PRICE TEN CENTS

TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

My intuition is not extremely sensitive, but it seems to be more effective when based on some facts.

Age is like rising water in a cistern. It finally reaches a point that can no longer be ignored, and the single alternative is to swim the best you can.

It is a sobering thought to realize that clocks and watches in no way affect time. They are merely instruments of measure, like a ruler applied to a piece of rope; the length of the rope is not affected.

There is a melancholy solitude about old wagon roads left like gentle wrinkles in little valleys and on the divides. Grass and mesquite have grown over what was once important thoroughfares for dreamers, and erosion has covered most of the scars of use. The plodding feet of horses, the sounds of creaking wheels, the songs, the whistling, the curses and the prayers of the drivers have fallen into the sea of silence. The dust is gone; the ashes of old camp fires, the grounds of coffee boiled in a tin bucket are now a part of the soil. Time has swept the stage where dedicated actors once performed.

The uncertain frequency of problems keeps most of us strung too tightly to retain modulation when the tempo is changed.

Each will give a prepared speech on the Constitution of the United States and an extemporaneous speech. This is the first time that Fleming Post has sponsored the contest, although it is a national contest.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Cox of Harlinton, Montana visited during the week end in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lipscomb. Mr. Cox and Mr. Lipscomb are cousins.

A COWBOY, Jim Stockton, on the Matador Ranch found an automobile Monday that had been missing from a Floydada driveway since August 14. He was riding the Matador pasture with Tutt Garnett and other Matador hands when he sighted the car.

It was in a deep canyon just west of the Q&P railway track, about 150 yards south of the Plains Trail Highway, on top of the Cap Rock. Stockton and Garnett called other cowboys, and Matador Ranch Manager Jim Cross, who notified Sheriff J. D. Spray's office.

The car, a 1968 Ford Torino, showed less than 17,000 miles, and was the property of Tim Ward, Floydada radio KFLD announcer, and was taken from his driveway, August 14. Steering wheel had been tied with the seat belt, and the car either pushed or allowed to run off a bluff over 50 feet high. It lodged upside down on a ledge and did not reach the bottom of the deep canyon. The upholstery had been slashed and two radios torn loose.

The car was dragged up the west canyon wall by El Matador Travel Center wrecker, and brought to Matador. Sheriff Spray and Deputy Bobby Williams investigated the find, with Floyd County officers, and District Attorney John Stapleton.

El Progreso Club has Program On Genealogy by Guest Speaker

Mrs. Bill McCaghren was hostess to El Progreso Study Club for a program on Genealogy as it met Monday, Oct. 28. Mrs. Nolan Fulkerson of Lubbock, guest speaker, presented the program.

The president, Mrs. Robert Darsey, welcomed the guest and members, and thanked the hostess for her hospitality. She also gave a short resume of the Santa Rosa District Workshop which she and Mrs. Furman Vinson attended in Quanah on Oct. 14.

Mrs. Frank Pohl, leader of the program, introduced Mrs. Fulkerson, a long-time friend and former Matador resident.

Mrs. Fulkerson told the group how to get started as a genealogist, saying it is a most interesting and rewarding hobby, and a very popular one at this time, but not one that can be done in a hurry.

She told the club members that they could find answers to their questions in many and varied places, including headstones in a cemetery, county courthouses, and in Washington, D.C., especially for military records. Census records, she said, were first kept in 1750, and cited this as a good source of information. The most complete records available are located in Salt Lake City, Utah, Mrs. Fulkerson stated. Her listeners were made more appreciative of their ancestors by many of the stories she related.

Members of the club gave interesting facts about their family trees, in answer to roll call.

Mrs. Douglas Meador closed the meeting by giving the Inspirational Thought. Others present were Mesdames John Barnhill, R. E. Campbell Jr., A. J. Daffern, J. M. Hill Jr., W. F. Jacobs, W. D. Lipscomb, R. W. Overstreet, W. N. Pipkin, Fred Simpson, Ralph Stapleton, J. R. Whitworth, Harry Willett, J. L. Woodruff and John Fitzgerrel, and Misses Amy Glenn, Sue Glenn and Mary Keith.

TLA Will Seek State Aid in the Establishment of Library System

by Rita Groves

The Texas Library Association will ask the 61st Legislature to pass a bill providing for the establishment of a state library system and state grants to aid in the establishment and development of the system.

The purpose of the bill is to encourage the educational and economic growth of the State by raising the level of library service equally available to every citizen.

