Lone Man Takes $38,000 From Dallas Bank Guard

Automobile, Pistol Taken From Victim

Cash Being Transferred From Federal Reserve Bank

DALLAS (AP)—A man wearing smoked glasses, with his face powdered, robbed John N. McCommas, special guard of the Mercantile Bank & Trust company here of $38,000 Friday morning.

The guard was starting to enter an automobile at the rear of the bank to transfer money to the Mercantile Bank and Trust company. The robber took McCommas' pistol and escaped in the guard's car, which was found abandoned a short distance away.

The Federal Reserve bank is located at Wood and Akard streets, at the edge of the main business section of the city. The robbery was evidently well planned, and McCommas said the robber was a young man, wearing a loud checked suit.

The loss was insured.

Apparently the Big Spring schools must be closed right away—or the teachers must work without pay for March, April and May.

Only about $2,000 of the $25,000 warrant issue offered for the purpose of raising funds sufficient to meet the pay rolls has been sold. One man took $1,000—ten of the $100 warrants. The remainder of the sales have been to those able to take only one or two of these $100 warrants.

That there is more than $25,000 in cash available from individuals in Big Spring is, it appears, pretty generally conceded.

Therefore, we take it, those able to buy considerable blocks of warrants, either do not believe they are good investments, or do not care whether the school teachers are paid or not.

There is, of course, always the excuse that the school board has not been as economical as it should have been. Most of those who offer that criticism are the folks who would not offer any advice or suggestions to the board, many of them fearful that they would learn facts that might undermine their contention of waste of school funds.

Tigers Defeat Coahoma Nine

Payne and Bishop Hurt Scoreless Ball in Late Innings

A storm of errors in the earlier innings enabled the Mexican Tigers to win over Coahoma 6 to 4. Coahoma out hit the Big Spring team 9 to 4, but could not connect off Payne in the pinches after batting Subia out of the box in the third inning.

Texas Company Puts Fire-Chief Gas On Market

A new gasoline, produced according to government specifications for use in ambulances, fire engines and other emergency vehicles, was on retail sale here Friday.

Announcement of the new fuel was made by local officials of The Texas company who said the product, to be known as Texaco Fire-Chief gasoline, would replace the original "dry gasoline" introduced by them in 1926. The new gasoline sells at no extra cost.

Salads to Serve in the Spring Help to Whet Family's Appetite

By JOSEPHINE GIBSON
As spring calls for new clothes, new activities and new interests, so it calls for new foods. It is time to lighten the menu, give it a festive touch, introduce something that we have never served before!

Carrot Salad: Mix 1 small package of cream cheese, 1-2 cup very finely diced carrots, and 10 chopped Stuffed Manzanilla Olives. Form into 12 small balls and roll each in minced parsley. On a bed of crisp lettuce place 3 paper-thin slices of carrot and on each a carrot ball. Garnish with Mayonnaise.

Frozen Cheese Salad: To 1 package soft cream cheese, add 2 tablespoons Roquefort cheese. Season with salt, pepper and 1-2 teaspoon onion juice. Add 1-2 cup highly seasoned French Dressing and 1-2 cup chopped Stuffed Spanish Olives. Pour into trays of mechanical refrigerator and allow to freeze.

Tomato Juice Aspic: Soak 1-2 tablespoons gelatin in 1-3 cup cold water. Sliced 2 cups Tomato Juice, 1 medium sliced onion, 1 stalk of celery, 3 sprigs of parsley, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 4 cloves, 1-2 teaspoon salt, and 1-3 teaspoon Pepper Sauce for 45 minutes. Strain; add hot liquid to gelatin, and stir until dissolved. Pour into individual molds and cool. Serve on crisp lettuce. Serves 6. Note—Chopped vegetables may be added to make a tart vegetable salad.

It was trays to start. It responded quickly to the slightest touch of the accelerator. In warm weather, when the engine became heated, the fuel continued to burn evenly and completely, with an absence of so-called "vapors." Its noticeable absence of heavy ends meant that no unburned gasoline seeped past the cylinder rings. It meant freedom from crankcase dilution, longer life to the motor oil, minimum repair bills and assurance of proper lubrication with the right grade of oil in the car.

