Petroleum Production In State Above 900-Million Barrels

BACK IN THE SADDLE AGAIN -- Lincoln D. Cravey, 83, of Spur, is one of the last great cowboys in the Motley-Dickens area. He still rides Brett, L. D. was born during a snow storm on April 18, 1901, in a dugout West of Big Red Mud Creek in Western Knox County. "Where the owls roosted with the chicken". L.D. says he has been on a number of ranch jobs in West Texas during his lifetime.

Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association reports that an 11th consecutive year of production at the maximum effective recovery rate in nearly all of Texas' oil fields kept 1982 petroleum production in the state above the 900-million barrel figure.

Avery Rush, Jr., chairman of the Dallas-based Association, says that figures compiled by its staff show the total petroleum output of 901,910,343 barrels included 871,780,379 barrels of crude oil and 30,129,964 barrels of condensate from wells in 214 of Texas' 254 counties.

Crude oil and condensate production last year was 26.8-million barrels below the 1981 figure, a drop of 2.9 percent. This compares with a 3.3 percent drop in 1981 production from the year previous, Rush said.

Rush, of Amarillo, noted that this percentage drop of less than three-percent was the smallest in the last half-dozen years. He said he was encouraged by the continuing trend of a slowing in the rate of decline.

"The fact that 1982 production stayed above the 900-million barrel mark is attributable directly to the spectacular drilling boom in Texas during the last five years. We have drilled almost 99,000 wells since 1977, with nearly 50,000 of them drilled in 1981 and 1982," Rush said.

"An economic and regulatory climate that will encourage a continuation of this high level of drilling activity is vital to the best interests of our state and nation. As the free world's economy continues to improve, the demand for petroleum energy will increase. This need for more oil and gas is one

A NEW LOOK at the entrance to Springs Ranch golf course is an arched metal sign mounted over the gate, inscribed "Springs Ranch Golf and R.V. Club."

As the task of defending our national security has grown in complexity during the years since World War II, so has the Department of Defense. During both Republican and Democratic Administrations, its size and the complexity of its bureaucracy have grown dramatically. A number of issues have been raised repeatedly in recent years that make it necessary for us to question whether changes need to be made to improve the decision-making process.

The Senate Armed Services Committee, on which I serve as chairman, soon will begin a comprehensive study into these issues.

We will examine the organization of the Office of the Secretary of Defense to determine whether decisionmaking has become overcentralized, staffs are too large, duplicatory work is being done or military judgment and innovation are being stifled.

Secondly, we will look at the organization of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to see if it is organized in such a way as to be effective in performing its missions.

Additionally, we will look at the way in which the unified military commands function to see if interservice cooperation and planning are adequate. We also are interested in examining the way in which decisions are made in areas such as budget formulation, procurement of weapons systems and testing and evaluation of these systems. I am concerned about the amount of time these decisions take, with the process often stretching into years between the time a need is identified and the time a system to meet the need is operational.

Finally, the Committee intends to examine the relationship between the Department of Defense and other parts of the federal government which become involved in national security planning, such as the National Security Council, the State Department and the Central Intelligence Agency, to see if the structure lends itself to formulation of a comprehensive national security strategy.

Let me emphasize that in beginning this inquiry I am not criticizing Secretary of Defense Casper Weinberger. In fact, I believe Secretary Weinberger has done an outstanding job considering the bureaucracy he inherited.

Further, I suspect that any weaknesses we may find in the Department of Defense organization also exist in other federal agencies, but as Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, my responsibilities lie in looking into the Department of Defense.

I plan for the committee to hear from a large number of witnesses who currently hold government office as well as many persons who have previously served in government or are otherwise knowledgeable about this subject.

It is essential that we determine what, if any, problems in the organization and structure of the Department of Defense keep the decision-making process from operating as smoothly as it could. Failure to do this leaves us with the possibility of incurring unnecessary costs or being unable to respond quickly to a potential crisis.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Tribune Person,
My mother is a subscriber and that is how I occasionally get to read the Matador Tribune. However, I would like a copy of my own, so I can take it to work and read.
I also sent 25¢ for a copy of the recent Tribune that had Lance Bailey (Linda Kay Rattan's son) on the front page. It was a nice article about his accomplishments and graduation from high school. Mother told me it is $1.00 to receive a copy, so I have made the check for an additional dollar.

