First Baptist Will Have Weekend Revival To Be Open In County

The First Baptist Church, Muleshoe, will be in a week-end Fall Revival, November 7 through November 10. Services will be held at 7:30 each evening Thursday through Saturday and at 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. on Sunday.

Dr. Jaroy Weber, pastor of First Baptist Church, Lubbock, and president of the Southern Baptist Convention, will preach Thursday night, November 7, with Ron Lowry, Minister of Music, First Baptist Church, Lubbock, leading the music.

Dr. Roy McClung, president of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, will be leading the music on Friday night, Nov. 8. Rick Hudson of Olton will lead the music Saturday night, and Gary Lloyd and the Lloyd family of Plainview will provide the music on Sunday.

This is a good opportunity for the people of this area to hear two well known men of God preach. The music will be different and varied, giving every one a chance to hear their favorite songs.

Dr. Weber, a native of Louisiana, will be preaching Thursday night, Nov. 7. He gave his life in full surrender at the age of twelve and pastored a church at sixteen. He holds a B.A. degree from Louisiana College, a B.D. degree from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary and a D. D. degree from Louisiana Baptist College.

Dr. Weber has served as pastor in Orange, Texas; West Monroe, Louisiana; Beaumont, Texas; Mobile, Alabama; and Lubbock, Texas. Dr. Weber has traveled extensively throughout the world and has participated in the New Life Movement in Japan and the World Congress in Berlin, Germany and Lausanne, Switzerland.

Dr. Weber is married to the former Nettie Wiggins and they have three children.

In June 1973 Dr. Weber was elected president of the Pastor's Conference of the Southern Baptist Convention in Portland, Oregon. At the Southern Baptist Convention meeting in Dallas, June 1974, Dr. Weber was elected president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Among Dr. Weber's many awards are the M. O. Beale Scroll of Merit by the Mobile Press - Register, Outstanding Citizen Award from the city of Mobile, Alabama, and Ambassador Extraordinary from the city of Lubbock upon his return as new president of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Dr. Roy McClung, who will be preaching Friday, Saturday and Sunday, became president of Wayland Baptist College July 1, 1963. While Dr. McClung has been at Wayland he has worked enthusiastically toward expansion of campus facilities to meet the needs of a growing student body. Much remodeling of facilities has taken place and new buildings have been completed.

