP)—A 16-year-old Indianapolis youth, who officers said, told them his desire to commit a revenge killing in Dallas led him to escape from an orphan home October 27 after slugging a guard, was held in the county jail here today by juvenile officers.

RUMANIAN PERSECUTIONS ARE PROTESTED BY CHURCH GROUP

DALLAS, Nov. 11 (AP)—Texas Baptists came to the last day of their annual convention with strong protests against asserted "dire persecutions" of their fellows in Rumania, and committed to battle any attempt to re-legalize parliamentary betting in Texas.

Departing from the usual order of business to adopt a resolution in the midst of their session, the Baptists unanimously approved a protest against conditions in Rumania offered by one of their leaders. Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, president of the Baptist World Alliance.

Nations Honor World War Dead At Tombs Of Unknown Soldiers

By The AP Feature Service

Tombs of Unknown Soldiers have become the memorials to the seven and a half millions who died in the great conflict that ended 20 years ago today. Great Britain started the custom when she buried her Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey, London, in November, 1920. France, Italy, the United States and other nations followed. The American memorial was dedicated in 1921. Here are some of the national shrines:

A double guard stands watch over Germany's Unknown at all times. The tomb is in the Grand Heroes' Day ceremony in March is held there.

In America, too, an armed sentry patrols the tomb of "an American soldier known but to God." It is located in Arlington National Cemetery, near Washington and is the center of the official Armistice Day ceremonies in the United States.

France's Unknown's grave is beneath Paris' Arc de Triomphe. Veterans daily replenish its Eternal Flame (in circle, foreground). Italy's "Ignoti Militi" lies near Mussolini's residence. The tomb was dedicated on Italy's Armistice Day, Nov. 4, in 1921.

Britain's cenotaph to "the glorious dead" is the setting of its Armistice Day ceremonies. At all times Britons bare their heads when passing.

Is Optimistic Over Results Of Elections

Sees No Threats To New Deal's 'Liberal' Policies

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — President Roosevelt said today he did not believe the results of Tuesday's elections constituted any threat to the continuation of liberal government.

Returns "All Right" At his press conference, Mr. Roosevelt declared he thought the election returns were all right.

A questioner, referring to the president's speech on Friday before the elections, asked Mr. Roosevelt whether he believed the outcome of the voting, which resulted in heavy Democratic losses and Republican gains, constituted a threat to the continuation of liberal government.

The president replied that he certainly did not think so.

At the same time, he predicted that he would not encounter what one of his questioners called "coalition opposition"—presumably the combining of Republican and anti-New Deal Democrats against administration proposals to congress.

He expressed belief his congressional program would be accorded about the same reception as before.

Mr. Roosevelt chuckled heartily when the reporter questioning him on this point said bluntly he believed there would be such opposition.

For the first time, he disclosed election predictions which he made and sealed in an envelope soon after going to Hyde Park the middle of last week.

As a political prognosticator, he remarked, he was pretty good. He figured New York state results, Mr. Roosevelt said, just about the way they came out.

He was wrong by 200 on senate races, he said, having predicted the loss of seven Democratic seats whereas the Republicans actually gained eight.

He said he was less than twenty seats off on his house predictions since he had figured the Democrats would suffer a net loss of 95 seats whereas the actual Republican pickup was 81, with one race still doubtful.

The president and his advisers will have to decide within a few weeks whether to try to push through a heavy legislative program despite reduced Democratic ranks or to confine the session largely to smoothing out new deal laws now on the books.

Mr. Roosevelt returned last night from Hyde Park, N. Y., to find that even the final returns in two class senate races offered the administration but a modicum of cheer.

Although Senators Frederick Van Nuys of Indiana and Guy Gillette of Iowa apparently had bested Republican opposition, both men have been allied with the Independent Democrats often critical of new deal proposals.

Furthermore, Indiana Republicans were demanding a recount of Van Nuys' vote.

Such unofficial results pegged the Republican capture of Democratic senate seats at eight. The Democrats will have exactly a three-to-one margin in the next senate—69 seats against 23 for the Republicans. There also are two former laborites, one progressive, and one independent.

The president's reaction to the sizeable turnover necessarily will be reflected during the next few months not only in any political statements but also in his legislative proposals. Few if any informed persons in Washington believed he would change his objectives, but some suggested he might revise his procedure to obtain greater congressional support.

STEERS AFTER UPSET WIN OVER PONIES TODAY

Armistice Finds Nations Preparing For Another War

RED CROSS MEMBERSHIP DRIVE TO GAIN HEADWAY NEXT WEEK

Primed by an advance residential campaign, the annual roll call of the Howard county Red Cross chapter will be pushed on all fronts next week in an effort to achieve the goal of 2,500 memberships for this year.

Shine Phillips, chapter chairman, said Friday that all phases of the drive were being consolidated into a concerted campaign to finish the job quickly. He predicted that the public would rally to the Red Cross and subscribe its local budget of $1,000.

With only a few of 75 women workers reporting Thursday evening, the chapter headquarters had $69.50 on hand. Most successful of the residential groups were those west of San Antonio street who continued to bring in memberships after exceeding the quota established for that area.

Monday the Red Cross drive will be organized at Coahoma and Fossil. Glasscock county is making preparations for a thorough canvass and solicitation in the rural areas of Howard county already has begun.

The thing which will give the roll call its greatest impetus is the downtown drive Tuesday morning under the direction of J. H. Greene. Districts are being assigned and will be predicted by Ben Cole, roll call chairman, that the work would be finished in a single day.

Once more the public will be reminded that the Red Cross spent $4,000 for rehabilitation and relief here following storm damage June 11. In addition to this, the chapter carried on a $2,500 program, including an excellent home hygiene course.

Chief item on this year's local budget is $1,000 for a public health program planned with the idea of inviting other agencies to cooperate. Another $600 goes to the welfare division.

Phillips called attention of the public to a Red Cross broadcast Saturday evening, starting at 9:30 o'clock over the Texas Quality Network. The program will dramatize the story of Red Cross in Texas.

