

HOPE RENEWED FOR AMELIA ON SIGNAL REPORTS

WPA Worker Confesses To Attack-Slaying Of Three Girls

LOS ANGELES, July 5 (AP)—Safe from possible mob violence but with prosecutors determined to ask his death, a 32-year-old WPA worker paced a cell in the hall of justice today after confessing, Detective Lieutenant Leroy Sanderson said, to the shocking attack-slaying of three little girls.

By his own words, Albert Dyer branded himself, Sanderson said, as the stranger responsible for the deaths of Madeline Everett, 7, her sister, Melba, 8, and Jeanette Stephens, 9, whose violated bodies were found last Monday in a ravine of Baldwin Hills, near suburban Inglewood, where they had disappeared from Centinela Park the previous Saturday.

Dyer, employed by the WPA to guard children at a street crossing, broke down after nearly 11 hours of constant grilling. A threat to take him from the hall of justice to Inglewood, where enraged citizens had milled about the small police station during questioning of suspects last week, finally shattered the suspect's composure, Detective Sanderson reported, and he gasped—"Well, I did it!"

In a few minutes, his wife, Mrs. Isabelle Dyer, reached his side. "He never did it! He never did it!" she cried.

His voice hardly above a whisper, Dyer told a ring of official questioners, Sanderson said, that "I had no other motive than sex—it wasn't revenge."

For a year, the suspect was declared to have admitted, he was acquainted with the three young victims and had developed "more than a liking" for them.

On the morning of the fatal Saturday, he played with the girls in Centinela Park. Detective Sanderson asserted the guard laid plans for the lustful crime at this time, persuading the children to "hunt rabbits" in the nearby hills after he finished work at noon.

"They said their mothers didn't want them to, but I kept telling them how much fun it was and finally they agreed that they would meet me," the 138-pound, five-foot-five suspect was quoted as confessing.

At the appointed hour, his story continued, "I watched the three girls coming down the road. They were dressed in bright colored clothes and looked fresh and nice."

Their route lay through a bean field and down a steep-sided dry wash. "We sat down to rest and I asked Madeline, that was the youngest one, to come with me up the draw a bit and see if we could scare out a bunny. She came right along and the other two girls agreed to stay behind."

"When out of sight of the others, reached out and grabbed Madeline by the neck and choked her to death. I knotted a rope around her neck to make sure."

Madeline's limp body was left jammed into a narrow crevice.

"Then I singled out Jeanette. I told her we'd trapped a rabbit and said we wanted her to help us. Melba wanted to come along too, but I told her to stay there and I'd catch another bunny for her."

"With my hands I choked Jeanette to death and bound her neck with a rope. I wanted to make sure she'd stay dead."

Ignorant of the fact her sister and her chum had been slain only a few feet from her, Melba Everett played and awaited the men's return.

"She went with me without question."

Advisor Says Signals Indicate Woman Flier Is On Land

Some Messages Interpreted As Words Plane Is Sinking

LOS ANGELES, July 5 (AP)—Three long dashes on radio key transmission received at 7 o'clock this morning, C.S.T., on the wavelength assigned to Amelia Earhart were declared today by Paul Mantz, her technical advisor, to be the most hopeful sign yet received that she is alive and on land.

Immediate Reply

"The Pan-American station in Hawaii sent out instructions to be included, one to send three long dashes if on land," Mantz said.

"George Palmer Putnam, her husband, telephoned to me a short time ago that he was advised that three dashes were heard almost immediately after the instructions were sent out."

"We heard the dashes here and this is the most hopeful sign yet."

"We understand that Honolulu and the Itasca also heard the three dashes."

Program Is Cheered As 'The Best Yet'

Aver 5,000 At Each Of Sunday Performances At Arena

1936 WINNERS FALL BY THE WAYSIDE

Speedy Events And Flashy Specialties Make Show Success

Before record crowds in two shows, the annual Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo got off Sunday to what appeared to be the best run in four years of showing.

Record Crowds

An all time record, estimated at 5,800 people, packed the rodeo grounds for the opening performance Sunday afternoon, and about 5,500 were on hand for the night show.

Limiting of the number of contestants in several events and the addition of several flashy feature acts sent the customers away awowing that the show was easily the best ever produced here.

"Salty" stock kept the times up, and many of the last year winners fell by the way. However, among the winners were many of the stars of former years in the Big Spring rodeo.

