May 1 Pray And Remember

May 1 marks the 2nd Anniversary of the Tornado hitting Matador. The final clean-up has taken care of all traces of that destructive force. All that remains are vacant lots with memories of former homes. With news of subsequent tornado in other areas, once again heartfelt thanks is in order that death was cheated that day.

May 1 also has been commemorated as National Day of Prayer. While a prayer of Thanks Giving is ideal for May 1st, take another moment today to pray for blessings on Motley County as a whole. Prayer works!

Barbara's Briefs

The Tribune editor traded her pencil and paper this past weekend for boots and saddle—only the boots and saddle are no longer in style. I witnessed my first cattle gathering done with a helicopter! My Dad used to gather on horseback, then when his horses got too old, he had trained his cattle to come to his pickup horn. He used to have the open fire pit, then he traded that for a butane burner and mechanical chute that held the cattle still while you brand and do what has to be done. But this last time his cattle were gathered for him, it was done with a helicopter, in half the time as horses.

It was very exciting to watch and very unexciting to the cattle. I just wish he had been there to see it. I have commented in the last 5 years that people that are the old timers now have seen more changes than we will ever see! They have gone from people in horse and buggy to people landing on the moon.

I also want to take this time to say how people are always around to help when needed in our small, but friendly community. How wonderful it is to live where new friends and old friends are always willing and able to help. Thank you.

Recruiting Violations Under Investigation

The Matador Lions Club has released information concerning alleged recruiting violations in connection with the forthcoming Exes Football game scheduled May 24.

An anonymous tip was received this week charging odd year Coaches (Grundy, Jones, and Barnhill) with putting together a "package deal" to entice their highly sought-after player (from the class of '71) back to their team following his announced retirement. The press is unable to release the player's name at this time, but is believed, he now manages a local business.

The "package deal" consisted of (1) Free use of the FSB night depository box, and (2) Double meat on the player's hamburger game night. The third violation was probable the most incriminating. It was reported the local Chevrolet dealer not only offered free use of the company's unique 1963 brown Ford, but he was also furnishing the "services of M.L." to chauffeur the player and his family on game day.

Lion tail-twister Charley Johnson was contacted concerning the alleged violations. Tail-twister Johnson stated, "Our organization will investigate the allegations and if there is sufficient proof, parties involved could face a severe fine at the next meeting." Odd year coaches were unavailable for comment.

Proceeds from the event will help benefit many of the Lions community projects and our local youth. Because of the Club's generous contributions to the school's athletic program, the M.C. Athletic Booster Club joins them to assist with the game.

All members of the Lions Club and the Booster Club are asked to bring a freezer of ice cream to the May 24 event. If you are not a member of either club but would like to contribute a freezer of ice cream your help will be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. Bo Boulter Visits School

By Mandi Farley

On Thursday April 24, 1986, Mrs. Rosemary Boulter from Virginia visited the third grade class at Motley County School. Mrs. Boulter gave a very interesting talk about how moving to Virginia has changed her life with the towers and big cities all around her.

Mr. Beau Boulter is a member of the U.S. Congress 13th District

House of Representatives. Ernie Houdashell accompanied Mrs. Rosemary Boulter. Ernie Houdashell is District Director of Mr. Beau Boulter. Miss Heather Turner presented a book "History of Motley County" by Mr. Harry Campbell to Mrs. Boulter by the third grade students.

All the members of the third grade class said a poem to Mrs. Boulter; then they took a picture of the third grade class, Mrs.

Boulter and Mrs. Turner together. Mrs. Boulter presented all of the members of the third grade class a calendar with beautiful pictures.

The third grade students really enjoyed having her and wish that she would come again.

Second Conservation Reserve Program Sign-Up

A second Conservation Reserve Program sign-up will begin May 5, 1986, and will end May 16, 1986. Producers will be offered the opportunity to bid for a CRP contract effective beginning with either the 1986 or 1987 crop years. Producers must designate the year the contract will be effective when submitting the bid. Additional sign-up period or periods for the 1987 crop year will be announced later this summer.

Any producer who has had or will have a crop mechanically removed from the designated area is ineligible for a 1986 CRP contract. For 1986, cropland designated for the CRP program may be grazed until the County ASC Committee enters into a CRP contract with the producer and he is notified that livestock must be removed to comply with CRP contract provisions. Land designated for 1987 contracts may not be grazed after October 1, 1986.

1986 crops planted for harvest on designated acres must be disposed of if the producer enters into a 1986 CRP contract. Producers who are participating in the 1986 Farm Program can withdraw without liability for liquidated damages. Annual rental payments will be made beginning October 1, 1986.

Producers who enter into a 1987 CRP contract will be allowed to harvest their 1986 crop. The contract will become effective on October 1, 1986, or the date the 1986 crop is harvested, whichever is later. Annual rental payments will not be made until after October 1, 1987. Bids may be submitted on the same farm for both 1986 Fiscal Year and 1987 Fiscal Year, but not on the same land.

