ROARING SPRINGS DEPOT NAMED TO TEXAS' MOST ENDANGERED LIST

The historic Depot in Roaring Springs was named to Preservation Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places at an announcement made last week in Austin. The Friends of the Depot are currently trying to raise funds to match a grant so the building can be refurbished.

Preservation Texas names two sites in Texas Panhandle to list of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places

Roaring Springs historic Depot included among sites

Austin -- An Amarillo hotel that was home to cattle and oil barons of the 1920s and a charming railroad depot that is the focal point of Roaring Springs in Motley County have been named to Preservation Texas' 2006 list of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places.

Preservation Texas officials announced the selections on the steps of the Texas State Capitol on February 8, Preservation Day 2006.

The Herring Hotel was one of three oil-boom era hotels built in the 1920s, and is now the only one standing. It was the largest of these hotels, and was home to the famous Old Tascosa Room where cattle and oil barons gathered to discuss business and unwind. The room featured western frescoes painted by noted muralist and artist

H.D. Bugbee. Now only one of the frescoes is intact after a water main flooded the basement several years ago. The hotel's 14 stories and 600 hotel rooms made it the largest of the 1920s era buildings. Its builder, Cornelius Taylor Herring, was a pioneer cattleman, oilman and banker. He also owned 98,000 acres of the LS Ranch north of Amarillo. The Hotel was converted into federal office space in the early 1970s, but was abandoned a short time later. The site is vulnerable to vandals and damage from the elements.

Constructed in 1913, The Quanah, Acme & Pacific Railroad Depot was, and still is, the focal point of Roaring Springs. It is an example of many good historic buildings in Texas that are not forgotten; but suffer from a lack of funds for restoration. Even after the railroad abandoned the line, community groups used it as a meeting place and a depository for town and school memorabilia. However, the now vacant building needs repairs to keep out the weather that is causing damage to the interior. The Friends of Roaring Springs Depot are raising funds and want to see their depot used again; this time to house the City Hall. The Friends have chosen an architect and have obtained a grant for this project, but they have to raise $300,000 in matching funds to get the grant.

"The Herring Hotel and the Quanah, Acme & Pacific Railroad Depot are important to the history and heritage of the Texas Panhandle, and we hope our designation will raise awareness of the urgent need to protect them," said Elizabeth Grindstaff, president of Preservation Texas, Inc., a statewide partner of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. "Like the other structures on our list, these sites represent an eminent need and an important opportunity for positive action."

Preservation Texas, Inc. is a statewide nonprofit organization dedicated to preserving our state's historic resources by direct action and by empowering individuals and local and state organizations through partnerships in education, communications, and advocacy.

Preservation Texas named its first list of endangered historic sites in 2004. Several sites recognized by Preservation Texas have benefited from inclusion on the list of Texas' Most Endangered Historic Places through energized conservation efforts, commitments for restoration, and additional funding.

Motley County Commissioners meet in regular session

The Motley County Commissioners' Court met for their regular meeting, Monday, February 13. Members of the court present were County Judge, Ed D. Smith; Commissioners, Ronnie Davis, Precinct 1, Donnie Turner, Precinct 2, Franklin Jameson, Precinct 3, Russell Alexander, Precinct 4, and County and District Clerk, Kate Hurt. Also in attendance were Vince and Laura Taylor, Denise Ford and Randy Brown, County Attorney Tom Edwards and Sheriff Jim Meador. Judge Smith called the meeting to order and gave the invocation.

Mrs. Hurt read the minutes from the previous meeting. The outstanding bills were reviewed by the Commissioners as well as reports by the Treasurer, Tax-Collector, Justice of the Peace, Library and County Agent. Commissioners approved the minutes as read, all reports, and payment of all bills.

Judge Smith informed the court that he had recently received information that a citizen from a neighboring county had possibly made allegations that there were improprieties in Motley County government, possibly to the point of violating Texas law. This information reportedly arose from the 110th Judicial District Judge's Campaign. Judge Smith sent a letter to the citizen, cordially inviting him to attend this session of Commissioners' Court to discuss the matter in search of the truth. The citizen did not attend or communicate with the court in any way.