Strikes Hold In Only Two Steel Areas

Troops Moved Into Cleveland As Republic Plans Reopening

CLEVELAND, O., July 5 (AP)—CIO's strike legions, pepped by Fourth of July oratorical fireworks that terrific rainstorms could not dismay, reformed their lines today on the last two remaining strike battlegrounds—Cleveland and Indiana Harbor, Ind.

Troops were moved into Cleveland to preserve the peace when Republic Steel reopens its four large plants here tomorrow.

There were no troops at Indiana Harbor where the Youngstown Sheet & Tube company is awaiting guarantees of safety for its men before reopening; but there were plans for troops, and a prediction that "there will be bloodshed if protection is not supplied immediately."

The union's crack orators sought at Fourth of July rallies to put new iron into their men's determination to "fight it out" (as Philip Murray, strike chairman, put it) "a week, a month, a year—yes, ten years."

Pennsylvania's "new deal" Governor George Earle flew through a thunderstorm to reach a rain-soaked rally at Johnstown, Pa., and tell the cheering strikers and sympathizers: "You don't need acts of violence when you have Franklin Delano Roosevelt in Washington, a liberal congress, and a governor like me."

A committee of six ministers of Indiana Harbor reported that 86.8 per cent of the steel workers in the Calumet area voted in a secret poll they favored "return to work with safety," and 132 per cent wanted to remain on strike.

Gov. Townsend made no sign that he would meet the requests for troops at Indiana Harbor.

Ohio troops were sent to Cleveland at the request of Mayor Harold Burton and Sheriff Martin O'Donnell.

With the reopening of steel plants here tomorrow, only the Calumet area will remain with strike-closed plants; and the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co., the only corporation still affected there, is expected to reopen possibly by midweek.

HOLIDAY DEATH TOLL OVER 300 TO HOUSTON

Traffic Crashes Account For Most Of Deaths

By The Associated Press

The lives lost during the nation's celebration of its 161st Independence anniversary stood at 323 today with not a single death directly attributed to fireworks.

Automobile accidents were responsible for 200 of the deaths, drownings 74 and miscellaneous causes accounted for 49.

The Independence Day casualty list, the third largest since 1930, was slightly above the average for the past eight years. From 1930 to 1937, the July Fourth death total was 2,117, an average of approximately 264 deaths for each year.

Although the holiday passed without a single fireworks death, an Associated Press survey showed hundreds were treated for injuries from explosives. Thirty six firecracker victims were treated in Chicago alone.

New York with 24 deaths, led the holiday mortality roll. California followed with 19, all except two the victims of automobile accidents.

All but four of the 48 states—Delaware, Nevada, Vermont and Wyoming—reported fatalities.

Spanish Govt. Forces Move On 3 Fronts

Insurgents Strive To Complete Occupation Of Northern Area

By The Associated Press

Spanish government forces rumbled into action on three fronts today as insurgents moved slowly to complete their occupation of government territory in the north.

Government troops, believed preparing for a general offensive, captured two peaks on the central front, occupied the western slope of Mount Mellillo on the Santander front and took several trench lines in the El Quiso sector of the Aragon front.

The capture by insurgents of a French freighter, chartered by "officers to aid Basque refugees, apparently carried little danger of further complications. Two French warships sent to investigate returned to their bases and French naval circles indicated the insurgents were within their rights in halting the freighter in Spanish territorial waters.

Bombings

Insurgent bombers droned over Valencia, temporary seat of the government, but dropped their bombs on surrounding territory.

Although German leaders, friendly to the insurgent cause, had indicated plainly they wanted Spain's iron and raw materials, insurgent generalissimo Francisco Franco was reported today approving shipments of ore to Britain. The staff of the British owned Orconners' properties near Bilbao, biggest British holding in the area, was permitted to return from France.

DECISION ON SITE FOR HOSPITAL DUE WITHIN 30 DAYS

AUSTIN, July 5 (AP)—Claude D. Teer, chairman of the board of control, indicated today selection of a site for the new insane hospital in West Texas would be delayed until in late July or early August.

"We hope to make it within 30 days, he said, "but have many details yet to consider."

The board spent last week inspecting around a dozen sites offered by various West Texas communities.

"Our task is made more difficult by the fact so many attractive sites are offered," Teer said.

Cities seeking the $317,000 hospital include San Angelo, Big Spring, Midland, Odessa, Lamesa, Lubbock, Plainview, Amarillo, Blanton, Colorado, Sweetwater and Abilene.

PLANES READY FOR A TEST TRIP ACROSS THE ATLANTIC

FOYNES, Ireland, July 5 (AP)—The Imperial Airways flying boat Caledonia was poised at the mouth of the river Shannon today for a pioneering 1,500-mile commercial survey flight across the Atlantic.

