Motley County Library To Host Book Signing

Wyman Meinzer, Photographer, will be at the Motley County Library for a book signing of his new book.

The Motley County Library invites you to meet outstanding photographer, Wyman Meinzer, at a book signing and slide show at the library, November 12, 1995, 2:30 - 6:00 p.m. Mr. Meinzer will show slides of his newest book, The Coyote, from 3:00 - 4:00 p.m. Refreshments will be served. There is no admission fee, and there is no obligation to buy a book. However, you might think of someone who would enjoy having an autographed copy of one of these beautiful books for Christmas. You will be entertained, amazed, and astounded by Wyman Meinzer's award-winning photography.

Sports Afeld highlighted Wyman Meinzer as one of five outstanding outdoor photographers in the United States. Mr. Meinzer was recipient of the prestigious Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1995 from the School of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources at Texas Tech University. His book The Roadrunner was the recipient of the 1993 San Antonio Conservation Award. He is currently the official show photographer for the Palo Duro musical "TEXAS".

Since 1981, Wyman Meinzer's photographs have appeared on over 190 magazine and book covers, including forty-five national and international covers. He is the author of the aforementioned books and numerous magazine articles. He is the photographer of the book Playas: Jewels of the Plains and of the upcoming book Texas

Lost - Vanishing Heritage. Almost every issue of Texas Parks and Wildlife and Texas Highways has at least one of Mr. Meinzer's photographs.

His initial interest was almost exclusively in wildlife photography, but now his work covers a broad spectrum of subjects from documentary to landscapes. For example, the November, 1995, issue of Texas Highways features Meinzer's photography in an article entitled "Amazing Amarillo." His "Big Skies" article in the May, 1995, issue of Texas Highways, is breathtaking, to say the least.

Wyman Meinzer holds a private pilot's certificate and has devoted countless hours to aerial photography in both helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft. His double-page aerial photograph of Palo Duro Canyon in the January, 1994, issue of Texas Parks & Wildlife clearly shows Mr. Meinzer's expertise with a camera in flight.

A resident of North Texas his entire life, Mr. Meinzer currently resides in Benjamin with his wife Sarah and two sons, Hunter and Pate. They live in the old Knox County jailhouse, a historic sandstone structure constructed in 1887.

A preview of Mr. Meinzer's work is currently on display at the Motley County Library. Come by to see what is in store for you on the afternoon of November 12. Plan now to attend this very special event at the library.

Roy Tippin Posthumously Honored By Peers During Recent Convention

NOTE: This article was taken from the Andrews County News. It was written by Susan Schulz, Lifestyle Editor. Locals will remember the late Roy Tippin as a Nurse Practitioner at the Motley County Clinic for a number of years.

The confirmation of a lifetime of good work came almost a year too late on Saturday, October 7, when the late Roy Tippin was honored with the Texas State Award for Excellence by the American Academy of Nurse Practitioners.

The award was presented at the 7th annual state convention of the AANP, which also recognized Roy at their national convention held this past summer in Los Angeles.

Roy's wife, Patsy, and children, Russell and Rebecca made the journey to Austin to accept the award and speak to a crowd of nurse practitioners and other health care providers.

"Russell and I both addressed a crowd of 500 people at the Texas Ballroom of the Hyatt Regency," Patsy stated. "I told them how important (the award) was to Roy and how he really wanted it."

The Tippins

The journey to Roy's award began early in his life, soon after marrying his sweetheart, Patsy, whom he met at a hospital where his mother worked and her father was the administrator.

They were married in that very same hospital in the chapel with the hospital's pharmacist, a Lutheran preacher, presiding.

"When we were first married at 18 and 19, Roy was making $2.25 an hour," said Patsy.

"We worked hard to get him educated and on his dying day, his salary was comparable to that of a physician."

During this struggle to gain education, the Tippins began a family that includes Russell, a senior at Howard Payne University, Holly, a senior at Andrews High School, and Rebecca, a junior.

Roy initially became a registered nurse until 1980 when he received a rural health care grant which enabled him to return to school at the University of Texas at Arlington to obtain advanced nurse practitioner certification.