Octane Number Improved
The Texas Company, however, continued its efforts to develop an even better motor fuel, a fuel which under the most adverse conditions imaginable could be relied upon to the utmost. The result is Texaco Fire-Chief, a great improvement over the original Texaco "dry gasoline" as the latter was over the motor fuels generally marketed in 1926.

"In Texaco Fire-Chief all of the superior qualities of Texaco 'dry gasoline' have been not only retained but intensified. The octane number of the new fuel has been materially improved so that it is now outstanding in anti-knock quality among non-premium gasolines.

"For use in emergency equipment, such as fire engines, ambulances and military vehicles, the United States Government has specified since 1931 a gasoline known as 'Motor Fuel V.' An advanced process, developed and perfected by The Texas Company, made possible the production of this 'ideal' gasoline on a commercial scale and made it practicable to offer it for retail sale at no extra price.

Austin, April 10.—James E. Ferguson, with 11 places to choose from, hasn't made up his mind yet where he and Mrs. Ferguson will open their campaign in their first speeches next month.

Tom F. Hunter, Wichita Falls candidate for governor, is out warming them up for later campaigning. He began his speaking tour two weeks ago in East Texas and swung around through the Southwest, speaking, among other places, at Huntsville, the Ham House ten shrine city of Texas. He reported, during a visit to Austin this week, that he has had satisfactory audiences in many cases filling to capacity the courtrooms or other places where he spoke.

Pat M. Neff, inarticulate and silent, is keeping very much to himself the date of his retirement from the railroad commission.

C. V. Terrell, chairman of the commission, and Mr. Neff do speak to each other, regardless of the blood-curdling letters they write one another through the convenient medium of the commission.

CEREAL RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought New Health

Every one who has suffered from constipation should read Mr. P. M. Fisher's letter:

"For many years I suffered from constipation and used, for relief, all kinds of laxatives. After a few days' treatment, I would only find my condition the same as before and at times worse.

"Some time ago I started to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly, once a day as directed. Since doing this, I have found that I do not need any other medicine to procure the desired result, and it keeps me in a very healthful condition."

Constipation is caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN supplies both—and also iron for the blood.

How much safer this is than rickling pills and drugs—so often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases, with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Equally tasty as a cereal, or used in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Position On Bonus In Line With Action Of Last National Meeting, Legion Leader Says In Statement

INDIANAPOLIS—Henry L. Stevens, Jr., national commander of the American Legion, in a statement declared action taken at the legion's last national convention 'clearly restrains' the organization 'from asking for the immediate payment of the adjusted service certificates.' The national commander said the statement was issued because a previous statement in which he had defined the position of the legion had been 'made the basis of improper conjecture or assumptions.'

gold medals, and who are due to add to their collection tomorrow, making the trip entirely upon their own initiative, paying their own expenses, fighting their own battles, Champions of the Midland, Barnhart, and San Angelo Invitational meets. And not one thin dime from any Big Spring citizen went to finance any of their trips.

On the eve of the meet Bristol indicated that his charges would be slightly the underdogs tomorrow. A careful study of earlier season records indicate that Abilene will score 45 points, Big Spring 41, Snyder 35 and thirty or forty will be split among the field. The calculation, however, figure Forrester for a minor role in the high jump, pole vault, and broad jump and that young man who is at the helm, 'I'm going to win two of 'em,' he says. He is a self-confident young man, Forrester. He said last winter that the Steers could lick Breckenridge. They didn't, but it wasn't his fault.

There's a chance, a very good chance, for the Steers to cop the title. It is not, however, as good as if a group of local fans had either clipped in to pay the expenses of the athletes to Abilene or some enthusiast had volunteered the services of his automobile. The predictions issued a few paragraphs above are based upon comparative records, Dennis, Harris, Hopper and Forrester may grab first and second in one of the weight events. Four points not included in the compilings of Bristol.

SPORTS ON PARADE

Today the greatest track team Big Spring high has ever had left for the district meet. Behind it lies a brilliant record, three invitational meet championships in as many week-ends, a good showing in the Abilene carnival in competition with the Abilene Eagles and the freshman teams of Abilene Christian College and Daniel Baker. The municipal band came down to see them off. Cheering fans applauded the announcement of Coach Bristol that his boys were going to win the district title. 'Oh, yeah! Maybe you want the truth. You're going to get it.'