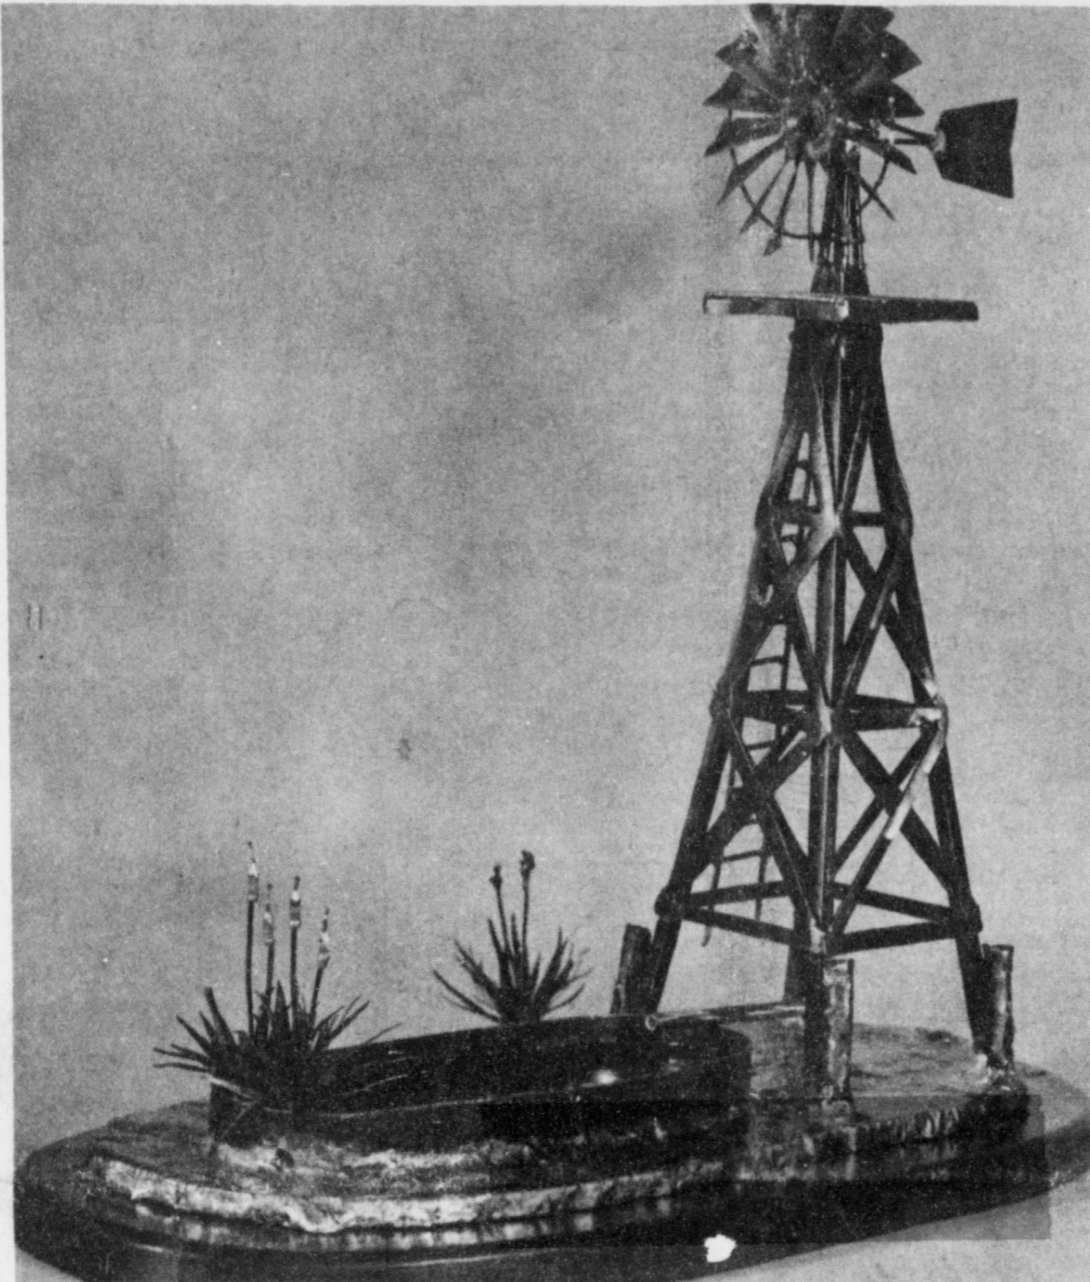

Before becoming the eighth president of Wayland, Dr. McClung was pastor of First Baptist Church, Plainview, for five years. He has served as pastor of churches in Ada, Oklahoma, Kentucky and Indiana. He holds a Th. D from Southern Baptist Seminary, which he has served as a trustee. His B.A. degree was earned at Oklahoma Baptist University.

Dr. McClung was chosen as Plainview's Citizen of the year in 1966. Also, he has an active interest in the Boy Scouts of America. He is a 32nd degree Mason, a member of the Plainview Lions Club, Plainview Minister's Association, Chamber of Commerce, and is on the Development Council of the new Plainview hospital.

Dr. McClung has served on the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, was regional director for the Texas Baptist Christian Education Crusade, Chairman of the Texas Baptist Administrators Association, and section director for Baptist Education Study Task.

Dr. McClung and his wife, the former Genelle Buckelew, have three children.

Everyone is welcome to come to the First Baptist Church to take part in these revival services.

TO BE GIVEN AWAY A sculptured windmill, made of metal by Bob Green of Earth, will be given away by Bailey County 4-H'ers on December 24. The 4-H'ers are asking for one dollar donations for a ticket in the drawing. All proceeds will go for the State 4-H Center to be constructed in Brownwood.

4-Her's Giving Away Windmill Sculpture

One dollar donation to Bailey County 4-H members will entitle you to a chance at winning this $250 unique metal sculpture by Bob Green.

Green was born and raised at Earth, Texas, and has spent all his adult years as a farmer. He worked wherever he could on ranches in the area. The observations and experiences of those years have proved themselves worthwhile, as he sets his ideas to form a piece of art. Most of his works begin by taking a torch and a piece of iron, which he shapes into a sculpture portraying life such as it really is. . . . a small boy chasing his dog with a rope a little girl lying in the grass daydreaming or a western flavored scene with cattle watering around an old eclipse windmill.

Because of the realistic detail of his work, Green is fast becoming one of the Southwest's leading metal sculptors.

Bailey County 4-H members are working towards a goal of $3500. to be used in the construction of the State 4-H Center, located near Brownwood, Texas. The center will be of great value to area 4-H members, leaders, and families as an educational and recreational facility. It will also provide the convenience and space needed for State and National 4-H conventions and workshops for leadership training.

The Bailey County 4-H members will be working on various fund-raising drives in the next few months in hopes of reaching this goal of $3500. Any money raised above this quota will be used for the building fund of our own County Community Center.

Donations will be greatly appreciated by 4-H members and their parents. Tickets may be

Three Way '63 Class Studied For Project

Class of 1963 is being studied as part of Project TALENT, a nationwide survey conducted by the American Institutes for Research and funded by the U.S. Office of Education. The primary purpose of Project TALENT is to help improve educational policies and career guidance programs by learning from the life experiences of individuals who were in high school in 1960.