County Attorney Tom Edwards noted the insignificance of the fact that the allegations arose out of a judicial campaign, as they would be approached the same way if there was no campaign and arose out of a grocery store line conversation. As the citizen failed to respond, there was no further discussion.

Judge Smith informed the court the air-handler on #6 Heat Pump is out in the Courthouse. The cost of the air-handler would be around $1,600.00.

TxDOT reported Motley County has 238 miles of road.

The County received the bill from Hart Intercivic for $77,890.00 for the purchase of seven Hart eSlate Voting Systems to be placed in each voting precinct.

Motley County ISD Superintendent Randy Brown and Business Manager, Denise Ford, met with the court to approve the lease amount the County will charge the School District for the Electric Voting System. Each entity has to provide to their voters to be Hava compliant.

The County will lease a voting system to each entity for $250.00 per set, per election. Each entity must provide the voting system to their voters to be HAVA compliant, and will make their own arrangements for programming and supplies. Commissioners accepted this amount. The contracts will be prepared and signed by each entity before each election.

Judge Smith read a Joint Resolution Contract for the court's approval, between the Democratic and Republican parties to hold a joint election in the March 7, 2006, Primary Election. Commissioners approved the resolution.

Commissioners approved the Tax-Assessor Collector Bond for Elaine Hart.

Commissioners appointed County Treasurer, Eva Barkley, as the Jury Reimbursement Officer to comply with Senate Bill 1704.

Filing now open for local May Elections

Early Voting for March Primary election ends March 3

Early voting for the March 7th Primary Election will begin February 21 and continue through March 3. Early voting may be done at the County Clerk's office in the Courthouse.

Local candidates on the ballot will include Ed D. Smith, Motley County Judge; Tom Edwards, County Attorney; Kate Hurt, County Clerk; Eva Barkley, County Treasurer; Justice of the Peace, Cora Smallwood; Commissioner, Precinct 4, Russell Alexander; Commissioner, Precinct 2, Donnie Turner. All candidates are running unopposed.

Also included on the Primary Election ballot will be the District Judge's race, with Republican candidates, Bill Smith and Tempie T. Francis.

Filing for the local May elections began Monday, February 13 and will end March 13.

The Roaring Springs City Council will have two Council places up for election, those currently held by Kelly Keltz and Gary Simpson, and the Mayor's position, currently held by Corky Marshall. No one had filed for these positions as of Tuesday evening.

Matador will also have two Council positions open, those currently held by Shane Jones and Pat Seigler. The Mayor's position, now held by pro-tem Shane Jones, is also up for election. At newstime no one had filed.

The Motley County School Board will have two places open, those currently held by Douglas Campbell and Ted Davey. There were no filings at newstime.

State Comptroller reports increase in state and local sales tax collections

Austin - Texas Comptroller Carole Keeton Strayhorn said Friday, February 10, that January's state sales tax collections got a boost from a strong economy, holiday sales and the rebuilding process that continues in Southeast Texas following Hurricane Rita. The state collected $1.5 billion in sales tax revenue, up 12 percent compared to January 2005.

Also, Strayhorn returned $572.9 million in local sales tax to Texas cities, counties, transit systems and special purpose taxing districts, up 13.9 percent compared to sales tax distributions to local governments in February 2005.

January state sales tax collections and February's local sales tax allocations primarily represent sales made in December, but also include earlier sales by businesses that report sales tax to the Comptroller on a quarterly or annual basis.

The Comptroller sent $390.5 million in sales tax to Texas cities, up 13.4 percent compared to February 2005 payments. Texas counties received February sales tax payments of $33.3 million, up 16.8 percent.