Teams Clash At 2:30 P. M. Visiting Warriors Weakened By Injuries To Stars

Two gridiron machines, one a red and white streamlined job from Sweetwater that seemingly has too much man power, the other a wheezy, chugging contrivance of Big Spring high school that has never been able to click on all cylinders at the same time, collide this afternoon and the local model appears to have its finest chance to win a ball game.

If the local battalion is going to break the tape this fall this must be the time. The scene is set for a rocking upset that a crowd of 5,000 or more will amble into the stands for the possibility of watching. Never this year has the outlook been more in its favor. The Mustang squad that is advancing is one riddled with injuries and one that apparently is just its peak but one, nevertheless, that is ranked as an overwhelming favorite to reap the profits and keep its chances alive for a possible sector championship.

A week ago the once proud giant of Oil Belt gridirons was knocked literally to its knees by a hip-dipper San Angelo attack. Only Trojan efforts on the part of a tired line and the great kicking of a great kicker earned a scoreless deadlock for the red and white.

That magnificent booster, incidentally, is Jake Webster, a 185 pounds of versatile athlete who is just about as finished a punter as they come. Webster was cut down, however, in a terrific body block by a San Angelo charger last week and will sport a hobble into the game today. Whether he can stand off the repeated hammerings of a galaxy of Bovine body slayers for 90 minutes is doubtful but he will open the fray, nevertheless.

Cooperation, of course, will be lent by a blonde headed howitzer labeled Buck Wetzel whom Steer linemen should remember only too well. When it wasn't Webster pounding around at the local sidelines in the first meeting of the two teams it was usually Wetzel. The flash who will wear No. 29

German Jews Face New Bans

Restoration Of Old Ghetto Foreseen In The Reich

BERLIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—Nazis predicted today a restoration of the ghetto for Jews under new restrictive decrees promised after the Thursday upsurge of anti-Jewish violence.

The Jews, said the Nazi informants, would be compelled to live and do business only in the ghettos of their city. Their shops would be tolerated only in sufficient number to supply the needs of the Jewish communities. (Walled and gated ghettos had their origin in Italy in the 16th century. They were known in a dozen cities.)

The Nazis are confident the new decrees will mark the final liquidation of the Jewish issue in Germany, and that there will be no more anti-Jewish outbreaks like those of yesterday in which millions of dollars of damage was done in the smashing of Jewish store windows, the looting of shops and the burning of synagogues in a dozen cities.

They attributed the present outbreak entirely to a wave of resentment for the slaying of Ernst Vom Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris, by a Jewish youth.

The new decrees were discussed by Chancellor Hitler and his advisers in conferences until late last night.

Conferring with Hitler were Field Marshal Goering, chief of the four-year plan for economic independence; Rudolf Hees, Hitler's deputy in party affairs; Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop; Propaganda Minister Goebbels and officials of the ministry of the interior.

Goebbels promised the decrees when he called a halt to the demonstrations.

Citrus Prorate Is Blocked By Committee

REDLANDS, Calif., Nov. 11 (AP)—C. M. Brown of Redlands, chairman of the growers advisory committee of the California-Arizona citrus prorate, announced early today that establishment of a prorate for the coming week by his committee had been blocked and that unlimited marketing will be permitted next week unless Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, in Washington, fixes a limitation.

Brown, in a formal statement, said California growers are suffering because no limitation has been placed upon shipments from Florida and Texas. He charged that in the five years of the program has been in operation, it has cost California-Arizona ranchers $750,000 but "prices have gone lower and marketing of fruit has been no more orderly than it was without the expensive machinery."

GAME RE-STOCKING IN STATE REACHES RECORD PROPORTIONS

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—The annual report of the state game department to Governor James V. Allred today showed all records had been broken the past fiscal year in the restocking of fish, quail and deer and the rescuing of fish from streams about to dry up.

Game Commissioner Secretary Will J. Tucker said the department had distributed more than 14,000 quail and 371 white-tailed deer, the deer numbering almost four times as many as in 1937.

The secretary said the commission's nine hatcheries, during the year ending Aug. 31, had produced more than 3,000,000 fish, nearly all of fingerling size, for distribution to the public lakes and streams.

Rescue operations carried on by wardens placed nearly 3,000,000 fish in fresh water. Tucker said the quail, for which there was an unprecedented demand, were sold to sportsmen on a cooperative basis, one bird being given free with each purchased. They were bought from importers who trapped them in Mexico.

The resolution was aimed at a law described by Dr. Truett as effective Dec. 15, under which churches will be required to include at least 100 heads of families in order to be recognized as churches. This, said Dr. Truett, would bring about closure of all but about 30 of the denomination's churches in Rumania.

THE SPORTS PARADE

by HANK HART

We consider Jake Webster, the scarlet jerseyed gringo who will be kicking them around out there in Steer stadium this afternoon, a better punter than Derace Moser, the Stephenville war horse of a season ago and that is something.

Derace, in this corner's opinion, was THE booter of the state last fall. He could kick them far and many for the Yellow Jackets, almost led them to a district championship. That's the major reason Texas A&M spent so much time in getting him to listen to reason. Derace was a slapsie-maxie, coffin corner booter from way back. When he stuck his tootsies into the swine oval it knew where it was going, saw so many red flags that it threatened to take a fever.

Jake can go him one better. He can boot them high and he can boot them low, as just as accurate on either signal. They're probably still looking for a couple he pushed up into the stratosphere the other night against San Angelo. And, he's getting better.

Today he's going up against a pretty fair hand in Alton Bostick, the slender quarterback who gets more distance than he looks to be but the Sweetwater ace will probably give the invaders from over Nolan county way a seven to ten yard advantage in that department.

For that reason and for several more this chronicler foresees a clean cut victory for the Sweetwater Chargers, though not as one-sided as before when the Coyotes tore into the Bovines with all their fury and rumbled to a 25-0 victory. Probably two touchdowns, possibly three.