The class of '63 was first surveyed by Project TALENT in the spring of 1960 when its members were in 9th grade. This year's follow-up study is designed to learn what has happened to the class of '63 in the eleven years since they left high school.

Project TALENT mailed a questionnaire on October 18 to the last known address of each member of the class of '63 who participated in the survey in 1960; additional reminder forms will be mailed during the next several months. For the results of the study to reflect accurately the experiences of the class, Project TALENT must locate as many persons as possible who were in the 9th grade in 1960 and participated in the survey.

Levelland Tromps Mules Friday 28-0

Muleshoe was all but eliminated from the IAAA district race this year with 28-0 loss at the hands of the Levelland Lobos Friday night.

Through-out the game, both teams seemed determined to give the ball away as each squad coughed up the ball three times. The only difference was that Levelland capitalized on the Mule's miscues while Muleshoe could make nary a first down with Levelland's turnovers.

In the first quarter Levelland tallied twice, the first coming on a one yard plunge by Lobo Quarterback Bobby Smith ending a forty-four yard drive set up by a Mule fumble. The PAT

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor:
In opposition to the proponents of the so-called Equal Rights Amendment (E.R.A.) We -opponents pledge to our utmost, in a dignified and orderly fashion, to alert the public to the dangers in the ERA, and to convince the Legislature of the state of Texas to repeal their ratification of the federal Equal Rights Amendment so that the right to be a woman is restored to the female citizens of Texas.
Will ERA provide better pay for women? Not at all. Proponents of ERA incessantly sing the tune: "We want equal pay for equal work." They do not tell you that this is already guaranteed under: (1) The Civil Rights Act of 1964, Subchapter VL: Equal Opportunities (45 US Code 2000e-2) (2) The Equal Opportunities Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-261). So the "equal pay for equal work" argument is deceptive - merely a smoke-screen to hide the real intent of the ERA.
The National Organization for Women (NOW) is demanding that women be ordained in religious bodies where that right is still denied." To refuse to do this will be illegal under ERA. One goal of NOW is to abolish the tax-exempt status of all churches. Can a state revoke its ratification of ERA? Absolutely! Nebraska and Tennessee have rescinded their ratification. "Clearly a state can change its mind either way before the amendment is officially declared to be ratified." (Prof. Charles L. Black, Jr., of Yale University Law School, Congressional Record, May 8, 1973 p. s 8522).

(Proponents and opponents alike recognize the Yale Law Journal Vol. 80, No. 5, April 1971, herein used as documentation, to be an accurate analysis of the meaning and effects of the Equal Rights Amendments, Congresswoman Martha Griffiths, leading proponent, gave a copy to each member of Congress)
There is no basis that a state cannot rescind ratification of a Constitutional Amendment before it goes into effect. The only "authorities" the Libbers can cite to support their wishful thinking in this area are law-review articles written by "Liberal" law professors, (Review of the News-Oct. 30, 1974, volume 10, #44-p.46)

LADIES!! Do you know who is planning 'your' future for you? Are you sure they are planning what you 'really' want? If not, its time to wake up and speak up! Its later than you think. Now is the time to write your Representatives in Austin, to rescind ratification of E.R.A. This will come up during the 1975 legislative session.

Life is hard to those who make it hard.

Bystanders are those who can do the job better.

Money should not be the end sought in life.

A good loafer is an artist at his profession.

If you're satisfied with yourself, take another look.

It's easy to find an excuse for delaying hard work.

Obey the rules of the road if you want to live longer.

If everyone thought alike this would be a stagnant world.

Too long have we been the "silent majority." It's time to speak up! Let your voice be strong and clear!

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,
What do you do when you have a good friend who has a husband that nobody likes or enjoys having around.

Our problem is this. Emma is a lovely person and a member of our women's literary club but my husband dislikes her husband. When we have people in for dinner or a party he refuses to have this man invited. This makes me feel very embarrassed when I meet Emma the next day.

What should I do about this situation?

Molly--Ind.

Answer:
Your husband must have a very good reason for not wanting this man in his home. Perhaps he tells filthy jokes or gets drunk and is too familiar with the ladies.

Dear Louisa,

I read in the papers where hats are being worn again but no one in our church wears a hat. I like hats and they come in very handy if one's hair doesn't look so good on that particular day.

Is it proper to wear a hat to church?

Puzzled--N.C.

Answer:

It is always proper to wear a hat to church. Do as you please and do not worry about what others think.

Market Report

COLLEGE STATION --- Beef is plentiful for now, and there are real bargains on some featured cuts--more often round steaks and steaks for broiling one observer said this week.

