Albuquerque has the throbs of prosperity, reaching the fingers of new streets out on the bleak mesas, and pouring a substantial foundation of industry into what once a resort town for "the rich." It has the same altitude as the river. Farmers Commended Soil Practices

Motley county farmers are doing an excellent job in handling their wheat stubble, according to James Priddy of the local Soil Conservation office. "Wheat is showing a better yield than expected," he said. "The conservation practices of the Upper Pease Soil Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service is bearing fruit. The method of treatment used in wheat stubble may determine future yields. "In traveling over the district," he said, "one can not but notice the good job farmers are doing in keeping their wheat stubble on the surface. "Some have chiseled and plan under their stubble with sweeps when it rains. The best of keeping crop residue on the surface is done with large 28-32-inch sweeps, set flat with overlap of about four inches, which gives complete weed control and keeps the maximum residue on the surface. "Joe Bloodworth and Wade Perryman both have plows which are made to do this job. Moisture conscious district operators consistently tell us that the one-way is a horse and buggy implement. "Our goal should be to carry these residues on the surface through the planting and cultivation operations. More stubble on the surface—more moisture in the ground."

Healthy Growth Shown In School Attendance

Census reports notwithstanding, Matador is growing—at least the school district is growing. Last year the daily attendance here was 314.09 as compared with the previous year of 277.61, an increase of 36.48 students attending school each day. It means that the State of Texas is going to allow another teacher with salary of $3,500 to $4,000. If only eight of the 17 average absent students had been present, the school would have been allowed two extra teachers instead of one. One teacher is allowed for each 24 students in school each day. Supt. Bert Ezzell said it is probable the extra teacher will reach the high school faculty, since a need exists for expanding the courses presently offered. Supt. Ezzell believes the high school enrollment will exceed 100 when school starts in September (99 enrolled last school term). If the high school will be the 100 mark it will be the first time in nine years. Grade school had 309 last year. Total enrollment for white schools was 408. Colored school enrollment is about 37.51. Enrollment in the school system is expected to be about 42 next term. School officials praised patrons of the school system for keeping their children at their books during the past term, and the attendance record of teachers employed is based on average daily attendance, it becomes highly important to everyone that the student is in school every day.

Traditional Lunch Is Event Feature

Outstanding singers from distant places are expected here Sunday when the Motley County Singing Convention holds its first 1956 semi-annual meeting at the Legion building. President Randall Whitworth said yesterday that much interest is being shown in the convention and that plans are well advanced to accommodate the expected crowds. Whitworth said that renowned singers have attended the meetings in recent years, some of them coming great distances, and that they are expected to return Sunday. Special quartets and special music numbers have appeared on the programs through the years since the pioneer organization was formed. Local residents and patrons of the singing convention are urged to bring ample hampers of food to provide for visitors. The old custom of "singing all day and dinner on the ground" will be followed. The exception being that the food will be served in the modern, air-conditioned Legion building, which also has adequate kitchen facilities. "It is important," President Whitworth said, "that we as the host community provide ample food for our visitors. I sincerely hope that local residents will supply food in generous quantities, as is the tradition of Matador." In the plans for the meeting, suggestion is made that places of business "police-up" their premises, so that the visitors expected Sunday may take home a favorable impression of the city.

Exemption Needed To Cast Free Vote

Young men and women who plan to vote for the first time in 1956 elections, must first secure a poll tax exemption, it was announced this week by the office of Sheriff, Tax Assessor and Collector John Stotts. Any man or woman who has reached their 21st birthday since January 1, 1955, is eligible to vote in 1956 elections, provided they have filed for a poll tax exemption at least 30 days prior to the election in which they desire to vote. As an example, anyone reaching the age of 21 since January 1, 1955, and wishing to vote in the July Democratic primary, must secure a poll tax exemption (at the sheriff's office) not later than June 28. No charge is made for issuing the exemption. Another provision is that an exemption may be issued to anyone who will reach the age of 21 by (and including) election day.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM THE CAPITOL

VERN SANFORD
 Press Association

Regardless of who this summer, most probably won't find lives greatly changed. In one segment of the 22,000 state employees, it affects their lives as a 20 per cent turn-over of state employees can be after the new officials in January.

estimate comes from P. executive secretary of Public Employees Ass. About one-third of the group is concentrated in the rest is scattered.

members on the whole the discreet in their policies. Their association expressly prohibit endorsement.

personnel, especially courted. Many office-seekers especially in Travis County, promise "more adequate pay."

