Indian Buck Assessed Life Prison Term

Jury Convicts Galney In Death Of Columbia Student

GLOBE, Ariz. (AP)—A federal jury decided Monday that the (Goiney) Seymour, Apache Indian, shall be imprisoned for life for the murder of Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia university co-ed.

The jury deliberated four hours and 23 minutes, most of the time, it was reported, being spent in deciding whether the penalty should be life imprisonment or death. It was agreed soon after the jurors retired at four p. m. that the verdict would be guilty of murder in the first degree.

Didn't Realize Meaning

Seymour, who speaks only broken English, did not seem to comprehend what the verdict meant when he was led from the courtroom back to his jail cell.

Federal Judge Albert M. Sames, ordered Seymour brought before him tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock at which time he will hear a petition by the Apache's counsel, Joan P. Dougherty, for delay of sentence.

Dougherty indicated he will appeal the case.

Federal court attaches said a sentence of life imprisonment means virtual death for Seymour as of all Apache Indians ever sentenced to prison from Arizona only one has lived more than seven years behind the walls. They said the Apaches seem to miss the companionship of their tribesmen and freedom so that they pine away and die.

Court's Instructions

The court had instructed the jurors, who during a period of a week had heard testimony regarding the anthropology student's death, and had listened to Seymour's alleged confession and his repudiation of it, that they might return any one of five verdicts:

Guilt of murder in first degree punishable by death or life imprisonment, the jury's recommendation to be mandatory in either case; guilty of murder in the second degree, guilty of manslaughter and acquittal.

In closing arguments the prosecution had demanded the jury "apply the same standard to the Indian as to a white man—measure him with the same yardstick."

Defense Counsel John P. Dougherty pleaded with the jurors to "give this Indian the same consideration you would give the white under similar circumstances."

Prosecutor's Plea

"Too easily do juries forget about the deceased—their attention is attracted by the living," declared John C. Gungl, United States attorney, "and listen to the appeal of the defendant to save his neck."

"I tell you in all sincerity this is a case that deserves the death penalty, and you should not be swayed from your duty."

Acree Law Verdict Final

WACO (AP)—The ruling of the tenth court of civil appeals holding the state cotton acreage reduction law unconstitutional has become final.

The 15-day time limit passed without a motion for rehearing being filed.

Tom Tyson, county attorney of Robertson county and the defender of the law in the test suit, said that he would not carry the fight to the supreme court. He pointed out that the statute had been held unconstitutional both by the trial court and the court of civil appeals.

Private Rights

The courts, in declaring the statute unconstitutional, held that it was an unwarranted interference with private property rights and that it was not a true conservation statute. They pointed out that Texas last year had its largest cotton crop in history, and that the yield per acre was large, indicating that a change in policy was not necessary to conserve the soil's fertility.

The legislature enacted the statute at a special session last September. It would have prohibited any farmer from planting to cotton this year more than 20 per cent of his aggregate land in cultivation last year.

In the test suit, Tyson sought to enjoin Fred L. Smith, Robertson county farmer, from planting land in excess of the amount allowed by the law. District Judge W. C. Davis of Bryan denied the injunction.

When in 1887 the great fight was made against licensing saloons in Atlanta, the eloquent Henry Grady made a great speech which is just as timely today when a persistent fight is being made to repeal the Eighteenth amendment and vote in saloons again. The following is part of Mr. Grady's speech:

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

Big Spring athletics enjoyed a successful week-end. The thirty clubs, led by their "Tack" Dennis, ran off with the Midland Invitational track and field meet, scoring 61 points to 26 for Lamson and 21 for Midland. Tack won four first places and tied for second in another, and rang up two enviable records in the javelin and the shot events. Henry Richbourg's leap of 21 feet 6 inches in the broad jump was the other outstanding mark of the day.

Meanwhile Wayne E. Matthews tennis squad was going the other way. The Steer netters captured sixteen out of nineteen matches during the week-end, in competition with such schools as Sweetwater, Abilene and Cisco High schools, Randolph College and Simmons university. The Cowboys secured a tie out of four matches with the locals, otherwise there was a straight run of decisive victories.