Over in Abilene San Angelo should find themselves in third place in the league standings after being floored by Dewey Mayhew's Eagles who are campaigning for the district flag and who have not exactly gone state. It looks like a C War Birds by a couple of six-pointers with both teams crossing the double white lines.

The real high school game of note that is attracting plenty of attention finds Tyler pitted against Longview in a game at Tyler. Ed Henning's crew has the advantage of playing in its own back yard but don't go to giving away those three touchdowns just because the Lions happened to beat Texarkana, a team that tied Longview. It does look like Tyler comfortably but it will be no run away.

In the college picture looks like twinnings in capital letters: MU over Arkansas, Kay Eakin makes a big difference. TCU will tash Texas. TEXAS A&M should trip Rice but will have to watch their line play.

BAYLOR should have no trouble with Loyola of L. A. LSU can trounce Alabama Poly. ALABAMA will edge Georgia Tech. HOLY CROSS is capable of tossing Brown. CARNEGIE TECH should run over Duquesne.

CALIFORNIA should rebound at the expense of Oregon. COLGATE over NYU. COLUMBIA will have trouble with Navy. DARTMOUTH looks good, even with the Big Red of Cornell looming. DUKE should get around Syracuse.

GEORGETOWN, one of the unbeaten and untied clubs, should have its hands full with West Virginia but can win. Joel Hunt can't hope for much when his Bulldogs of Georgia tangle with TULANE. TEXAS TECH can win over Gonzaga.

OHIO STATE looks the better in its argument with Illinois. OKLAHOMA looks more rugged than Missouri. MICHIGAN STATE will down Marquette. NORTHWESTERN may tip Michigan. This can go either way. MINNESOTA may surprise the Irish of Notre Dame. Nebraska cannot hope to stop

Arkansas Gets Nod, Rice Looks Better Than Farmers

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—Thankful that nothing can be worse than last week's debacle, the football corner offers the following more or less well-chosen comments on this week's program:

Notre Dame-Minnesota: The Irish, may be over-due for a fall, especially when called upon to meet such rugged opposition, but this corner strings with Notre Dame.

Tennessee-Vanderbilt: Tennessee appears headed straight for the Southeastern Conference crown.

Texas Christian-Texas: More long faces for Texas' Longhorns. T.C.U. Fordham-North Carolina: Fordham but the Rams will have to battle.

Nebraska-Pitt: Even with Gold-berg out, Pitt seems to have too much stuff for inexperienced Nebraska to handle.

Oklahoma-Missouri: Out of the hat, Oklahoma.

Carnegie-Duquesne: An uncertain vote for Carnegie.

Auburn-Louisiana State, L.S.U. over a disappointing Auburn team.

Tulane-Georgia: Tulane, Southern Methodist - Arkansas: Eadie, meente.

Texas A. and M.-Rice: Tough to figure but Rice seems on the way back and gets the nod.

COWHANDS DEFEAT YEARLINGS, 19 TO 0

Today Final Day For Qualifying

Today is the final day in which young golfers may qualify for the City Junior golf tournament being held at the Municipal course. Match play is slated to get underway Saturday morning and continue each Saturday thereafter through the 28th.

Any youngster 17 years of age or younger may participate for the meeting. Entry fee is 50c and proceeds will go toward the purchase of prizes.

Locals Fail To Threaten Foe's Goal Line

Horace Bostick is Outstanding Defensive Star. Scoring touchdowns in the first, third and fourth quarters the Lubbock Cowboys, junior high school team of that city, decided the Yearlings, local freshman Yearling, 19-0, here Thursday afternoon.

Forsan Wins Over Westbrook, 55-6

FORSAN, Nov. 11—Scoring in every quarter the Forsan six-man gridder turned in their most impressive performance of the season as they trounced the Westbrook Wolves, 55-6, here Thursday afternoon. Coach Brady Nix used every available man in the rout and seven took part in the scoring with Benny Ashby the only man to tally more than once.

The last six-pointer came when Lonsford intercepted Redwine's pass and dashed 38 yards into the end zone. Willis flashed brilliantly for Forsan but suffered an unfortunate accident on the last play of the game, breaking his nose in a pileup.

Bulldogs And Eagles Scrap In Coahoma

Individual Battle Of White And Echols Watched. COAHOMA, Nov. 11 — All the Bulldog regulars who were ailing when the Fluvanna team was met last week appeared to be ready to go today as Coahoma's gridder prepared to line up against the Ackerly Eagles here this afternoon.

THE GREAT WORK OF THE RED CROSS

The American Red Cross formally opens its annual Roll Call in Big Spring and this area today, and although the membership drive already is off to a gratifying start, the bulk of the work remains to be done. It is not how much any one person gives, but how nearly all the citizens make their nominal donations that spells success or failure for the campaign locally.

This section, as well as all Texas, owes a great debt to the Red Cross. Practically every American citizen does, as a matter of fact. This can be shown from the consideration of the organization's activities. Here are some boiled-down facts: The American Red Cross assisted sufferers in 174 disasters throughout the United States and its insular possessions, and by contributions to foreign countries during the year ending June 30, 1938. Red Cross aid was extended over a wide geographical range during the fiscal year, 41 states and 247 counties having been affected.

Through these disasters and times of community distress, the Red Cross assisted 420,000 persons. Figures gathered at random from the year's report of the Red Cross revealed the magnitude of the other work being carried on.

Red Cross workers in 1,214 chapters assisted 165,049 veterans or their families; 870 Red Cross public health nurses paid 1,043,954 visits to or in behalf of patients; with a total of 193,281 cases under care, 295,028 first aid certificates were issued while 88,150 persons were trained in life saving. Volunteer workers produced 4,591,753 surgical dressings, with 197,397 volunteers being on active duty throughout the year.

The Red Cross through its 3,715 chapters, insured an organization for relief in virtually every county and community in the United States and in its insular possessions.

The annual membership of adults in the Red Cross last year was 5,823,585. The Junior Red Cross enrollment of school boys and girls was 9,070,958.

The Red Cross is supported by the public through membership enrollment once each year. When great catastrophes occur, an appeal is made for contributions from the public to be expended for relief in that disaster, and these funds are not set aside for that work and do not become a part of Red Cross funds.