With favorable weather, the ship was scheduled to leave western Ireland at 7 p. m. and head out over the Atlantic toward Botwood New Foundland, on the proposed trans-Atlantic commercial air route.

Almost simultaneously the Pan-American clipper III was scheduled to lift off Ganders lake at Botwood, Newfoundland and point her nose eastward across the ocean.

West-to-east headwinds were to be against the Caledonia and it was estimated the flight to Newfoundland would require about 16 hours.

Bad weather Saturday held up the first leg of the Southampton to New York flight. The Caledonia made the 351-mile hop yesterday to reach here for final preparations.

After the difficult trans-Atlantic leg is negotiated, the Caledonia

TREATED HERE AFTER HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith and children, Belknap street, Fort Worth returning to their home after a holiday visit at Carlsbad Caverns and El Paso were brought to Big Spring early Monday morning for treatment following an automobile accident on the west highway.

The accident, according to reports, occurred on a strip of road under repair, the machine getting out of control and going into a ditch.

CHILD PROGRAM AT STANTON POSTPONED

STANTON, July 5.—Opening of the series of weekly story hours to be conducted by members of the Young Mothers' club at the courthouse this summer has been postponed because of the prevalence of contagious diseases among children.

Mrs. Helen Joy Daniel is scheduled to have charge of the first story hour, the delayed date for which has not been set.

YOUNG NUDISTS

PERRIS, Calif., July 5 (AP)—Nude children shooting fire crackers on a farm a quarter of a mile from the business section of Perris led to the arrest of their parents today on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Deputy Sheriff E. J. Burr said citizens complained that their children were watching activities in the nudist camp, which had been in operation two weeks.

MINOR CRASHES IN B'SPRING AREA OVER THE WEEKEND

Big Spring shared in the deluge of traffic accidents over the Fourth, but luckily escaped serious injuries or fatalities.

First of the holiday season was Dale Webb, who suffered scalp and facial wounds Saturday night in a car crash. Sunday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Duckworth of Post sustained minor injuries in a collision at 11th and Young streets.

J. Ed Brown, county commissioner of precinct No. 1, escaped injury when his car was struck by an Alabama automobile one mile east of town. After smashing the Brown machine, the car of the Alabama motorist, giving the name of Horne, plowed into the right away into another car in which a traveler was sleeping.

The city park entrance was scene of the fourth crash. A car driven by a CCC enrollee caught a Big Spring bound automobile almost broadside, hurling one man out of the rumber seat to the pavement. He sustained only bruises and abrasions. Another man in the car sustained minor injuries in a collision at 11th and Young streets.

City and county jails were filled by a dozen men who celebrated Independence Day too vigorously with bottled spirits.

Court Fight Young Woman Near Climax In Death Leap

Judiciary Measures To Be Offered In Senate This Week

WASHINGTON, July 5 (AP)—The hotly-contested battle over revamping the supreme court enters its decisive phase this week after exactly five months of preliminary skirmishing.

Majority Leader Robinson (D-Ark.) probably will call up the president's judiciary bill for senate consideration late tomorrow and immediately ask adjournment until Thursday. The senate will be in recess Wednesday because of the all-star baseball game here.

Administration leaders indicated their first maneuver on Thursday would be to ask consideration of the compromise introduced by Senator Logan (D-Ky.) as a substitute for the president's original proposal.

Logan's measure would authorize appointment of one additional justice each year to supplement members of the court who fall to retire at 75.

The original bill would have empowered the president to appoint five new justices immediately—one for each incumbent over 70.

Logan said he was certain of 54 votes—a majority of five—for the compromise. The same number he added, can be counted on to vote against any effort to side-track or amend the new bill.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) veteran of a score of bitter parliamentary battles, will lead the opposition. He insisted his supporters could defeat the president's original proposal and if necessary prevent indefinitely a vote on any compromise.

San Antonio, July 5 (AP)—A suicide verdict was returned by Justice of the Peace Raymond Gerhardt today in connection with the fatal plunge of Miss Evelyn Sisson of Austin from an eighth floor room of a hotel here Saturday night.

Miss Sisson, 26, was a former employee of the attorney general's office in Austin.

Justice Gerhardt said Letcher King of Austin, a former assistant attorney general, was a witness at the inquest.

The registry at the hotel showed that the room from which the woman plunged was registered in the name of "L. King and Mrs." from Austin.

Two notes were found in the room. One was apparently written for investigators and the other was not addressed. In the latter note, one sentence read:

"I want to put everybody on notice that whatever I may do, you are in no way responsible for it. What I am doing is my own idea and I know you would do your best to deter me."