"Most of my players are taken from the early 20's," says a 1927 year veteran of Big Spring sports who is honoring us with another "all time selection," when Prince Shetwell twice talked to the school board here about coaching such big wonderful material. Incidentally the team covered the entire existence of the interscholastic league.

Ends—J. Johnson, (25) and A. Porter (21); Tackles—Lyons (23) and M. Pittman (23); Guards—C. E. Johnson (21) and H. Griffith (22); Center—Barley (28); Quarterback—H. Rutherford (20); Halfbacks—F. Segall (26) and D. Rogers (29); Fullback—Dennis (31).

One player, Melvin Pittman, later was a star at Simmons university, in his senior year kicking a field goal to win the conference title for the Cowboys by a score of 3 to 0. Pittman, however, played center for the Simmons gridgers.

This selection almost goes back to the years when Big Spring walked Abilene by scores of 70 to 0 and etc. And out of the parade of former stars the names of Tack Dennis, Burnar Barley, Frank Segall, Delbert Rogers, and C. E. Johnson have appeared regularly. It is the first time that J. T. Johnson, captain of the club in his senior year and as much of a back as he was a lineman, has been brought out in the list of all-stars and it is the introduction of Porter, Lyons, Pittman, H. Griffith, and Rutherford.

Even a ward school football league can not be conducted without eligibility squabbles. Max Beasley, star fullback for the North Warders, has been declared ineligible by the board of eligibility, whomever that may be. As a result the league is then in a quandary. Dave Hopper's Gaslopins Gho's boast of a 7 to 4 decision over South Ward but have lost to the North Ward team. The West Ward club has defeated South Ward and tied North Ward in spite of Beasley's play. Evidently the championship lies between West Ward and East Ward. However North Ward has the privilege of replaying all games without Beasley. You figure it out, we can't.

In conversation with Benny Butler, sage of Cisco, the home of the notorious Big Dam Lobos, whose chances of remaining in the interscholastic league for another year are not so bright, we learned that the regrettable situation all came up as a result of overemphasis, and the population of Cisco is confident that nothing at all will come out of the meeting to be held in Austin March 30, when the interscholastic eligibility committee is to pass upon the recommendation made by the Oil Belt officials that Cisco be suspended for at least one year. J. J. Jetties, coach of the team during the past season, has already announced that he will be at Wichita Falls next season, leaving only "Slim" Hill of the 1931-32 regime on hand. Cisco expects a fairly good eleven next season if they are not suspended by the league, some seven or eight lettermen returning.

Should the interscholastic league fall in line with the Oil Belt committee's wishes Cisco high will be in a for dull, dull year indeed, and perhaps may never recover. One other school in Cisco has already suffered from "oversuspension." Not so long ago Randolph College ranked among the best junior colleges in the state when it came to comparison of their football eleven, and a number of former Randolph stars such as Honk Irwin, James Martin and James Burleson testify to their former strength. But the football players, so the story goes, began to take the school, they refused to pay board, room, or tuition. At last football was cut out altogether.

"Spec" William... spends his winter in Big Spring and his summers playing professional baseball, will have another trial in fast company this spring, reporting to the Wichita club of the Western League as soon as the season opens. William has played with Beaumont in the Texas League, two or three clubs in the Western association, San Angelo and Big Spring in the ill-fated West Texas league, one or two clubs in the Arizona State league and so forth and so on. Last year he finished the season with Wichita clubbing out an average of .318 in forty games and leading the second basemen in fielding. He is still on the sunny side of a light hitter and possesses a powerful throwing arm.

Gay-Garbed Girls Do Not Like Flashily Clad Men, Say Stars

The Merchant Tailors' National association's hopes that men would start wearing flashy colors and fancier styles was roundly denounced today by four Ziegfeld showgirls.

The girls, interviewed backstage during a rehearsal, were unanimous in the opinion that men should dress conservatively. They picked Ronald Colman as "one of the few movie stars who know how to dress" and made a few sly digs at the sartorial splendor of Buddy Rogers, one of the stars of "Hotcha," the show in which they are appearing.