Figures don't always make interesting reading, but the above are presented to give an idea of the great scope of the Red Cross work. The point to be remembered is the personal element behind these figures—the human beings who are helped each time disaster strikes, each time tragedy or misfortune calls. It is through the Red Cross that the greatest manifestation of humanitarianism is taking place in this nation today. Remember that, and become a participant in the noble work.

THE POLITICAL OVERTURN

The republican victories on Tuesday are so general that political forecasters will not be too rash if they predict the election of a republican president in 1940. For it has been, I believe, an invariable rule of American politics that a decisive turn at the mid-term elections means that two years later the ins will be replaced by the outs.

There has been a decisive turn. In the region where national elections are decided, in the populous states east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio, the returns reveal a change so great that its momentum in the next two years would be virtually certain to produce a republican landslide. New England has gone solidly republican. The results in Michigan, Ohio and Indiana signify an unmistakable reversal of the political conditions which have prevailed since 1928. Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York the returns show that on Tuesday in a national election the republicans could have carried them all.

The fact that Governor Lehman, Senator Wagner and Representative Mead were elected in New York does not weaken the conclusion that New York has today a republican majority for president. Mr. Lehman was elected by a small plurality, by approximately the same plurality as that which elected Mr. Roosevelt to the governorship in 1928 during the republican landslide of that year.

Had the New York election been an isolated contest, one might perhaps ascribe the closeness of the result to the exceptional strength of Mr. Dewey's campaign. But looking at what happened in the neighboring states of Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, there is little doubt that the main cause was an incoming tide of republicanism that marks the end of democratic supremacy in the nation.

The old rule, which has held good since 1880, seems to hold still—that in each two-year period the republicans win the presidency for three terms and the democrats for two terms.

Although the president and his party still have an impressive numerical majority in both houses of congress, it must be obvious to them that the democratic majority will have studied the election returns. And those returns show clearly that the president and his advisers completely misinterpreted the elections of 1936 and took a fundamentally wrong course in consequence.

Two years ago Mr. Roosevelt was elected by a landslide in the electoral college, which gave him every state but Maine and Vermont. But his popular vote, as some of us tried to point out at the time, was not essentially greater than the vote polled by Harding, Coolidge and Hoover. The electoral college vote, because of the Solid South, produced an optical illusion, which made it seem as if Mr. Roosevelt had been elected by acclamation and that his opposition had been annihilated.

Spell-bound by this optical illusion, Mr. Roosevelt jumped to the unwarranted conclusion that he had a personal mandate from the people as a whole to reconstruct American society. It was in this mood that he projected the so-called Third New Deal with the plan to control the federal courts as the means of overcoming the obstacles.

The defeat of the court bill proved to any objective observer that there never had been any such popular mandate as Mr. Roosevelt chose to believe he had. The correct practical conclusion to be drawn from the 1936 election was that the time had come to consolidate and perfect the innovations of the New Deal, and to use the second term to conciliate criticism and to ally class discord in the interests of national unity.

A policy of that kind would have meant a recognition that after four years of crisis and of bold innovation, a democracy must have a period of rest, of calm, of persuasion and appeasement. If the progress made was to be maintained, and if further progress was to be made, there had to be the political and social peace of an era of good feeling. It was only by treating his victorious reelection as the signal for a policy of magnanimity that Mr. Roosevelt could possibly have perpetuated his party's control of the nation. For a policy of continual struggle and unceasing restlessness was certain, as any detached observer could see at the time, to provoke a great popular reaction.

The returns on Tuesday show that the reaction has come, and they indicate that whereas two years ago the president could have had an area of good feeling by his own choice, by an attitude of magnanimity, today he will have to take extraordinary steps to conciliate the opposition if his last two years are not to end in bitterness and frustration. He faces a trial like that of Wilson after the election of 1918 and of Hoover after 1930; if he is still the political leader he has been, he will not make their mistakes.

He will believe the election returns. He will reject the advice of the die-hard among the New Dealers, and, bowing to the popular will, he will place above "the objectives" of the New Deal the greater objective of a domestic peace which brings national unity. America is to be reeled by internal struggle, and to ally that struggle he will address his opponents and his critics as their president, not as the leader of a faction; he will draw into his councils more men who represent the prevailing temper of the people; and he will get rid of those advisers who do not appreciate what has happened; he will propose, before they are forced upon him, such changes in the laws and their administration as responsible and progressive men have been urging. He will, in short, respond to the popular will so clearly expressed on Tuesday.

THE MAN WHO LAST PLAYED WHEN AUCTION WAS THE VOGUE

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds — by ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Messrs. John Ford and Jack Benny, and Miss Shirley Temple, will please rise and take bows.

Have you bowed, Mr. Ford? Then let's talk about why. It's the way you directed "Submarine Patrol." It does you proud, sir.

When you break it down, "Submarine Patrol" is just a story about a little wooden sub-chaser doing its work in the late big war. SC-509 is a chaser, and it chases a chase, especially when you do it, and work in your usual suspense and action, is the stuff that made the movies great. You've got two great chases in "Submarine Patrol." You had to put people like Warren Hymer and Slim Summerville and George Stone and J. Farrell MacDonald in the scene, and give them all lines and bits of business that make each one of them a bit of a star. You had to put Preston Foster in there as skipper, and just to show you how he felt Preston turned in his best work since you handled him in "The Informer."

You made it all revolve around a romance, or maybe it's the other way around. You made dimpled Richard Greene extremely likeable, and I think this new kid, Nancy Kelly, is going to be a star the more quickly because of your movie. She has spirit, and beauty, and she can act. Oh, you knew that? Well, it's good to see George Bancroft in a sizeable part again, and Henry Armetta has never been funnier—or Elisha Cook, Jr., or Maxie Rosenbloom, for that matter.

I liked the way you worked in those sentimental strains, Mr. Ford. You don't recall? Well, the scenes of the splinter-boat putting out to sea, with the mugs aboard thinking thoughts as they pass that old Manhattan skyline duty-bound. I liked your whole movie, in fact, sir . . .

