see how everything is going. He said this was one of the biggest welcomes they had had and certainly more people than had come to see them than at Austin and San Antonio. They really felt welcomed and all the people had been wonderful.

One of the directors also commented on how great everyone was and that they just couldn't get over the big turnout and the fact that we had a parade for them.

A couple who camped in a teepee with a replica of the Texas flag on it came with the train to repair harnesses, etc.

The wife of the vet from Madil, Okla., knew my cousins. She and her sons had been with it three weeks to help her husband take care of the animals, and loved it.

The Wagon Train souvenir vendors had enjoyed the trip but would be glad when it was over, too.

The Wagon Train people wanted Matador hat pins or bumper stickers, some of them had growing collections.

I visited with Jerrell Nimmo, a former Northfield resident, who rode in the parade, it was the first time he had ever ridden in a parade and was overwhelmed by the people lining the highways and streets. It was most definitely the largest crowd Matador has had in many years.

Tuesday morning, the City Park was a beautiful sight, with the sun shining on the wagons as they prepared to start another day.

Motley County Extends Big Welcome To Wagon Train

"The reception at Matador has been one of our best," stated General Business Manager of the Texas Sesquicentennial Wagon Train Association, Quentin McGowen of Ft. Worth. "But," he continued, "it's the first parade in our honor. We thank all the people who planned or worked on it, and especially those who came out to see the Wagon Train."

Just as many area residents thrilled to the sight of the slow moving wagons coming over the Pease hills, so did the wagon train participants have a treat in store when the Plainview Girl's Rodeo Drill Team performed as they passed the northern outskirts of Matador. Texas flags, red saddle blankets with a white star, and red stocking accents made the horse and rider precision drills outstanding.

Leading the colorful parade into town, the wagon train trotted through the downtown streets, circling the courthouse giving spectators a close if not fleeting look at the teams, wagons, and riders before settling in at the City Park campsite.

The Reese Air Force Color Guard showed their mettle by marching the two mile-plus parade close behind was Riley Miller's Historical Review featuring characters depicting the colorful history of Motley County, including comancheros, buffalo hunters, bag-pipe players, pioneers and settlers.

Antique cars, a truck, a country swing band, the Sesquicentennial Queen's Float, the young Women's Study Club float, a Children's float and then a particularly nostalgic float depicting life a half century or more ago made a truly enthralling parade. The Khiva Clowns provided whimsical amusement. Local horsemen showed off their best mounts while the sharp drill team kept a check on spirited horses.

All in all, this parade and this entire day was one not to have been missed. It will stand out in the memories of all who came to the Motley County Sesquicentennial as a day to remember and treasure.

Goodbye, Matador

By Marisue Potts

"WAGONS HO," shouted Wagon Master Gary France and with that age old call the Sesquicentennial Wagon Train pulled out of City Park at 8 a.m. on a chilly May 27 morning. Texas flags and colorful banners waved amid the canvas as forty wagons lined up for the short day's march to Glen.

The lead wagon, urged on by Gary's competent wife, got a run and with little trouble scrambled to the top of the slippery hill. Suddenly a riderless horse shot by, running scared from the racket of the metal wheels on the pavement. "Keep 'em coming! Move 'em out!" France encouraged as the horse raced west down the street before being caught by the advance outriders.

Off to one side the Cody wagon was having trouble. It looked as if a pair of mules became unhitched and the wagon was pulled off to one side Up the hill with mules scrambling and lines snapping, a lady muleskinner whizzed by slower wagons.

Several other teams were having trouble. One driven by the McCrossan Boys Ranch from South Dakota started rolling back as the massive Belgians faltered. "Hit your brake, son!" France rode down the hill to assist and advise.

"Doesn't have a brake," one of the spell-bound spectators commented as the big green wagon rolled into the team behind. M.G. Brotherton's video camera continued to roll, capturing the rodeo atmosphere.

The role of the outriders became clear as they not so gently persuaded the classy draft horses to climb out of the hole. By tugging on thick heavy ropes now tied to the halters in the lead and by hitting the rear horses with a coiled rope, the riders literally pulled and scared them up the hill.

A touring wagon from Grand Prairie searched for firmer footing and pulled onto the gravelly shoulder. Its mules stumbled to their knees, then scrambled up. The wagon began to roll back into the side of the hill. Passengers quickly unloaded to lighten the load and to push, then raced to catch their ride as it neared the top.

With the Belgians and tourists on their way, the outriders concentrated on a green-broke foursome pulling an obviously homemade wagon. With legs a-flying, sparks a-flying, the copper mules made a run, only to fail. The modern home-on-wheels proved to be too heavy, or the mules too weak or out of shape. Quickly a Wagon Train pickup fell in to push the wagon up the hill as the crowd cheered.

The Sesquicentennial Wagon Train was on its way!