Since one of Mr. Ziegfeld's press agents was present, the girls know better than to condemn their buddy outright.

"Now listen, girls," said the press agent, "suppose you just tell the gentleman that Buddy Rogers is the best dressed man in the world."

"Well," said Mary Coyle, who originated in Lincoln, Nebr., "I would say he is well dressed, on the stage. Be sure and put that 'on the stage' in."

"Yes," added Louise Allen, from Boston, "and also say from the knees up. He's well dressed, you might say, on the stage from the knees up."

"Girls," said the press agent, "I ask you is that a nice thing to say about a guy right here in our own show? Is it nice?"

"Buddy is too much Hollywood off the stage," put in Marian Dixon, who comes from Wichita.

"I like Englishmen, the way they dress," said Mary Alice Rice, of Dallas. "I think it would be all right to have something like those red businessmen they wear when they are hunting to hounds, or whatever you call it. Maybe we could have red outfits for certain hours of the day—say for tea. Only I turn thumbs down on pink tuxedos, coats with belts, coats that are slit in the back, turtle-neck sweaters, and all the rest of Hollywood's horrible haberdashery."

"And as for Jimmy Walker," finished Miss Allen, "I think he's got a nerve to ever leave his house. To my way of thinking he represents what the well-dressed man should not wear."

Humor, Music Dancing Offerings Of "Showboat Minstrel" Tomorrow

MACK & LONG

There's still a place for the unvarnished humor of the negro minstrel. In this day of movie palaces and problem plays. At any rate, the "Showboat Minstrel" will dish out jokes, songs and dances speedily from the Ritz stage tomorrow and Friday.

The "Showboat" unit has only ten performers, but they work to make it a big minstrel show. Billy Doss, who formerly played with the famous Casses White and Al G. Fields Minstrels, exhibits a toothsome grin and a pseudo-bashful manner that puts his skit across. The Lanky Jimmy Allard is a big favorite who shuffles when he walks and vodels when he sings. Mack and Long will do a nifty sort of strolling that rarely gets off the big-time circuit. The Stratford Comedy 4 will also be seen at their best.

The screen offering will be "Street Scene" with Sylvia Skidney, Wm Collier, Jr. and Estelle Taylor.

Cotton-Seed Dramatics Razing The Reagan Barn-Garage Recalls The Days When 'Kids Had A Place To Be Kids'

By O.R.P.

Another old landmark is gone. The absence of the high-peaked tottering garage on the Reagan lot at Fifth and Lancaster streets, makes the yard look positively naked.

Today's Barnless Children

When one thinks back on those barns, one's heart contracts with pity for all the barnless children of today. Never was there such a glorious place to play as the upper story where the cotton seed and feed were stored, or such a comfortable place to hide when the dishes were to be dried and there was a thrilling story to finish.

The planks of that old barn now shrunken with years and the sun and shriveled like an old face, have looked down on some startling performances; three-ring circuses, the admission being one pin; blood and thunder dramas which the actors young Reagans grew past the milk-guzzling age continued to share the barn with Rastus' successor, a Ford of early vintage.

Some time when a quiet, unassuming citizen passes, his going is a more significant event than that of a greater man; so it is with buildings.

The tearing down of this garage which was erected a quarter of a century ago in the heyday of con-heavy barns, recalls to one's mind what a change the last 25 years have made in back yards generally in Big Spring... and that speaks for the nation, also.

"Rastus" was the horse for which this old garage was built, in addition to "Red," the old jersey cow and a flock of miscellaneous chickens. "Rastus" shied at pedestrians in the streets and was generally obstreperous, so one day he was sent on a vacation to a pasture where a stroke of lightning ended his highly-nervous career. "Red" was succeeded by other "Reds" who long after the five

MADISON BARBER SHOP
Located Rear First National Bank

so enjoyed giving that they were almost willing to give away plus themselves to get an audience to attend; declamatory contests delivered with only old Red indifferently chewing her cud, for a listener.