WORK PROGRESSING AT CARE CENTER SITE

Workers were very busy Tuesday when the cement trucks were on site to pour flooring and foundations for the Hackberry Creek Care Center. According to Board President, Seab Washington, the water lines are completed and some wiring has been done.

Well the weather man is reporting the possibility of some precipitation this weekend. Let's don't hold our breath, but we sure can pray. God certainly knows we need rain, and He will send it in His perfect timing.

Time is short this week, (so what else is new!) Anyway, I know we all get flustered with our busy lives and forget to stop and smell the roses, so I thought a few little reminders of some things that make life wonderful would be good this week.

- * Grandchildren!!
- * Family!
- * Cuddling up under a furry blanket with a hot cup of tea when you finally get home after a long day!
- * Your instant excitement when you smell your favorite food cooking on the stove and then take a moment to give it an extra stir.
- * The rough tongue of a cat giving your elbow a bit of grooming.
- * The excitement of your dogs when you come home.
- * Soft-serve chocolate ice cream in crunchy cones

* Semi-dissolved saline crackers in chicken noodle soup.

* Laughing so hard you have to double over to discourage the desire to snort for air.

* The goofy sense of camaraderie you feel when you pass a driver on the road who has a car the same make, model, and color as your own - you almost feel obligated to roll down the window and say, "Let's do coffee!"

* The freedom to express yourself.

* Watching the Winter Olympics, especially when an American gets the Gold!

* The sensation created for a dream in which you can fly.

* How hot beverages perfectly warm your throat and stomach in cold weather.

* Competitive round of Monopoly, when you own hotels on Park Place and Boardwalk.

* Buttery chocolate chip cookies that melt in your mouth.

There are many, many more reasons that life is so great, see if you can come up with some of your own. And in the meantime, have a wonderfully superb week!

Consider: We do not stop playing because we grow old. We grow old because we stop playing.

— Anon

A great opportunity to play is coming up on March 5th, when the Boondockers come to town.

The West Texas Boondockers Club is a group of people, families mostly, who love to have a good time, riding dirt bikes and racing and traveling to new places and meeting new people. And they are coming to Matador.

But they are not exclusive or closed. Anyone and everyone can participate. Well, not everyone - you have to be at least 4 years old. But for those 4 years of age and up, you can join in the race, provided you have your own dirt bike and protective gear.

Sign-up will be at the Fire Hall in Matador, and the races will begin at 12 noon.

Then it will be off on a 4 to 6 mile track (at least, that is planned for the bigger "kids" - there will be a shorter course for the little ones). So even if you are not racing, you can bring your lawn chairs and find a spot near the course, and enjoy the fun.

The visitors will be coming, not only from Lubbock, but from towns all around - you never know who you will meet. But they are energetic people, and well worth getting to know. It is up to us, the locals, to make them feel welcome. They are bringing this event to us - all we have to do is come out and play and enjoy their company.

It would be a nightmare if we have 600 or maybe even 800 guests in town, and all they get to see are closed doors of the locals, who are sitting at home. So plan to come on out, join the race or watch, visit the concession stands, chat with the visitors and have a wonderful day.

Symbols of Valentine's Day at Do Gooders club meeting

Beautiful Valentine's Day decor was on display at the Do Gooders' Club meeting Tuesday afternoon, February 7, at the Community Center in Flomot.

No business was carried out for nothing of importance was necessary.

Arts & Crafts news

By Winifred Darsey

The Standard of Excellence for Motley County Arts and Crafts Club reached a higher plateau Monday, February 6, when Joe Trammel taught a class of watercolor painting, assisted by Joyce Meredith.

The subject was a drawing of white Calla Lillies on a multi-hued background. The lillies made an elegant and fine painting enhanced by a lovely background. The results were pleasing and painting with watercolor is a nice way to enjoy the act.

Club President, Joy Archer, held a business meeting that was brief and the painting began immediately.