Save $30 An Acre

Coy Franks

by Geni Certain
Cotton Grower Magazine

Six years ago, Coy Franks "got sick and tired of rotary hoeing." Fighting sand can be the biggest expense in growing cotton on the Texas High Plains, and Franks decided he didn't want to pay it any more. So after four years of research and planning, he instituted a conservation program that would save both his soil and his profit.

In an area notorious for low inputs, this young grower is a whiz at finding innovative ways to cut costs. He performs multiple tasks in each trip across the field and he doesn't make many. He plants windstrips and demands double duty from them. He spot sprays weeds rather than cultivate, and he may spray only once in a season for bollworms. He even packs more bales of cotton into his modules to save on transportation costs.

Franks had been considering switching to narrow rows so he could standardize his equipment for cotton and milo. He was planting on 40-inch skip rows, but when he learned at a minimum-till conference that shading the ground would make more water available to the plants, "I just decided I was doing the wrong thing."

Now he plants solid 30-inch rows between windstrips on his terraces. The windstrips (forage sorghum or wheat) are 66 feet to 500 feet wide, averaging about 140 feet. Why so wide? "All my windstrips are ACR (acreage conservation reserve)."

At the top of each terrace, Franks has planted a lovegrass strip which will become a permanent windstrip, and he has petitioned the Texas ASCS committee to waive the five-acre, 66-foot requirement for ACR used as a permanent windstrip. He says the grass at the top of the terraces traps blowing sand and prevents washing, perpetuating the terraces rather than allowing them to deteriorate through wind and water erosion. This saves his cotton and saves the government the cost of rebuilding the terraces. And because the strip is permanent, the size does not change from year to year, reducing the necessity for ASCS field inspection. "Our most fragile land is on the terraces," says Franks. With the current ACR restrictions, "there's no incentive to try to conserve the soil. You're penalized if you do."

However, Franks will continue windstripping with or without the waiver. He says the combination of narrow rows and windstripping has eliminated rotary hoeing on his farm, and that's helped his cotton. Running a rotary hoe over young plants "is just like a pretty good hail on top of it. Sometimes the cure is worse than the disease itself. So I've eliminated that and cut down on the expense, which was what I intended to do to start with. And the cotton just grows off quicker when you're not out there bashing it up with sand fighters."

Franks says eliminating sandfighting has also cut down on soil compaction. "The only time you're in it fighting sand is when it's wet, and every time you get in it when it's wet you create a compaction problem."

Franks says the switch to 30-inch rows was "the best move I've ever done. Bar none. The cheapest move I've ever done, too. Got a yield increase and also got a reduction in expenses."

He says cotton planted in 30-inch rows covers the ground earlier, helping to prevent wind erosion and reducing weed problems. It also eliminates

I believe that the people in Matador will always remember May 1, 1984. That's the day the tornado struck. That's the day so many lost their homes or had them severely damaged. That's the day Motley County lost its school.

The spring of 1984 was the season the Motley County residents were refused state and federal aid to rebuild their school.

On this day, May 1, 1986, I believe it is a good time to pat ourselves on the back and say, "We were down, but we were not out." Despite political punishment, we rallied together, we passed a school bond issue and next year we begin all over again in a beautiful new school building. We will be able to say, "WE DID IT ALL BY OURSELVES."

Those people who did not have tornado damage grabbed brooms, rakes, wheelbarrows and trucks and went to work helping clean up the mess. Many ladies of several churches worked tirelessly cooking and serving meals for those of us who had lost all or were without electricity. The Red Cross helped with providing the food but these ladies--"THEY DID IT ALL BY THEMSELVES."

City leaders pursued grants to help those without insurance or Senior Citizens who had structural damage not covered by insurance. The state and federal politicians didn't secure these grants. Our city leaders "DID IT ALL BY THEMSELVES."

We are prone to criticize ourselves but on this second anniversary of THE TORNADO, we can be modestly proud. "WE DID IT ALL BY OURSELVES."

"Son Beams"

By June Keltz

Jesus is all things to all people and the Word of God holds something special for everyone who will read and believe. An old rugged cowboy stood behind a pulpit one night with calloused hands clutching a tattered Bible. The sparkle in his eye made us know for sure that he knew something we didn't know. He began addressing the sophisticated congregation who at this point seemed a little uncomfortable. His smile deepened as he exclaimed, "I betcha didn't know that Jesus was cowboy." It was difficult to discern whether he was sincere or being facetious. Before we had time to decide, he began, in his own unique way, to tell the story found in Mark 11: 1-11.

"Jesus told two of his 'hands' to go into town where they would find a colt tied up. They were to untie him and bring him back with them. Now this colt was not broke--he'd never been rode. That didn't bother Jesus none. He was such a good bronc rider, he didn't even need a saddle. He jest slung some clothes on the bronc's back and took off."