Texas spends $5,700 to educate each child for 12 years in its public schools. It then spends $72 during the next 50 years to provide the public library materials to fully utilize and extend this education.

Texas city and county governments spend an average of $1.24 per capita annually on public library service. By comparison California spends $3.89 and Massachusetts spends $4.61. One million Texans—10% of the population—have only 85 of one book per capita. It would take 1,656,065 additional books to increase resources to the bare minimum standard of one volume per capita.

Library systems are the means of improving this situation without sacrificing their local autonomy, two or more libraries can link themselves together by contract to form a system. The contract specifies what services each member library is to provide and receive and what the compensation for these services shall be.

The purpose of these contractual agreements is to improve library service in the area which the member libraries collectively serve, and to make the library resources of the area equally available to all. A system is what the member libraries want it to be. They join voluntarily, they contract for the services they want, and, though it is unlikely that they will want to do so, they may withdraw if they choose.

Because the needs of library users have become complex, excellence of service is too costly to be achieved by one library. Just as a store may sell at 35 cents each or 3 for $1.00, good library service costs less when bought in quantity.

Any library which meets criteria set by the State Librarian may join the system. A library must achieve a certain level of service and a certain level of local support before it is eligible to participate in the system and receive the benefits of state aid. The system will consist of a network of library sub-systems which will collectively serve the entire population of the State.

The State library system evolves from the bottom up, not from the top down. System participation begins at the Community Library level. The governing body of a Community Library, acting upon the advice of the librarian and library board, decides to join a system by contracting with an Area Library for certain services, such as reference or book processing. It submits a proposal for system participation to the governing body of the Area Library.

Being a member of the system means to community and area libraries these things: Reference referral services. Requests for information may be referred from the community library to the area library, to the major resource research libraries. The community library user can draw upon the total library resources of the State to find the information he needs. Specialists in adult, young adult, and children's work can train and advise local librarians.

The system will work. It already is working. In administration of the Library Services and Construction Act, the Texas State Library has used federal funds to begin the establishment of a state library system. State funds must be provided, however, if the system is to be improved and enlarged.

Local citizens interested in having a public library in Motley County should contact either Bill Heatley of Paducah, Motley County's Representative and chairman of the Appropriations Committee, or Senator Jack Hightower of Vernon and ask for their support of a bill establishing a state library system.

Senior, Group Pictures Taken

by Judy Marrs

The senior class took another step toward graduation Friday morning, October 18, when they had their senior pictures made.

Jim Vaughan of Webb's Studio in Childress took the pictures.

Mr. Vaughan also made group pictures for the '69 La Arena. The groups included FFA, FHA, Drum and Bugle Corps, M-Club, and high school and grade school football teams and pep clubs.

Students of MHS Take Iowa Tests

The quietness that filled MHS Monday and Tuesday, October 21 and 22, was not normal for the talkative students. But when silence was called for during Iowa Tests, the student body cooperated.

The Iowa Tests of Educational

Development are to give both the student and the teachers a better picture of the student's general educational development. The tests show what background of ideas the students have in the social studies and in the natural sciences, how well they can read and interpret different kinds of materials, how readily they can solve arithmetic problems, and so on.

This information is valuable for several reasons. It shows how our school compares with others and indicates the subjects in which it needs most improvement. More important, the test scores help the teachers plan the lessons for the coming year.

Seniors Have Dress-Up Day

The senior class shocked the student body October 18, when they all came to school in their Sunday clothes.

There was not a special reason for dressing up, but since they had to look nice for their senior pictures, they decided to look nice all day.

Mr. Moore, the principal, remarked that the seniors could be told from the other students, not by the way they acted, but by their appearance.

"Matador Boy" Opens Pep Rally

by Debra Stockton

The traditional "Matador Boy" opened the Sundown pep rally October 18.

A play by play account of the Matador-Sundown game was given by newsmen Jeanette Day and Melissa Bailey for the skit. Melissa was skit girl of the week.

Following the skit, speeches were made by Mrs. A. L. Fair, Mr. Chas. Johnson, Randall Elliott, and Stanley Martin.

Mrs. Fair told the story of a handicapped beauty queen and related it to the necessity of overcoming mental handicaps which might hinder a person's playing ability in sports and in life.

Mr. Johnson highly commended the girls for their support to the team and praised them highly for retaining their high spirits.

Mr. Kennedy ended the rally by announcing Stanley Martin, a junior, as game captain of the week.

COME TO CHURCH SUNDAY

COUNTY AGENT PALLEYER SAYS:

The annual 4-H awards banquet will be held Monday night Nov. 11th in the American Legion Building in Matador. Additional information will be given next week.