"Liver continues to be a good value, and chick cuts also are featured," Mrs. Gwendolyn Clyatte, consumer marketing information specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, noted.

"Egg supplies are down a little from last year with prices some higher, while fryer prices are about the same as last week."

At fruit and vegetable counters, grapefruit and squash are two headliners.

"Texas grapefruit is gaining prominence with prices slightly lower than oranges, and squash is plentiful--with hard-shelled winter varieties taking the place of soft-skinned summer squash.

A sharply larger crop of dry beans and peas is expected, and prices should continue their current downward trend, Mrs. Clyatte predicted.

In selecting pumpkins this month, choose those heavy for their size. Rind should be hard and free of bruises or blemishes. Extra-large pumpkins may have stringy, coarse flesh with less flavor than small or medium sizes, the specialist said.

Additional fruit and vegetable economy centers on apples, grapes, dry yellow onions and potatoes. Also cabbage, carrots,

Collect Your Own Winter Bouquet

COLLEGE STATION--- The variety of materials suitable for making winter arrangements is limited only by the imagination of the individual collecting the material, according to Everett Janne, landscape horticulture specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

"The care and manner used in collecting and preparing the specimens is important in the success of making an arrangement attractive."

Cockscomb, globe amaranth, baby's breath, strawflower and statice can all be used if they are properly dried. Select only the best flowers with the longest stems and prepare at least twice as many as needed. This allows for discarding of damaged flowers.

Janne suggested the use of a well-ventilated attic with little or no light, for the drying area. Light tends to fade the colors. Tie the cut ends of the stalks together in small bundles and hang the stems upside down from nails or a line. After the material is thoroughly dry, store it in large roomy boxes to keep it clean and to prevent damage.

"Many grasses produce attractive plumes that can be dried. Cut the flowering grass heads just as they mature but before they expand or shed. The drying procedure is the same as for flowers," the specialist noted.

Single flower types--anemone, chrysanthemum, cosmos, dianthus, sunflower and zinnia--as well as pansy, daffodil and clematis can sometimes be cured by using a drying agent. They are too fragile to be dried by hanging. A mixture of equal amounts by volume of cornmeal and borax will serve as a drying agent.

"Strip all foliage from the stem before drying. Place a layer of the drying agent in the bottom of a box, then lay the flowers in the box and gently fill in around the individual flower heads with additional material. Pack the drying agent between the petals to hold them apart while they dry," Janne said.

Attractive foliage such as oak, magnolia, English ivy, iris leaves, bamboo and elaeagnus are best cured in glycerine. Place the bottom four to five inches of the stem in a jar containing a solution of one part glycerine to two parts water. Crushing the ends of the more woody stems aids in absorption. After the solution has penetrated the entire surface of the leaf, remove the specimen from the container and hang it upside down until dry.

"Glycerine preserved leaves can be used with either fresh flowers or in dry arrangements," Janne said. Complete details on collecting and preserving materials for dried arrangements can be found in the garden section of any good book store or library.

Timely Cotton Harvesting Important For Yield

News
By Mrs. H.W. Garvin

LUBBOCK--Cotton growers on the High Plains risk losing up to 15 percent of their crop yield if they wait too long to harvest, not to mention suffering economic losses from lower field grades. Profits also can be hurt if cotton is harvested before it's ready.

These findings in a study by two research scientists here emphasize the need for a producer to weigh his cotton harvesting options carefully.

The men are Dr. Levon Ray, cotton geneticist with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, and Dr. Earl Minton, plant pathologist with the Agricultural Research Service--USDA. Both researchers are based at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center here.

DELAY REDUCES YIELD
Yield losses are surprisingly large in the early part of the search and Extension Center weathering period, the two researchers report.

Tests conducted at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center at Lubbock were based on cotton left in the field one to two weeks after the crop was ready for harvest.

Says Ray, "For a 600 pound per acre yield, the average loss was 18 pounds per acre the first week, 48 pounds after four weeks, and 72 pounds after 12 weeks."

"This does not include ground loss which might be very large under certain conditions with non-stormproof varieties," STAPLE LENGTH SHORTENED

Dr. Earl Minton, who collaborated on the study, adds that according to his findings, field weathering decreases staple length 1/32 of an inch in about 6 weeks.

Average grade equivalents were middling for the first three harvest dates, dropping to strict low middling for the fourth through the eighth week and to low middling for the last four weeks.

"In other words, the crop was reduced approximately one grade each month it remained in the field," he says.

Minton figures that because weather patterns tend to vary from year to year, the grade loss will be greater in some years than in others.

NO MIKE REDUCTION
Contrary to general belief, no reduction in mike (micronaire value) due to weathering was found, the two men report.

"It is true that cotton harvested later in the season usually has a lower mike than that harvested earlier," they admit.