A sentence in the other note said: "For goodness sake don't try to arrest him for pushing me out of the window because he did not do it."

The woman's body was claimed by her father, J. E. Sisson of Austin, and was sent to Cameron, Texas, for funeral services and burial this afternoon.

Miss Sisson formerly lived at Abilene.

TWO INJURED IN FIRE AT MCAMEY

McCAMEY, July 5 (AP)—This city counted its loss today from a disastrous fire which for a time menaced the entire business section last night. Two persons were injured.

The fire started in the Grand theater, destroying this building, and causing damage to five others.

H. P. Priddy, manager of the theater, was badly burned about the face and hands, and Bob McKinney, fireman, fell from an awning and was painfully bruised.

The Conroy Electric Service Co., Toyler Radio Shop, Vogue Beauty Shop and West Texas Auto parts buildings were damaged though equipment was saved.

Officials declined to make an estimate of the loss. The fire was blamed on a defective exhaust on a motor of the theater's cooling system.

Cosden's Oilers avenged a crushing defeat of the 1936 season and completed preparations for the invasion of the Coahoma Bulldogs here this afternoon by firing seven base hits at Slim McDonald in the first inning for as many runs and going on to win easily, 9-2, Sunday afternoon on the East Third diamond.

The locals will take the field again today against a team and a pitcher that sheeked them 3-2 a week ago. It's the Sinclair outfit of Coahoma and Max Beard in particular who the Cosdenites will be gunning for.

Horace Wallin tripled over the left gardener's head to begin things and promptly came home on Tommy Hutto's single. Ram Ramsey reached first base on Evans' miscue and was followed by Al Doren who tripled to score two.

Big Chuck looked good in pitching the Cowhands away from first base. He did not allow a hit until the fourth inning, giving up seven over the route, and sent nine men back to the bench on three pitched balls.

The locals got to McDonald for a total of 13 base hits, Stacey and Martin experiencing perfect days at the bat. Pat had a home run and three singles while Manager Martin came in with two singles before retiring in favor of Brandon in the fourth.

National Leaguers Also Have Plenty Of Power

NEW YORK, July 5 (AP)—Baseball's mid-summer extravaganza, the game between all-star teams of the National and American leagues, will be played Wednesday at Washington with interest over the team selections and the outcome at a higher pitch than at any time since the game was inaugurated at Chicago in 1933.

President Roosevelt will throw out the first ball at 1:30 p. m. (E.S.T.)

The game is heralded by Secretary Ed Eymon of the Washington club, as a sellout. The gate, less the operating expenses, will be turned over to a fund for indigent players.

Last year at Boston the National league club halted the string of triumphs that had extended since the game was first played at Chicago. The two great hurlers, Dixie Dean and Carl Hubbell, who turned back the junior circuit hitters last year, will be on hand again, plus the talented Van Lingle Mungo.

Managers Bill Terry of the Giants and Joe McCarthy of the Yankees have chosen the teams for this year's game, a departure from the original idea which assigned this duty to the fans.

The American league will use such sluggers as Lou Gehrig, Hank Greenberg, Joe Dimaggio, Charlie Gehringer, Joe Cronin and Bill Dickey, outstanding batsmen in the league never shy of men hand.

Usually deficient at the plate against their American league counterparts, the National leaguers have plenty of power for this game.

Ducky Medwick, Cardinal outfielder, is top man of batting order that packs power and punch from top to bottom.

THIRD TERMS

There is a catch in the sincere, even ardent, plea that a governor stay on a third or fourth term "to complete a democratic party platform program."

It is that the party is continuous, and will remain in power in Texas, regardless of the individual chosen for office.

The party program, so long as it remains the wishes of the democratic voters, is a mandate upon a succeeding governor, as much as upon a present legislature.

Rather, the third-term advocates point to a weakness that their theory must adopt as its key justification:

A nominee for governor writes a platform. It is the campaign platform on which he was elected. It ignores, if not reverses, the party pledges of previous times.

The principles ought to be adopted first and candidates chosen on their attitude toward them.

The party is what is continuous. If its platform represents principles and real public demand, it should be a continuing and definite policy, not subject to reversal in two, four or six years.

The way to establish that permanence is not to concede it depends on the continued re-election of one man, but rather, that the candidate is incidental to the enduring principles of democratic government.

If a candidate's proposals are made the objective, then any successful candidate could include enough divergent ideas never to be attained, and thus could claim life tenure.