And those employees whose jobs hinge on the boss' being re-elected naturally pull for him. State law, while not as strict as the federal Hatch Act, puts some restrictions on this.

Formerly a rider on the appropriations bill forbade any political activity by state employees. Now the ban is only against use of state cars, or campaigning on state time.

Insurance Companies Re-Align
 "Merger" will be a much-discussed word in the Texas insurance industry during coming weeks.

Wind-up of the State Insurance Commission's stringent solvency survey left 94 companies — or seven per cent — without licenses. New permits were granted to 1,219 firms.

Results confirmed Chairman Byron Saunders' prediction that the industry would prove 90 to 95 per cent sound. He said so last January when the commission began its drive to "weed out the bad apples."

Many already have negotiations underway, or completed, to merge with stronger companies. More realignments are expected, especially among life companies where many large firms actively seek reinsurance business.

Radar Traps Attacked
 Are the Texas Highway Patrol's radar speed nets illegal? Amarillo Attorney Horace E. Wilson says he will fight to the Supreme Court, if necessary, to prove they are. Wilson was arrested recently and fined $5 plus costs. A radar set near Seguin had clocked him at 71 miles per hour.

He declares Section 803A of the State Penal Code provides for automatic dismissal of a speeding charge if the arresting officer lies in wait or hides.

Tribune, Matador, Motley County, Texas, Thursday, June 14, 1956

In Austin Patrol Chief W. J. Elliott said "nothing in state law prohibits hiding the radar unit, but the highway patrol does not make this a practice. We can do more good by putting ourselves out in the open."

Cities Need More Water
 A majority of Texas cities feel their water supplies are inadequate for the future.

State Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas, chairman of the Texas Water Resources Committee, says a recent survey of 225 cities shows 54 per cent with this problem. Purpose of the survey was to search out needs and sentiments for a statewide water program. Recommendations go to the Legislature in January.

Parkhouse said city officials "almost without exception favor building their own water facilities aided by financing on the lowest level of government possible. He said he is most hopeful the next Legislature will make such a program possible."

Davy Ready For Tourists
 Texans, who tour their Capitol by the thousands each year, will see a fresh-faced Davy Crockett this summer.

Crockett's huge portrait was re-hung in the Capitol foyer last week after an extensive re-touching job. Legislators last session authorized $12,000 for conservation work on five valuable paintings.

Taxpayers have invested $95,400 in the fabulous art collection scattered over the Capitol. Resale value is estimated as high as half a million dollars. Tourist favorites are "Dawn at the Alamo" and "The Battle of San Jacinto." They are located in the Senate chamber. Each cost $12,500.

No Trouble Seen On Poll
 No objection is expected by the Democratic Executive Committee chairman to putting the interposition question on the July primary ballot.

Chairman George Sandlin discounted talk of a court challenge to the validity of the 150,000 signatures on the referendum petitions. Spot checks are being made against poll tax lists, said Sandlin.

Texas Referendum Committee presented the petition. It asks a vote for or against interposition, integration of Negroes in public schools and intermarriage of whites and Negroes.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Just the Facts, Ma'am!

Having a red-hot crime wave in the Spees McGuire and Buck Wilson were caught taking money out of parking meters — again. I at Police Headquarters when the old lady rushed in to re- them.

It was dark but I saw their in the flashlight beam," she breathlessly. "You can't trust anybody these days!"

She got flustered when Chief Benson explained that Spees and Wilson are authorized collectors — working nights after their regular jobs. "Have to get 'em uniforms," said Benson. "Third time they've been turned in!"

From where I sit, we ought to guard against accusing anyone of being "wrong" just because that's the way it looks to us. For instance, I've heard people talk against a neighbor because they didn't approve of his choice of beverage! (They liked tea, or something, while he preferred a glass of beer.) Be sure you have a case before you lay down the law.

PATRICIA COOPER, PAUL J. McMAHAN WED AT MULESHOE

Of interest to friends of the family here, was the marriage Sunday night of Miss Patricia Cooper and Paul J. McMahan in Progress Methodist Church, Muleshoe.

The bride is the daughter of former Matador residents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Cooper, and a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simpson of Matador, who attended the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. C. McMahan of Muleshoe are parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. Roy R. Havens read a double ring service at 8 o'clock before an arch entwined with greenery and pink sweet peas and centered with white wedding bells tied with pink satin bows. The arrangement was flanked by candelabra containing pink tapers entwined with bouquets of pink sweet peas and roses.