Members present were Vee Gordon, Nova Dale Turner, Linda Rhul, Joyce Meredith, Dorothy Knight, Lorene Lancaster, Joy Archer, Jo Trammel, and Winifred Darsey. Lorene Lancaster will teach a class of oil painting March 6 at the Senior Citizens Center.

Plans are being discussed for programs for next year. Members are asked for programs they would prefer.

The club dined at noon with the Senior Citizens and enjoyed the good food.

Supplies for the oil painting class will be needed for the March meeting. See you there!

Power Through Faith

Faith identifies one as a child of God. In that identity comes conflict with the enemies of the Almighty. There will be times of trial. In these challenging moments, those of faith experience a very unique comfort from God.

Faith that is tried and proven rejoices in its strength. As men and women of our sports programs rejoice after having completed strenuous tests and rigors of training. So the Christian can rejoice when faith has led to overcoming challenges. Christians must be prepared and trained in the use of the whole armor of God, as Paul speaks of it in Ephesians 6: 11-17. Why the word armor? Because Paul knew it was a dangerous undertaking, this being known as a Christian.

There might be some who profess Christianity that view the life of faith easy or simple. It is not either. There may be some who are appalled when they learn, as Christians, that they might have a struggle to keep from being separated from their belief.

But most Christians understand that this is a daily battle that is won through faith. Christian people know that the successful endurance of trials result in honor to our God. Through our faith comes the power, hence the ability to win over trial and temptation.

MC Students make Valentines for special Senior Citizens

by Kay Bingham

According to the new positive behavior reward program at Motley County I.S.D. this year, eligible students in grades 6th - 8th are being rewarded with fun-filled Friday afternoon activities. On Friday, February 10, teachers Kathy Gillespie, Kay Bingham, and fourteen enthusiastic Junior High students began an Internet search for Valentine's Day sayings and pictures. Next, the students took their findings and began constructing their own versions of Valentine Day cards. As they completed their cards, the teachers baked sugar cookies for each student to decorate, according to his or her own creativity level. Some cookies were more elaborate than others, but they all tasted delicious!

This project was completed on Monday, February 13 when these same students, accompanied by Mrs. Bingham, delivered their cards to the Senior Citizens Center during lunch, and distributed them among the attendees there that day. Based upon the smiles and interaction of both young and old, the project was deemed a great success.

DELIVER VALENTINES — This group of Motley County Jr. High students made and delivered Valentines to some special Senior Citizens at the Motley County Senior Citizens Center on Monday. The Valentine project was completed during a positive behavior reward program at school.

Proof of the Truth

by Tom Edwards

CRITICAL BEGINNING ASSUMPTIONS!

We've repeatedly established that truth can't contradict itself. Accordingly, true scriptural interpretations and true scientific conclusions can't be contradictory either. But, a plain reading of Genesis 1:11 seems to imply a young earth and universe, whereas the scientific establishment says they are very old. Something's wrong. Who and where?

In order to get into all this, we need to understand three philosophies. Two are the beginning assumptions that underlie "old-earth" scientific claims, and one is Biblically-based.

"Gradualism" is the "scientific" philosophy built around the present "slow processes we see in nature, such as sedimentation, river flow rates, erosion, decay, etc., including rates of radioactive decay, upon which radioactive decay dating is based. It takes a "long" time for things to gradually occur.

"Uniformitarianism" is the "scientific" philosophy that assumes that today's natural processes and process rates were and have always been the same in the past, i.e., "gradual." This gives rise to the oft-stated, but false, claim: "The present is the key to the past." It should be noted that there is no (none) scientific evidence that this philosophy is true. It is a blind assumption!

"Catastrophism," on the other hand, is the Biblically-based philosophy that major events in the past were the result of catastrophic forces impacting the earth and universe on a large, global, or universal scale, such as the Flood of Noah, and not regularly occurring today. There is clear evidence of this everywhere, but the scientific community denies it. You know why.

Interestingly, the Apostle Peter prophesied this debate, saying, "Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts, and saying, Where is the promise of his coming? For since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation. (Uniformitarianism). For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of the water and in the water: Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished (Catastrophism). 2 Peter 3:3-6 (KJV).

