TRAIL DUST

By DOUGLAS MEADOR

True character is subject to increased visibility when a life passes through the straits of adversity.

Creditors are horrible people who are mean enough to want their money after once expressing confidence in our responsibility.

Spirituality is the radiant glow which remains in some men's eyes after time has leached away the color of their dreams.

A good speaker knows that brevity is less controversial than most subjects and that its influence is like dropping a pebble into a placid pool.

Expenses are the rocks we drop into a well to bring the water within our reach.

Another advantage of silence is that it does not require a good memory to repeat.

The parallel may be coincidental but it seems that every time science extends the life span, the government extends its sources of tax revenue.

If I could have my druthers they would include sleeping in the shade of a big Hackberry tree until the cool of the evening instead of trying to stay awake in my chair between television commercials.

Comets Top Midland In Dist. Tournament

Matador Comets broke the season long unbeaten string of Midland last Wednesday night in their opening game at Andrews, in the District I tournament of Senior Texas Teen-Age Baseball. Midland had won 17 straight games before their stunning defeat at the hands of the Matadors by a 7-5 score.

After setting Midland down in order in the first inning, Matador loaded the bases on two walks and an error. Robert Contee of Floydada, catching for Matador, then laced a single to right, and Billy Davis and Gary Campbell came home, with Tim Green being thrown out at the plate on a close play.

Charles Ezzell scored another run in the second on a Midland error and three successive walks.

Matador salted the game away in the third inning as Richard Campbell led off with a single. An error on Contee's grounder and a walk to Curt Smith loaded the bases with none out. A single by Billy Davis and walks by Tom Green and Gary Campbell resulted in four runs before Midland could snuff out the fire.

Midland came back with two runs in the third, one each in the fourth, sixth, and seventh innings, but Jack McCallie, Matador's ace left-hander, was never in serious trouble as he hung the season's first loss on Midland. He struck out seven and walked only one.

The Matadors continued their fine play on Thursday as they took on the other top-rated team in the tournament, Odessa. Matador scored two runs in the fourth inning as Richard Campbell was hit by a pitched ball, Robert Contee singled, Robert Brandon doubled, and Jack McCallie singled. Odessa scored single runs in the third and fourth, so the score was tied 2-2 after five innings.

Odessa Takes Lead
In the bottom of the sixth, Odessa finally got Matador pitcher Johnny Bonner for two hits, and the Matador defense, which had been superb throughout the tournament, faltered somewhat as Odessa scored three times to win 5-2.

The loss was especially heartbreaking for the Matadors as they had threatened in every inning, leaving nine men on base to only 3 for Odessa. A win for Matador would have put them in fine shape to win the tournament, as they would have had to win only one of two games on the final day.

Disheartened by the loss to Odessa, and feeling somewhat the effects of two nights away from home, the Matadors bowed to Midland on Friday to take third place in the tournament. Other teams participating were Andrews and Pecos.

The question "How Big is Big Enough" is one that farmers are asking themselves each day. Size of farms measured by most factors have increased, and even though it is true that acres per farm, capital investment, gross income and net income have increased in the past years, farmers in general still have a relatively low net income.

What factors are used in determining size? 1. Number of acres; 2. Capital investment;

NEIGHBORS HOE COTTON

REVIVAL CLOSES

A revival meeting in progress

Units of production; 4. Amount of labor utilized; 5. Net Income; and 6. Value of Sales.

No one of these would be adequate under all situations, therefore in measuring size, it would be best to look at all existing factors.

Generally when one thinks of increasing in size, he thinks of buying or renting additional land. This is one way to increase in size, but there is also another way — to intensify ones operation. There are several ways to do this. Substitution and reorganization of enterprises would be one, increase production per unit is another, and hold production costs constant and strive for lower costs is another. It is important that the operator ask "Is my present operation being operated at maximum efficiency?" If not, should the operator intensify before investing capital in more land.

Factors that determine the size of an operation should depend upon the goals of the operator and his family. The size unit needed should depend on whether the goal is to increase net income, obtain prestige, or obtain security. There is no absolute answer as to how big is big enough, however it would be safe to say that one should first become efficient on his present operation, then utilize all existing outlook and economic data available to determine if he should expand or not.

Elm Leaf Beetle Control

Of late I have been receiving many questions relative to the control of the elm leaf beetle. Any one of the following sprays will do a satisfactory job. 1 qt. of 25% emulsifiable DDT per 100 gallons water; 1 1/2 pts. of 57% emulsifiable Malathion per 100 gallons water; or 4 lbs. of lead arsenate powder and 16 fluid ounces of linseed oil per 100 gallons water.

Spray when the air is calm and if lead arsenate is used, take care to prevent drift of the spray to buildings. If spray reaches buildings, wash immediately with water. All of these materials are poisons, therefore be sure to follow directions.

For controls to be effective, the elm leaf beetle should be in the larvae stage and feeding on the under side of leaves. Be sure to wet the entire tree, especially the trunk if adult beetles are noted. A second spray 10 days to two weeks later should be applied if adults are noted.

Contrary to some reports, the elm leaf beetle can be controlled. Use the correct insecticide at the correct strength, cover the entire plant or plants, and apply the second application if needed. Remember, there are some people that take a bath, and don't get clean, but it is the fault of the water and not the soap?

One Texas 4-H boy or girl enrolled in the 4-H Health Program will be richer by $150 in the form of a college scholarship this fall, and 200 can qualify for health medals. The fourth "H" in the 4-H clover emblem stands for health, and all 2.3 million members pledged their "health to better living."

In a recent report by the program's sponsor, Eli Lilly & Co., the 4-H Service Committee points out that in 1962, 700,000 boys and girls from coast to coast took part in the program, and around 4,000 in Texas.