Just one little bow, Shirley, and then home to your spinach. "Just Around the Corner" little girl, there's a career as a grown-up actress waiting for you. "Just Around the Corner" is one of your best movies, certainly your best in many a hundred miles of celluloid. You've given you a smart little story, full of laughs, and Director Irving Cummings has given you wider rein than your talents usually receive. The tomboy in you comes out, young lady, and it's to the good. I've a hunch there's many a tired business man, however rich, who'd like to have you give a benefit for him.

You had plenty of help, Shirley. Cummings is first, and then the romantic support of Charlie Farrell and Amanda Duff, who is new, nice and pretty. I liked your team, Binnie Bartlett, and of course Joan Davis and Bert Lahr, and crusty old Claude Gillingwater, Bill Robinson and the rest. "Just Around the Corner," that is, if you're of you, is very much worth seeing.

Ready, Mr. Benny? Just one bow, please—and who asked you anything about flavours? Oh, you don't need a reason to like a bow? But without you "Artists and Models Anonymous" wouldn't be much more than an average musical. Yeah, I know Joan Bennett's pretty, and the Yacht Club Boys sing, and Charley Grapewin and Mary Boland are great. But it's you, my shrinking violet, that make it all click. With you, even that display of outlandish dresses and stuff by the best designers is funny—but maybe it wasn't intended to be. Yes, I think it's mainly your show—but a swell one.

Under the next street light I found the roadster that had been Charlie's pride and joy for the summer before, when he was on graduation leave. I sat behind the wheel, conscious of a homesick pang. I had driven this car in lighthearted moments. . . . Only a year ago. It had been a good summer—commencement behind me, and ahead vague rosy dreams of fame, based on nothing more tangible than a small check for my first story. Beside me, Charlie, looking like a new-hatched chick in his swanny officer's uniform. The sunmer-schoo gang; campus parties; miles and miles along the lake in the roadster with Eileen and her current youth singing like angels in the rumble seat.

A good summer, our last at home. It was all changed now: Dad rambling through southern France on his sabbatical; Charlie's father transferred to Los Angeles, their house sold; Eileen singing determinedly against the incessant clatter of my typewriter and the periodic, devastating typhoon of the elevated outside our window. And Charlie—Charlie drinking himself out of the picture because a girl named Anne Carewe had got herself engaged to another man.

And Anne Carewe lying on a chaise longue with a bullet hole in her back. . . .

I remembered his conversation with Elizabeth that afternoon, and ran my hand along the back of the driver's seat. The gun was there, wedged in behind the cushion, the grip where he could put his hand on it.

I drew it out and looked at it with the distrust I always feel for pistols. I had shot Charlie's twenty-two rifle when we were

by GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I wouldn't recommend Sixth Avenue to everybody, but I think you'd like it. It's dirty, but it's different. It crawls in squalor at the way through midtown and takes a sudden turn far up at Central Park.

I like it because you can find practically anything you want, if it's of a picaresque, junkish nature—I mean old magazines, curios, back copies of foreign newspapers, greasy smelts, Irish motion pictures—you get the idea.

There's a fiddler's shop where a man makes violins and bows. Next to him is a greasy soup restaurant with breast-of-lamb luncheons for 29 cents and hash-with-egg for 15 cents. A few steps further is a cinema house featuring "The Rose of Trale." You can find Kipling's novels in Spanish, and "art" magazines and cheap portraits of every description. The nudists really take over the place. "Nude Raking Autumn Leaves." "Nude Drinking From Gourds." "Nude Climbing a Picket Fence." "Nude Tossing Pebbles Into a Stream."

Magazines with strange foreign titles feature body lines of smartly uniformed German officers. Under a pile of dusty Greek newspapers I found our old friend Peter Arno—or rather one of his books. The man who tried to sell it to me also had a nice pearl eickpick which would relinquish for only $6. Fortunately I didn't have $6.

He also had a trick pack of cigarettes made especially for people who are always bumming cigarettes. When a bummer says "Gimme a cigarette" you hand him this pack, and the cigarette he takes out has the word "Chisler" written on it. That's supposed to be pretty devastating. He wanted only 40 cents for it. Fortunately I didn't have 40 cents.

Just as I was about to move on a woman came in and recognized an acquaintance. "Hello, Ellis," she said. "Did you know my daughter

THE ARMY POST MURDERS

By Virginia Hanson

CHAPTER EIGHT CAPABLE OF MURDER

Somebody was breathing hard at my shoulder. I turned.

"Charlie!" I whispered. Fear shot through me and left me trembling.

His face was paper white under the golden dawn that covered it like peach fuzz, and his odd, yellow cat eyes had the brilliance of topaz. He looked wild, tigerish; his hand closed on my arm and the fingers sank in like claws. But he was looking past me at that tragic, down-fung form.

"She's dead," he said suddenly in a shockingly ordinary voice.

The crowd panicked. Some women began to laugh. Doc Moore glanced up from his examination, said something in a low voice, and Adam, with courteous, relentless finality, forced us all out of the room.

"Everyone wait, please," he directed and closed the door.

"Quick, someplace where we'll be alone," I whispered to Charlie. He merely stared at me stupidly.

I took his unresisting hand and hurried him across the floor to the reading room. For the moment we had it to ourselves.

"Listen, this is serious," I said, trying to fix his wandering, feverish gaze. "Listen, Charlie—please pay attention to what I am saying. You realize this is murder, don't you?"

The vacant yellow eyes looked back at me impersonally.

"Well, what of it?" he asked crisply, and I saw what I had missed before, that he was very drunk.

In that moment of horror it was possible for me to believe anything. I remember looking him over quickly for suspicious signs or bulges. He was untidy—his tawny hair was mused, there was wrinkles in his white mess jacket and slacks; but there was no suspicion of a gun on his lean, tail-sir . . .