Original Creation
Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her own creation of white cotton lace over cotton tulle featuring a long torso bodice ending in points at the neckline. A circular ballerina length skirt joined at the points. Complementing the dress was a short bolero jacket fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves, a Peter Pan collar and seven tiny buttons to form the closing at center front. She wore short mitts embroidered with seed pearls, and her veil of white tulle fell from a small white hat. She carried a gladioli floret bouquet on a white Bible.

Twin sisters of the bride, Misses Linda and Sandra Cooper attended as bridesmaids. They wore identical ballerina length dresses of pink tulle. Two other sisters, Misses Frances and Doris Cooper, lighted the candles. Their dresses were Nile green cotton swissette fashioned similar to those worn by the bridesmaids.

Archie Scarbrough of Amarillo attended the bridegroom as best man and ushers were Ralph and Harold Cooper, brothers of the bride.

After a reception in Fellowship Hall, the couple left for a wedding trip to points of interest in New Mexico and West Texas. They will be at home in Littlefield, where the bridegroom is employed with R & W Supply.

For traveling, the bride chose a fitted suit of turquoise linen with white and pink accessories. A 1956 honor graduate in home economics from Muleshoe High School, the bride was employed at Harvey Bass Appliance. Her husband attended Progress School and served four years in the U. S. Navy.

FRIENDS FOR A THIRD OF A CENTURY—Adolph Faylauer, left above, and Douglas Meador, editor of the Tribune when they met in Lubbock were interviewed by Lubbock Avalanche reporter Lorraine Elston. Faylauer, who has probably appeared in more pictures than any other actor, lives in Hollywood. "I am in pictures because I am allergic to work — and I like to eat," he said. The 73-year-old bachelor had not visited Matador for 17 years, altho he had made three trips previous to his arrival recently. He was a guest in the Meador home for four days and met in Hollywood in the early 20's when the country editor was a soda-skeet, trying to sell stories to the movies. They were close friends during the six years Meador lived in Hollywood. The actor visited Meador when he started his first newspaper venture in the hand-set Hoarding Springs News in 1932 and wrote a column for the paper, "Anchors Aweigh" for seven years. He speaks three languages, is widely traveled and has filled 45 note books on subjects ranging from astronomy to archeology, marine biology and philosophy. (Lubbock Avalanche Photo).

Flomot Student Wins 2nd Place In Essay Contest

Janet Elliott, eighth grade student at Flomot won second place in a "Safety" theme contest sponsored recently by the 18th District P. T. A.

Announcement of the winners was made by M. H. Galbreath, superintendent of Girard Public Schools, to Mrs. Vivian Schofield Flomot eighth grade teacher. First place winner was Jimmy Vaughter of Haskell Junior High School.

The theme, "Safety For The Home" is as follows:

"Home should be the safest place of all, but carelessness makes it one of the most dangerous.

"Because we keep on using tables and chairs as ladders, misusing kitchen appliances, and leaving things on the stairs for someone to trip over, more persons are killed in home accidents than in all the factory, mine, railroad and farm accidents put together.

"Falls are the largest single cause of home accidents. Stout window screens and gates at the top of stairs will protect small children against falls from windows and down stairs.

"Electrical accidents can be prevented when you know and remember two things: The human body can conduct electric current; any object becomes a conductor when it is wet.

"When hands or feet are damp even with perspiration, avoid touching any appliance, and do not switch an appliance on or off when standing on a damp floor.

"Every basement fixture should be controlled by a push-button switch.

"Never touch a dangling or broken outside wire. (Beware of wires). Any wire, even a radio antenna or telephone line, may be 'live' for it may have sagged or fallen against a high voltage line.

"If a person, or animal has been shocked, do not touch him, but push the wire away with a dry piece of wood or a heavy cloth. If possible, stand on wood while doing this.

"When a fuse blows out, remove the cause before inserting a new fuse.

"Gases from oil, coal, and gas stoves and from automobile exhausts are dangerous hazards.

Gas stoves should have vent pipes leading to a chimney or outdoors. Furnace fires should be carefully banked at night.

Garage doors should be opened before automobiles are started.

"Two-thirds of all fatal burns occur in the home and a large number of them are caused by carelessness in the kitchen.