A nurse practitioner is a registered nurse who has advanced training in a health care specialty area, such as family health care. They work both alone and in conjunction with a medical doctor.

Roy also became a member of the group that honored him, as well as becoming a charter member of the Texas Nurse Practitioners and the Fellowship of Baptist Nurses Association.

"In Matador, he was the only health care provider," Patsy informed. There, he worked with a doctor from Lubbock, who would come down twice a week to look at the patients that were beyond Roy's limits. "He knew his limits, and he would have them scheduled to see the physician."

Roy and his family moved to Andrews from Matador in 1986 to take a job working with Dr. Brian Gordon, where he became affectionately known as "Dr. Roy" by his patients.

"People wanted to call him 'Dr.

Roy' and it kind of embarrassed him," Patsy said. "But eventually he just got to where he'd let them do it because he was the one who doctored them, and that's how they equated the word 'doctor' with him."

He eventually transferred to Kermit to work for Dr. Eusebio Barrientos, who enthusiastically nominated Roy for the award.

"Roy was one of those persons who was always happy," Dr. Barrientos described. "He made the whole atmosphere a happy atmosphere. His personality was extraordinary and his medicine was very very good."

"He was well-liked by all of his patients and his bedside manners were excellent. He was an excellent nurse practitioner. We miss him a lot, definitely."

Nomination effort

The presentation of the award followed an effort spearheaded by Roy's former co-worker, Nancy Boren, who generously finished what Roy had started.

"Roy was trying to accumulate some letters on his own to send in," Patsy explained, "and the day of his death he talked to Nancy on the phone and asked Nancy if her physician would fill out one of the forms, and because she had talked to him on that day, I think she felt compelled to carry it on."

Nancy not only carried on the effort for Roy, she managed to get together over ten overwhelming letters of nomination for Roy from doctors, nurses and pharmacists who admired Roy's work ethic.

Nancy noted, "Roy was an asset to any community he worked for and I had the pleasure of working with him

Mrs. Stanley (Ina) Level presented a donation to the Motley County Ambulance service during homecoming. Accepting the donation were Tom Bowman and Lisa Rose.

Mrs. Stanley Dan (Ina) Level of Fort Worth presented a generous donation to the Motley County Ambulance Service at the reunion of the classes of 1940-41 during Homecoming on Saturday, October 21, 1995. Receiving the donation were Tom Bowman and Lisa, paramedics of the service, both of whom had participated in the saving of Mrs. Level's life during Homecoming, 1991.

BROCHURE OFFERS NUTRITION AND PHYSICAL ACTIVITY TIPS FOR YOUTH

Adopting a healthful lifestyle doesn't have to mean giving up favorite foods and working out for three hours every day - it's a matter of making choices. No matter what your age, learning to balance a variety of foods in moderate portions and becoming more physically active are the essential elements to looking and feeling your best.

To help kids between the ages of 9 and 15 understand the importance of combining nutrition and physical activity, the International Food Information Council (IFIC), The American Dietetic Association (ADA) and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports have developed a new brochure, "10 Tips to Healthy Eating, Physical Activity for You."

Based on the original IFIC/ADA brochure, "10 Tips to Healthy Eating, Physical Activity for You," this brochure outlines the basic principles of nutrition - balance, variety and moderation - while suggesting simple steps to help kids increase their physical activities. The tips are easy to remember and practical, and can fit into the lifestyle of kids of any age.

"10 Tips to Healthy Eating and Physical Activity for You" also highlights the Food guide Pyramid and Physical Activity Pyramid, with recommendations for improving physical endurance and strength.

To order one free copy of "10 Tips to Healthy Eating and Physical Activity for You," send a self-addressed, stamped business-sized envelope to 10 Tips for You, P.O. Box 1144, Rockville, MD 20854.