"The Lord must've tamed the spook in that ole colt too, because when the crowd spread their clothes and branches on the road for Him to walk on, he didn't shy, buck or snort. Why he didn't even run off when the people hollered out loud 'Hosanna.'"

Well, why hadn't I seen this? Of course Jesus was a cowboy, and a Doctor, and a Lawyer, and a Sailor, and on and on. He is creator of all things. Praise His Holy Name!

Strategies For Making Ends Meet

The mortgage, car payment and utility bills still have to get paid, even when money is tight. So for most of us, that means "making ends meet" is a matter of reducing household living expenses for food, clothing, and home maintenance.

There must be 1001 ways to cut these expenses, certainly more than could ever be listed in this space--or that you could remember.

But there are some general strategies for cutting household expenses that you can apply to your own situation.

First, try trading time for money. Cut up your own chicken, make cookies instead of buy them, prepare a casserole from scratch instead of a box and use slow-cooking methods to cook some less expensive cuts of meat. The same thing applies to many home cleaning products, substitute generic products or make your own all-purpose cleaner from vinegar and water, or ammonia and water, at home.

Trading time for money extends to careful shopping: making lists, checking ads for the best prices, coupon clipping, comparison shopping and sticking to a budget. However, be careful about using coupons to save money on things you don't need or using up more money on gas than you saved by driving across town to get a "bargain."

Another good strategy is to think in terms of recycling or repairing anything before you consider buying. If you sew, mend or update clothes that can be worn for another season or "handed down" to a younger child.

Rewire your old lamp, repair your own washing machine and fix the cracked plaster yourself. You can get step-by-step instructions on home repairs from Extension publications, library books and free pamphlets on display at many hardware and home improvement stores.

Sharing is another excellent strategy for stretching dollars. Many families commonly share some items, such as baby furniture or maternity clothes, with relatives or friends.

But also think in terms of sharing other infrequently used items. For example, if you and your neighbor both garden, you could share the cost of a needed tool. Sharing applies to skills too. If you have a friend who knows how to change the oil on a car, you could babysit one evening in exchange for this service.

The last strategy is to simply cut back. If you've got two rented phones, take one back to the phone company. Turn the air conditioner up or the heater down and dress accordingly to cut down on utility costs. Try to work out carpooling arrangements so you won't need a second car.

Take a careful look at your lifestyle and hunt for those things you could cut out or reduce.

You may be surprised how much money you can save by substituting time for money, recycling and repairing, sharing and cutting back. You may even enjoy some, if not all, or a simpler lifestyle.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

By Michelle Bearden

Getting newsletters from all over the state of Texas has been a real plus for me since I started working at the Tribune. Naturally, Sesquicentennial projects other communities have undertaken, catches my attention. I also pick up on anything that indicates a community is working together to improve itself.

through as a lovely one will. Let's work together throughout the county to build some positive memories of Motley County for those who will be visiting in the upcoming month.

"Keep Texas Beautiful" sends out frequent updates on what Texans are doing to make the areas they live more attractive. To give our readers a brief rundown on some ideas other areas have come with: Forney, Tx. planted 1,000 crepe myrtle trees and completed a mini-greenbelt downtown; "Waste in Place" the litter prevention classroom study program has been activated all over the state; improving city parks; Main Street Projects where city centers are systematically restored to period authenticity; organized planting of trees and annual flowers, and the list goes on and on.

The Governor's Award focuses on competition of over 150 communities for a share of a $700,000 landscaping award. In Category I (population up to 2500) for a $20,000 prize. Roaring Springs is in the running against 41 other towns. Judging criteria reward both the towns cleanup projects and programs toward long-term litter prevention.

Along, these same lines, I would like to make a personal appeal to all the farmers who have land along the Wagon Train route to look your property over to see what it would look like to those passing by. Look for trash, miscellaneous junk spread around, rolls of old barbed wire, tumble weeds, etc. An eyesore will make just as lasting an impression on a person traveling

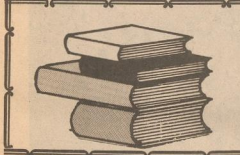

The Texas Highway Department has been instrumental in setting the stage for grass-roots projects with a $4 million anti-litter program. This has been expanded to include the Governor's Community Achievement Awards program; Enforcement crackdown and a Statewide Coordination project.

Two teaspoons of cooking oil in the water in which you're boiling noodles, rice, macaroni or spaghetti will keep them from sticking.

Missing Children Program Valuable

by Grace Zabielski

The Predicta Study Club of Roaring Springs met at the Depot on April 17.

Lee Peacock presided over the business meeting.

LaVoe Thacker gave a reading from the book of Psalms for the devotional.

Freda Keahey read the minutes and gave the treasurers report.