While the barn was divided into two sections, the carriage house made a grand hiding spot for hide-and-go-seek and there was, of course, the upstairs, and the ladder to shinny up in a split second. It was an exciting place to hunt for eggs, the least likely corner always being the corner which appealed to hens.

Back Gates Gone, Too

Along with the passing of the family barn, has gone the back gate.

The back gate belonged to the kitchen era of dining—to the days when one as a matter of course built a kitchen large enough to hold a table with the whole family seated around it; many years before the breakfast nook-era.

In those days the back gate was usually the shortest cut to wherever you were going. For the Reagan youngsters, the back gate was only a leap and a bound from the Central Ward School which they all attended. It was the nearest way to the business district. Before the east end of the block was built, the Reagans and the whole west end of town cut through there. Afterwards, the back gate led to the alley, and the alley led to all the other places down town.

When old Red was banished entirely and the flock of chickens sold, the barn was slightly remodeled to accommodate more cars, as the Reagan family came drifting back by motor.

The alley, however, will become only an alley, when the garage goes up again on the Reagan lot. The driveway will follow the east fence. There will be no back gate.

That is the direction in which the effete civilization of the country is tending. Even the rough and ready West now makes its daily exit from its front door and its driveway.

And what a monotonous place for children to play is the modern garage, devoid utterly of intrigue and imagination!

Well, that is life, simplifying it self.

Only those fortunate beings who were children twenty-five years ago can realize the value of the past—or maybe this is just another way of repeating that age-old wail that the world is getting worse and worse.

Inconsistency Thy Name Is...

Now, if anyone should come up and ask this writer voluntarily to return to the horse-drawn age—why, bring that up?

The point is, that the old barn represented an phase of living that is definitely a part of the past.

With the razing of the Reagan barn, few are left around town (the L. S. The modern garage represents something else beside speed and polish—it is a straw showing the direction from which the twentieth century breezes blow.

An Undeveloped Empire

LAMB county now has 4,598 persons who are qualified to vote by reason of having paid their poll taxes. Of this number only one, a young woman of 22, is a native of the county. All the other 4,597 electors hail from other places.

This fact helps us to appreciate what a new country in the South Plains is. In 1900 it was a frontier country, thinly populated and rail-roadless. By 1910 the settlement of the wide open spaces was beginning. In 1920 the movement had gained considerable headway and in the following decade it went forward with a rush. But it is still an unsettled country, comparatively. There are millions of acres of land still to feel the touch of a plow.

The same is true for most of South Texas. We have room for millions more. Why be faint-hearted and uneasy about the future? We have the land—as fertile as the world affords. We are getting the transportation facilities. We have the natural resources. We have all the raw materials of a great development. Our outlook is full of hope. eave the pessimism and the hopeless attitude for those of the burned-out, rickety regions long-settled. We have a new country to build, and in the building we will get much profit.

The entire western two-thirds of Texas, from the Oklahoma line to the Gulf coast, is an undeveloped empire, waiting for courageous men to put their hands to the task.

BOY CRAZY
by GRACE PERKINS

SYNOPSIS: Out of grief and disillusion, Hope Ross reaches maturity—though not happiness. She has not been her happy-go-lucky self since her runaway marriage to Dickey Dale ended by her father's command, since Hope and Dickey were minors. Mr. Ross has told Hope that Dickey left her.

Chapter 26
A NEW HOPE
Hope's letters to Papa Ross must have indicated this to a high degree, for all of her special delivery favors were granted toward the falling together, in a bond of strange friendship, Hope and Mrs. Manly, the girl of nineteen and the woman of sixty-eight, traveled on through the west, to New Mexico, to Colorado, to California, to Vancouver and even to Hawaii.

A new Hope, with the same old Sassy, still immaculately white, and grimey whiskered, returned to Westchester the following Christmas.

Yes, a new Hope. Tall and slim and strangely self-assured, hardened in bone and muscle and softened in heart and tongue. A Hope who seemed suddenly to realize that Papa and Mama were lonely and getting on in years.