"Handles of pans should be turned inward from the edges of the stove. This is especially necessary to protect small children, for burns and scalds are among the common injuries to them.

"When cooking with lots of grease, one should be careful of grease splattering.

"To avoid scalding, lift the lid and let steam escape from the far side of the pan.

"Poisons are another hazard people watch. Small children are sometimes tempted to drink medicine from bottles and containers. Medicine cabinets are places to keep different drugs, not on living room and kitchen furniture.

"So this is why safety in the home is so very important: Safety in homes may be or several; it may be step between life and

Stamford Plans Cowboy Reunion

STAMFORD — Preparations are well under way for the 26th annual Texas Cowboy Reunion to be held in Stamford this year on July 2, 3 and 4, with night shows each day and a matinee performance on the afternoon of the 4th.

Already as much a part of West Texas as mesquite, cactus and blue skies, the popularity of this rodeo has continued to grow each year among amateur contestants in roping and riding events as well as enthusiastic spectators.

W. G. Swenson, president of the organization since its beginning in 1930, stated that many improvements were under construction and all will be ready for the opening performance. Among these improvements the Oldtimers Bunkhouse is being air conditioned for the old time cowboys and cattlemen who enjoy gathering for the reunion every year.

There were license plates from 36 states recorded among the visitors last year and, in past years there have been visitors from several foreign countries.

A colorful parade will be held at 4 p. m. on July 2. A C. Humphrey, chairman of the parade, is planning several new features in addition to the cowboys and cowgirls entered in the many rodeo events who always ride in the parade.

Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Welling and children, Peggy, Stanley, Jimmie and Ronnie returned home Thursday night from a vacation trip to Little Rock, Ark., where they visited Mr. Welling's sister and family. The trip included a tour through the Ozarks.

The Diary of Mary White

March 10, 1956, Saturday

Arose at the usual time but one look at the overcast sky dashed all hopes of a plane today. Jessie came this morning asking me to authorize her to catch the next plane to Nome and take both babies to the hospital. It is what should be done but I have no such authority. I questioned her, rather sharply I am afraid, about her own finances. Her husband is in the federal penitentiary in Stillroom Washington and she draws ANS welfare for herself and ten children. She vowed she had not one penny. Her children are not well nourished or kept clean and sympathy for them made me shudder with her. I advised her to have one plane fare laid aside at all times in case of an emergency. She agreed but . . . Gave her more orange juice as she said the baby would take it while refusing milk and the Native Store has exhausted its supply of fruit juices.

Tried to dismiss all annoyances and concentrate on work this afternoon. Accomplished some but not enough to boast about.

March 11, 1956, Sunday

A warm Sunday with the temperature thirty above. The snowflakes have been so large and thick that I don't know how they have avoided a traffic jam.

Tried an experiment in self-discipline today. No mail, all books finished, and penned inside made the whole family as restless as caged animals. Wondered if I could say "Get thee behind me" to my restlessness and work on lesson plans. In my mood I don't give a hang if I never made another such but mental me forced physical me into the chair at the desk. A book was opened and hands raised to the typewriter. The first few disgusted strokes broke no keys so gradually the subject matter captured my thoughts and believe it or not I completed four hours of work.

Decided to give myself a breath of fresh air so donned boots and coat and went to see the sick baby. The scenery was enchanting. Fresh snow and spruce trees gave the air such a clean, invigorating tang. Not so when I stepped inside the cabin. The steam and stench that greeted me when I opened the door was anything but exhilarating. One look at the baby obliterated other thoughts however. He had failed so much since I last saw him.

My inability to summon a doctor and the effect that that legendary red flag has on the bull. Leaving with a feeling that I'd like to shake my fist in someone's face I decided to pay my friend Santa a call. He hasn't been too well since his bout with the flu and I had not seen him in weeks. I found him and his wife in good spirits and enjoying their evening cup of hot tea. I drank one with them, chatted a minute then returned to play dominoes with Roger and Theresa. Retired early. I think all caged animals do, don't they?

chapters of "Treasure Island". I banged the desk, told my horror tales, made my threats and sang "Yo ho hum", and the kids thoroughly enjoyed it. Didn't want to go home at four o'clock. Wanted another chapter. Guess I missed my calling. I evidently make a very entertaining drunk.

March 13, 1956, Tuesday

Went before school to tell Jessie to have herself and babies standing by just in case. She didn't seem interested and one glance out the window did make my advice seem superfluous. One thing I learned though and I suspect it was one of my motives for going down early. Her four school age ones had gone to school without breakfast. I had scolded once before and for a while she cooked them hotcakes for breakfast. I didn't say anything this morning supposing the sick babies to be her ally.