The nominating committee report on new officers were: President, Mrs. J.M. Thacker; Vice President, Mrs. Tom Yeates; Secretary, Mrs. Bill Peacock; Treasurer, Miss Freda Keahey; Correspondence Sec., Mrs. Callie Winnegar.

Mrs. Peacock introduced Cpl. Royce Williams from the Lubbock Police Department who gave us an insight into the problem of child abuse and missing children.

Cpl. Williams is the Regional Crime Prevention Officer in Texas, from the Lubbock Police Dept. Crime Prevention Unit, which is in cooperation with SPAG. The unit has been so successful, they are being contacted from other departments in many places.

There has always been child abuse, it's now being pulled out of the closet, and with the use of computers information from all over the country can be compiled in a short time.

Some of the facts we learned are: Every 2 minutes a child is sexually abused, there were 1.2 million cases in 1984. One in every 4 girls are abused, one in every 10 boys are abused. In Lubbock there were 84 cases in 1984 but, in 1985 there were 250. Most abuse cases are not committed by a stranger. 80% of the children knew their abuser. Age is not a factor, the ages run from 12 to 94. Race is not a factor.

Cpl. Williams also works in the missing children program. Some facts are: 1.8 million children are missing each year. That is 4,900 each day. From these 100 a day are never found. So 36,500 children are gone each year. 85% of the children missing are away from home when they are abducted.

Some children are stolen to be raised as the abductors own. Some are stolen to be sold for around $20,000.00. They look for children starting at 5 years for porno.

Several means of child identification are being used. The finger printing program, there is a micro dot to be put on a tooth, on this micro dot there will be the name, address, birthday, description, and parents name. But Cpl. Williams said the sad thing about this, is they never see it unless the child is dead. Then there is the pictures on Milk cartons and on T.V. The newest program is the Video Tape, the child reads a 15 or 30 second message from a card, telling his name, etc. This is the best, most effective, and cheapest of all.

If you are aware of a missing child, call the D.H.R. Dept. of Human Resources and report the children whereabouts. The D.H.R. will contact the Crime prevention unit of the Lubbock Police Dept. and on investigation will begin within minutes.

Members present were; Mrs. Ossia Lee Brown, Miss Freda Keahey, Mrs. Lem Miller, Mrs. Bill Peacock, Mrs. H.C. Smith, Mrs. J.M. Thacker, Mrs. Lillian Thacker, Mrs. Callie Winnegar, Mrs. Tom Yeates, Mrs. Ray Zabielski.

Hostesses were Freda Keahey and Emma Miller.

Garden Club Program Cites Lure of Texas Forest Trail

Theme for the year for Matador Garden Club, "Beauty Along Texas Highways," provided the club with another Texas Trail program when members met April 21 at the home of the president, Mrs. Ted Elliott. In business session, Mrs. Elliott led in discussing plans for the flower arrangement display, set for Saturday, May 3 at the Summit Savings Community Room. Arrangement subjects were drawn by the members, designating what each should

2. Judges are sometimes reversed, but George W. Miller's inexcusable reversals were not on complicated cases, but on simple issues of law and fact. I will study the law and be prepared for trial.

3. George W. Miller has made unnecessary arbitrary appointments wasting the taxpayer's money. I will consult with our County Commissioners before making any appointments.

4. George W. Miller has failed to appoint Grand Juries at the beginning of the term and thereby denied citizens their constitutional rights to have access to a Grand Jury at all times without having to ask the District Attorney to present allegations of criminal activity. I will promptly call in the Grand Juries at each term so that justice may be done, and advise them they may perform their duties without interference from the District Attorney.

5. George W. Miller has postponed and delayed the collection of delinquent taxes by refusing to immediately sign the orders necessary for the collection of delinquent taxes resulting in some taxes not being collectible because the property has been removed from the Jurisdiction of the Court. The rules of Judicial Conduct request that a Judge promptly dispose of the business of the Court. I will strictly obey this rule.

6. Concerning violations of the Rules of Conduct and the numerous reversals of his judgments, the charges I have made against my opponent, George W. Miller, are true and come directly from the public records.

7. Some of George W. Miller's campaign expenses have been paid for by paign purposes. The taxpayers have not paid for any of my campaign and never will.

You have a right to know the facts. My opponent, George W. Miller, has not answered the charges, because he knows they are all true. The truth is not "Mud slinging." No public official, especially a judge, is above the law.

On May 3, you will for the first time in your life have the opportunity to vote against George Miller by voting for a candidate who needs the job, who will appreciate the job, and who will devote his time to making a diligent effort to fairly, impartially, efficiently and economically perform the duties of the office.

County Agent's Corner

By Ray Minkley

Large numbers of boll weevils are being captured in pheromone traps in the Texas Rolling Plains. This past winter was very mild and boll weevils overwintered in very large numbers.