"But, factors other than direct effects of field weathering reasonably explain a seasonal drop in mike."

One factor is that the earlier maturing fields which produce the higher mikes are usually harvested first. Second, in the early season harvest, immature bolls are separated eliminating cotton with finer fibers. Late in the season, these bolls cannot be separated and they go into the harvested cotton and may reduce the mike substantially.

SEED QUALITY DOWN
According to the scientists, field weathering is generally recognized as a major factor in reducing planting seed quality.

Germination, under both standard conditions and constant 65 degrees Fahrenheit (a low temperature test), is also decreased with field weathering. The lower germination will be reflected in poorer performance of the planting seed in the field.

DELAYS COSTLY
"Timely harvest is very important in producing good quality planting seed," the researchers stress.

"Harvesting too early can be just as costly as leaving it in the field too long."

"Once the optimum date for harvesting is reached, the crop should be taken out of the field as soon as possible. A delay of only one week on harvesting an average crop of irrigated cotton could cause a loss of income, through reduced yields and quality, amounting to $10 to $15 per acre."

Leaving the cotton in the field for an extended period of time could easily cost the grower more than the total cost of harvesting the crop itself, say the researchers.

Full details of this test are contained in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station report, MP 1118. Copies may be obtained from Lubbock TAES or from the Department of Agricultural Communications at Texas A&M University.

The Lieutenant Governor's Report

By Bill Hobby

Water is the key to Texas' natural beauty, agricultural productivity, and industrial prosperity.

Planning to preserve our greatest natural resource is a must if we are going to continue to prosper.

But, only the state's eastern third gets ample rainfall. The central third is subject to frequent drought. And the western third is semiarid with areas that can be made productive only by irrigation.

Texas has, today, more than 100 reservoirs, reservoirs with over 29 million acre-feet of conservation space, existing or under construction. But, unless bold action is begun at once. Texas will be faced with a water shortage between 1990 and the year 2000.

During the next 50 years, if adequate water is available, our population will triple to more than 30 million people. Within 30 years, three out of four Texans will live in 28 metropolitan areas, fewer than half of which have assured water supplies.

Our need is obvious. There is no single matter which is so vital to the physical well-being of future generations of Texans as the provision of an adequate water supply for municipalities, for agriculture, for industry and for recreation.

Texas faces three major problem areas with regard to our ground water resources. These areas of concern are subsidence, pollution and depletion.

Our ground water problems affect the entire state, but differ by region subsidence concerns the Gulf Coast. Pollution is a problem relating largely to the Edwards Aquifer in Central Texas. Depletion is most pressing in the high plains, which is serviced by the Ogallala Aquifer.

So, while water is a state problem, the specific dangers to our ground water resources are

The main thrust of such a program should be the retention of control and jurisdiction by local units of authority. The recent history of governments has been too much concerned with centralizing power. It has become apparent that big government does not work.

throughout the state have been working to develop a strong program which can provide this state with the ground water our people will need in decades to come. One suggestion is a draft revision of Chapter 52 of the Texas Water Code. This chapter deals with underground water conservation districts.

A Trying Time For Seniors

While many Seniors have already taken their ACT and SAT tests there are still some who have yet to experience the anxiety and trauma of the long and difficult exam. The Consumer Alert

By John L. Hill Attorney General

AUSTIN--If you're planning to spend less money by staying home more this winter, perhaps you'll be depending for part of your entertainment on a home stereo system.

And, while buying a new one might seem like a strange way to save money, some folks reason that records and tapes are sources of continual pleasure and can be used and enjoyed over and over again for free after the initial investment.

In just a few weeks, consumers who are contemplating a high fidelity stereo purchase will get a big assist in sorting through the claims made by competing brands.

The assist is in the form of a Federal Trade Commission regulation that will require, after November 4, that all manufacturers of home entertainment audio equipment use the same method of specifying power output. The new rule may have a widespread effect, too, since consumers are expected to purchase an estimated 8 million stereos this year.

In the past, one "hi-fi" brand advertised as 50 watts might have been more powerful than another advertised at 100 watts. In addition, one manufacturer's amplifier advertised at 10 watts might actually produce more power with less distorted sound than another's 50 watt amplifier. For the novice buyer, this was confusing, to say the least.

Audio equipment power has been rated by one of three common rating systems heretofore: "continuous power," "instantaneous peak power," and "music power."

Most audio experts regard continuous power as the reliable method for the average consumer to use in comparing systems. It expresses an amplifier's ability to produce a range of tones for more than 30 seconds with little distortion of the sound. And it's the way the FTC says all such equipment must now be rated.

Manufacturers must now test their equipment after it has warmed up for one hour, and the equipment must deliver its full wattage power for five minutes before the measurement is made. Manufacturers will also be required to state in what frequency range the power is effective, and all channels must operate at the stated power.