She thought that altogether the meeting was rather odd for a husband and wife who had been separated for months. After a tactful moment Waring slipped away and Susan was summoned to Pierson's cubbyhole to help him check some figures. She grew absorbed in the task and forgot to notice the hum of voices, now low and rather monotonous, in the private office.

Spending to Save ... through ADVERTISING Not many of us, these days, are troubled with so much money that we cannot spend it. But we are interested in spending the money we have, to get the most out of it. One way—and not a new way, either—is to make a budget. Put down, week by week, the money that comes in. Put down beside it, week by week, the money that goes out. So much for food, so much for clothing, so much for rent. So much for giving, and for luxuries. It won't always be easy, of course, to stay within the budget. That's where advertising helps you. Advertisements in this newspaper tell you how much rugs, butter, breakfast foods, dishes, homes, automobiles will cost, before you go shopping! They point out ways to save money. They show you how to cut a little here, a little there. And each day, they tell about new inventions, new products, new ways of doing things, that help make this life of ours very much worth living!

the MAN HUNTERS BY MABEL McELLIOTT

“Only three or four times,” the woman said, her tone suggesting that Susan was not only dull but inattentive.

“This typewriter is so noisy,” the girl began to explain in confusion instantly she felt she had said the wrong thing. Her caller's expression of remote amusement deepened.

“It's of no consequence,” she said crisply. “Mr. Heath's not in, then.”

Susan had risen. In her embarrassment she stammered as a child might. “No, he's not. Is there any message I can take?” For an instant the woman in black flicked open the gate with accustomed fingers and said fretfully, “I'll wait. He's expecting me.” Then, since the girl continued to look surprised, she exclaimed impatiently, “Mrs. Heath.”

That was all but she had reduced Susan to the merest pulp. Her manner had been that of the princess who rebukes the loutish servant.

“I'm sorry, I didn't know,” the girl said in a low voice. But Mrs. Heath had already envisioned herself in the most comfortable chair in her husband's office and did not trouble to reply.

Pierson came in, ducked his head in the direction of the private room in an obscure gesture of recognition, and disappeared into his favorite haven, the vault. Susan could hear for no assistance from that quarter. She worked on, Jack Waring slammed open the other door and bustled in, whistling a dance tune.

“How's every little—” he began with customary exuberance. The words died on his lips as he caught the sight of the still, aristocratic figure in black.

“Ah, Mrs. Heath!” His manner underwent a subtle change. The lady gave him a slow smile but her accents were sweet.

“Nice to see you. It's been ages.”

Waring bowed over her hand. Susan could hear the ripple of light laughter. In the tail of her eye she could see the man light a cigarette held in the woman's long white fingers. An emerald, big as a roc's egg, gleamed on one of them.

“Cannes—just like every other place—St. Jean de Luz—home on the Berengaria—” She could hear the cool, disdainful voice trailing on. She wondered what manner of woman this was. Waring's usual easy insouciance was dimmed. He was respectful rather than gay. Susan was ever so slightly amused at this. “She must be what Aunt Jessie calls a regular Tartar,” to affect him in that way,” observed the young girl to herself.

Presently Ernest Heath entered. Susan had a distinct sense of relief. Now her responsibility ended. “My dear, I didn't expect you until tomorrow!”

The lady laughed again, not altogether agreeably. She gave the tips of her fingers to her husband and an oblique glance to the younger man.

“Ernest is so amusing. He always wants things to happen according to schedule,” and, indeed, Heath seemed annoyed.

“I think you might have wired. I should certainly have met you.” He seemed aggrieved. There was an undercurrent of real contention in their light talk. Susan tried not to listen.