There are 68 traps in the United States Department of Agriculture, APHIS, PPQ trap line R which runs through Stonewall, Kent, Dickens and Motley Counties. These traps are inspected weekly. There are 15 traps in Stonewall and Dickens Counties. In Kent County there are 15 traps inside the Diapause Boll Weevil Control Zone and 15 traps outside of the zone, and in Motley County there are 8 traps. The weeks of April 16 and April 23 there were 1,958 and 1,658 boll weevils captured in the 68 traps of trap line R. For these two weeks the traps in Stonewall County averaged 89.2 boll weevils per trap. The trap outside the control in Kent County averaged 27.1 weevils per trap and the trap inside the control zone in Kent County averaged 2.8 per trap. In Dickens and Motley Counties the traps averaged 0.2 and 2.0 weevils per trap.

Pete Flores, Kent County Extension Agent, captured 90 boll weevils in six traps on April 16. All of the weevils were captured in the 4 traps in the east part of Kent County. No boll weevils were captured in the two traps in the Boll Weevil Diapause Control Zone.

In Fisher County, Paula Verden, Extension Agent-Entomology, captured 383 boll weevils in 7 traps the week of April 21, an average of 54.7 per trap.

In Wilbarger and Foard Counties there are 5 boll weevil traps. A total of 19 weevils were captured in these traps on April 16, and 12 were captured on April 23.

Much larger numbers of boll weevils are being captured this year than in any year since 1976 or 1977. This large emergence indicated that the boll weevil was able to overwinter in large numbers.

The numbers of boll weevils emerging from overwintering habitat should reach the highest levels from May 25 through June 10. By planting after the uniform planting date of May 19, most of the overwintered weevils will die before 1/3 grown squares are present on July 1 for egg deposition.

To have the maximum impact on the boll weevil, producers must delay planting until after the planting date.

Kids of Working Mothers Can Eat Nutritiously

COLLEGE STATION--The notion that children of women who work outside the home subsist on convenience foods and snacks is probably a myth.

According to a survey study published recently in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association, working mothers feed their families 7% more salads and 8% more eggs than mothers who do not work outside the home.

The study showed that working parents' children under age 12 eat more vegetable dishes, more bacon, more unsweetened cereals, and less candy, pizza and salty snacks.

"This study does not measure whose diet is actually healthier," says Texas A&M University Agricultural Extension Service nutritionist Dr. Alice Hunt.

She points out that it also does not include meals eaten away from home, and families with working mothers eat 10% more of their meals in restaurants and fast food outlets than families with full-time homemakers.

"The children in any family can get balanced meals if parents will make sure they are getting meat, poultry or other protein foods, dairy products, grains and cereals, fruits and vegetables each day," says Hunt. "In addition, parents should limit the amount of extra fat and sugar their children consume."

The key difference in the nutritional value of children's diets may depend more on what parents know about nutrition than whether the mother works outside the home or not, she adds.

Matador Trivia

Jenkins Family

In Matador there is a family of Jenkins offspring who have lived most of their lives right here in Motley County. They grew up on a farm about 6 miles southeast of Matador. There they learned to work hard and walk with the Lord, by virtue of being raised in a Christian home.

Interestingly enough all the eight Jenkins offspring made their 'three score and ten' or above. Add all of the Jenkins siblings ages together, (Homer T., Clarence, Emmett, Mary McMahan, Ethel Payne) equaled 404 years. By adding two sisters, Mable Soliman of Tulia and Marie Bradley of Corpus Christi, the Jenkins are a total of 567 years!

Thursday, May 1

Today is our day of PROMISE... "there hath not failed one word of all his good promise..." (1 Kings 8:56).

In Psalm 34 we find three of God's encouraging promises: (1) "I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears" (34:4); (2) "This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him, and saved him out of all his troubles" (34:6); (3) "O fear the LORD, ye his saints; for there is no want to them that fear him" (34:9). Humble yourself in the knowledge of God's precious promises, and you will become the object of His special care (34:18) We pray that the people of Burundi and their President, Col. Jean-Baptiste Bagaza, will open their hearts to receive God's promises.

Meeting God

Through My Newspaper

Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit... EPHESIANS 6:18

At a conference I attended recently, there was a woman who radiated a kind of presence evident to almost everyone. I noticed people always gathered about her--automatically, it seemed. During a break I found myself talking with her about prayer. "Sometimes there is so little time for prayer in my life, for taking moments to be in God's Presence," I said.

"Do you read the newspaper?" she asked.

I nodded, wondering what the newspaper had to do with it. "Well, I've been combining the two for years," she said. "Each morning I carry out a spiritual exercise with the paper, and not only does it save time, but it enriches my prayer life and my reading."

Her method was simple. She began on the front page, praying for each event as she read. "Sometimes my heart is torn by all the tragedy, and I feel God hurting along with me for all His children," she said. "But there is also some good news, and I try to praise God and thank Him for each occurrence."