The "instantaneous peak power" ratings, which can be more than 20 times the continuous power ratings, have often impressed consumers who think "the more watts, the better." However, IPP measures amplifier power without regard for sound distortion, so you can let a "fuzzy" sound. In addition, the wattage may deteriorate after the set has been on a while, since the rating is only for "instantaneous" power.

The FTC says instantaneous power claims still can be made by manufacturers, but that they must be shown in advertisements and printed material in smaller size type than continuous power rating.

"Music power" is a term that has been abused by some audio equipment advertisers to make claims that couldn't always be along with a rated distortion figure, music power measures the ability of a set to deliver better musical sounds than another when all other factors are equal.

Attorney General's Consumer Protection attorneys recommend that consumers in the market for audio equipment familiarize themselves with the new ratings so they can make valid comparisons. They also recommend that stereo shoppers:

*Choose a dealer with a reputation for good equipment and service, and make sure he's authorized by the manufacturer to service the brand selected.

*Take a favorite record or tape when testing equipment. Have the dealer play it on several systems, ranging from low-cost to expensive. When you find a sound you like, listen to the next most expensive system. If you still find the first one satisfactory, it may be a good choice for you.

*Examine the warranty carefully. Make sure it spells out in detail what is covered and for how long.

*If there are any doubts about the dealer, check with people who have dealt with him, and with the local Better Business Bureau.

*If a consumer problem develops, consult the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Division.

The Farm Labor Registration Act (FLRA) when passed in 1963 was badly needed. It was designed, and served rather well, to curb the undesirable and sometimes shameful exploitation of migrant farm workers by professional farm labor recruiters and "crew chiefs."

Now there are those who would by means of amendments turn the Act into much more than legislation to curb the activities of the unscrupulous, according to Ed Dean, Field Service Director of Lubbock-based Plains Cotton Growers, Inc. Dean just returned from a Washington meeting of the National Council of Agricultural Employers (NCAE), of which PCG is a charter member. NCAE officials discussed FLRA amendments pending in the Senate and held conferences with farm state Senators. Dean is the Texas member of the NCAE Board of Directors.

A long list of amendments were passed by the Senate on May 7th. The House, on October 11th, adopted amendments to the Senate amendments and, instead of sending the measure to a House-Senate Conference Committee as is standard procedure, sent it back to the Senate for concurrence with the House action.

The legislation passed by the House and now pending in the Senate removes both of those limitations. In addition, the House amendments exempt from regulation only the regular, full-time employees of farmers, ginners or other processors who supply labor other than for their own employer "on no more than an incidental basis."

This leaves much room for interpretation by the Department of Labor, the agency charged with enforcement of the Act, says Dean. An "unfriendly" interpretation, which is not uncommon in the long history of Labor Department interpretation of laws where agriculture is concerned, "could mean that crew leader registration, record keeping, insurance requirements and other regulations would apply to farm employees doing custom work on a neighborhood farm," Dean said.

NCAE representatives, Dean reports, were able to secure through the Office of Texas Senator Lloyd Bentsen a commitment from the Senate Subcommittee on Agricultural Labor that the subcommittee interpretation of "no more than an incidental basis" would be clearly spelled out during debate on the Senate floor.

Experience has shown that this will be no guarantee that the Act will be administered sensibly, but having the committee intent spelled out in the Congressional Record should help.

Plans for a demonstration of cotton module equipment and reports from two cotton producer organizations at the Cotton King Gin in Dawson County on November 7th are nearing final stages, according to Jerry Harris, Chairman of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce Crop Development Committee. The program will begin at 1:30.

The equipment to be shown will include module gin feeder, module truck transport, and module builder, Harris said.

Lloyd Cline of Lamesa, Secretary-Treasurer of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., 25-county High Plains producer organization, will report on PCG activities aimed at promoting and protecting the interests of area cotton producers.

Donnell Echols, also of Lamesa, will summarize the efforts of Cotton Inc., the producers' national research and market development organization. Echols is a director of Cotton Incorporated and a director and Past President of PCG.

Harris said additional information on the program will be released as developed and that cotton producers, ginners and other interested parties from the entire High Plains are invited to attend.

Cotton Crop Estimates Due To Fall

AUSTIN--Though U. S. cotton estimates rose slightly in September, cotton experts foresee an October decline due to bad weather in the Lower Rio Grande Valley crop was termed excellent.

Harvest has ended in the Valley where 284,000 gross weight bales have been ginned. High Plains harvest begins in October and runs through December.

Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said the Texas High Plains which recently had cool, damp weather will experience some loss. "The feeling of most people is that High Plains cotton growers have been robbed of three weeks of critical growing time," White said. "There is no way that the October estimate can measure up to what it was a month ago."