“I always like to give you surprises!” There was an edge to Mrs. Heath's tone. “One never knows—” Her voice trailed off and whether unwittingly or not but gaze strayed to the young girl lying

Million Railroad Men Interested In Excise Tax On Crude Petroleum

An unusual angle to the economic questions involved in the oil excise tax was disclosed by Congressman John Cooper of Ohio, for many years a member of one of the railroad brotherhoods, who addressed the House of Representatives on the relation between this proposed measure and the railroad situation throughout the United States. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Cooper said:

"The welfare of 1,350,000 men now employed on the railroads, of whom 40 per cent are only working part-time, and the future of 320,000 other men who have been removed from railroad payrolls during the past year and a half are involved in the proposed re-organization of the American petroleum industry, either through a tariff or an excise tax upon foreign oil and its products.

"The railroads are the arteries through which the very life blood of the nation's commerce flows. Other modes of transportation, important as they are, are only like the veins and the capillaries, but the railroads are the great arteries which must be maintained intact if we are to have a healthy business life as a nation. The railroads are in a serious financial plight today. The present earning level admitted means receivership for more lines unless a remedy is speedily devised. Meanwhile, the public may expect to receive unsatisfactory service. Whether we favor or disapprove government ownership of railroads, this possibility is almost imminent. The only way to avert it is by increased earnings. Even if government ownership should be accepted, increased earnings will be necessary unless the taxpayer intends to carry this load.

"We can restore jobs for the 350,000 men who have been dropped by the railroads in the past year and a half and give full-time employment to the 530,000 men who are now working only part-time on the railroads if we increase the car loadings which have now fallen to practically a record low. No foreign trade will do this. The only cure for decreased freight shipments that will have positive and permanent value is the increased consumption of American goods in American markets.

"The largest potential market available to our manufacturers and served by our railroads, lies in the great oil producing states of the Union, where five approximately 22,000,000 people, one-fifth of the nation's population, who formerly constituted one of the greatest markets for the manufactured goods of the nation. The prostration of the American petroleum industry has so reduced the purchasing power of these millions that the factories producing the goods they formerly consumed have closed or reduced their output, adding to the general unemployment, while the vanished freight shipments have so cut the income of railroads all over this nation that these transportation agencies have been forced to reduce their expenditures to a minimum.

"Proper protection of the American petroleum industry would revive employment in the great oil states west of the Mississippi and would enable the 22,000,000 residents to again become heavy customers for the nation's manufactured goods, stimulating a flow of traffic which would save the railroads of the nation.

"The vicious circle created through the ruin of the petroleum industry seems widening in its radius. When the American petroleum producer was unable to sell his American product in American markets, some hundreds of thousands of men lost their means of employment. Since their income had stopped they could not buy the products of manufacturers. The manufacturers found themselves forced to reduce the number of their employees. These factory workers made idle or else working only part-time also reduced their consumption, necessitating more layoffs or discharges. The railroads, affected by the cut in freight shipments, added 330,000 to the ranks of the unemployed and half a million to those only partially employed. The reduced consuming power of over 800,000 railroad workers again affected the factories and added still more to the ranks of the jobless men and women of the nation. This circle seems not only endless but is constantly increasing. The end is not yet in sight. The only logical method of reversing this trend is by the restoration of the petroleum industry, the renewed employment of the workers dependent upon it, thus re-establishing their purchasing power, making possible the reopening of closed factories and stimulating the flow of freight movements.

"Normally the railroads spend about $2,000,000 a day in maintaining their rights of way. These expenditures provided work for large numbers of men and factories. When the mid-continent section of the nation was no longer able to maintain its former purchasing power and freight shipments dropped, the railroads were forced to economize. This $2,000,000 daily expenditure was the first to be reduced. Old ties and rails were left in place for longer periods than had been the custom. Major repairs to roadways and structures were postponed wherever possible without danger. The number and the size of trains were reduced. Cars and locomotives were not kept in that perfect condition which had been the rule but merely were maintained in a condition that was in the limits of safety. These savings were, necessarily, at the expense of labor in general, whether that labor was employed in railroads or in factories producing material for the use of railroads. This became a part of the same vicious circle. The lower the amount spent by the railroads the smaller amount these workers on the railroads and in the factories had to maintain the business of the nation.