LIBRARY NOTES by Suzanne Abbott

We appreciate the generous donations made to the library in memory of H.A. Stephens by Wayne Norrell, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Lee, and Herman and Ruby Ellithorp. We also thank Earline Vaughn for her donation in memory of Nell Rhea Gilbert. We are grateful, too, for the memorial made for Johnny Phillips by Herman and Ruby Ellithorp. These donations make a fitting and lasting memorial to the person named, and in addition, they help the library maintain its collection.

New books on the library shelves include a gift from Darlene Fletcher, an inspiring book entitled Jonathan's Journey by Katherine Bell. This book tells of a handicapped child's journey with Jesus, exploring the greatness of God's love. We appreciate the gift of this new book, and we know all our patrons will enjoy reading it.

For our younger readers, we have two new Juvenile fiction selections: Jancy's Cabin, which is a tale about a camping trip, and Thwunk, which represents the sound made by Cupid's bow as he pierces a heart with his arrow.

Tony Hillerman has a new book in our library. It is entitled Finding Moon and is a departure from the Navajo settings and stories of his other works. This book is set in Southeast. Tony Hillerman fans will enjoy this departure from Jim Chee and friends.

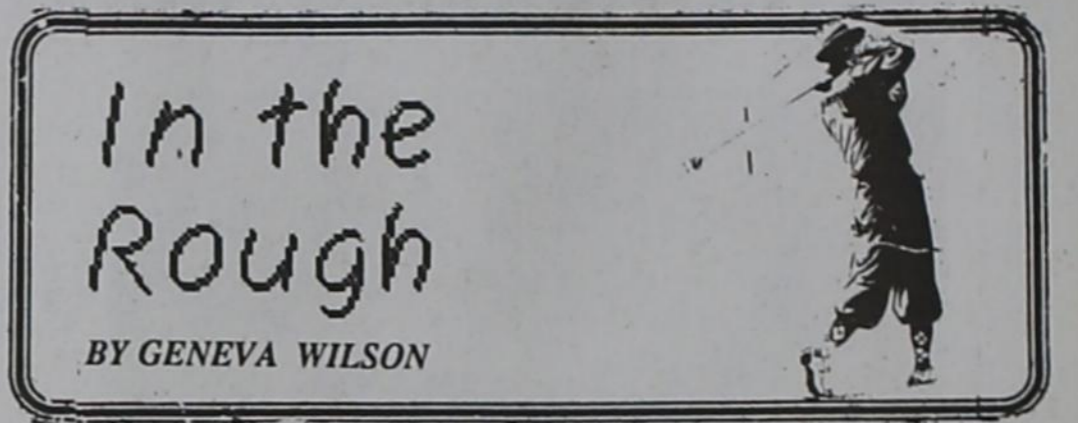

Finally, one of the most delightful books ever to be published is The Secret Art of Dr. Seuss. If you grew up with Dr. Seuss or if you read Dr. Seuss to your children, you will certainly enjoy these fantastic pictures. Again, Dr. Seuss has given us pure joy as we delve into his secret world of art.

And, speaking of art, don't forget the wonderful photographic art of Wyman Meinzer at the library, November 12, 1995, between the hours of 2:00 - 6:00, slide show 3:00 - 4:00. You will enjoy seeing Mr. Meinzer's photographs of the wildlife in our part of the country. For a small preview of what you will see on November 12, come by the library and look at the display case where we are featuring some of his magazine articles and books.

There will be a Friends of the Library meeting on November 16, at 4:00 p.m. at the library.

El Progreso Enjoys Book Review

El Progreso Club met Thursday afternoon October 26 in the Senior Citizens building for a meeting of fun and laughter. Club President, Mrs. Sue Seigler, opened the meeting and welcomed all present and carried on the business of the club. The club recited the Federation Creed for the opening. Mrs. JoAnn Dickson reported on the workshop held in Quanah stating the 1904 Study Club of Quananah were celebrating their 90th birthday so welcomed the visitors with an especially lovely days work showing off for them their lovely things. El Progreso was awarded a certificate for being 100% subscribing to the Texas Club Women publication. It was noted work needs to be started on the clubroom at the museum and that will take place January 5 at 1:30 p.m. asking members to bring what of the Study Club material they have to contribute and make it a room to be proud of.