The two-term precedent is pretty strong in Texas. It has been defeated only by James E. Ferguson, who in 1918 was defeated two to one, in a third-term race.

"Personal" government ought to be more in evidence in a closely-divided two-party state than in one where a party remains always in power.

Then a picturesque personality, striking innovations of personal platform, might win a victory without becoming part of fundamental party principle.

Where one party is sure to stay in, the candidates can be evaluated on their relation to its existing principles. Striking departures by any candidate simply weaken the stability of the party, when it is attempted to substitute them as party objectives.

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Broadway's most sardonic gamble in the Pool of Death.

It's a gruesome game. The bettors sit around waiting for someone to die. In a street where chance is everybody's middle name the action flourishes around a list of men and women whose life expectancy, for one reason or another, is believed short. A name costs $25. Ten names are sold. Then the holders wait until one of the marked persons shuffles off. The holder of the "lucky" name collects the pot (usually $250) and another pool is organized.

This is but one of the bizarre games of chance that thrive in the big town. There is the "hymn book," with bookmakers taking bets on what hymns will be sung in any church you care to name on Sunday.

The hymn racket netted an astonishing toll until its fallacies were aired. The more unscrupulous gamblers were writing pious letters to pastors, asking what hymns were included in the coming divine services. The letters were usually answered. The gamblers, forearmed, mopped up. The process went on for weeks until one minister, wondering why his services were attracting such large numbers of non-members, investigated. Thereafter he never announced the hymns until the congregation was in its pews.

Betting on automobile license plates is common. There are scores of Broadway gamblers who earn their living standing on street corners, hazarding coin on what states various automobiles are from. There were two such citizens whose offices were adjoining suites on a Times Square corner. For months they set aside a part of each day to bet on the cars turning that corner. Odds were worked out, with nearby states paying far less than those far away. A car from Utah, for instance, was 100 to 1.

One day the shrewder of the two won $1,000 from the other, betting that the next car would have a Utah plate. Months later the loser learned his companion had a friend in town from Utah and had persuaded him to circle the block for an hour.

The fight arenas, the baseball parks, the race tracks, the boxing arenas and even the theater marquees are favorite haunts of those who like to wager on the turn of a hat. Usually the betting isn't on the winner, but on knockdowns, pulls, and the number of rounds won. At the ball parks the betting is on individual players as they come up to bat. The odds are three to give to one against any player getting a hit any given turn.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

RUSSIA—AT HOME AND ABROAD

Readers of the Russian news, censored, ill informed and frankly inconclusive as it is, can reach only one of three conclusions. Either (1) Dictator Stalin has gone wild in the manner of an Oriental despot in a blood purge of his personal enemies, fearing a threat to his personal power from Russian patriots who are convinced that progress demands a radical change or (2) German and Japanese agents have been spectacularly successful in undermining the morale throughout all Russia or (3) the men who made the Bolshevik revolution and who have been held up to world admiration for twenty years by their apologues here and elsewhere are all scoundrels, traitors, plotters and pure criminals.

This column does not pretend to know what the truth is. American British and other foreign correspondents who have been in Russia for years do not know what it is and frankly say so. Also, we have a relatively small number of people informing us upon Russia who have any degree of impartiality. Most of our information comes from people who may be American citizens, but whose adopted spiritual country is Russia, and who are passionately and partisanly engaged in its ideological rights. We have our Trotskyists and our Stalinists arguing it out right in New York. "New Masses," which is Stalinist, assures us that the wretched Trotskyists were at work in the majority elections in Minneapolis; that they controlled the Minneapolis section of the Socialist party; that they are opposed to the Farmer-Labor party on the ground that it is an obstacle to revolution, while the Farmer-Labor party, which the Communists support in Minnesota, claims by inference to be a much surer method of bringing about revolution. And, taking its cue from Russia, the Stalinist "New Masses" accuses the Trotskyist faction of making an alliance with "class enemies" by supporting the Democratic candidate, although the Communists support the Democrats elsewhere.

By following the tactics of the articulate and self-appointed spokesman of our own labor groups we can get some light on what the fight is about. The "regular" Communists, who take their orders from Moscow, and dolefully change their tactics every time the necessities of Russian foreign policy dictate it, have all become popular frontists, which in American terms means supporting President Roosevelt and making a common front against all "rightist" parties, who, by definition become Fascists. The Communists, being directed to unite against Fascism have to create it in order to have an opponent. They even managed to make Fascists out of Alfred M. Landis and Frank Knox, economic liberals, whose ideas of economic organization are a great deal farther from Hitler's than are the ideas of Mr. Browder or, for that matter, of Mr. Roosevelt.