"The tax problems faced by federal, state and local governments would be made much easier if we restored the purchasing power of the millions now idle. Railroads had been paying in taxes to the state and local governments about a million dollars daily. So long as railroads are able to continue this payment the average taxpayer will have his own burden lightened by the millions now idle. Railroads had been paying in taxes to the state and local governments about a million dollars daily. So long as railroads are able to continue this payment the average taxpayer will have his own burden lightened by the millions now idle. petroleum industry but they can also carry the increased freight due to the restored purchasing power of 22,000,000 people. While they are doing this they can take back the 300,000 railroaders whom they had to lay off and give full-time work to over a half million more now working only part-time. This act to protect a basic American industry by giving American petroleum a fair chance to compete with a foreign product, will also stabilize railroad business as no other proposed measure will do. It will aid in maintaining the solvency of great insurance companies, will insure the continuance of important educational institutions and will preserve funds now dedicated to religious, charitable and philanthropic work by insuring the value of those railroad securities in which those funds are invested. Every argument, whether economic, patriotic or plain common sense, supports the right of this industry to a chance to live. Sweetwater And Colorado To Hold Meeting Tuesday Protesting Road Designation In "Townless Area"

SWEETWATER—Arrangements were completed here Thursday for a meeting to be held in Colorado next Tuesday, protesting the proposed designation of a new highway east and west across Sterling and Glasscock counties. All towns from Market to Coahoma will be asked to join.

Discussion of the meeting came Thursday at a session of the Sweetwater Luncheon club; and an invitation from J. H. Greene, secretary of the Colorado chamber of commerce who was present to convene the meeting at Colorado was accepted. President A. J. Wimberly of the local organization will appoint a committee of three to go to Colorado. Hour of the meeting will be 10 a. m.

Action on the part of Sweetwater and Colorado citizens follows an announcement that commissioners courts of Sterling and Glasscock counties have met state proposals whereby the highway commission will designate the east-west route. The proposed designation is seen here as an extension of the Butterfield Trail route from Abilene to Bronte, the tentative designation of which was protested by Sweetwater.

It was brought out at the luncheon club session today that the West Texas chamber of commerce public expenditures and tax committee is working to reduce city, county and state taxes, and at the same time apparently is overlooking the "useless and wasteful expenditure of millions" of taxpayers' dollars in the building of a "parallel highway through a townless area of West Texas."

Miss Nell Brown is going to Dallas tonight to bring back her mother, Mrs. G. A. Brown.

April 30 Last Day To Obtain US Seed Loans

Regional Director In Dallas Issues Informative Statement

Only two weeks remain in which the farmers of Howard County may make application for a Federal Crop Production Loan, according to Owen W. Sherrill, regional Director of the Farmers' Seed Loan Office in Dallas.

"April 30 is the deadline as provided in the Act appropriating the Funds," states Mr. Sherrill, "and anyone who expects to secure a loan must make application on or before that date."

"While local committees have served faithfully in the limited time at their disposal, it is believed that there are many farmers in the State who are worthy and eligible for a loan who have not been fully informed on how their need for credit may be taken care of. There are perhaps many others sorely in need of a loan with which to make a crop this year who have not made application because of a misunderstanding of the requirements."

"In order that true facts of the Loan Plan will be carried to all such persons and that every farmer deserving a loan may have the opportunity of making an application, plans are being set in motion in a meeting at the Dallas Headquarters Office on Saturday whereby an intensive educational campaign will be put underway for next week to bring the information to the doors of every community."

The loan committees in many counties are arranging a schedule of visits to every community in the country beginning Monday the 18th. The central office force and corps of stenographers is being moved to the various towns for a day in each place. While on the ground, the committees will answer questions, clear up misunderstandings or erroneous impressions and help prepare applications for every eligible farmer in the community who wishes to apply. Advance notice of the schedule of visits throughout the County will be made.

"It is not the intention of the Farmers' Seed Loan Office to solicit applications," states Mr. Sherrill, "nor do we wish to encourage anyone not eligible to apply but we do want to feel that we have made a conscientious effort to see that every worthy person has the correct information and has the opportunity of securing a loan, that there may be no regrets after the application period passes."

jury witness room, early in the week but the body could not bear them at the time and they have not returned. They are at liberty under bonds totaling $12,500 each.

District Attorney Wm. McCraw said the two prohibition department investigators, one described as a Department of Justice agent and the other a personal representative of Woodcock, called upon him today but he declined to tell them what had been revealed to him or to the grand jury.