Before the program was introduced Colleen Baxter and Sherry Rose came to judge the Halloween costumes being worn by club membes. They awarded the funniest to JoAnn Dickson, the most original to JoEtta Bumgardner, the cutest to Loys Campbell, and the scariest to Sue Seigler. Jo Ann was dressed as Harpo Marx wearing a fright wig with top hat at least 100 years old; JoEtta was a pumpkin with orange trashbag body and greenface with green crepe paper and ribbon forming the hair covering with brown pipestem tendrils; Loys was the fortune teller with long black robes, scarf around her head and bowl of red liquid she "peered" into and last but surely not least, was Sue Seigler as Lizzie Borden dressed in appropriate costume with the blood-stained axe! Refreshments were served from a table decorated with jack-o-lanterns of various sizes and shapes with cake and punch and coffee with nuts and Halloween candies. JoAnn Dickson had made table favors out of wooden spools painted black or orange with little colored leaves and a black Halloween decoration sticking out the top.

The program was introduced by Mrs. Loys Campbell, it being Mrs. Opal Pipkin, our favorite storyteller, giving re-excerpts from When I'm An Old Woman I'll Wear Purple. Mrs. Pipkin was dressed in purple with a purple purse and purple umbrella. These were delightful stories of different types of older women, several poems pertaining to growing older, a short story, all of which were most interesting concluding A Last Visit To Grandmothers.

Mrs. Winifred Darsey concluded the afternoon with her inspirational thought from Thanatopsis by William Cullen Bryant.

It was an afternoon we all enjoyed with those attending, Edith Johnson, a cousin of JoEtta Bumgardner's from Wyoming, Mrs. Sue Seigler, Mrs. JoEtta Bumgardner, Mrs. Loys Campbell, Mrs. JoAnn Dickson, Mrs. Beverly Vinson, Mrs. Opal Pipkin, Mrs. Lola Pohl, Mrs. Bailey Elliott, Mrs. Winifred Darsey, and Mrs. Grace Campbell.

Plain Teaching
There is nothing indirect, indecisive, indefinite, evasive or impersonal about the Word of God. It is fitted to the need. That need is salvation from sin. All Scripture is inspired of God. Therein lies our authority to denounce sin and ungodly living. Our God has spoken plainly and openly so that we can avoid evasions, duplicity and half-truths. We can find in the plains teachings of the Bible what we need to do in order to obey our God.

God needs men and women who will be able to recognize sin and who will have the courage to speak plainly, denouncing the practice of sin in any form and to have the courage to live lives obedient to His Word. It is the plain teachings of the Word of God that is standard. There will always be those who speak from "political correctness" and those who court public favor and delight in the plaudits of humanity. But in contrast, an Old Testament prophet received a directive that is always applicable regarding the proper standard to use. Here it is: "The prophet that hath a dream, let him tell it as a dream; and he that hath my word, let him speak my word faithfully." (Jeremiah 23: 28)

There is the plain teaching of the Scriptures. Today, we are faced with a variety of choices. Why not choose the Word of God as your standard of conduct? "Read it to be wise, believe to be safe, and practice it to be holy."

LINDSEY'S LINES

by Lindsey Williams

Last week was lots of fun for everyone at school. The week was filled with fun activities. Friday morning there was a spook parade in the gym and then in the afternoon all the elementary grades had parties, played games, and had refreshments.

Then, on Saturday, we had the Halloween Carnival which began with the queen's contest which was won by Aleda Ross and her escort. Later, everyone had fun visiting different booths set up by different organizations. There were booths such as the sponge throw, the car bash, face painting, and of course what everyone likes, a haunted house.

Everyone had lots of fun and we are looking forward to having much more fun during the year.

Proposed Medicaid Cuts Could Affect All Texas Residents

(Austin, TX) -- "Texas residents are just a serious car accident or illness away from needing the long-term care protection of Medicaid," said Robert W. Goodrich, Chairman of the Texas State Legislative Committee for AARP.