The Sesquicentennial Festival

The Sesquicentennial Festival arrived And Motley County really did jive!! The old-fashioned costumes galore Added color to all the folklore. The queens were as pretty as could be And the kids paraded for all to see. The art show added much finesse and glamour. For this type of refinement, some of us clamor. The jail museum added much. The displays showed us "woman's touch." The vendors on all the streets Sold stuff that was really "neat". The Wagon Train lived up to all expectations. It far exceeded our speculations. It was real with mules and horses. Cowpokes, kids and ladies joined forces. They showed the past of Texas history By portraying the pioneers who won victory. The church service brought all together To sing and pray - all Christians gathered. As the band tuned up for frolic and fun The dance began at setting of sun. Many people worked and slaved And of themselves freely gave To make the Festival the best it could be. It was a wonderful time all agreed. The 1936 Centennial is past. The 1986 Sesquicentennial is going fast. I won't be here in 2036, alas, But bet the Bicentennial will be a blast!!!

Advice On Children Passenger Safety

School's out and families all over the State will be making trips on the Texas highway system. Major V.J. Cawthon, Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety Region 5's sixty counties, said, "Long trips can make children restless. Be sure to bring along something to keep them occupied."

The Major said, "All motorists should remember that state law requires all persons in the front seat of passenger cars to be buckled up at all times the vehicle is being operated upon a public highway."

"Also, don't forget, that children under two years of age must be in an infant seat and children from two years of age to four years of age must be buckled up no matter where the child is seated," Major Cawthon stated.

Remember, the leading cause of death of children under six years of age is automobile accidents!

Children will be out playing at all hours of the day and into the evening hours. Sometimes they forget where they are and run into the streets and highways while playing. The Texas motorist is asked to be especially alert for these situations, so these children can return to school next fall safe and healthy.

Slow down a little this vacation time and live a lot!

Shopping For Bargains At Outlet Stores

More outlet stores and even complete outlet shopping centers are opening in many Texas cities. Because reduced prices are the chief feature of these stores, shopping at an outlet store can be a money saver.

Although you can get real bargains at outlet stores, the merchandise will vary in quality and some may have flaws. One way to tell what you're getting to know what the labeling terms on this outlet store merchandise means.

Here are some of the terms used in many stores:

* Samples--These garments may have been used by sales representative. They typically come in small sizes and may be "shop-worn."

* Irregulars--This indicates an imperfection in color, size or fabric construction. The imperfections will not necessarily affect the wear of the garment and may not be visible. But make sure you know why the item has been labeled "irregular" before buying it.

* Seconds--This term is applied to a garment with a visible tear, run, color loss or other imperfection.

* Surpluses--These are generally "left-overs" either because they didn't sell well, or the manufacturer overestimated the number to make. End-of-the-season clothes and "odd lots" of broken sizes are also included in this category.

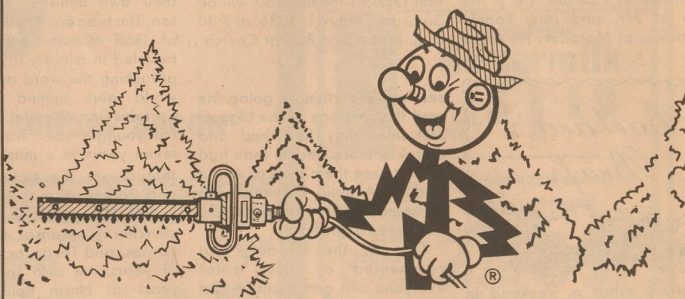

* Mill-Ends are regular first quality fabrics that are from the end of a bolt of fabric. They usually come in short lengths and sell for a fraction of the cost. But check end of bolt fabric for flaws or wrinkles that may not press out.

Outlet stores were once usually located in low-rent districts or near the manufacturing plant, but now may be found anywhere. There are even some books that list outlet stores throughout the state or nation so people can take advantage of bargain shopping while they travel.

But remember that there will be some trade-offs for low prices. The stores are usually self-service, have few or no fitting rooms, limited shopping hours, no alteration services and allow no credit or returns.

Oil Price Drop Could Strike Local Tax Bases

Declining oil prices have had a major impact on Texas state government tax revenues, but they could also have a significant affect on the ability of many local governments to meet their spending needs.

Comptroller Bob Bullock has estimated that the recent collapse of the OPEC price structure--which dropped the spot market selling price of oil from more than $26 per barrel to as low as $13 in only a few weeks--will cut state tax collections enough to threaten the state government with a $1.3 billion deficit at the end of its current budget period.

As big as that impact might seem, it could appear small next year when hundreds of Texas cities, counties, school districts and other local governments face the possibility of dramatic reductions in their local tax bases because lower oil prices have cut the taxable value of oil and natural gas deposits.