Oh, a very different Hope. Who once more gloried in flirting and in triumphing—this time with an older crowd by far. An older crowd who were naive in the light of the younger set in many ways, but who taught Hope new and more dangerous thrills. The thrill of gambling that struck straight home both in amusements or roulette and contract in the evenings, and in the stock market during the day.

For one entire year Hope craved trivially, the picture that was published in a newspaper when he graduated with honors, bits of gossip published by New York columnists, and proving that Dickey was a gadabout in the theatrical world as an item announcing a sketch written by Dickey and incorporated in a small but successful revue, and finally the current publicity of strange and exciting reports that Dickey Dale was adapting an old play of his father's into a musical comedy libretto. Scheduled to appear on Broadway in the fall!

Certain people knew, that year, of Hope's great devotion to Charlie Rand, Jr., born on Hope's own twentieth birthday, in September nineteen twenty-seven.

And certain folk knew of Hope's unceasing concern over Judy, who had been fighting desperately since her debut to keep on in a world she could no longer afford. Judy who should grab the opportunity at her doorstep to marry into the wealth of the Frisky Hall family, and who was fated to love a man poorer than herself, Tom Post, the faithful telephone player, never saw Frisky's seventeen-carat ring. Judy always hid it and wore Tom's quarter carat in his presence.

It was the combination of Hope's interest in Judy and in God's baby that gave Hope the brilliant idea that sent Mama Ross pale brought a gleam of pride into Papa Ross's eyes, and a buzz of joking gossip in the town.

'Whip' Party Presidential Aspirant Here

George Edward Stewart Leaves Copies Of 'His Own' Platform

George Edward Stewart of Butte Falls, Oregon, who is the "own" candidate for president of the United States, stopped here a few days ago. He represents "The Whip," or third party, and urges fellow citizens to "keep your whip cracking."

Staging a campaign throughout the nation without aid is quite a job, he declared, and so explains why he has time only for a brief stop at each place. He leaves a few copies of his platform and goes on his way.

And this is his platform: To An American Citizen: American Home. Good old U. S. A. I find it necessary to come to the aid of my Country.

I do not choose to run for the Presidency. I can win in a walk. I herewith toss my hat, coat and bull into the circus ring. I am a WHIP and, so far as I know, the only member of that party.

I am best qualified for the office. I am forty years of age and have never done anything to brag about. I was wise enough to stay out of the stock market.

I am fool enough to believe I can alleviate our family troubles. I am coward enough to faint at the idea of experimenting with the lives of one hundred and twenty millions of American men and women and children.

I will never campaign for the votes of a nation of hungry people with my mouth full of the food of a banquet table. I have a home and a mortgage. I have a fine car and no gas. I have a fine radio with old tubes. I have one suit of clothes and thank God for it.

I owe money I can't pay. I am not a politician. I am not a lawyer. I am not a college graduate. I am not affiliated with any fraternal, social, business or religious order.

I am not a Big-Business Yes man. I am not a war veteran. I do not drink. I am a salesman and a good one. I will not accept the Presidency unless such a man as Hiram Johnson, Gifford Pinchot or Newton D. Baker will serve as my "working Vice-President."

to put the Army on the Fleet and sail up Wall Street!

I shall form a Board of Business Equity under the Department of Commerce—Big and Little Business share and share alike.

I will sell the lid back on the Treasury and cut a slot in the lid for our nickies and dimes—and put a man like Hiram or Borah on top. I shall see that our disabled heroes are made as comfortable and happy as is humanly possible.

I shall inform the world that our hat size is back to normal and we expect full payment so soon and no later as they are able to pay—Without benefit of moratorium.

I shall sell Japan and China the idea without further dictating to the rest of the world that Manchuria is no good anyhow—and if I can't Will Rogers can.

I say there is no dearth in this country of patriotic men and women capable of performing the duties of every public office—local, state and national.

I do not covet wealth, power, or position. I say to you that when we are elected everyone will get back to his knitting and not before.