"Medicaid is for many Americans the only protection against the high cost of long-term care," said Goodrich. "The $182 billion in cuts Congress has proposed over the next seven years - about 30 percent less than needed based on current health trends and inflation in 2002 alone - could mean millions of Americans will lose their coverage," said Goodrich.

According to AARP calculations based on the Senate Finance Committee's proposal to cut Medicaid, Goodrich said Texas would lose $12.2 billion in federal Medicaid funds over the next seven years, almost a 20% reduction compared to estimated spending under the current program.

"In the year 2002 alone, Texas would lose $3.2 billion, or 27.8% in federal Medicaid spending," said Goodrich. "That's money that Texas will have to replace if we want to continue to care for our most vulnerable citizens."

Without these federal dollars, Texas is left with few options, according to Goodrich. Texas could replace those lost federal dollars by using funds from other programs such as education, highway or prison programs, or shifting the burden to local governments which could result in increased property taxes. Texas could also decide to reduce spending on Medicaid by covering fewer people or dramatically reducing the services provided and payments to providers.

"Medicaid is not just for low-income families," Goodrich explained. "nearly two-thirds of all program funds go to the elderly, disabled and blind. The program also provides health care coverage to more than 15 million children of aging parents will be in a private health insurance."

"The seriousness of these proposed cuts will be felt across all generations," Goodrich added. "Adult children of aging parents will be in an especially tough situation. If parents need nursing home care, but cannot afford it - and Medicaid is not available - will their children have the money to help out?"

Goodrich observed, "Most middle-class families have a tough enough time making ends meet. With the cost of a nursing home averaging $37,000 for Dr. Gordon and for Dr. Michael Neal, and any and everytime there was a situation, he was always the utmost professional.

"He also showed bedside manners which made you feel like you were the most important thing right then and also you felt like that no matter what, he would be there for you."

Her nomination, along with many others, showed the AANP nomination committee that Roy had left a lasting impression on those whose lives he touched.

"Every one of them portrayed Roy," Nancy said. "They were all like little puzzle pieces, and some of them were the same puzzle pieces, but they all came together and made a good portrait of Roy."

One particular trait noted more than once on the nomination forms that earned Roy recognition was the way he treated his patients.

"No matter whether you had money, didn't have money, whether you had insurance, Medicaid, Medicare - whatever the situation, you were treated the same," Nancy stated.

"Any patient that walked into the office, whether it was during lunch or close to the lunch hour or time for him to leave, he still took the needed a year, how many will be able to help their parents?"

"Americans of all ages should take these proposed cuts seriously," Goodrich added. Each and every one of us should be calling our representatives in Washington to respectfully but firmly insist on answers to tough questions concerning Medicaid reductions, because these cuts will affect us all."

amount of time. He didn't try to rush them through."

Rural healthcare

When Roy began his quest for confirmation, he used as his platform something he knew a lot about - rural healthcare.

Nancy noted, "I know he spoke a lot on the smaller communities and the rural areas, that those individuals needed just as much medical care because of financial situations, backgrounds - whatever the situation was - they needed as much medical care and he wanted to be there for them."

Patsy echoed her husband's beliefs concerning nurse practitioners in rural areas, "In a rural area, they can do more things than they can, say, in a dermatologists office in a big city - they're steered to that one thing. But in a rural area, you're exposed to everything from Norplant to the care of infants. He loved emergency room medicine and children.

Well-known statewide for being a man in a mostly female-dominated career. Roy wanted to stress the message to those nurses and others interested in health care that there is a great demand for nurse practitioners in the rural areas of Texas.

Rural healthcare clinics, such as those in Monahans and Kermit where Roy worked are considered underserved by the government because of the ratio of doctors per capita. Each clinic then must have one nurse practitioner since traveling doctors cannot stay all day.

AARP is the nation's leading organization for people aged 50 and older. It serves their needs and interests through legislative advocacy, research, informative programs and community services provided by a network of local chapters and experienced volunteers throughout the country. The organization also offers members a wide range of special benefits and publications including Modern Maturity and the monthly Bulletin.

