Sign-up Dates Set For Wetlands Reserve Program

Texas landowners will be able to enroll eligible acreage into U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) second Wetlands Reserve Program (WRP) sign-up from Feb. 28 through March 11, 1994. Landowners can offer their land for the program at their local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office.

The program, which has $66 million to enroll up to 75,000 acres this year, restores former wetlands converted to crop production and currently cropped wetlands to their natural state. The wetlands restoration protects habitat for migratory birds and other wildlife, improves water quality, increases ground water recharge, and reduces flooding.

Under the program, USDA will purchase permanent easements on eligible lands in return for restoration and management of wetlands. In addition to purchasing wetland easements at the appraised agricultural value of the land, USDA will pay up to 75 percent of the wetland restoration costs.

"WRP provides an excellent financial incentive to retire marginal cropland while retaining some agricultural and recreational uses," said Gary Valentine, biologist for the USDA Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Temple.

Eligible lands include former wetlands or existing wetlands that were cropped at least once between 1986 and 1990 and remain in a condition to be cropped. Also eligible are buffer areas of non-cropped wetland and upland that protect restored wetlands, riparian areas (vegetated strips along rivers, creeks, streams, and other water bodies) that link WRP or similarly protected wetlands, and eligible lands currently enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program.

ASCS and SCS will determine eligibility of both land and landowners during sign-up. Eligible landowners can sign an "intention" to enroll their land in WRP. After the sign-up period, environmental benefits and cost estimates of each intention will be compiled and sent to ASCS's national office in Washington, D.C., for ranking. Intentions that provide the most environmental benefits at the least cost will be selected.

ASCS will obtain an appraisal of the agricultural value for each intention selected in Texas. Landowners will work with SCS and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service to develop wetland restoration plans.

The Wetlands Reserve Program was funded in 1992 for nine pilot states to restore wetlands that had been converted to crop production. The limit of 50,000 acres was easily met when landowners offered 250,000 acres for the program.

Anyone interested in WRP should contact their local ASCS or SCS office for sign-up information and more program details.

Farm Bureau Urges Members To Request Opposition To EPA Bill

An amendment aimed at requiring the Environmental Protection Agency to provide a cost-benefit analysis on every regulation it publishes has been blocked by the House of Representatives Rules Committee. But people have an opportunity to turn the situation around, according to Darrell Cruse, president of the Motley County Farm Bureau.

"Legislation which will give EPA Cabinet-level status will be one of the first things considered when Congress returns. The Risk-Benefit amendment would make them stop and think before imposing excessive and costly regulations. It only makes good sense," Cruse said.

The amendment was added in the Senate, but disallowed in the House. Texas Farm Bureau is urging its members to write their congressmen and request opposition to the EPA Cabinet-level status bill (H.R. 3425) unless a vote is provided for by the House of Representatives on the Risk-Benefit Amendment.

Under a complicated procedure, Farm Bureau and others are asking that the Rule for H.R. 3425 be defeated, thereby forcing the Rules Committee to allow the House to vote on the Risk-Benefit Amendment.

"It is appropriate that the will of Congress be heard on this issue," Cruse added. In addition to the risk-benefit effort, the legislation currently provides for a number of other policy directives. Specifically, it requires the establishment of a benefit assessment office for minority businesses.

"Our argument is that as long as other mandates are included, so should the Risk-Benefit Amendment for all regulations," the county Farm Bureau leader insisted.

Cruse said anyone concerned with the growth of burdensome and intrusive regulations should act quickly.

"Handwritten letters in your own words will be most effective when writing your Congressman," he said.

There's an old expression in West Texas used from time to time. It is called, "Lending a Helping Hand." Community projects have succeeded, because someone cares and has learned to love the joy of responding and caring.

Your help is needed in the month of February. In honor of National Heart Month the Motley Heart Association, a community based organization, will have its annual Fund Drive during the month of February.

With research at Texas Tech University and Texas Tech Health Science Center and the full gamut of cardiac services from routine stress tests to heart transplants at Lubbock's three major hospitals, heart patients no longer have to leave Lubbock for any type of surgery or procedure. Lubbock has cardiologists who cater to every need and rehabilitation programs. Lubbock is one of the nation's top cardiology centers. Your contribution to the Motley County Heart Fund is being used for this vital cause.

Volunteers serving on the Motley County Heart Association board are Mrs. Odessa Mullins of Roaring Springs, Mrs. Mary Jo Calvert of Flomot, and Mrs. Carla Meador and Mrs. Faye Slover of Matador. Volunteers helping with the Fund Drive in Matador are Jeremy Jones and Whitney Jameson. If you wish to give an AHA Memorial please contact Mrs.

Myrna Blasingame at the First State Bank or Mrs. Earlyne Jameson, chairman of the M.C. Heart Association.

We hope you will include the American Heart Association in your giving in February. Your donation is a worthy investment, providing an excellent return for self, family and society. We're fighting for your life!!

Economic Development Planning Programs Scheduled for Motley County Feb. 15 and 16

Local businessmen, civic leaders, and other interested residents are encouraged to attend the Rural Economic Development Planning Seminars for Motley County. The two day planning conference will be held at the Motley County School Cafeteria on February 15 and 16, 1994 starting at 7:00 p.m. each night.

Dr. Don Stebbins, an economist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station, will be on hand to discuss rural economic development and to conduct the program planning process. "The main purpose of the program is to help local people focus their attention and energy on economic development projects that they select and plan," says Stebbins. "I'm convinced that local residents have better ideas than outside experts about what projects are acceptable and most likely to work."

The strategic planning procedure has been conducted with large number of communities in Texas. During the first meeting, everyone who attends will have an opportunity to make recommendations about what they think can help the economy in Motley County.

The objectives of the second meeting are to convert the top ranked recommendations into workable goals and develop an action plan to work with.

A sufficient number of local people who are willing to work on economic development is the most important ingredient in a successful economic development program. "It has been my experience that, if we can conduct the program with 30 or more people who sincerely want to work, we can almost guarantee that some interesting, useful things will be planned," Stebbins said.