The local news was her "listening page," where she listened for any prompting God might give her--writing a letter about a council vote or carrying clothes to a needy family.

At the wedding and birth announcements, she prayed for each marriage, each baby. At the obituaries she prayed for the families of those who had died. While smiling over the comic strips, she opened herself to God's healing through laughter and found Him present in her joy. The possibilities seemed to expand as she talked. And I began to reflect on how much impact praying in this way might have on others. "Do you think your prayers have made much difference in the world?" I asked.

"Oh, yes," she said. "But it begins with me..."

Father, this month, I will pray through the pages of my newspaper, listening for Your promptings and, I hope, making a difference in Your world.

rotary hoeing and cultivation after the cotton is four inches tall, he says.

Since less of the land is cultivated in 30-inch rows, Franks has picked up some expense in spot spraying weeds. "But I believe (eliminating) the sandfighting trips outweighs that," he says. "My rotary hoe has not moved in two years."

He had one 36-acre field that was no-tilled last year. He planted cotton in milo stubble as an experiment. "I took a pretty good ribbing over it, but it didn't get blown out."

Franks spent less than $40 per acre on that field and harvested 347 pounds per acre. He says $8 of that went for handhoeing and spot spraying for silverleaf nightshade and some volunteer sorghum, and another $15 went for harvesting.

He says he'd like to completely skip tillage operations. "I'd like to rip it down the furrow behind the stripper or the combine, dike it, and just leave it until next year. Maybe make that one trip to get rid of the compaction from the harvest equipment." The only thing holding him back is finding a rotational crop that is suitable drought tolerant, since most of his cotton is dryland.

Franks begins his cotton season in February when he runs a ripper-hipper and incorporates Treflan or Prowl. He runs a rod weeder with row dikers in May and follows that with the planter. "I apply Thimet or Temik and fertilizer all when I plant," he says (both the insecticide and the fertilizer applications are "radical" behavior among growers in his area). He's cut his total number of trips by two-thirds. He estimates that saves $25-$30 an acre on his 600 acres of cotton alone.

Interest Expense Key to Farm Debts

Many of today's farmers are having trouble paying their debts, and the big culprit seems to be interest expenses. As a general rule, if interest expense exceeds 15 percent of total revenue, a farmer needs to look seriously at how efficiently the business is organized and operated and how profitable debt is being used, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. In most cases, if interest expense is more than 20 percent of total revenue--and in almost all cases, if it is more than 25 percent--simply restructuring debts is not going to solve the problem.

"A conclusion is the place where you got tired of thinking."

Your District Court And Its Duties And Responsibilities

CRIMINAL JURISDICTION: The District Court has a reputation of being lenient on repeat offenders. In Briscoe County alone all of the criminals coming before the Court in the last several years were handed either probated or deferred sentences even on repeat offenders. Very little consideration is given to the rights of the victims of a crime. My experience as County Attorney for Dickens County for the past 9 years has taught me that a speedy trial and jail time has been a deterrent to repeat offenders.

CIVIL LITIGATION: Justice delayed is often justice denied. I will make certain that civil cases are moved promptly to trial. I will spend the time necessary to study the case before it comes to trial and during trial. Errors which can be avoided by study and research are inexcusable. I will work to make certain such errors are prevented.

Applicants Sought For Conservation Award Program

Waco, TX--April 22, 1986. Farmers and ranchers with practical soil and water conservation methods in their operations are encouraged to compete in an awards program sponsored nationally by the National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation and the DuPont Co.

The winner for Texas will receive an award certificate and compete for national honors. Ten national finalists and spouses will receive an expense paid trip to Washington, D.C. to attend a White House awards ceremony. From that group of ten, three national winners will receive a $1,000.00 cash award.

Joe Rankin, president of Texas Farmers Union, a family farm organization with members that have been previous winners of the competition, said the organization is encouraging members to submit nominees whom they believe are deserving of public recognition for their innovative farm conservation practices.

"Conservation of our natural resources is not an alternative," said Rankin, "it's essential to the preservation of our farmland. The objective of this program is to give recognition to the farmers and ranchers who are applying conservation practices on their land, and to increase public awareness to the advantages of a program of this nature."

Harvey Davis, Executive Director of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board, which acts as state coordinator for the 1986 competition added, "We endorse the aim of the National Endowment for Soil and Water Conservation in promoting a sense of stewardship for our national resources. It should be remembered that every individual nominated for this awards program is a winner, regardless of ranking by the judges."

TFU county nominating committees have until May 10, 1986 to submit applications for designation as "state nominee" in the program to the Texas Farmers Union state office in Waco.

Remember When

by Annie B. Cloyd

Hi Neighbors, it's Annie B. here in Flomot, just visiting and thinking about old times and old ways of doing things when we had to try every way to save what money we had.