In fact, experts in appraising oil and gas for property tax purposes speculate that, if oil is selling for $17 per barrel or less on January 1, 1987, the taxable value of the state's oil and natural gas reserves could drop by between 30 and 50 percent of their current value.

Should the taxable value of oil and gas drop to 70 percent of its current level, it could lower the total taxable value of property in the state by as much as $26 billion, based on figures from 1984, the last year for which full information is available.

A 50 percent drop from the 1984 value levels governments by as much as $43 billion.

In either case, many local governments would be faced with the distasteful choice of either cutting their spending to match the expected revenue losses or raising taxes, or both.

DELAYING COW CULLING COSTS$$$--Giving "Ole' Bossy"

one more chance to have a calf is like tossing money out the window, says a beef cattle specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. A recent demonstration in Calhoun County showed just how much money can be lost with this poor herd management practice. According to the study, holding an open cow over a 19-month period caused a loss of $116.02 per cow. Even if the cows had conceived the day after they were found to be open, at least a 15-month maintenance cost would have been incurred--nine months for gestation and six months to weaning. That would have resulted in a loss of $17.70 per cow. Selling an open cow immediately after palpation will gross $320 to $420 depending on her weight and price per pound.

Social Security

by Terry Clements

Obituaries

Edna Lee

Surviving dependents of a deceased worker should apply for Social Security benefits as soon as possible following a worker's death.

Applying promptly will allow benefits to start in the shortest possible time. In addition, some benefits cannot be paid for more than one month before the month of application.

Social Security benefits can be paid to these survivors:

- * Unmarried children under 18, or 18-19 if full time secondary school students.
- * Unmarried children over 18 who were disabled before 22 and remain disabled.

- * A surviving widow or widower of any age caring for a child under 16 or disabled who gets benefits.

- * Widow or widower 60 or over.

- * Disabled widow or widower 50-60.

- * Dependent parents 62 or over.

Benefits can also be paid to a surviving divorced spouse if she or he was married to the deceased worker 10 years or more. Grandchildren can get benefits on a grandparent's record under certain circumstances.

Before any benefits can be paid, the worker must have had credit for a certain amount of work covered by Social Security. In 1986, the amount ranges from 1 1/2 to 8 3/4 years depending on the age of the worker at death.

More information about Social Security survivor benefits can be obtained at the social security office at 1401-B West 5th street, or call us at 293-9623.

A Man Among Men

By Hazel Soltwisch

Tall like his Tennessee father before him, Broadshouldered and muscular, too; With large, work-hardened hands, Ruddy complexion and eyes so blue. Uncompromising, strong willed, independent, Honest to the n'th degree; Fair but strict disciplinarian For all the world to see. Always plain spoken, leaving no doubt Where he stood on anything. Hardest of workers whatever the job Or the meager pay it would bring. His word was his bond always; Never given foolishly, He was trustworthy and dependable, This Dad God gave to me. Never emotional with others; That's something he wasn't taught to do, But in his last years, amid his tears He told us all, "I love you." Time took it's toll on Daddy; Stopped, hard of hearing, sight so dim; Embarrassed that he was so helpless; Anxious for the Lord to take him. What will we do without Daddy? We'll treasure our memories of him; He awaits our soon arrival To the wonderful world he's now in.

Thanks!

Guys and Gals would like to express appreciation to everyone who made the Sesquicentennial such a success. A special bouquet of thanks goes to Lucretia Campbell and Frances Hobbs for their monumental efforts.

Lest We Forget.....

by Gary Lancaster

(Editor's Note:

Early morning on May 26 Memorial Day was heralded by fifteen veterans of Foreign Wars, who carried out the ceremony of raised flags and general salute.)

Matador Mayor, Gary Lancaster gave a particularly rousing speech with the theme of "Lest We Forget".

Selection of a subject was hard, but three words come to mind when people talk about Memorial Day--Lest We Forget--Lest We Forget. What do these words really mean? Each generation since the revolution has had to make a difficult decision and a difficult sacrifice. They must make the decision that they love freedom more than life.

There were many wars in the early days of the U.S., but perhaps it was WWI that most exemplified the unification of a nation to a common cause. For this was commonly known as the "War To End All Wars". The most highly decorated soldier of WWI knew this was not to be. For Sgt. York was to say after the war, "The thing people forget, that liberty and freedom are so precious we do not fight for them only once."

WWII further underlined the words of Sgt. York, for it was in 1934 that Hitler stated that he only needed 5 years to build up his armed forces to the point he could conquer Europe. People disregarded this, for they were hungry for peace and as christian nations believed that other people held to the same moral standards that they did.

It is interesting to note at this time the liberal press went through 3 phases--Phase 1. They stated that intelligence reports and, in fact, eyewitness reports were wrong, that Hitler was not re-arming, that he could be trusted. Phase 2. The press said, Well, it was true that Hitler was re-arming, but only for self defence, and, after all, since WWI we couldn't really blame them for that. Phase 3. The press said, We were wrong, Hitler was re-arming and he had parity, in fact he had superiority to us, but he could still be trusted, if we submitted to his wishes.