Leaned out the window at recess to stop the children from throwing snowballs toward the building. Caught one right between the eyes. What did not adhere to the face slid into the butter. I pulled the window down and finished lunch preparations. Some little girls witnessed the scene and teased Lather, the boy who had thrown the snowball. He didn't believe them until I affirmed it then when finally he could close his mouth on his surprise he obligingly blushed.

About two-thirty Jessie, the mother of the sick baby stood outside the school room door. He words were, "I think he go now." I stood stunned for a minute and she said, "It is God." Mentally, I rebelled. To me it was not a picture of God at all but a very evident case of neglect. Of course, I couldn't say the spiteful things that arose out of my own distressed feelings to the mother of a dying child. I yanked on my boots, told the children to go to recess and went home with her. Two Eskimo women were sitting (so it seemed to me) placidly by. The baby's stomach was so swollen with gas it looked ready to burst. I went to work to give it some relief as best I knew how only to have it die in my arms. My people struggle frantically against death. Eskimos calmly accept it. Which is the better? You tell me.

I helped what I could then left the women to prepare the baby for the coffin. Jessie is the woman who helped me with Marelda. I returned to the quarters, ate my supper, then fixed beans, cheese, bread and jam and fed Jessie's other nine. She calmly informed me that she and the ones who do not go to school hadn't eaten in two days. The little four year old girl climbed up on the table, looked in the pot and murmured "dood-dood beans". To have brought joy to one little child is reward enough for one day so I thanked the Lord for what I could do and tossed my criticizing thoughts in the snow hoping they would get buried by a fresh fall and rise no more.

Tribune, Matador, Motley County, Texas, Thursday, June 14, 1956

COUNTY AGENT PALLMEYER SAYS:

COTTON INSECT CONTROL

Early season insect control will pay. If you are interested in raising your cotton production, read and figure along with this article and see if you are not willing to give it a trial.

Cotton insects can be controlled economically by the use of the proper poisons applied at the correct time. Poisons must cover the plants to kill insects, and to prevent loss of fruit, applications must be made before insects build up. Beneficial insects may aid in controlling bollworms, aphids and mites, but growers should never rely entirely on beneficial insects to control cotton insects.

Early season controls have these advantages. Early fruiting and maturity is insured, because weather conditions favor setting of early fruit, while the hot weather, winds and dry weather along with the possibility of an early frost are against the plant setting fruit late in the summer. Early season controls are cheaper to apply, and in many cases very little or no late season control is needed, depending on observation of crops. With allments reducing the plantings, it is a necessity that the most possible be produced per acre.

For early season control, begin treatment when cotton is in the four leaf stage. Two or three applications spaced at 7 day intervals control the fleahopper which cost the farmer more than all other insects combined. They knock off the young forms before they have a chance and are the reason for blank spots in the plant rather than weather conditions. Toxaphene at the rate of 1 pt. per acre will do the job on early season insects.

One boll saved on every 10 plants will pay for early season insect control. We know how the fleahopper works. He does not get just one form on each 10 plants, but generally gets several bolls on each plant, therefore the room for additional money to be made as the result of insect control. As for the argument that the cotton will throw off some fruit, this is true, except that we all know that the fruit put on early will have a better chance of sticking because of the weather than fruit put on late in the season. This has been proven in all parts of the state, and as a chance for Motley county farmers to make while to consider the advantages of early season control.

For those interested in insect control, leaflets are available at the County Agent's office.

Also worth while for those interested in insect control, is to leave some cotton on the same type of ground that receives similar treatment, except insect control, for a comparison of treated areas.

The above steps, hold true on irrigated or dryland cotton. The irrigated farmer has the advantage of being able to supply the moisture when needed, thereby causing the plant to lose less forms due to dry weather, but in most years the forms put on early will stay, while most of the throwing off occurs later in the season on dryland.

This year heavy thrip and aphid infestations have been found. These insects cause the cotton leaves to shrivel up like a spinach leaf because the insects suck the sap from the leaf. This will either result in the plant dying or delaying the growth two or three weeks. If only thrips are found the same control recommended for a fleahopper may be used, but if aphids are found, parathion must be used, as the insecticides used for fleahopper control will not kill the aphids (lice).