Ready, Mr. Benny? Just one bow, please—and who asked you anything about flavours? Oh, you don't need a reason to like a bow? But without you "Artists and Models Anonymous" wouldn't be much more than an average musical. Yeah, I know Joan Bennett's pretty, and the Yacht Club Boys sing, and Charley Grapewin and Mary Boland are great. But it's you, my shrinking violet, that make it all click. With you, even that display of outlandish dresses and stuff by the best designers is funny—but maybe it wasn't intended to be. Yes, I think it's mainly your show—but a swell one.

Under the next street light I found the roadster that had been Charlie's pride and joy for the summer before, when he was on graduation leave. I sat behind the wheel, conscious of a homesick pang. I had driven this car in lighthearted moments. . . . Only a year ago. It had been a good summer—commencement behind me, and ahead vague rosy dreams of fame, based on nothing more tangible than a small check for my first story. Beside me, Charlie, looking like a new-hatched chick in his swanny officer's uniform. The sunmer-schoo gang; campus parties; miles and miles along the lake in the roadster with Eileen and her current youth singing like angels in the rumble seat.

A good summer, our last at home. It was all changed now: Dad rambling through southern France on his sabbatical; Charlie's father transferred to Los Angeles, their house sold; Eileen singing determinedly against the incessant clatter of my typewriter and the periodic, devastating typhoon of the elevated outside our window. And Charlie—Charlie drinking himself out of the picture because a girl named Anne Carewe had got herself engaged to another man.

And Anne Carewe lying on a chaise longue with a bullet hole in her back. . . .

I remembered his conversation with Elizabeth that afternoon, and ran my hand along the back of the driver's seat. The gun was there, wedged in behind the cushion, the grip where he could put his hand on it.

I drew it out and looked at it with the distrust I always feel for pistols. I had shot Charlie's twenty-two rifle when we were

I was conscious of a pang of disappointment. Elizabeth must have gone back to the party. Her car was not in sight. Well, I would go in, hide the gun and leave. I could at least say I had been looking for her.

The knob turned under my hand—doors are never locked on a post—and I entered softly, remembering Annie's promise to be in early.

The lights were on in the front of the house, but I saw no one as I tiptoed through the hall and up the creaky stairs. I found my suitcase in the dark, removed the pistol from the capacious sleeve of the mandarin coat where I had been carrying it, and buried it under some lingerie. Then I locked the suitcase and put the key in my evening bag. That much, at least, was done.

But on my way downstairs a disturbing thought came to me. How long had Elizabeth been gone? Could she give an alibi for the time of the shot?

I tried to dismiss the fantastic thought, but it kept coming back, and with it Adam's recital of Barney Nelson's love tangle, as the tabloids would have phrased it. Not that I believe Elizabeth capable of murder. The thing, I repeated, was fantastic. But what about the gossip-mongers? Would not they be the first to scream "Motive?"

And as with the high-minded intention of proving an alibi for her, I snooped. There may have been some excuse for my meddling in Charlie's affairs. This was none for what I did now.

The telephone was on the colonel's desk. I entered the den, closed the door and spoke softly into the transmitter. A man's voice answered me—the soldier operator of the private exchange.

"I'm expecting a long-distance call," I said in a voice I tried to make casual. "Can you tell me if anyone has tried to get this number in the past half-hour?"

I was prepared to hear that Omaha had called, whereupon I would ask the time of the call. But the operator dashed my plans.

"No ma'am. There's been no long-distance calls tonight."

Replacing the instrument, I dispelled my impulse, trying to dispel my awakening suspicions with the reminder that Elizabeth had said her father might telephone. One thing was certain, however. Not even to Adam would I confide what I had learned.

I opened the door of the den, and there, at the far end of the hall, framed in the outer doorway, was Elizabeth.

She looked startled at sight of me, and I thought she even caught her breath.

ABIG Thinkin' "VICTORY"

One lawsuit ran on for over twenty years, cost thousands of dollars, and created endless trouble—over the ownership of a calf. The calf grew up and died of old age, but the trouble went on in court. . . . Pride often finds offense where none was meant, or where it is of no importance.

In hand-to-hand combat, a man could vanquish a skunk, but it would be much wiser not to let such a tussle go to trial!

Why not do all our fighting for something worthwhile? In this business we go to bat daily for the more complete satisfaction of all our customers.

This was 179,478,000 or 16 per cent in excess of the previous record attained in 1936. Natural-gasoline production virtually kept pace with crude-oil production, rising 15 per cent to a total of 49,177,000 barrels.

Although bensol production declined rapidly in the last quarter because of shutdowns in steel mills, the total for the year rose to 2,790,000 barrels from 2,502,000 in 1936.

Imports of crude oil declined from 32,327,000 barrels in 1936 to 27,484,000 in 1937. The national average value per barrel of crude oil rose from $1.09 in 1936 to $1.18 in 1937. The average production per well per day rose from 8.7 barrels to 9.8 barrels. Texas production increased nearly 20 per cent to a new peak of 510,318,000 barrels.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The bureau of mines reported today that 1937 crude petroleum production set an all-time record of 1,279,160,000 barrels.

Twenty Years After World War The Big Question Remains: 'Who Won It?'

Post-War Treaties Crumble As Dictators Build Their Empires

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Twenty years ago today the world "celebrated" the end of a war that cost at least seven and one-half million lives and close to two hundred billion dollars.

For what?

Events during the double decade of post-war years cast a deep shadow of doubt over the idea that the war was a triumph for democracy. Certainly no absolute ruler ever imposed a more undemocratic peace on vanquished peoples. And out of the war settlements have sprung the ideas of such dictators as Mussolini and Hitler.

Moreover, historians seem heading toward the conclusion that the chain of post-war treaties may yet prove to be the prize mistakes of civilized society. They have bred the seeds of more wars, or threats of war, such as the Czechoslovak scare of September.

The most important peace document was the treaty of Versailles. Before and for a while after that dictated peace was signed, the war looked like a victory for the Allies and their democratic form of government. But today you can choose your side in the debate, "Who won the war?" and likely no more than half right.