The Trotskyists, on the contrary, do not believe that Mr. Roosevelt intends to establish Socialism, and that, therefore, it doesn't matter with whom one allies one's self, provided that one keeps one's objective clearly in mind. The thing to do is to continue to organize class discontent and to prevent the Stalinists, who, they claim, are merely stooges of Moscow, from gaining control of it. According to the Trotskyists, Russia is just another Fascist state, in which Stalin has succeeded Lenin to establish a Hitlerian dictatorship. They claim that the chief object of the Stalinists is to get workers' opinion so lined up in this country that we will be prepared to fight for Russia in the event of a German-Russian war.

The transference of a Russian ideological struggle to other shores is one of the greatest hindrances to an intelligent, realistic labor organization and policy in political democracies, and is a vigorous class war in movement which are alibis for something never openly stated, for policies which are made with a continual eye on far-distant events in Russia, Germany and Spain. He is not asked to join "communists" of either coloration. He is asked to join "progressives" or "liberals." And if he happens to be a Trotskyist he is asked to be a liberal or hold the key to policies which will give organized labor its happiest position in the American democracy he is branded as a "Fascist."

Yet, the whole Popular-Front movement is nothing but an adjustment which the Russian government has made to its own peculiar international situation. Until Hitler came into power the international policy of the Russian government under Stalin was what is now called Trotskyist. It vigorously opposed the collaboration of American, French or British Communists with any "progressive" or "liberal" factions. In Germany, for instance, it opposed collaboration with the middle-of-the-road parties which Hitler holds the key to the future of Germany. It looked forward then to precisely what Mr. Hitler looks forward to now: the ultimate collaboration of Russia and Germany, in a mutual exchange of goods and services, under a common banner. The only difference was that Russia then thought the banner would be the Red Flag, and Germany now intends that the banner shall be the Swastika.

The fear of the German conquest led the Communist International, dominated by Russia, radically to reverse itself. Now, Russia felt that

Army Post To Resume Regular Recruiting

Unrestricted recruiting will be resumed immediately at the Sweetwater sub-station recruiting post, Sergeant Neal P. Marshall, announced Monday.

Recruiting had been suspended for several days. Requirements, generally speaking, for enlistment are that the applicants must be U. S. citizens, good moral character, single and without dependents, at least 18 years of age and not over 35, proportional weight and height not under five feet four inches, good health, and ability to pass intelligence and literacy tests as prescribed in regulations.

Men desiring to enlist may write or call at the station in Sweetwater. Seal Thumbs Hide SALINAS, Cal. (UP)—Al Sligh, 33-year-old golf professional, avers that the training of seals has reached a point where they now know how to give the hitch-hiking signal. Sligh, driving a county truck encountered a seal which had come ashore and wandered four miles from the ocean. The seal promptly signaled his hitch-hiking desires with a flip of its tail, and Sligh took it aboard and back to the ocean.

Chapter 10 TED'S PLAN CLICKS

"Ted," Kay gazed at him with solemn eyes. "Uncle Dan told me not to breathe this, but I'm going to say it just once to you, and then never again until I have proof. I believe Josh Hastings had some connection with the fire that burned down the ranch house."

"I don't mention it again," Kay promised, "unless I have that proof. But Ted, can't you tell me what you know about him?"

"Ted shook his head. 'Not yet. But he hasn't heard the last of me, if it takes years to get him where I want him.'"

"If you could only trip him up now," Ted exclaimed, "I'm afraid any good. But he's not going to have the Lazy Nine!"

"What good will it do to rebuild, if your stock has to go to get money to do it?" Ted reasoned. "I've got a better idea than that. If you've got the right kind of outfit, and from what I've seen of them I'm willing to bet you have, we can rebuild without any money."

"Like The First Settlers" "What do you mean?" Kay hung breathlessly on his words. "Why, we'll do the way the first settlers did," Ted declared. "Haul in our own logs, and cut our own lumber, I'm not a bad hand at carpentering, and I'm a darned good blacksmith, if I do say so. We can make what we need in that line at the shop down by the corral, and by starting on the barn right now we can have it ready for winter. By spring, everything will be up again."