Roy devoted the majority of his life to caring for his rural area patients, a platform that helped him earn the Texas State Award for Excellence for 1994.

The Award

Patsy received a notice in May from the AANP Texas State Representative Terry Dickey announcing Roy's award and ending Nancy's quest to recognize the outstanding nurse practitioner.

Dickey's letter noted, "The awards committee was overwhelmed and touched by over ten letters of nomination....I am terribly grieved the award must be given posthumously, but I strongly believe his example will carry on in all those whose lives he touched and provide inspiration to all nurses including those in advanced practice."

Patsy and family were unable to make the long trip to Los Angeles for the national convention this summer, but were in Austin on October 7 to receive the award Roy had wanted so much.

"I told them about the day he died, December 15 when he came home and had one of the official nomination forms in his hand completed," Patsy said. "So it was almost like a dying wish - he had a strong desire to have that."

Roy's son, Russell, also spoke to the group, telling them how blessed he was to have had a father that was such a hard worker and a good provider.

Russell went on to say that he knew his daddy was proud of his title and told how it has steered him to want to be in the medical field. To that end, he

Texas Voters Have A Chance To Cut Government Down To Size By Abolishing The Texas Treasury

If you are like most Texas taxpayers, you believe that state government has grown too big, too bloated and too quick to reach into your pockets. On November 7, you have a unique opportunity to do something about it. You can vote to eliminate an entire state agency - the Texas Treasury.

Proposition 10 on next month's ballot, if approved by you and other voters, will do away with the agency by September 1996 and merge its most important functions into the Comptroller's office. By the year 2000, when the transition is complete, it will take 164 fewer people to do the job -- with a savings of more than $21 million in the bargain.

This is the only constitutional amendment you will vote on that will actually reduce the ratio of state bureaucrat to taxpayer.

The Texas Treasury once served a purpose that justified both its existence and the election of the person who holds the office there. No longer. While some of its functions are still very important, others are duplicative and will be done away with by the merger.

We should know. One of us is the current State Treasurer. Two of us have served as State Comptroller for a combined 20 years. All three of us believe that Texas can get along just fine with one less state agency.

Here are the three basic jobs performed by the Texas Treasury. It serves as the state's bank, investing and managing public funds. It collects the tobacco tax, the single largest source of tax revenue that hasn't already been transferred by the Legislature to the Comptroller. And it administers the unclaimed property program, which collects cash, securities and other valuables abandoned in private accounts and, after attempting to return them to their owners, turns the rest over to the state.

These important tasks can be handled at least as efficiently, and for far less money, by the Comptroller or, in some cases, by a private firm under contract with the state. We don't need an extra state agency to do the job.

Opponents of Proposition 10 claim that abolishing the Treasury would undercut an important "check and balance" over the state's money. They're wrong.

Nowhere in the law is there a word about the Treasury being a "check and balance" with the Comptroller's office. In all our years here, none of us has ever looked over the others' shoulders. Internal and independent outside auditors keep a constant eye on the state's money, and taxpayers already foot the bill for a completely separate agency -- the State Auditor -- to make sure that state government funds are handled honestly and effectively.

Companies large and small have long-established procedures for internal auditing. Ford Motor Company has never had to hire Chrysler to look at its books. Motorola has never balanced a single ledger at Texas Instruments, nor has the Mexican restaurant on the corner ever audited the barbecue pit down the street. These companies use up-to-date accounting practices and strict internal controls to safeguard their money.

So does Texas. The Comptroller's office and the State Auditor have national reputations for efficient and effective internal auditing procedures. Some of the best financial management firms in the nation will continue to conduct independent, outside audits. The state's money is safe and sound -- and will continue to be.

The truth is that the Treasury can be disposed of with no harm and lots of savings. Enforcement of the state tobacco tax has already been outsourced to the Comptroller's office, for example, where 8 people now do what 24 people used to do. That move alone has saved Texas taxpayers nearly $600,000 so far.

Texans now have the chance to save even more and at the same time prove that they're serious about cutting waste and duplication in the state bureaucracy. It's a simple choice - a Yes! vote on Proposition 10 will reduce the size of state government and save you money.