Here is a quick outline of the penalties imposed on the defeated nations, and what has happened to those penalties in 20 swift years:

Territorial

AFTER WAR: Germany lost Alsace-Lorraine, the Polish corridor, the ports of Memel and Danzig, and smaller strips of territory. Other pre-war holdings, such as the Saar coal basin, were withheld, with provisions for plebiscites. Allied nations took over Germany's far flung colonies in Africa, Shantung and Pacific islands.

AND NOW: Alsace - Lorraine and the Polish corridor are the only penalties Germany is willing to consider permanent. The Saar voted to return to Germany in 1935. Nazi dominated Danzig; German power is felt in Memel. Germany has just announced her intention of winning back her million and a quarter square miles of colonial empire.

Football Star Event Draws Interest

Many Contenders For Honors In Radio-Sponsored Contest

First indications point to a tremendous response in the campaign to name "All-Texas Football Star of the Year." Zerk Hurt, sports supervisor of the Texas State Network, Fort Worth, announced Thursday as he pointed out that the state-wide move for recognition of the outstanding college and high school football player of Texas would get under way November 11, during the "All Texas Football Round-Up" program to be heard over Station KBBT and the Texas State Network from 7 to 8 p. m.

David Gibson, Ki Aldrich and L. B. Hale of T. C. U.; Billy Patterson and Sammie Boyd of Baylor; Dick Todd and Boyd of Texas A. & M.; Moera and Lawson of Texas University; Ernie Linn and Ole Cordill of Rice; Ray Mallouf, Billy Dewell of S. M. U.; and the Great Tarbox of Texas Tech all loom as great contenders for the coveted silver-gold trophy award.

These players however, must vie against outstanding players too numerous to mention from Howard Payne, leading contenders for the Texas Conference championship; T. W. C.; A. C. C.; Hardin-Simmons; St. Mary's; St. Edwards; Austin College; McMurtry College; West Texas State, and others.

For the trophy to be presented to the most outstanding high school player, coaches from over Texas have already turned in an amazingly large list of contenders: Tom Gillespie, left end, and Norman Puddle, quarterback, Forrest Avenue High, Dallas; Dick Dwelle, Johnny Seay, Hugh Munnell, Highland Park High, Dallas; Milton Crain, Brackenridge High, San Antonio; Bill Thompson, Stanley Mauldin, Anna High, Amarillo; Hubert Allen, Cleo Bomar, Berger High, Berger; Hatton Hightower, Paschal High, Fort Worth.

Coahoma

taught school at Coahoma 37 years ago was there greeting the men and women who he taught. When he taught in the building that was located a mile and a half of the present plant (it is now a barn used by Thad Hale) he had five pupils. When he left two years later, he had 45.

R. M. Wheeler recalled that some member of the Wheeler family had been in the Coahoma schools since they first opened in 1892. He was one of Stripling's students.

Following the parade, the band started a concert and a big crowd gathered to hear. Dr. D. D. Jackson, Texas Tech faculty member, was present to make the dedicatory address for new portions of the $100,000 school plant at Coahoma. Norman Reed was to review progress of the schools in recent years while Miss Johnnie Boyce was to give the history of the schools.

Bulging baskets of food were on hand for the old time picnic to be spread on the school lawn. After lunch there was to be an open house inspection of the school and equipment, and the Coahoma-Ackerly football game was to climax the celebration.

Old timers thought that the Friday observance had brought the largest crowd ever to come to Coahoma. The program for the day was arranged by George M. Boswell, superintendent, and board members.

Eastland Woman Named Head of Federation

AUSTIN, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Texas Federation of Women's clubs, representing 60,000 members, headed into its 42nd year of activity today with Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins of Eastland as president.

At a final session of the 41st convention last night Mrs. Perkins pledged her administration to make Austin the capital of women's club work and outlined a program for centralizing the federations' activities.

Other new officers were Mrs. George M. Cox of Austin, vice president; Mrs. Fred A. White of Port Arthur, second vice president; Mrs. Van Hook Stubbs of Wortham, secretary, and Mrs. J. W. Walker of Plainview, treasurer.

Military

Germany and some of her allies were disarmed by the Versailles treaty at the demand of the French. A large strip of the Rhine-land was demilitarized. Germany's army was limited to a "police force" of 100,000 men. Her navy and air force were wrecked.

Hitler has reformed the Rhine-land; recruited more than a million men for his standing army; established Europe's greatest air fleet with some 4,000 planes. He has agreed to limit his navy though to 35 per cent of the British strength.

Financial

The Allies, determined to make Germany bear part of their war costs, billed Germany in 1920 for 64 billion dollars.

But that's not the whole picture of the post war world. Two important victors in the World War believed the treaty of Versailles cheated them of their share of the fruits of victory and therefore have caused almost as much furore as Hitler himself.

Italy knocked off Ethiopia without so much as a by-your-leave, and joined up with Germany in the Rome-Berlin axis. That just about ended the League of Nations which was to have guaranteed the peace of November 11, 1918, is reduced to impotency.

Germany is becoming increasingly strong in central and southeastern European diplomacy and economics.

Japan is invading China, civil war divides Spain.

The treaty of Versailles has been torn up.

Germany remembered her 2,000,000 war dead but there was no observance of the anniversary of the day Germany acknowledged defeat.

It was cleaning-up day for Jews after violence yesterday to avenge the slaying of Ernest Vom Rath, secretary of the German embassy in Paris, by a young Polish Jew. Millions of dollars of damage was done in the smashing of Jewish store windows, plundering, and burning of synagogues in a dozen cities.

Nazis predicted a restoration of the ghetto for Jews under new restrictive decrees which, they were confident, would mark the final liquidation of the Jewish issue in Germany.

supremacy at a cost of $14,000,000,000 a year. Even the United States, a leader in disarmament, is striving for the most powerful navy in history and a vast air force.

Twenty years after the World War, the League of Nations which was to have guaranteed the peace of November 11, 1918, is reduced to impotency.

Germany is becoming increasingly strong in central and southeastern European diplomacy and economics.