I believe in God and the teaching of Jesus Christ. I have a political god who in Theodore Roosevelt whose policies I will carry forward to the best of my ability as though he were here to do the job himself.

I will immediately upon taking office dynamite Big-Business Dam which is causing our life stream of money to flow uphill instead of down!—which has ruined both Big and Little business.

VINES GIRDS FOR TENNIS WARS

Ellsworth Vines, youthful Pasadena, Cal., tennis star who blazed a brilliant victory trail over the United States last summer to become America's No. 1 amateur, is shown tuning up his blistering forehand drive for his 1932 campaign. He hopes to play on the United States Davis cup team if he can get away from studies at the University of Southern California.

PRESIDENT DE VALERA WITH HIS NEW IRISH CABINET

The new cabinet of President Eamon De Valera of Ireland is shown together in one of its first meetings after the defeat of the Cosgrave administration. Seated, left to right: F. Aiken, minister for defense; P. J. Rutledge, lands and fisheries; President De Valera; Dr. James Ryan, agriculture; Tom Derrig, education; James Geoghegan, K. G. Justice. Standing, left to right: Sean McEntee, finance; Sean T. O'Kelly, vice president and local government and public health; S. J. Connelly, posts and telegraphs; Sean Lemass, industry and commerce; and G. Boland, Fianna Fail chief whip.

Peck's Bad Boy, Now!

It's hard to believe, but this dignified man is George Washington Anderson, Ind., was one of 28 Annapolis residents indicted by a federal grand jury for conspiracy to violate prohibition laws. Mellett, known as "Peck's Bad Boy," is a brother of Don Mellett, who is now retired, lives in Lake of Canton, O., who was slain several years ago.

Film Star To Wed

Betty Bronson, the original "Peter Pan" of the movies, will be married soon in Santa Barbara, Cal., to Ludwig Lauerhaus of Asheville, N. C.

'MAGIC CITY' RISES ON CHICAGO'S LAKEFRONT

More than a year before the scheduled opening of the 1933 Century of Progress exposition, a "magic city" to house the exhibits is rising on Chicago's lakefront. The buildings shown in this view constitute the "electrical group," located on Northerly island, a manmade island. On the mainland in the background are distinguishable, left to right: Soldier field stadium, the Field museum and Shedd aquarium.

FORMER CONGRESS MEMBERS WED

A romance which began in the house of representatives in Washington culminated in the wedding of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, former congresswoman from Illinois, and Albert G. Simms, former congressman from Albuquerque, N. M. They were married in Mrs. McCormick's home in Colorado Springs, Colo.

More Bridge Clubs To Meet During This Week

Apologies to the bridge-clubs! The old urge was more irresistible than even the Society Editor of the Big Spring Herald imagined. That worthy soul has been forced to eat her words, since announcing in Monday's Herald that only two out of 30 clubs would meet.

The Idle Art Bridge Club will meet Thursday evening at the home of Miss Polly Webb. The '31 Bridge Club met yesterday and details may be obtained elsewhere.

These are in addition to the two announced in Sunday's social calendar.

New Arrivals At Public Library

New books continue pouring in to the Public Library. Among the latest arrivals are five Zone Grey novels, so much in demand; also "Hilton" by Evelyn Pierce, that novel of Dallas society life, which came out last year. Others are "Lord of Lonely Valley" by Curwood, "Wild Wind" by Temple Bailey and "Fire of Youth" by Margaret Pedler.

The addition of these books is the result of public interest, as well as good management. If the library continues to carry a line of new books, since this is the only revenue it has, the public must support it.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS TO MOVE The members of the Royal Neighbors of America, Camp No. 7277, have moved their meeting place from the lodge rooms of the Settles Hotel back to the Woodman Hall because the latter has a piano and the former does not.

Mrs. Wilkinson Of Fort Worth Is Laid To Rest

Funeral services were held at Manchester, Tenn., Wednesday morning for Mrs. Jessie Fremont Strickler Wilkinson, 75, wife of J. G. Wilkinson, chairman of the board of the Continental National Bank, Fort Worth.