Folks, that is an amazing prophecy, and it accurately describes the debate today! Why would mainstream science start with a blind assumption? We know that false beginning assumptions generally lead to false conclusions. It takes a very, very, long period of time (if ever) for evolution to operate. There's the answer, but let's see what the actual evidence says. Stay tuned.

Next week: Hoisting them on their own Petard!

Correction: Last week's piece should have said "pet" of liberal theologians).

A Note to Motley County

by Sandra Moody

I would like to tell you how I came to be a subscriber of the Tribune. My mother would occasionally mail me envelopes full of Tribune newspapers. Oftentimes they were months old. I read them anyway - just so I could keep up with the news around the county. In nearly every paper, under the section for Roaring Springs' news, there would be entries about Ms. Lula Swim, the events in her life and the lives of those near and dear to her. From these entries, I came to know Ms. Swim. Anytime I would visit or call, I would always ask how she was - sometimes in humor, but always with sincerity.

One time I asked my Aunt Wanda how Ms. Swim was. Her reply was, "I didn't know you knew her." I answered back with the fact that I did not, but felt as I did from her writings.

Well, from then on, nothing else would do that I receive my own subscription courtesy of Aunt Wanda and Uncle Kuehn. For some reason, it never occurred to me or anyone else that I should have my own copy and current ones at that.

After living in the big city, and reading the negative news reported day in and day out, it is uplifting to pick up that hometown newspaper and read the positive things that are going on in the community. It does not matter whether it is a birth or wedding announcement, the success of local children in academics, sports or 4-H, or a visit with good friends and family. These are the important events when it comes to living life day to day.

What you may not realize is that by reporting the daily activities of local people, newspapers serve an important function in our area. Small town papers can reflect, affirm and even help build a positive cooperation among others. For helping to build a positive community atmosphere with her works and deeds, I would like to say "thank you" to Ms. Swim. I know that I, like many of you, will miss her entries. I would like to think that she is organizing and writing about the residents of her new home, and most likely having a ball doing it. Bless her heart.

BULB EXCHANGE AT THE LIBRARY — Motley County Extension Agent, Eric Lewis, presented a program about growing bulbs and about soil types at the library Saturday. He left forms and sample sacks so that everyone could send off samples of soil to get analyzed. After the program, those attending exchanged bulbs of every kind. The Friends of the Library furnished refreshments. Another program about tomato plants and spring gardens will take place at the library in April. In this photo, Betty Henry has filled a flat with bulbs and tubers that she got at the exchange.

TxDOT to give kids a lift during Child Passenger Safety Week

Safety advocates promote lifesaving benefits of booster seats

Austin -- Every February, parents give candy hearts and keepsakes to their children in the name of love. The Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT) has another suggestion for parents this Valentine's Day: Love your children by buckling them up with safety restraints appropriate for their height and weight.

Safety advocates urge parents of children ages 4 to 8 to use booster seats. Small children who outgrow their child safety seats are often at risk for serious injury from the very things that parents think will protect them: their safety belts.

According to the Texas Transportation Institute, two out of three children between 5 and 9 years old routinely travel in Texas without being buckled up, putting them at risk of crash-related injuries or death.

"Putting kids who are over 40 pounds in booster seats can save their lives," said Carol Rawson, Deputy Director of TxDOT's Traffic Operations Division. "We're asking parents to buckle up their children using the safety restraint that best fits their kids and to secure them in the back seat."

TxDOT joins Safe Kids Texas, the Texas Department of Public Safety, and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration around Valentine's Day to commemorate National Child Passenger Safety Week February 12-18.

Safety advocates recommend that children who weigh between 40 pounds and 80-100 pounds or who are less than 4 feet 9 inches (57 inches) tall ride buckled in the back in a booster seat. Children can move from a booster seat to a lap and shoulder belt if:

- the child's knees bend over the front edge of the seat and the child's feet touch the floor board of the vehicle; and
- the lap belt rests snugly on the child's upper legs or hips and the shoulder belt rests on the child's shoulder or collarbone.