Prohibition authorities in Washington yesterday said it was against regulations to employ agents with a criminal record.

Pro Director's Envoys Probing Dallas Killing

DALLAS, (UP)—Two representatives of Col. Amos Woodcock, federal prohibition director, were here investigating the murder charges against Prohibition Agents N. D. Heaton and L. C. Smith in connection with the fatal shooting of Marston McGlothlin, Irving grocer.

The Dallas county grand jury is expected to report tomorrow on the cases.

Several witnesses went before the jury today but none in connection with the cases though several witnesses remain to be heard. The agents have not testified. They were invited to go before the jury but were not subpoenaed.

Southwestern Wheat Output Cut 50 Per Cent

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Drought, high winds, and late winter freezes have combined to slash the wheat crop of the southwest in half.

Official government reports last week indicated drastically reduced yields in every state. Further damage reported since that time have cut the estimates even more deeply. A United Press survey showed today.

As each day passes without rain the survey indicated, thousands of bushels are cut from potential production of wheat, held back by a late winter, is blown from loose, dry ground by the wind.

Kansas above all other states is suffering intense damage. Last year the state produced more than a fourth of the nation's crop, which exceeded 800,000,000 bushels. The recent government report placed the expected Kansas yield at 98,000,000 bushels, as compared to 240,000,000 bushels a year ago.

Unofficial sources today indicated the state's yield would be even smaller.

"Observation," said a report made by three investigators of the Kansas State College, "showed prospects have been reduced even since the official estimates." The men had just returned from a week-long, 1,200 mile trip through the big wheat counties of the state.

Their statement followed a report yesterday by the Board of Agriculture, which told a story of dry soil, blown grain, and fields plowed up for seeding to small spring grain.

In the Texas Panhandle a grain authority rode for hours through one of the great wheat producing sections of the nation, and found fields which, without exceptionally favorable weather until harvest, hardly could produce half a crop.

It was substantially the same story in other states of the area, Missouri, Oklahoma, Nebraska, and Iowa. Everywhere moisture was needed badly. Prospects were for sharply reduced crops. Estimates of damage ranging up to 50 per cent came from various sections.

Mrs. Roy Carter has gone to Houston, to be with her sister, Mrs. Jewell Stoner, who is ill. Mrs. Stoner formerly lived in Big Spring.

Are you ever "TALKED INTO BUYING" things you DON'T want?

OVER the counter, you know, extravagant claims are so easily made. But remember this—it takes a lot more than a clerk's promise to put quality into any product! Then why should you or any other woman ever listen to a clerk who offers you something "just as good" as the thing you ask for? Surely your knowledge of the dependability of widely-used products is worth more to you than all the claims any clerk can make for products of which you know absolutely nothing! Whenever you find any store that continually urges you to buy unfamiliar products instead of the reliable brands you ask for, look out! All too often, that merchant reaps an extra profit, or his clerks a commission, by switching you to the unknown, often inferior merchandise. Many of the best stores everywhere forbid this practise. When you buy from them you are always sure of getting exactly what you ask for, with full value in the merchandise you want for every penny you spend. But if you are urged to buy something "just as good" as what you ask for, be firm! Insist on products you know by experience, by their brand-names, or by the reputations of their makers. You will often read about such products in the advertising columns of this newspaper. Think of this whenever you shop. Then you will always get your money's worth in both merchandise and satisfaction.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The Public and the Stock Exchange

It would simplify matters greatly if it were possible to believe that the bear market has been caused by bear raids. For then it would be possible to stop the bear market by catching the bears. Unhappily the facts lend no support to this theory. The records show quite clearly that taking the bear market as a whole the fall in the prices of stocks corresponds very closely with the reduction of earnings. It is impossible, therefore, to believe that the bears have been making the market. Plainly it is the market which has been making the bears.

It is difficult, however, for the public to believe this. There is, to begin with, a natural human tendency to ascribe events to dramatic and personal causes rather than to prosaic and impersonal ones. Our ancestors thought that many of their troubles were caused by the evil eye. This disposition to believe in malignant powers is always aggravated in times of strain and confusion. For in the absence of clear and compelling explanations and of a general conviction about what needs to be done, men sink back into their more primitive habits of mind, and superstition flourishes among them. The notion that bear raiders could produce such a market as this is nothing but superstition. The nation, held even in some high quarters, that this market is the product of Democratic bears trying to ruin the Administration, is a surprisingly curious bit of niveté.