Motley County 4-H members interested in this program are urged to contact me for particulars.

Scientists of the USDA have extracted from the cotton plant a substance that repels boll weevils. It is the third substance extracted from the cotton plant with potential value for controlling the most destructive of all cotton insects, the boll weevil.

The first substances were an attractant that draws weevils to cotton plants and a feeding stimulant which makes the plants appetizing to the insects. The three substances were found by scientists of the USDA's Agricultural Research Experiment Station, Research Service, working in cooperation with the Mississippi Experiment Station.

The repellent was discovered in connection with work with the attractant. When the attractant was warmed to room temperature, part of it vaporized or degraded. The part remaining proved repellent to boll weevils. A procedure was then developed for extracting the repellent from cotton squares (flower buds) and seedlings, the same parts of the plant containing the attractant.

Other possible uses for the attractant include the luring of weevils to a trap or simply to an area away from the cotton plants.

The feeding stimulant does not attract weevils from a distance, but offers the possibility of forcing them to starve on the wrong kind of diet. Research is continuing on the substances and cotton strains are being checked for their content of them.

Plant breeders could conceivably develop cotton varieties either with a high content of the repellent so plants would repel weevils or with such a low content of the attractant that the plants would not attract weevils.

The discovery also introduces the prospect of starving weevils by driving them away from the kind of food they need. In laboratory tests, weevils were kept away from cotton squares, bolls and seedlings for 5 to 12 hours even when they had no other food to eat. When other food was available, the weevils left # the treated plant parts untouched for 36 hours.

Stock Ponds Offer Various Benefits

Stock ponds benefit ranchers and stock farmers not only through added water resources for livestock, but for other purposes as well. It is pointed out by the local Soil Conservation Service office.

Among the various benefits cited are: Use of ponds for recreation through fishing, conserving of valuable runoff from rangeland, and water for fighting fires.

Small stock ponds in Motley County have brought about better utilization of pastures through proper distribution of grazing. A well planned water supply is necessary, however, as excessive water development may encourage over-use of an area.

The adjustment of livestock to available forage and distribution through water and cross fences can be used in the development of a sound grazing management program, in cooperation with the Upper Pease Soil Conservation District.

Through the assistance of local technicians of the Soil Conservation Service, the District installs ponds where they will work into a sound management system.

With the SCS technical assistance and cost shares available through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee and the Great Plains Conservation program, many useful stock ponds have been installed in recent years. Two ponds on the old Seigler ranch and one on the M. C. Jones place have recently been completed. Another is in process on the Seigler ranch.

Inquires about possibilities of stock ponds can be discussed and planned with the local SCS and ASC personnel.

Matador Letter In Texas Report

A letter from Matador appeared in the July issue of "Texas Report," published by the Salvation Army. It was signed by campers David Burkes, Robin Smauley, Dale Markham, and Camp Chairman J. Tom Hamilton, all of whom attended Camp Hobitzelle this summer.

The letter follows:

"We wish to thank you for the very pleasant and beneficial stay at Camp this year.

"Each of us was taught to swim, which in itself is a great benefit, and the many other advantages we enjoyed — too numerous to mention — were a source of pleasure to us. We will long remember the pleasant association with, and the new friendships formed between us and other boys from over the state.

"We wish to thank each one of the staff, our counselor, Tommy Falcon, and everyone who had a part in contributing to our welfare and pleasure while at Camp.

"On behalf of the local Salvation Army Service Unit Committee, who made it possible for us to attend, we wish to thank the entire organization for the privilege of attending the Camp."

THE DOLLAR YOU SPEND FOR ELECTRICITY BUYS MORE THAN EVER BEFORE

How much is your monthly electric service bill? Probably more than in years past. But that's because you use more electricity today and NOT because the rate is higher.

Truth of the matter is that as the cost of living has gone up and up, the average cost of a kilowatt hour of electricity used in West Texas homes is 17% less than 10 years ago.

But the USE of electricity has increased; many homes today are using twice as much. Using more and getting more customer benefits, for today there are 166 wonderful electric ways to bring more comfort and convenience into the home, to save time and to eliminate drudgery. Use in the long summer months may be even heavier, because of continuous use of air conditioning.

Yes, the dollar you spend for electricity buys more than ever before. It's today's best value, biggest bargain.

which began just before noon on Tuesday, the 30th, and continued until 2:00 p.m. the following day when the camp was dismissed.

The first meal served at the camp was the evening meal. Guy Goen, Spur rancher was the official cook. Serving three meals from his familiar chuck wagon mounted on his pickup, he had plenty of help from the two-county 4-H leaders. An estimated 200 persons were served for the first evening meal and the food committee received high praise for such excellent meals.

Workshops Are Held
Besides swimming, day activities included three workshops: One on Wildlife, conducted by V. S. Smith of Lubbock with the Predatory Animal and Rodent Control Service; the second on Electricity by Dell Young of the Dickens County Electric Coop; and a third on Water Safety, led by Messrs. Phillips and Robinson of West Texas Utilities Co., from Abilene.

Highlighting the two-days activities was a night program featuring a talent show using 4-H members from both counties. All attending felt that this program was excellent.

In addition to the talent show, Virgil Smith and his associate staged a skin diving demonstration in the pool. Evening vespers concluded the program for the day.

"Credit for the success of this camp is due to the 4-H Councils of each county and the wonderful cooperation and participation of untiring leaders, parents and friends of 4-H in the area," said Dickens County Agent Billy R. Percival, who, together with Mrs. Doyleene Meadors, Dickens County Home Demonstration Agent, assisted. Game Warden Jerry Noles also assisted in the absence of Motley County Agent Bill Palmeyer, who is in Army Reserve Camp.