Safety experts believe that the 337 children who survived fatal crashes in 2004 in Texas did so because they were buckled up. They estimate that the 60 children who died in traffic crashes in Texas during 2004 were riding without the benefit of safety belts or child safety seats.

Texas law requires children under 17 years old to be buckled up whether they are sitting in the front or back seat. Parents can be fined up to $200 for violating the law.

Tobacco use can lead to an unhealthy heart

by Patti Patterson, M.D., M.P.H. Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center

Tobacco companies warn users that cigarette smoking can cause lung cancer, and smokeless tobacco can lead to mouth cancer. However, recent studies show that more tobacco users are killed by coronary heart disease than by smoking-induced cancers. Furthermore, non-smokers are not free from risks — environmental tobacco smoke, or secondhand smoke, is the cause of illness in many individuals suffering from heart disease.

Tobacco use accounts for 30 percent of all heart disease deaths in the United States, which makes it the No. 1 preventable cause of the illness. Statistically, smoking cigarettes triples one's risk of dying from heart disease. Tobacco users are also more likely to suffer from heart attacks, high blood pressure, blood clots, stroke and other cardiovascular disorders.

The smoke released by cigarettes contains high levels of carbon monoxide, at least 40 known carcinogens and more than 4,000 chemicals. These toxins affect the heart by reducing the amount of oxygen the blood is able to carry. In many cases, the heart, brain and lungs do not receive enough oxygen to adequately perform everyday functions, like breathing and pumping blood. The smoke also damages the endothelium, the layer of cells that lines all blood vessels, including the coronary arteries.

Many people choose to use smokeless tobacco because it is smoke-free, and it is easier to conceal than cigarettes. In fact, 7.8 million people older than age 12 use smokeless tobacco on a regular basis. Smokeless tobacco includes snuff, which is pinched between the lower lips and the gums, and chewing tobacco, which is kept between the cheek and the gums. Holding one "pinch" of smokeless tobacco in the mouth for 30 minutes is equivalent to the same amount of nicotine found in three to four cigarettes. Oral use of tobacco may increase heart rate and contribute to blood clots, and use also increases the risk of high blood pressure, which can lead to heart disease.

Those who don't use tobacco are still not safe from its ill effects. It is estimated that 90 percent of nonsmoking people in the United States are exposed to environmental tobacco smoke, which should be treated as an environmental toxin. Long-term exposure to secondhand smoke contributes to a 30 percent increase in the risk of heart disease in nonsmokers. About 37,000 people die from coronary heart disease each year because of exposure to secondhand smoke.

It's never too early to talk to your children about tobacco use. In a study of 1,433 kids, 10 percent said they had tried tobacco, and 5 percent said they use tobacco once in a while or every week. At least 23 percent of these kids said that no family member has ever discussed tobacco use.

It's also never too late to quit using tobacco products and plan a health check-up. Studies show that one year after quitting tobacco use, the risk of developing heart disease is cut in half, and after five years of abstinence, the risk of stroke is reduced to levels comparable to those of people who have never smoked. Various programs at Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center and other organizations can assist in quitting and preserving the health of your heart. For more information on how to quit, visit www.smokefree.gov.

Gov. Perry says Legislature must focus on reforming property tax system

Austin -- Gov. Rick Perry told state business leaders last week, that when he calls the Texas Legislature back for a special session this spring, he will ask them to focus on reforming the property tax system.

"Whether education reform can be accomplished in the same 30-day special where legislators must take up tax reform remains to be seen," Perry said in a speech to the Texas Association of Business. "I will ask legislators to start on the challenge the Supreme Court has deemed unconstitutional, and that is our property tax system."