What gives to the idea its persistent vitality is the fact that though neither the bull nor the general direction of the market, they do undoubtedly accentuate the direction in which it is going. Thus Mr. Richard Whitney's statement before the Senate Committee that the bull market was "indulged in by 120,000,000 people of the United States" is not truly responsive to what the critics of the stock market have in mind. What they are thinking about, as they remember their losses, is the extent to which they were encouraged by brokers and bankers to indulge in bull speculation during the boom. They believe, and I think rightly, that those who were presumably in a position to know, did not adequately protect them. It is true that the American people ignorantly and greedily indulged in bull speculation. But what sticks in their minds is that they were encouraged, often by the methods of high-powered statesmanship, to give themselves up to this folly.

The present resentment against the New York Stock Exchange is the aftermath of the collapse of the bull market. It is therefore regrettable that so able and high-minded a spokesman as Mr. Whitney does not speak more realistically on the main point which interests the public. According to the newspaper reports he was asked by Senator Brookhart about the bull market of 1929 and tricolour took place:

Q. Led by the New York Stock Exchange?
A. I deny that, sir.
Q. It does not lead anything?
A. It is a market place.
I am afraid that Mr. Whitney's replies are literally rather than substantially true. Literally, he is right in saying that the Stock Exchange is merely a market place, and his remarks would be substantially true as well if the members of the Stock Exchange were merely the mechanics agents who executed their clients' orders. But in fact the stock brokerage firms act as financial advisers to their clients and by their market letters they undertake to guide the individual who enters the market. The real question, which Senator Brookhart, with his customary muddleheadedness failed to bring out, is how responsibly, how disinterestedly, and how competently, the members of the Stock Exchanges have discharged their responsibility as advisers.

That is the question which men like Mr. Whitney ought to face in a far more searching fashion than they have yet done. For the Stock Exchange bases its claim to immunity from public regulation upon the thesis that its own capacity for self-government and self-discipline than any laws which could be enacted. That thesis is true when the self-discipline is courageously applied. Has it been? That is the main question. In the last fifteen years the general public has come into the stock market. There has been a distribution of securities without any parallel in all history. This distribution of securities has produced a condition where there is an enormous gulf between the actual owners of corporate property and the directors of these properties. It has become impossible for the public who own securities to arrive at sound judgments about the position of their property. They are entirely dependent, therefore, upon advice, and in the nature of things they are dependent to a very great degree upon the advice of their brokers.

It is not enough to say that the Stock Exchange is a market place. It is a collection of firms which advise the investor what to buy or sell in that market place. This is a grave responsibility. It is more than an academic question whether the responsible firms which have sound traditions behind them have had the power and the courage to discipline the old pirates and the considerable number of irresponsible amateurs who rushed into the stockbroking business during the mad days of the inflation. There is a general impression that the responsible men lost control, that things got out of hand, that greed destroyed judgment and that the ignorant trust of the public was exploited.

There is, consequently, a wide and sharp feeling in the community that, in addition to defending the Exchange against vindictive and destructive attack, the reputable interests which Mr. Whitney represents need fairly soon to demonstrate that they appreciate the evils of the recent past and that they intend to protect the Stock Exchange by internal reform and self-discipline.

For the Stock Exchange has become the greatest popular market in the world and its members have the duty to regard themselves collectively as trustees of an immense public interest.

Baby Cries No Light You Get Up WHAM!

A little word-picture of everyday home-life: Baby yells lustily at 2:13 a. m. You jump out of bed and dash bravely to the crib. On your way you step through a drum, skid on a roller skate, knock your toe on a fire truck, knock a block house galley-west and skin your shins from knees to foot-bottoms. Often you need more attention than the baby.

When you consider the fact that for only 1c a night you can have a hall light burning continuously from the time you retire until you arise in the morning, it is hardly worth while to risk life and limb by stumbling around in the dark. In addition, a light protects your home from burglars—nocturnal marauders always pass-by lighted homes.