A wind erosion pilot project put into place in 1994-95 for Martin County has been expanded to include three additional High Plains Counties according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

PCG officials note that the inclusion of Borden, Dawson, and Howard Counties is welcome news.

The first year of the study was designed to demonstrate the effectiveness of tillage operations in reducing wind erosion. Under the pilot project producers in the four county area who are operating under an approved conservation plan can contact the National Resources Conservation Service office in their county to add this new feature.

Results of the project's first year are being finalized by the Agricultural Research Service for proposed incorporation into the NRCS Field Office Technical Guide.

Under the pilot project the surface roughness conservation practice is modified to allow farmers to perform tillage operations when adequate moisture is present to help reduce wind erosion.

The initial pilot project was the result of work by Rep. Charles Stenholm, the National Cotton Council and others who worked with producers in Martin County to set up the project. The goal of the effort is to provide additional strategies to farmers for the reduction of wind erosion.

Members of the 1995 Cotton Leadership Program class concluded their yearly visit to the Texas High Plains this week according to Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers (PCG).

This year's participants included two individuals from the High Plains Pete McCleskey, Warehouseman, of Seminole, and Mike Hughes, South-west Producer, of Lamesa.

Other members of the 1995 Leadership class are: Rae McDaniel, Southeast Producer, of Bishopville, South Carolina; John Rodgers Brashier, Mid South Producer, Indianola, Mississippi; David Francis, Western Producer, Phoenix, Arizona; Jeff Balentine, Ginner, Phoenix, Arizona; Kenny Jabbour, Merchant, Memphis, Tennessee; John Stewart, Crusher, Greenwood, Mississippi; Jeff Thompson, Cooperative, Prattville, Alabama; and Jay Self, Manufacturer, Greenwood, South Carolina.

The Cotton Leadership Program is in its thirteenth year and is sponsored by DuPont through a grant to The Cotton Foundation. The Program is designed to provide future leaders within the cotton industry with a better understanding of the cotton industry and how each of the seven segments of the industry relate to each other. Applicants to the program must be between the age of 27 and 40, demonstrate leadership ability and agree to attend all scheduled activities during the year. Each participant is also required to complete reports and evaluations throughout the yearlong course.

The Cotton Leadership Program is administered by the Cotton Leadership Development Committee and the National Cotton Council.

Low Interest Emergency Disaster Loans Available

(Austin) -- In response to a request from Gov. George W. Bush, the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture has designated Cottle County as a natural disaster area and has designated seven contiguous disaster counties. The declaration makes those counties eligible for assistance through the Consolidated Farm Service Agency (CFSA).

Gov. Bush's request came on the heels of damages and losses caused by high winds, hail and flooding which occurred on June 4. The contiguous counties are: Childress, Dickens, Foard, Hall, Hardeman, King, and Motley.

The designation allows family-size farm operators in both primary and contiguous counties eligible to be considered for low-interest emergency loans from CFSA. Each application is considered on its own merits, taking into account the extent of losses, security available, repayment ability and other eligibility requirements. CFSA will receive and process emergency loan applications through May 13, 1996, for physical and production losses related to this designation.

CFSA has a variety of farm-loan programs available, in addition to the emergency loan program, to assist eligible farmers to recover from periods of adversity. Additional information and assistance is available through local CFSA county offices.

Let all bitterness, wrath, and anger, and clamour and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice. And be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.

Economic Injury Disaster Loans Available From SBA

Lubbock....Businesses depending on farmers and ranchers in Briscoe, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Hale, Lubbock, Motley and Swisher Counties can now apply for low interest Economic Injury Disaster Loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA). These loans are available to help businesses meet normal operating expenses that cannot be met due to the effects of a disaster. Flooding, hail, excessive rain, lightning, high winds, tornadoes and below normal temperatures which occurred May 20 through June 7, 1995 caused many farmers and ranchers to experience reduced incomes which may have had an adverse economic effect on businesses depending upon these producers. Farmers and ranchers are not eligible for this loan program but may be eligible for disaster assistance through other Federal agencies.