Information supplied by Texas farmers and ranchers will become the basis for the official crop production, poultry and livestock estimates for each county and the state. Farmers and ranchers in Motley county who receive these are requested to fill them out and return. Accurate estimates are of great importance to producers in planning production and marketing, farm program participation and also for providing an unbiased picture of Texas agriculture.

The program of estimates for each county is provided by the Texas Legislature, and is a joint project of the Tex. Dept. of Agriculture; and the Statistical Reporting Service of the USDA. Questionnaires on crops should have been received the last half of October, and the one for livestock and poultry will be mailed the last half of November.

Cotton stripping is an efficient way to harvest, but the amount of lint in the trailer will depend on the operator's ability to cut down on field losses.

To reduce these field losses the stripper should be adjusted properly, taking into consideration the stalk height and texture and the fruiting pattern. The tension on the stripping rows and pressure on the stripping bars are most important to assure a clean pass.

The speed and travel of the machine should be checked by first making a test run of rows and observing the plants for skinned or barked bases. If they are skinned or barked, the operator should see which side is off center and make his adjustments. Plants should also be checked for broken tops which will indicate too much pressure on the stripping rows or too fast a travel speed.

Large stalks or branches can catch lint which should be processed and adjustments should be made to carry as much pressure on stripping rows as possible without barking. Here again, it is important to slow down the speed.

Skippy or thin rows of cotton should be harvested carefully to avoid throwing bolls out of the front box. Rubber or chain curtains in front of the box, set about 18 inches down, will usually keep bolls from being thrown out of the front.

Finally, weedy fields or sections should be stripped separately from the rest of the crop to insure cleaner lint and better prices.

It takes a little time to check and adjust a cotton stripper, but when you consider the extra returns obtained from higher quality cotton plus the extra part brought in from the field, it will probably be the highest rate per hour you ever made.

According to Economic Outlook for Hogs, by John McHaney, Extension Economist, Hog slaughter this fall (Oct., Nov. & Dec.) is expected to be a little smaller than during the same months in 1967. This is based on the fact that 10 Corn Belt States on Sept. 1 reported 1 to 2% fewer pigs in weight groups that will provide the bulk of the fall slaughter. We assume the same situation is true in other hog producing areas.

Prices likely will decline seasonally during the rest of 1968. For the fall months, as a whole, they should be a little higher or about the same as those received in the last 3 months of 1967 when prices in Texas averaged $17.13. Underlying factors include the small reduction expected in slaughter supplies during the last 3 months of 1968 and some further growth in the consumer demand for red meats.

Hog slaughter in the first half of 1969 will probably total larger than during the first half of 1968. The Sept. 1, 1968 inventory report for 10 Corn Belt states estimated 5% more light weight pigs which will move to market next winter (Jan., Feb. & Mar. 1969). Producers in the 10 Corn Belt states also reported plans to have 4% more sows farrow during the period Sept. 68 — Feb. 69. The larger slaughter supplies in prospect for the winter and spring of 1969 likely will renew downward pressure on hog prices.

The 1969 spring pig crop, Dec. 68 — May 69, is also expected to increase. Farrowing intentions for the Dec. 68 — Feb. 69 quarter only, for 10 Corn Belt states, are up 4% from a year earlier. The total 1969 spring pig crop may be up in the neighborhood of 5% from the previous year. These pigs will be marketed later in 1969. If the increase in the 1969 spring pig crop is around 5%, "summer and fall prices in 1969 may very well feel the affects of this increased supply."

The hog-corn price ratio (bushels of corn equal in value to 100 lbs. of live hog) during the first half of 1968 averaged 17.4, compared to 15.2 in the same months of 1967.

During the July — Sept. 1968 period, the ratio averaged about 19.6. At present corn prices, some point out that all costs of hog production in well-managed operations can be covered at a hog-corn price ratio of about 14.5. If this is correct, one can understand why producers have been encouraged to expand production.

responsible industrial firms have already installed pollution-control equipment and they are complying with state and federal standards. It is the industrial renegades who are refusing to comply with our anti-pollution laws, and who lobbied Amendment Six through the Legislature and who are telling us that they won't abide by the law unless they are rewarded with a tax-subsidy.