"Ted!" Kay's eyes sparkled with excitement as his enthusiasm kindled hers. "Do you suppose we could?" A sudden thought dimmed her radiant expression. "But what will we do for feed? That's all gone with the barn!" "You've got some money laid aside for the winter, haven't you?" Ted asked. "Only just enough to pay the men and buy food," Kay replied dependently. "That's what I meant by the right sort of outfit," Ted answered. "We won't take any pay. We'll use the money to buy the necessary feed for the cattle and horses to carry them over the winter. With what's left, we'll buy food for the outfit, and if rations get slim, we can follow the pioneers there, too. There's as good trapping and hunting in the Bitter Root as there ever was."

Hollywood

Sights and Sounds
By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Somebody ought to take Dorothy Lamour aside and tell her there's plenty of time. She doesn't think so. That's why she works the way she does.

Between radio and pictures the girl keeps busy practically all the time. She gets off the set rushes home to dinner, and then rushes to radio rehearsal after that it's time for bed.

Work, a sleep, and eat is the Lamour program. No time to play. No time to go nightclubbing. No time for prolonged relaxing, unless you count those periods between movie shots.

Sounded pretty feverish to me this life of hers as she outlined it. I asked her what was the big idea. Was she aiming for a million before she was 20, or what?

She came to pictures a year ago from radio. She won a beauty contest once, down in New Orleans, but that didn't send her to Hollywood. She was singing with Herb Kay's orchestra—her husband brought in the talent scout. Her first picture was "Jungle Princess." She stepped to the front in the seductress role of "Swing High, Swing Low," the girl who lured MacMurray from Lombard. She didn't like the part, but admits it did her good.

As if she hadn't enough to do already, she's talking about trying the stage, going into a stock company. She wants to learn how to face an audience. She's afraid of it now.

The first times she sang before an audience, in a Chicago hotel, she forgot the words and had to stall through the number. The same thing happened when she made her first appearance with Kay's orchestra. That time she carried to run off the stage. Kay called her back, made her keep trying until she sang through without faltering. She got applause but it didn't cure her.

It's funny, but she doesn't mind the audience on a movie set. She can stand visitors, hundreds of extras, all the workers that crowd around the sets. Because, she says, they're not an audience. They're part of the gang.

LIQUOR CANNOT STAND THE LIGHT OF TRUTH
CYCLISTS WARNED
"DON'T DRINK"
In spite of claims that two-wheeled chariots function even more efficiently when slightly exhilarated, the figures show otherwise, and therefore the motorcyclist should not drink, was the recent warning of P. H. Sproul, executive secretary of the Iowa State Safety Council, when addressing a meeting of the Des Moines Dusters Motorcycle Club.
Declaring that tests showed a single glass of beer cut a driver's efficiency to half normal performance, Mr. Sproul added: "He is not drunk. He does not even feel glowy. But he thinks just twice as slowly as he did before."
About three hundred motorcycle enthusiasts listened to the talk. They planned incorporation of motorcycle clubs in Iowa into a state unit to affiliate with the state safety council.

"LIVE CLEAN LIFE" SAYS FELLER TO SCOUTS
Guest of honor of the Cleveland Boy Scouts at their twenty-seventh anniversary festival, Bob Feller, the eighteen-year-old rookie pitcher of the Cleveland "Indians," found himself surrounded by a throng of three thousand whistling, cheering boys. According to the Associated Press, the young pitcher who likes to strike out sixteen or seventeen batters a game - and does - gave the following advice to the Boy Scouts aspiring to grow up to be $10,000-a-year major league pitchers:
"I don't smoke or drink. I don't even drink coffee. I drink plenty of milk. I think it's the best policy not to smoke. If it doesn't hurt you, it doesn't do you any good

Farmer Is Charged

Bond On Denial Of Kidnap, Extortion

COTULLA, July 5. (AP)—Charles A. Blakeney, tenant farmer charged with kidnaping and extortion, was denied bond and held to September action of the grand jury after an examining trial before Justice of the Peace W. A. Kerr here today.

Blakeney, charged in the complaint as "alias T. A. Murphy," was said by Justice Kerr to have admitted his presence to County Attorney Morgan Williams that the name Murphy, under which he had lived in La Salle county four years, was not his true one.

J. F. Offield, farmer and Blakeney's alleged victim, was the only witness to testify. He said Blakeney came to his home on the night of June 25th, demanding $500 at the point of a rifle.

Then, said Offield, Blakeney tied Offield, his wife, and child up, and kept them tied all night, threatening death unless they produced the money. Finally, Offield said, his wife gave the accused a check for $50, all she had in the bank, and after daylight he was released to get the money.

Offield said he notified officers and Blakeney was captured after a gun fight.