U. S. Department of Agriculture September figures estimated the High Plains would produce 1,640,000 bales. The area grows 50-60 percent of Texas cotton.

The nationwide estimate was 13,199.6 million bales. White said cotton prices have remained soft around the state and most growers are holding out for a better market.

Prices for mixed lots in Dallas recently ranged between 34.50-42.50 cents a pound and in the Austin area mixed lots of short staple cotton were selling at 35-45 cents a pound for a few small lots.

In Lubbock old crop cotton was selling in limited volume for 38-42 cents. Recent reports indicate Blackland growers may experience loss also as result of bad weather. However, the Lower Rio Grande Valley crop was termed excellent.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Dear editor: In order to whip inflation, all the experts agree, we've got to make some bold new steps; but nobody is very clear about exactly what those steps are. If you took every step recommended you'd get tangled up before you got out the front door and as a result patting their foot is about as far as most of the leaders care to go.

But I was interested in a step if you want to call it that to reduce the price of meat in the supermarket, not on the hoof. In order to bring the retail price down, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has come up with an idea that has limitless possibilities. Discovering that people aren't buying as much of the choice grades of beef as they did when everybody expected to get a raise every six months and eventually become a millionaire if they ever got their car and house paid for, the Department says the way to increase such purchases is to lower the quality but still call it choice. The grade of beef formally called is now to be called choice. Thus over night the price of choice beef would drop about 20 per cent and we've got inflation on the run.

There are all sorts of possibilities for this new idea. Want to lower the price of a loaf of bread? Cut the price by 20 per cent and the size by 40 per cent. Good news! The price of a loaf of bread has come down, and the kid at the end of the table who sees the slices disappear before the plate reaches him can bite a bullet, although he's going to have a hard time sopping gravy with it.

Speaking of biting the bullet if we've all got to do that to whip inflation I guess it's all right, but it's hard enough to get a dental appointment as it is.

But back to the earlier idea. Want to lower the price of a Cadillac? Just change the name of a Ford to Cadillac and get a luxury car for half price. Want more educated teachers? Call a B.A. degree a Ph. D. Want lower interest rates? Rearrange arithmetic, and make 6 stand for 12. With 6 per cent money business would boom.

You could keep going with this line of thinking but the whole idea reminds me of the sharp guy who was selling apples for 10 cents apiece or two for a quarter. Said it was amazing how many people bought two, if you didn't give them time to stop and think. That must be what the Department of Agriculture is counting on.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

Dear Subscriber,

We need your help! Approximately five years ago the FCC made a rule that if a system carried two CBS, or two ABC, or two NBC stations, the station closest to the system could ask for exclusive carriage of their transmitted net work signal. This means the other same net work station would have to be cut off the system. Station KFDW Channel 12 of Clovis, New Mexico has petitioned the FCC to have Muleshoe Antenna Company cut Channel 13 KLBK of Lubbock off the system when both stations are carrying the same CBS Network program.

For years our customers have complained to me about KFDW losing video information and transmitting a microwave trouble sign or a station sign. Four years ago we tried to give KFDW protection by cutting off KLBK. You our customers, were so unhappy with having the only CBS Network you could watch going on and off that we ask the FCC to let us continue carrying KLBK until such time that KFDW could solve their microwave problem.

The FCC is now wanting to know why we shouldn't turn KLBK back off. If you have had difficulty watching KFDW of Clovis, New Mexico, please let me know by letter. If you do write me, please specify what program you were watching and what day or time and how long the problem existed. We need these letters very much if we are to have much of a case to present to the FCC, and we have only twenty (20) days to reply. Without your help we believe our customers will not be able to watch KLBK Channel 13 on the cable.

Sincerely, Merlyn Neel

There is confusion and controversy over the anti-inflation tax proposals of President Ford. The proposals are in trouble because there are few people who understand just who gets hurt, who benefits and by how much. Consequently, the Administration has already indicated a willingness to negotiate over the proposed 3% surcharge on personal incomes. Dickering has begun with the House Ways & Means Committee, on what modifications Congress will demand and the Administration will accept.

There are several substantial changes in the original tax proposal. The surcharge, originally scheduled to start on adjusted gross income of $15,000, will now probably start at $20,000. There is an excellent chance of the tax not passing at all if Congress ties it up in debate or if the economy weakens further.