Perry said the special session represents a rare opportunity for lawmakers to reform the state's tax system while also delivering much needed property tax relief to Texans. Today only one in 16 businesses pays the franchise tax, and many experts view it as a voluntary tax that is an unstable source of revenue for our schools.

"It makes more sense to have a broader tax that captures more of the economy at a low rate," Perry said.

Last September, Perry created the Texas Tax Reform Commission and asked former Texas Comptroller John Sharp, a Democrat and onetime political opponent of Perry's, to head it. He named 24 individuals to the advisory group, and they have been holding public hearings across the state.

Perry acknowledged that some critics doubt that the legislature can overcome past disputes and pass a tax reform bill in the upcoming special session.

"Of course, some of the same folks never thought they would see John Sharp and me in the same room again," he added. "But we put partisanship aside to work together on this challenge. The commission is working diligently on tax reform, taking input all across the state. I think they will produce a plan that is fair, that protects jobs and that provide a long-term source of revenue for our schools."

He said those who are calling simply for a tax hike to raise billions for schools ignore two key issues: First, under the current system there is little capacity left to raise additional revenue for education because property taxes are near the cap in most districts, and the current franchise tax will produce less revenue over time if not reformed.

Comprehensive reform of the franchise tax will generate more money for education as the economy grows by simply capturing more sectors of the economy.

"And we don't need to raise taxes one cent to generate more money for education, we just need the comptroller to collect the nearly $3 billion owed to her office today by deadbeats and tax cheats," Perry added.

Texas Tech will host Regional Economic Conference

Lubbock -- Texas Tech University and the State of Texas Historically Underutilized Business Discussion Outreach Committee will host the 2nd annual Regional Economic Opportunity Forum March 22 at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

The forum will be held in conjunction with one of several small business summits held across the state by the governor's office. Gov. Rick Perry will speak at 9:30 a.m. about the business climates of Texas and the South Plains and the role small businesses and entrepreneurs play in Texas' continued growth.

John Sharp, the chairman of the Texas Tax Reform Commission and former Texas Comptroller, will speak at noon. Also on the program are addresses by Joe Montes, Small Business Administration regional administrator, and Ron Lehman, Texas Workforce Commissioner for Employers nesses. How to get financing from myriad sources, HUB certification, healthcare options, and how to do business with the state are the major topics to be discussed. Participants will have an opportunity to network with city/state/federal procurement officers on how to bid on government contracts.

The pre-registration deadline is March 1 for the luncheon and for businesses and state or federal agencies wishing to set up an exhibit booth. The registration fee for state or federal agencies is $200 and $300 for non-governmental agencies. The forum is sponsored by Texas Tech University, HUB Discussion Workgroup Outreach Committee, and WorkSource of the South Plains.

Forum exhibits and workshops are free to the public. The cost of the luncheon is $20 per person.

To register for the luncheon or to obtain more information about the forum, contact: Lorenzo "Bubba" Sedeno, Texas Tech University manager of HUB operations, at (806) 742-4440 or bubba.sdeno@ttu.edu.

Attorney General praises recommendation to expand sex offender enforcement

Austin -- Texas Attorney General Greg Abbott, last week, applauded the Criminal Justice Advisory Council's recommendation for a $9.2 million expansion of the Attorney General's sex offender enforcement efforts statewide. The funding, which Attorney General Abbott first requested in July, 2005, would add 56 employees to the Attorney General's existing seven-member Fugitive Unit force and would establish six new regional offices across Texas to enable the Unit to be more proactive in tracking down sex offenders.

The recommendation came as the Fugitive Unit logged its 258th arrest. Johnny Vacca, 45, was arrested in a Corpus Christi motel room after he violated his parole on an aggravated sexual assault conviction.

"Our efforts to arrest convicted sex offenders who violate their parole have been quite successful, but the fact remains that Texas lacks a single unified focus in handling sex predators," said Attorney General Abbott. "Fugitive sex offenders lurk in communities throughout Texas, and this statewide expansion, if approved, would put new investigators in a position to more effectively track them down. I thank the Criminal Justice Advisory Council for supporting this vision."