To obtain an application or receive additional information, interested business owners may call the SBA toll-free at 1-800-366-6303 or TDD 817-267-4688 for the hearing impaired. The deadline for filing applications is June 10, 1996. Due to the flooding, hail, excessive rain, lightning, high winds, tornadoes and below normal temperatures, many producers experienced crop losses and were not able to purchase goods and services at normal levels. Businesses that are dependent upon these producers may have experienced decreased sales, reduced gross profit margins, increased accounts receivable or difficulty in moving inventories at normal levels. To the extent these problems have caused the business difficulty in meeting its normal obligations, these loans may be of assistance. The loan can help a business meet installments on long-term debt, accounts payable and overhead expenses that would have been met had the disaster not occurred. Refinancing of long-term debt, however, is not eligible under this program.

The loan is designed for those businesses with substantial disaster-related needs and is intended to supplement monies the business owner can provide from other sources.

Loans may be approved for up to $1,500,000 for actual disaster-related financial needs of the business. Interest rates are four percent (4%) and terms may extend to thirty (30) years, depending upon the repayment ability of the individual applicant. To qualify, businesses must be small by SBA's size standard. Businesses which can meet their financial needs through other sources are not eligible.

Years ago, I taught music. I asked a first grade group what it meant to listen, and a little fellow standing beside his desk answered, "It means to use your ears and get smart."

Later, when answering the same question, a third grade girl responded, "You're not really listening until you attach your brain to your ears."

When listening to discussion groups on television I wish the participants would apply the above lessons instead of interrupting one another.

Ohio Firm Offers: Pharmacist's Creme® for Arthritis Sufferers
 (Cleveland, OH) Back in 1907 my grandfather, George W. Reese, Sr., developed various products for customers of his pharmacy. He often said that he was in the "relief of pain" business. Today our company makes available to arthritis sufferers a new medicated cream with three (3) active pain relieving ingredients. We call our product PHARMACIST'S CREME. It has been formulated with CAPSAICIN, a counterirritant drug that works by decreasing substance P, a chemical found around arthritic joints. It is felt to be responsible for some of the pain associated with arthritis. Capsaicin is an effective topical analgesic for arthritic pain. In fact, it is so effective that doctors recommend this ingredient more than all other topical analgesics combined. Our Pharmacist's Creme also contains METHYL SALICYLATE, a second medically proven topical analgesic counterirritant drug that stimulates the sensory receptors under the skin that surround the joints. MENTHOL is a third medically proven topical analgesic drug that causes a cooling sensation at the site of application. Pharmacist's Creme was formulated to be absorbed directly into joints and muscles, where the pain originates. It starts fighting pain right away, easing tired muscles, loosening up stiff joints. Use it for fast temporary relief. Available from your local drug store.

THANK YOU

Ted and I want to thank everyone for their prayers, cards, and flowers while Ted was in the hospital and since returning home. A special thank you to Ernie Brown for being with us through the surgery.

Ted and Venita Sedgwick

My heart is warm with gratitude when I think of all the expressions of sympathy I received following the recent death of my sister, Leta Foust, in Lubbock. The cards were each one special and noted with appreciation, the phone calls, the visits, the food. I especially want to thank my cousin, Fred Brandon, and his wife, Sybol, for taking me to Lubbock for the funeral and coming for me when I was ready to come home. Also I wish to thank Mrs. Modean Brooks for a delicious lunch last Sunday. May you have such friends in your time of need.

Ora Rice Stonecipher

With deepest gratitude and heartfelt thanks to each and everyone who has expressed their love in any way for us at the loss of our beloved Johnny. There is not enough words to express the love we have for all of you for the prayers, visits, calls, food, gifts of flowers, and cards, and the many contributions that have been received. The outpouring of love for the family has been of great comfort. A special thanks to Rev. Ron Kelley for his beautiful message, to David House for the beautiful music, to all the others who assisted with the service and to those who prepared and helped with the food. God bless each and everyone of you as he has blessed and enriched each one of us.

Thank you,