According to the Treasury, the tax would not be levied on adjusted gross income but on taxable income after personal exemptions and deductions, and the first $10,000 of taxable income on joint returns would be exempt. Since the tax on that $10,000 comes to $1,820, only taxes above this surcharge floor would be subjected to the 3% add-on. For instance, a family of four with wages of $15,000 and personal deductions of 17% of income would pay no surtax. A family of four with $20,000 adjusted gross income winds up with a $42 surtax. The surtax is a lot less punishing to the middle class taxpayer than President Ford stated. But, while the surtax is a smaller burden than politicians are painting it, the revenue gain may be substantially higher for the Treasury than the Tax experts figured. The Treasury expects an extra $2.6-billion from the surtax in 1975. Other non-government tax experts say the figure will be closer to $3.5-billion. The greatest burden of the surtax will be on the very wealthy taxpayers.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Tattletale Bookkeeper

Parker, a businessman, was systematically cheating on his income taxes. One day his conscience-stricken bookkeeper took several incriminating documents out of Parker's safe and handed them over to the Internal Revenue Service.

In short order, Parker was charged with income tax evasion. But in court he insisted that the evidence, having been taken illegally, could not be used against him.

"This clearly falls under the Fourth Amendment," he said, "which forbids unreasonable search and seizure."

However, the court held the evidence admissible and Parker guilty. The court said the constitutional ban applies only to searches by government agents, not by private individuals.

Courts generally agree. They say the Fourth Amendment was designed to protect citizens from prying by the government, nothing more. Although the private searcher may indeed be committing an offense, the evidence that he finds remains acceptable.

The same is true if the evidence is discovered purely by accident. In another case, a departing guest in a motel left a suitcase in his room. The manager, peering into the suitcase, noticed some odd-looking checks. These he reported to the police.

It is a sense of humor is what makes you laugh at something which would make you mad if it happened to you. -Coast Guard Magazine.

Result: the guest was arrested for possessing forged checks. The judge said that even though the manager had no right to look into the suitcase, the evidence he found was nevertheless admissible in court.

But the rule changes when the search, although conducted by a private person, is done at police instigation. Another motel manager told a policeman that he suspected one of his guests of being a drug pusher. Instructed to search the man's room, he did so—and found heroin.

But this time, the evidence was rejected in court because of the police role in the search.

"The search was just as 'official,'" said the court, "as though the officer had acted in person."

An investment in Your Future
ATTEND CHURCH
"For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also"

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY

"Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Proverbs 22:6

Ask anyone what his most precious possession is, and he will almost invariably say, "My children." The desire for the welfare of our children enables us to "move mountains". We will do anything, give them anything, if we think it will help them.

The one most important thing we can do for them, however, is to instill in them a love of God, and a desire to obey him. The church can help you in this endeavor, inspire and strengthen you. We invite you to take your family to church this week. It may make a great difference in the life direction taken by your children.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Has The Stork Passed The Plow?

AUSTIN---The turbulence we have all felt in the early 1970's may have been caused by the stork passing the plow, according to a southwester agricultural leader.

"American agricultural productivity and know-how is the strongest single most effective advantage we have in dealing with the world community of nations," C.G. Scruggs of Birmingham, Ala., added.

"We may, however, forfeit this advantage unless we formulate a carefully thought-out U.S. food policy soon," Scruggs, editorial director for Progressive Farmer, predicted.

Speaking before the annual meeting of the Professional Agricultural Workers of Texas, Scruggs emphasized that populations continue to explore in many areas of the world. "Generally, we can expect that the number of people on earth will almost double by the end of this century."

Scruggs forecast a continuation of "boom and bust" prices and said that farming will be increasingly difficult, or profitable, for those able to master new problems.

He predicted that grain will be increasingly consumed by people, farm equipment will become larger and faster, legumes will become increasingly important, producers will become more adept as financial and marketing managers, cultivation will be reduced in favor of permanent plant zones for water and fertilizer, and agriculturalists will become more efficient harvesters of the sun's power.

"The spotlight of the world is suddenly focused on Southern agricultural scientists who must provide the research and technology to capture the sun more efficiently so a sea of food can be produced."

They must design soybean plants that will use radiant energy well enough to produce 100 bushels per acre instead of 30, animals and forages that will double or triple our present beef and milk yields per acre, and design management and financial systems to go with the new plants and animals," Scruggs said.

State Commissioner of Agriculture John C. White told the gathering of agricultural workers that "a part of agriculture is being crucified today, and many producers are having serious economic problems. The abundance of milk, meat and eggs that consumers take for granted now will not be there two years hence, unless something is done to aid these producers who are being forced out of business."

In order to preserve our domestic economy, these problems must be solved, White said.

Another speaker, State Rep. Joe A. Hubenak of Rosenberg, chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture and Livestock, said that "we have sold ourselves short at the state level, for about 99 per cent of the decisions in agriculture are made nationally." He urged citizens to get more involved in state legislative procedures and decisions.

Officers for the professional group were named during the business meeting. Serving as president for the coming year will be Howard Mitchell of Bryan, representing the Texas Agricultural Limestone Association. He succeeds Mrs. Tom Joyce Cunningham of Dallas, district agent, Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Elected first vice president was Bruno Schroeder of Aust-