Now men folks smoked and most all I knew back then smoked "Bull Durham" or "Dukes" or "Prince Albert." Now Bull Durham and Dukes came in little white sacks with a drawstring at the top.

These sacks were saved and used for different things. Boys carried their marbles in them and tied the top good so they wouldn't lose them.

Girls always had some special trinket to keep up with so a tobacco sack was just right for that, too.

I know a lady that made a pretty quilt top out of tobacco sacks. She ripped them open, embroidered a pretty design on them and put them together with strips of colored cotton, and then she quilted it with tiny little stitches. I don't think I could ever quilt like that. I do well to get one tacked or tied or whatever it's called.

I remember when you could buy a one hundred pound sack of sugar in a good, heavy, white cotton sack. My mother would soak them and boil them in the old washpot with lye soap and pretty soon all the letters were gone. Then she made pillow cases and table cloths or whatever we needed out of them. They lasted a long time. I still have a pillow case that I've kept all these years that she made from a sugar sack.

"I'll be back and we'll talk some more about old times and the things we did back then."

An American radio engineer and pioneer of radio astronomy, Karl Jansky, discovered radio emission from the Milky Way.

Nonsmokers' Rights: An Idea Whose Time Has Come

AUSTIN--Americans concerned about the serious potential health risks of breathing air tainted by tobacco smoke have begun to band together, using the democratic process to secure nonsmokers' rights, according to the latest annual report issued by the American Lung Association, the "Christmas Seal" People.

The two-thirds majority of the adult population in the U.S. that do not smoke have become a very vocal majority indeed, the Lung Association says. Many states, cities, and counties across the country, heeding the voice of their citizens, have enacted limits on smoking in public. And a few pioneering states are now regulating smoking in the workplace. Their partners, in this effort, are the growing number of companies that have discovered limiting smoking on the job makes good business sense.

A recent Gallup survey commissioned by the Lung Association found that 87 percent of Americans want companies either to ban smoking at work or else limit it to certain areas. The Lung Association cites a few of the hardships caused to both employers and employees from smoking:

"Smokers average a 35 to 45 percent higher absentee rate than nonsmokers, which translates into 80 million lost workdays a year due to smoking."

"Lost productivity due to smoking-related illness in the U.S. adds up to a whopping $30.4 billion annually."

"Employers have to shoulder a hefty chunk of the $22.3 billion yearly in health-care expenditures caused by smoking."

"Freedom From Smoking At Work," a new program from the American Lung Association offers companies tailor-made stop-smoking programs and customized nonsmoking policies suited to all kinds and sizes of businesses and industries.

For information concerning smoking in the workplace, contact the American Lung Association of Texas, 3520 Executive Center Drive, Suite G-100, Austin, Texas 78731-1606 or call toll-free 1-800-252-LUNG.

Health Tips

Constipation Often Overemphasized

Constipation may be one of the world's most prevalent physical problems, but many people think they are when they really aren't.

Older people are five times more likely than younger people to report problems with constipation, according to the Texas Medical Association. But experts agree that too often older people become overly concerned with having a daily bowel movement.

Constipation is the infrequent and difficult passage of stools. It is not necessary to have a bowel movement every day. "Regularity" may mean twice a day for some or three times a week for others.

Constipation is often an overemphasized or imagined ailment. Signs of genuine constipation can include fewer than two bowel movements a week, difficulty in passing stools, pain, or other problems such as bleeding. Unless these are regular symptoms, a person is probably not constipated.

A common misconception that wastes stored in the body are dangerous to health has led to overuse of laxatives. Americans spend more than $225 million a year on laxatives, many of which are not needed and some of which are harmful.

The problem is that laxatives can become habit-forming and prevent the bowel from acting normally on its own. Laxatives also can interact with other medicines being taken.

Doctors agree that prevention is the best way to deal with constipation. These tips may help:

Know what is normal for you and do not rely on laxatives or enemas. Eat a well balanced diet that includes unprocessed bran, whole wheat, and lots of fresh fruits and vegetables, especially prunes and prune juice.

Drink plenty of fluids, and exercise regularly. Set aside time after breakfast or dinner to allow for undisturbed visits to the toilet. Never ignore the urge to have a bowel movement.

If constipation lasts longer than three weeks, check with a physician. Your doctor will check for disease and may recommend a laxative.

Our Readers Say.....

Letter to the Editor

To the Concerned Citizen in last weeks paper:

Yes, there are a number of us concerned, we wonder about elections year promises, all the smut and slander that we are subject to in the effort to obtain our vote. What do we vote on, our gut feeling, what we hear and read or the performance that we have seen. Indecision, double talk, and lies.

Yes, I am a confused citizen and I will vote my gut feeling--it may be wrong. It has been before. I wish that I could congratulate that concerned citizen face to face, anyone that has the guts to speak so frankly should sign their name.