The Council's proposal calls for $5 million in the first year and $4.2 million in the second year to fund the expansion. The Council specifically commended the success of the Attorney General's efforts to crack down on sex offenders, citing it as a model for statewide expansion.

The proposal was included in a report to Gov. Perry, which includes several recommendations for improving the Texas criminal justice system.

Vacca was sentenced in 1988 to 20 years in prison after being convicted in Nueces County for aggravated sexual assault of a child. The victim was a 15-year-old female. He was paroled on Jan. 23 and the Texas Department of Criminal Justice issued a warrant for his arrest on Feb. 2 after he cut off his monitor and moved away from the home where he was reported to live as a condition of his parole.

Abbott continued, "As the nation has been reminded with tragic cases like Florida's Jessica Lunsford and Dylan and Shasta Groene in Idaho, we must do all we can to protect our children from sexual predators. Texas children are at risk due to the lack of cohesive enforcement strategy. Local jurisdictions lack the ability to implement a program to ensure parole absconders and unregistered sex offenders are immediately sought out and put back behind bars. The proposal will enable us to better protect young Texans."

Attorney General Abbott has made pursuing sexual predators a top priority in his administration. The Cyber Crimes Unit, which targets online predators, has made 72 arrests since Abbott took office in December, 2002. The Fugitive Unit, which locates convicted child sex offenders who have violated the terms of their parole and could be stalking children, has arrested 258 such offenders. His office also has obtained convictions against 36 men on child pornography charges.

To find out more about Attorney General Abbott's efforts to crack down on sexual predators, visit the Attorney General's Web site at www.oag.state.tx.us or call (800) 252-8011.

EMERGENCY HAYING AND GRAZING OF CRP

Signup for Emergency Haying and Grazing of CRP continues. If you are interested you must sign up and gain approval before you begin haying or grazing. To qualify you will pay 25% of your CRP payment on the acreage you wish to hay or graze. At this time, grazing will last until June 1. The grazing period may end earlier at the state committee's discretion. Those interested will be allowed to graze the same acreage that they have grazed within the last three years; however, that acreage will not be eligible for haying or grazing for the next three years.

CRP EXTENSIONS

We will begin notifying participants that have CRP contracts expiring in 2007 the length of extension they are eligible for immediately. You will receive a letter in the mail. If your contract does not expire until 2008, 2009 or 2010, you will receive no letter this year.

Producers receiving a letter will have until April 14, 2006, to notify this office if they wish to accept the extension. A compliance review fee of $45.00 plus $1.00 per acre not to exceed $500.00 must be paid up front in order to be eligible. This amount cannot be offset from payments.

After 4:30 on April 14, there will be no opportunity to extend CRP contracts expiring in 2007.

A site visit to the acreage must determine that the CRP is in compliance with the conservation plan. If not, the extension offer will be void.

Source: National Agricultural Statistics Service; * = preliminary

Despite the fact that agriculture has long been viewed as a male-dominated industry, women played major roles on the family farm for hundreds of years, often working right alongside their husbands and sons. And it appears their role is growing. According to the Census of Agriculture, the number of farms managed by women has climbed 13 percent from 1997 to 2002.

Throughout history women were vital forces on the farm, maintaining the household and ensuring that agricultural operations ran smoothly. Many women worked the family property, cultivating their land, their skills and their strength in the outdoors. Other women took pride in raising and teaching children, sewing clothing, maintaining the home and providing meals to those working the farm. These roles were imperative to the success of farms and ranches throughout history.

Women's influences on the farm can be found in everything from harvesting produce to bookkeeping, and an increasing number of women are in the driver's seat, making key decisions about selling crops or buying equipment. Women now run one out of every 10 American farms.

Agriculture has been a part of my family since my ancestors came to Texas in the 1800s, and I believe it is important for women to continue seeking leadership roles in their fields. Agriculture is no exception.