Governors Carry The Burden In Moves To Halt Industry Strife

By The AP Feature Service
State governors still carry the burden of industrial strife although the revolutionary new labor legislation is a federal product. Here's why:

1—When opinion differs as to what government agency should take charge, the one nearest at hand must get busy or run the risk of criticism.
2—The U. S. labor department has fewer than 30 trained conciliators.
3—It is federal policy to call in local mediators wherever possible on the theory they are more effective.

Meet a trio of governors thrown into prominence by labor troubles: OHIO'S DAVEY (right) studiously sidestepped intervention in labor disputes until the eruption of the state's worst steel strike since 1919. One of his campaign points was that he never had sent militiamen into strike centers. Recently, he did order the troops to service at Youngstown. Previously he had called the warring groups into conference—Republic Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube on one side, the steel Workers Organizing Committee on the other—and presented two settlement formulas. These failing, he appealed to President Roosevelt for federal intervention. A federal mediation board was subsequently appointed.

PENNSYLVANIA'S EARLE (right) kept in close touch with labor troubles in his state but until recently steered clear of intervention. He made a study of the anthracite fields, disturbed for several years by the activities of "coal bootleggers," and he promised to investigate the riot at the Hershey chocolate plant. With the steel strikes, he made a dramatic entrance into the labor-capital warfare, invoking a modified form of martial law for Johnstown. He argued that unless Bethlehem steel ceased operations at its big plant there, bloodshed might result. When the company disagreed, state police forced a shut-down.

MICHIGAN'S MURPHY (left) has spent most of his six months in office promoting industrial peace. He is credited with helping to settle strikes in General Motors in Chrysler, which cut short his Florida vacation (here he's buying railroad ticket for home), and Reo and Hudson. When the Newton steel strike broke at Monroe, Mich., he called out the national guard to preserve order during a labor demonstration. He has been denounced by both labor and capital for not going far enough in the directions they favor. But he plays no favorites, has an impressive batting average. He advocates a state law to let the governor run plants closed by strikes.

Confesses

"When I began choking her, she tried to scream. She fought. She almost got away from me. But I choked her just like I did the others. She struggled on the ground. She clawed at the dirt and kicked but pretty soon she grew quiet. I knotted a rope around her neck, too."

Madeline, the baby of the trio and the first to die, was then attacked. The lifeless bodies of the others were violated in turn.

His blue jeans stained with blood, Dyer was quoted as saying he hurried out of the hills and changed his clothes at his house, eating a "good supper" about 5:30 p. m. "Then I went down to see if anything was doing about the girls being missing from home."

All day Sunday, while search for the trio was intensified, Dyer waited around, offering suggestions to authorities.

During the ensuing manhunt which spread throughout Southern California, Dyer remained conspicuous. Several times, he offered "tips" to officers on possible suspects. He was himself questioned early in the week, but lured investigators' doubts by claiming he was employed all Saturday afternoon in his garden.

Dyer's first questioning was the result of a story by 14-year-old Mike Huerts, who reported to Police Chief Oscar E. Campbell instances when the crossing guard assertedly attempted to lure other children from the park.

Deaths

added to before the festivities end. Jo Ann McCoy, 5, of Escobas Field, was fatally injured in an automobile collision while en route to Mirando City from Laredo.

Miss Leo Coffey, 29, of Borger, died from injuries received in an automobile-collision near Amarillo.

Boy Scouts Add Color To Capital Holiday Observance

WASHINGTON, July 5. (AP)—The presence of 25,000 Boy Scouts gave added color to the capital's formal observance today of Independence Day.

Each troop here for the memorial scout jamboree picked a representative to attend a memorial service this morning at the Unknown Soldier's tomb in Arlington cemetery.

All the scouts will be special guests at a municipal display of fireworks tonight near the White House.

Government offices were closed today. Many officials and thousands of government employees left for the week-end, but an influx of visitors caused city officials to predict 80,000 spectators for the show of the fireworks.

LOCAL MAN VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

Clem W. Milholland, 79, dropped dead at the home of a cousin, Jake Milholland, at 4th and Benton streets, Sunday afternoon.

Justice of Peace Joe Faucett returned a verdict of death from heart attack. A short time before Milholland had been talking with friends. He walked toward a tree, turned and pitched face downward into the shade, they said.

There are no survivors of his immediate family. He was unmarried. Besides his cousin, he leaves a niece, Mrs. A. M. Runyan, Big Spring.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. Eberley Funeral home is in charge.

SENT TO PRISON

Red George, convicted here and sentenced to two years for forgery, was taken into custody Monday morning by "Uncle Bud" Russell, veteran Texas prison system agent. Russell was enroute to Huntavilla.