Ava Crump

Attorney who will stay out of Austin Politics AND STAY OUT OF HIS TRAVEL TRAILER long enough to prosecute criminals. After ALL that is what he gets paid to do.

Mr. Hollums has teamed up with Judge Miller to make both of their jobs less difficult by making plea bargain arrangements and deferred adjudications that have resulted in criminals, including thieves, dope peddlers and child molesters being given probated sentences and turned out on the streets. I have not talked to anyone who does not agree that this practice should be stopped.

Mr. Cave's campaign articles have dealt with issues that involve the office of District Judge and the conduct of the present District Judge. This is not mud slinging.

The mud slinging that I have seen in the papers is contained in Mr. Hollums' nasty letter.

Yours truly,
Dorothy Merrell
Lockney, Texas

Dear Editor:

Dear Editor:

The following letter was recently received by the City Council of Roaring Springs. The people who wrote the letter were both thoughtful and kind. They were right. Sometimes when all we seem to hear is criticisms and complaints it is indeed encouraging to hear the "The Otherside of the Story."

To the City Council of Roaring Springs:

The childish tirade against one of your ex-members because of dislike for another in no way expresses the opinion of most of us. We appreciate and applaud your progressiveness and far-sightedness for the betterment of our community. We congratulate you for your wisdom in keeping Ronnie Thacker on the council to finish the work she has begun--tirelessly and at her own expense. She is an asset to our town and to the city council as is Annie Alvarado. We expect our new lady council member to be of the same high-caliber and civic-mindedness, (Jeanie Adams).

As a group, and individually, you rarely receive anything but flak for your efforts in our behalf, so we take this means to say "Thank You" and give you a well-earned vote of confidence.

Citizens in Support of the Roaring Springs City Council

We, the Council want to say "Thank You" for letting us know.

The City Council of Roaring Springs

Dear Editor:

There is one true statement in Mr. Randy Hollums letter of April 18, 1986. It is true that people are wondering why Mr. Hollums thinks the people are interested in his telling them who to vote for in the Judge's race.

After all, it was Mr. Hollums advice about how to instruct the jury AND Judge Miller's FAILURE TO read and understand the laws that cost the Motley County taxpayers $124,000.00 in the Jinks Wilson murder trial. It was proved in Court that Mr. Hollums is inclined to talk too much when he really does not know what he is talking about.

Instead of Mr. Hollums' advice, I think what we really need is a new District Judge who will follow the rules and a District should be called to testify, what questions should be asked and what charges should be handed down.

The problem with Mr. Hollums' position is that it is in conflict with the Constitutional and legal right of the people too have a citizen's group (the Grand Jury) to go to with alleged criminal complaints without interference from any public official, including Mr. Hollums. This includes having a Grand Jury in existence at all times. Judge Miller has not promptly selected the Grand Jurors at the beginning of each term of Court but instead has selected them when Mr. Hollums decided he had something for the Grand Juries to consider.

The failure of Judge Miller to promptly appoint the Grand Jurors at the beginning of each term of Court denies the people their Constitutional right to take criminal complaints directly to the Grand Jury Foreman so he may call the Grand Jury together for consideration of these complaints. This Constitutional right of the people to go directly to the Grand Jury foreman was clearly adopted to prevent District Attorneys like Mr. Hollums from arbitrarily deciding which matters will or will not be presented to the Grand Juries.

Mr. Hollums would have the reader believe that somehow Judge Miller is interested in the dignity and integrity of his office.

For almost five years Judge Miller violated the Code of Judicial Conduct on a daily basis, took from the Massie Estate thousands upon thousands of dollars that the laws do not permit him to take, and swore under oath in an official proceeding that he maintained a family type relationship with Mr. Massie when the public records of Floyd County reveal that he was not related either by blood or marriage to Mr. W.A. Massie. Mr. Hollums' office is located next door to Judge Miller's office in the Floyd County Courthouse. Mr. Hollums knew about Judge Miller's improper conduct regarding the Massie Estate. Mr. Hollums did not report the Judge's improper conduct to the bar association or the proper officials of our government as directed by the laws governing proper officials of our government as directed by the laws governing attorneys nor did he do one single thing to stop Judge Miller from serving as the Executor of the W.A. Massie estate. It appears that Mr. Hollums adheres to the philosophy that right means a covering up a wrong and hiding it from the public view and the Grand Jury. There can be no dignity or integrity in making false statements under oath, nor in violating the Code of Judicial Conduct. Dignity and integrity comes from being honest and obeying the laws, not from making false statements and failing to prosecute officials who violate the laws.

NO PUBLIC OFFICIAL IS ABOVE THE LAW and YOU, THE PEOPLE, have a right and a need to know the truth regarding misconduct of a public official.

Sincerely yours,
David Cave