Mrs. Wilkinson, ill for three weeks with heart trouble, died Sunday night at the home of her son, H. H. Wilkinson, 901 West Leida street, Fort Worth. H. H. Wilkinson is president of the Continental National bank and owner and operator of a large ranch a few miles northwest of Big Spring.

Mrs. Wilkinson was born in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, and was the last survivor of 12 children of Stewart Strickler, who mined the first coal in the Connellsville district and who built the coke oven which started the steel industry in that area.

Campus Chatter

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7) dent body decided to "visit" and you can imagine their disappointment when they were refused admittance, and had to return to home rooms and study, or at least "pretend" for the remainder of the period.

We know that our campus could be used for various forms of amusements, but who would have thought that the sidewalks would be converted into a dance platform? The girls could not resist the temptation when Mickey Davis played for them. It is true that the sidewalk was rather narrow and very crowded and much more so when Edythe Ford and Virginia Francis crowded in. In fact, the rest gave it up as a bad idea, and let them have it all.

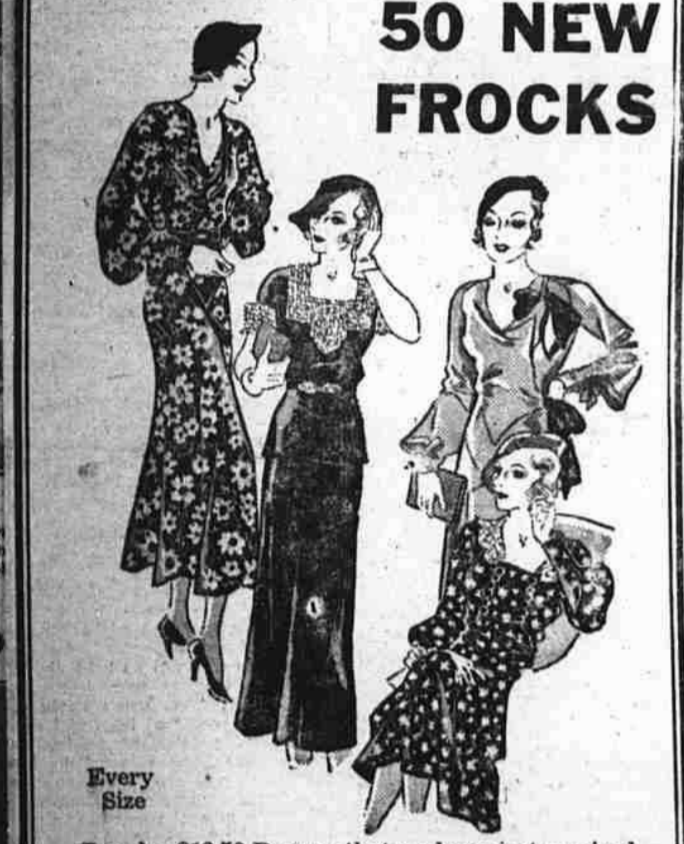

We wonder how some people ever got the idea that they could act or know when other people could act. Anyway somebody is working under false impressions, judging from the seniors who were selected for the "hobo" program. Well, anyway, we'll get those that we think can act and those that we "hinda" like too.

If you notice a worried look on the attendance officer's face, you will know that she is wondering just what she will do when the "hobby players" have filled the study halls to their capacity. Judging the future by the past, that will not be long.

Personally Speaking

Mrs. J. L. Rush, who underwent a major operation in the Big Spring hospital is much better.

Mrs. M. A. Berry has returned from a three-weeks stay with her daughter, Mrs. Melvin Burrus, near Lamesa. Mrs. Burrus was ill but is well now.

Mrs. Ches Anderson and Mrs. T. A. Roberts have returned from a short visit to Tulsa.

Vance Turner and J. H. Powell, representatives of the state comptroller's department, who have been in Big Spring the past few weeks making an audit of county records, left today for Austin, where they will report to their headquarters. They will next visit Kaufman and Young counties, where they intend making an audit of records.