Amendment Six is a pig-in-a-poke proposition. The enabling legislature has not yet been passed; in fact, it hasn't even been seen. We don't know what kind of a tax-subsidy bill the industrial polluters will force through the next Legislature if Amendment Six is approved, and we don't know exactly how much of their tax tab we will have to make up out of our own pockets. But as one who fought hard (and unsuccessfully) for tougher anti-pollution laws, I know full well the awesome power and influence wielded by the lobby for the industrial polluters in Austin. They could easily jack up the tax bill of every home owner in Texas, and they wouldn't have second thoughts about doing it.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

Texans must be alerted to Amendment Six on the general election ballot. This is one of the most outrageous tax-subsidy schemes ever attempted to be foisted off on an unsuspecting public. If approved by the voters it would authorize the Legislature to enact a law exempting industrial pollution-control equipment from all ad valorem property taxes imposed by the State, counties, cities, school districts, junior college districts and all other political subdivisions.

Of course this tax-loss would then have to be made up by homeowners. In Michigan the tax-loss for air pollution control equipment alone has been 134 million dollars. The best estimate of the tax burden that the homeowners of Texas would have to make up, if all of our air and water pollution control equipment is exempted from all property taxes, is in the neighborhood of 150 million per year, and it could skyrocket to a figure well above that amount.

Since I represent the most heavily polluted area in the State I would pay any price and support any proposal which offers a reasonable promise of reducing air and water pollution. But all experience in the few other states which have adopted this method proves beyond all doubt that the tax-subsidy approach does not contribute one iota to any reduction in either air or water pollution.

I have voluminous correspondence with public health officials in other states, and each one tells me that the key to reducing pollution is strict enforcement of existing Federal and state anti-pollution laws and the enactment of tougher laws where needed. Subsidizing polluters to do what the law already requires them to do is a permissive approach which has not worked where tried and which must be rejected by the Texas voters. Most re-

Join the Tax Rebellion. Vote Against Amendment Six.

Sincerely,

Rep. Rex Braun, Harris County

UCI graduates to have "summa cum laude" on her diploma shows that it didn't hamper her academic acumen.

But then, there isn't too much that could keep Henriette Underwood down, certainly not a busy schedule. A determined young woman, she didn't let her role as housewife and mother stand in the way of her education. Nor did she forfeit that role. Being a good wife and mother always came first.

"I tried not to let anyone suffer because I was in school," said Henriette, who is married to Charles Underwood.

"I tried to be home every day when my daughter, Sabrina came home so she wouldn't be alone. I always cooked all the meals and did my housework," she said, adding, "Of course, during finals, things got very hectic around here."

Henriette's major was philosophy, a subject that attracted her in many different ways.

"I love philosophy, but it's hard to tell you why. I suppose it's because I always had so many questions that needed answering."

"One definition of philosophy is that it is an attempt to answer leftover questions. I've always liked that and kept it in mind," she said.

To Continue Education

Henriette will have lots of time to ponder the "unanswerables" in the next few years. She plans to continue her education and obtain a Ph.D. Then she'll remain in education, a field in which women have been accepted as equals.

"I have very strong feelings that the type of job undertaken influences the degree of discrimination against women," said Henriette.

"In some jobs women are given a lower salary than a man doing the same work. In my opinion, the woman should be paid equally since she is really undertaking two jobs . . . the other being her responsibilities at home."

"The academic world, however, is relatively free or is one of the least prejudiced fields," she said.

Henriette's three years at Irvine have been her only contact with American schools since she has only lived in the United States for eight years. But she likes what she's experienced.

"American education seems profitable to the individual," said the student, who was born in Paris and received much of her education in Perigueux.

"It is true that much is thrown at you in your undergraduate years. But graduate schools provide a place for study in depth. So much needs to be read and studied. There is never enough time."

Henriette passionately believes in education, not only for what it has brought her, but for what it can bring to others.

"A bachelor's degree is only a beginning," she said. "Personally I would like to see everyone with a college education. Perhaps courses could be offered to part-time students so that people could at least broaden their horizons in a limited way. Perhaps there could be a special division."

"Everyone should at least have the opportunity. And students without incentive should get that incentive from teachers."

The value of education, to Henriette, is boundless.

"Definitely, hopefully, education provides understanding. It instills a desire to get to the bottom of things. It encourages open mindedness and gives a person confidence. Materially, it enables Henriette believes that education has propelled her toward becoming the kind of person she would like to be. Ultimately, her goal is to be happy.

"But for me being happy can be described two different ways. First, it is making other people happy, and second, it is accomplishing things."

And as if she weren't already doing enough, Henriette wants to be more active, more involved in campus and community activities. She wants to fill her time, for in her own words, "time is not precious if it is not filled with beautiful memories."