Japan is invading China, civil war divides Spain.

Several Injured In Bomb Explosion

HOUSTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Several persons were injured today when a small bomb, scheduled to be used as a signal to halt an Armistice Day parade for a moment of prayer, exploded on a street corner.

Football

In today's fray rarely lost ground once he wrapped his digits around the pigskin and started looting toward the wall.

But, whereas Webster and West had upon them the must be inexperienced men to replace Thomas Headrick, a blocking half who will not even suit out for the fray, and Cecil Voss, a great end, whose high school playing days are reported over, H. Pollard will assume Headrick's duties in the secondary while the job at Voss' terminal post will probably fall to Bill May.

The Bovines apparently are in good shape. U. S. Hall, an early season hopeful who almost faded from the picture in midseason, is in the groove, has beaten out both Henry Bug and Bobby Savage for the right wing position. Both Bug and Savage are ready to back him up. Chuck Smith will probably go 60 minutes at the other terminal post. Clyde Smith is around pressing Durwood Dearing for the right tackle post while James Wheat, the 235-pound tank, is a fixture on the other side of the line. Winnett Nance will probably be in there playing at a guarding spot at the first bell, having shoved Hal Battle momentarily to the sidelines, will team with Bill Fletcher at the guard positions while Bobby Martin is slated for the signal barking job, an insertion that has shoved Alton Bostick into a half back position and crowded D. R. Gartman to the bench.

With Martin in there it looks like a menu of passing with more passing for dessert. Both Martin and Bostick can pitch the swine hide and an exciting if not a close battle is in prospect provided the breezes don't get riled up. Apparently the Herd running game is one of the cylinders that is missing, lack of which forces them to resort to another process.

For no less than nine Big Spring players will today's affair be the last conference go and probably the last game of their high school careers. Completing their eligibility are Chuck Smith, Clyde Smith, Durwood Dearing, Alton Bostick, Ross Callahan, U. S. Hall, Henry Bug, James Wheat and Howard Hart.

US Davis Cup Hopes Gone With Budge

America Apparently Has No Chance To Retain Trophy

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Davis Cup is a gone gossling with the decision of Donald Budge to take the $75,000 and launch his professional tennis career against Ellsworth Vines here on January 3.

Budge won the big trophy from the British almost single-handed a year ago, and his mighty play enabled this country to turn back Australia's fine challenge last August on the moth-eaten courts of the Germantown Cricket club.

Now the garish bowl can be crated up and prepared for shipment either to Australia or Germany, depending upon whether Baron Von Cramm, the German ace, is forgiven the misstep that sent him to jail last winter.

If Von Cramm is chosen on the German team, and his months in prison did not break his spirit or rust his game, he and Henner Henkel should be good enough to whip any combination that either Australia or this country can put on the court. Otherwise, it looks like Australia.

When Budge signed the papers, Uncle Sam was left with a prospective Davis Cup team of Bobby Riggs and Gene Mako and a varied assortment of mediocre probabilities. It is the weakest line-up this nation has had since the Davis Cup matches first were contested.

Raiders Seek 8th Victory

17,000 Expected To See Gonzaga Try For Upset

LUBBOCK, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Texas Tech Red Raiders laid their undefeated, untied record on the line today against the Gonzaga Bulldogs, a team famed in the northwest for its speed and deception.

Tech was seeking its eighth victory and a crowd of 17,000 was expected to jam into the stadium for the kick-off at 2:30 p. m. (CST).

The Raiders were in top physical condition.

The Bulldogs declared they had been pointing for Tech ever since the season started and declared they had a good chance of tumbling the Raiders from the ranks of the nation's ten teams with "perfect" records.

Tony Canadeo, who ran 105 yards for a touchdown against Washington State; Ray Hare, line-smacker; Cecil Hare, long-passing star, and Al Bradford, signal-caller and pivot man for the deceptive attack, headed the Gonzaga offensive. Elmer Tarbox, who has scored 48 points, was the big gun in the Tech backfield.

Probable starting line-ups:
TEXAS TECH—McKnight, le; Latch, lt; Waddep, lg; Williams, c; White, rg; Murphy, rt; France, rb; Flusche, qb; Holmes, lb; Tarbox, rh; Marek, fb.
GONZAGA—Lansing, le; Bryant, lt; Eaker, lg; Schlosser, c; Croteau, rg; Hanson, rt; Weed, re; Jacobson, qb; Canadeo, lb; Ray Hare, rh; Cecil Hare, fb.

Officials — Referee, Schwartz; Rice; umpire, Murrell; Army; linesman, Parcels; Northwestern; field judge, Dyer, Rice.

Windsors May Spend Christmas With Royal Family

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP)—Friends of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor expressed belief that the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, who arrived in Paris today, brought an invitation for the former king and his American-born wife to spend Christmas with the royal family in England.

WHITE AND BUCS MEET BULLDOGS

COLORADO SPRINGS, Nov. 11 (AP)—Whizzer White, professional football's $15,000 "freshman," led his Pittsburgh Pirates against the Los Angeles Bulldogs in the new Will Rogers memorial stadium at nearby Broadmoor today. The kick-off was at 3 p. m. Central Standard Time.

White came back to his home state for the first time since he left it as an all-America back, a Rhodes scholar and one of the highest-paid yearlings in the history of the salary grid league.

FDR WILL ANNOUNCE APPOINTMENTS SOON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today he soon would announce a number of appointments, probably within a week.

Asked at his press conference whether Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan, defeated Tuesday for re-election, was included, Mr. Roosevelt said nobody was on the list yet.

The calm of election aftermath had brought renewed speculation that the chief executive was contemplating his first cabinet shake-up.

Mr. Roosevelt said in reply to a question he did not know whether a supreme court designation was included. Nor, he added, did he know whether Governor Murphy would go to the Philippines as high commissioner to succeed Paul V. McNutt.

As for the cabinet change rumors, among those mentioned as possibly involved were Secretaries Swanson of the navy, Working of war, Roper of commerce, and Postmaster General Farley.