Judge James T. Brooks went to Colorado this morning, where he is holding court.

Mrs. Max S. Jacobs left at noon for Fort Worth, where she will visit her daughter, Anna Pauline, who is attending Texas Christian college. Mrs. Jacobs will remain there through the week-end.

Carl Blomshield went to O'Donnell Wednesday morning on company business.

Rufus Elliott returned to Longview Wednesday morning, after spending several days in Big Spring on a business mission. Mr. Elliott formerly lived in this city, being connected with the West Texas National bank.

W. A. Robertson of the J. & W. Fisher department store has returned from Bowie, Texas, where he went on a business trip. He was accompanied by Slim O'Neal, who also returned.

Miss Esie Long of R-Bar left Friday for Tyler for an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Henry Fehler, and Mr. Fehler, who have been visiting relatives in that community for the past two weeks.

East Fourth Baptist WMS In Missionary Program

The members of the East Fourth Street Baptist Church met at the church for a missionary program Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. O. R. Phillips leading the devotionals.

During the business session Miss Juanita Jones was elected treasurer. The following program was rendered: "Oh, Money, Money" by Mrs. B. W. Welch; "Three Rs of Tithing" by Mrs. W. D. Thompson; "Two Tithers" by Mrs. F. S. McCullough; "Some Reasons For Tithing" by four Junior girls; "An Offering" by Mrs. H. H. Higgaon; "Gifts and Givers" by Mrs. Hart Phillips.

The members present were Mrs. O. R. Phillips, Hart Phillips, Welch, Thompson, McCullough, Higgaon, O. B. Alexander, Lula Murrab, Bob Jones, R. A. Danue, O. L. Miller, Ben Carpenter, F. L. Turpin, S. N. Moreland, S. H. Morrison and Miss Jones.

Mrs. Ralph Rix Honors Brother At Dinner-Bridge Mrs. Ralph Rix entertained with a lovely dinner party for her young brother, Ralph Duvall, Monday evening at her charming home in Edwards Heights. A pink and green color scheme was used in the lovely centerpiece of spring flowers which centered the table, spread with an Irish linen damask cloth; also in the place cards and nut cups. After the delicious meal, the guests spent the evening in bridge and dancing. They were Misses Juanita Briggs, Jane Tinsley, Edith May O'Neal and Eleanor Riggs; Messrs. Fred Koberg, Mack Austin, Bill Flowers and the honoree.

Conservation Law Upheld By Court

AUSTIN, Tex.—The court of civil appeals upheld the conservation statute under which the railroad commission attempted to prohibit oil production until superseded by a new law. The Danziger Oil and Refining company operating in the Pecos field had contended the statute abridged the right of contract.

Mrs. Green Goes Part To '31 Club

Mrs. Opal Greene entertained the members of the '31 Bridge Club with a lovely Easter party Tuesday afternoon. She carried out the colors of rose and yellow in the party decorations and refreshments. Mrs. Horace Jarrett made high score.

During the refreshment hour, cards were cut and Mrs. Shaw was given a bowl of gold fish for cutting low. Those attending this gay party were Mrs. J. E. Hammond, D. P. Franklin, Frank Moss, W. A. Shaw, Horace Jarrett, R. S. McDonald and C. C. Bickford. Mrs. McDonald will be the next hostess.

Wesley Memorial W. M. S. Have Enjoyable Session

The Wesley Memorial Methodist W.M.S. met with Mrs. H. O. Bourland Monday afternoon for a meeting. Mrs. Montgomery led the devotionals. Mrs. Fridge had charge of the merry games. Lovely refreshments were served. Those attending were Meses. Joe Willis, M. A. Borro, Lloyd Montgomery, Jack Kline, Ray Hartman, J. E. Fridge. Mrs. Willis will be the next hostess when the members will meet for an all-day quilting.

W.C.T.U. POSTPONED

The W.C.T.U. will not meet tomorrow afternoon but will meet next Wednesday evening at the First Christian Church, announces Mrs. Geo. W. Davis.