Does this strike a familiar sound to the television, newspaper, and liberal politicians of the last 15-20 years? In the 50's and 60's they said Russia was not building up. In the 70's they said well, Russia was building up, but only for their defence. Now, in the 80's they say Russia is on parity with us, in fact they may be superior, we must negotiate, we must have detant, we must trust them, we must freeze our weapons, we must disarm our bombs. Lest We Forget.

After WWII came the period which people call the cold war, a more descriptive name might be Wars called Peace. For a total of over 165,000 americans died in Korea and Vietnam. These were different wars than people were historically used to, in fact they weren't even called wars but "Conflicts or Police Actions". While WWI and WWII bound the nation together, Korea and Vietnam tore the nation apart.

These Wars called Peace might trace their beginnings to the year 1924. For it was in the year of Lenin's death he stated how communism would conquer the world. His 3 step plan was 1): To control Eastern Europe 2). To conquer and control Asia 3). To surround the U.S., which would be the last outpost of freedom. Make overtures of peace, which the decadent capitalists would jump at. The U.S. would finally fall--without a fight. The U.S. will fall into communist hands like an overripe fruit. Lest We Forget.

Memorial Day was established in 1868 by General Logan to honor the Civil War dead. It has since become a day to honor the dead from all war's because a nation can ill afford to forget the people who have defended it. For the blood of those who have given there lives has been a shield for others to maintain their basic freedoms. Lest we forget--the price of liberty equals the willingness and ability of the people to defend it.

General Telephone Plans Subscriber Charge

Single line business and all residential telephone customers across the nation, including those served by General Telephone, will begin paying June 1, 1986 a monthly $2 subscriber line charge.

This $2 charge represents a $1 increase to the subscriber line charge and is the second phase of a federally mandated process that is intended to gradually eliminate the practice of charging customers more for long-distance service in order to keep residential rates artificially low. An initial $1 subscriber line charge became effective June 1, 1985.

Business customers with more than one line have been paying a $6 subscriber line charge since May 1984. This subscriber line charge will not change.

Under the Federal Communications Commission plan for implementation of subscriber line charges, the total revenues of the local telephone companies will not increase since the FCC in turn will reduce by an equivalent amount charges to long-distance carriers for use of local facilities and equipment. It is the intent of the FCC that this decrease in long-distance carriers' expense will be passed through to customers in the form of reduced interstate long-distance rates. AT&T has already announced plans to reduce its interstate rates.

General Telephone officials said the subscriber line charges are designed to shift from long-distance users to local customers, a larger portion of the actual costs of providing the line from their residence or business to the telephone switching equipment. It was pointed out that long-distance rates have been artificially high to pay a portion of these costs, thus keeping local rates artificially low.

Depending on the amount of interstate long-distance calling, the proposed reduced interstate rates could offset the $2 fee for many customers, especially high volume users.

The $2 subscriber line charge applies to all residential and single line business customers of all exchange telephone companies providing local exchange service.

Conference On Farm Crisis

PLAINVIEW (special)--Wayland Baptist University and the Central Plains MHMR Center will join forces with the Leadership Plainview program in hosting a one-day conference on "The Farm Crisis" on Friday, May 30.

Funded by the Hogg Foundation for Mental Health through the Texas Office of Rural Health at Texas Tech University, the local conference is one of five such seminars being held across the state dealing with stress and rural Texas.

The purpose of the conferences is to provide information to rural health care professionals and other interested persons about stress, its impact on the mental and physical health of rural Texans, and how to assist them in coping with stress.

The local meeting will attempt to determine causes for the current crisis among area farmers and look for hope for the future. Participants will examine specific symptoms of stress, including depression, substance abuse, family violence, and child abuse. The conference is free to all interested participants.

To be held in the Nunn Business Building on the Wayland campus, the conference will begin with registration at 8:30 a.m., followed by a program overview by Lois Barry, director of the Texas Office of Rural Health.

Other program personalities include Dr. Bill Pearce, director of the Caprock Plains Center for Counseling here; Dr. Wayland Bennett, associate dean of agricultural sciences at Texas Tech; and Carl King, president of the Texas Corn Growers Association.

The conference will include workshops on such topics as hope for the future in farming, drug abuse, suicide, re-education and training for farmers, alcoholism, family violence and child abuse, the farmers' plight, and depression.

The program is slated to conclude at 4 p.m.

Persons interested in participating in the conference should contact Rick Van Hersh, local coordinator, at the Plainview Counseling Center (296-2726) or Dr. Billie Henderson, Dean of Lifelong Learning, at Wayland (296-5521).