Thank you, that must be filled in significant measure by production from Texas wells," Rush added.

Also in a positive vein, 1982 production pushed the state's cumulative production total since 1866 to more than 47.5-billion barrels. However, for the 10th consecutive year, crude oil and condensate production in the nation's No. 1 energy-producing state was down after peaking at nearly 1.3-billion barrels in 1972.

Motley County which has recorded production since 1957, last year produced 122,025 barrels of crude oil and condensate at the rate of 334 barrels per day. Production in 1982 boosted Motley County's production total through the end of the year to 7,874,084 barrels.

Last year, 19 counties in the state produced more than 10-million barrels of crude oil and condensate, down from 21 in both 1980 and 1981. The following listing shows 1982 production figures for the state's five top producing counties, all with production in excess of 39-million barrels.

Pecos, third last year and fourth in 1980, became the state's top producing county while Yoakum, the 1980 leader, held second place for the second consecutive year. Last year's leading producer, Gaines, dropped to third. Ector, which held third place for six consecutive years from 1975 to 1980, remained in fourth place for the second consecutive year. Gregg retained the fifth place ranking it has held since 1980.

1. Pecos, 50,711,326; 2. Yoakum, 48,442,386; 3. Gaines, 47,522,004; 4. Ector, 45,958,036; 5. Gregg, 39,240,456.

The remaining top producing counties include the following: 6. Hockley, 39,120,433; 7. Andrews, 29,057,555; 8. Scurry, 31,731,929; 9. Crane, 26,865,582; 10. Refugio, 23,523,691; 11. Burleson, 18,034,710; 12. Wood, 17,888,434; 13. Rusk, 15,139,003; 14. Terry, 14,375,681; 15. Howard, 13,475,093; 16.

Upton, 11,164,366; 17. Cochran, 11,073,950; 18. Lee, 10,789,193; 19. Kent, 10,525,205.

Montgomery, which was No. 16 last year, and Brazoria, which was No. 17, were the only two counties to leave the 10-million-plus listing.

Gregg, the first Texas county to produce more than two-billion barrels of crude oil and condensate in the history of recorded production, remains the all time leader with a cumulative total through 1982 of 2,812,400,388 barrels. Ector, through the end of last year, had produced 2,397,529,526 barrels, while Andrews had produced 2,054,626,749 barrels as of Jan. 1, 1983.

With Hockley joining the list for the first time, other counties with cumulative production in excess of one-billion barrels include the following. They are Rusk, Scurry, Crane, Yoakum, Gaines, Harris, Brazoria, Pecos, Refugio and Hockley.

There are 100 fancy varieties of goldfish.

Special Project To Help Young Cotton Growers

Helping young cotton growers, ginners, and representatives of other segments of the industry prepare for leadership roles is the aim of a special project sponsored by The Cotton Foundation and the DuPont Company.

Supported by a $91,000 grant from DuPont, the Cotton Leadership Program will enable participants to receive training in the areas of governmental and public affairs, organizational policy development, research and market development, and communications.

Sessions are scheduled in Washington, D.C., New York City, Memphis, Tenn., and various locations across the Cotton Belt for a total of some 30 days.

The program will include field trips, group discussions, and visits with key Senators, Representatives and Administration officials. Ten people will be selected to participate in 1983-84. First session is scheduled in September.

Candidates for the program must: (1) derive their livelihoods from one of the seven cotton industry segments; (2) be in the 27-40 age bracket; (3) be able to demonstrate leadership potential; (4) have approval of employer, or if self-employed, offer evidence that time away from their operations will not be a handicap; and (5) agree to complete reports and evaluations.

Travel expenses for participants to attend the sessions and all group travel and accommodations are provided under the DuPont grant to the Foundation.

The program will be administered under the direction of the Leadership Development Committee of the National Cotton Council. All candidates will be screened and selected by the committee.

William H. Houston, III, Foundation Board chairman and Tunica, Miss., cotton producer, points out that industry members have established solid reputations for accepting the challenges of leadership. "However, because of the increasing complexity of issues and actions facing cotton, a need has developed for a program that provides opportunities for training in leadership," he added.

Morris A. Bailey, DuPont agricultural marketing manager, noted, "It's been said that success is where education and experience meet opportunity. This training program will help prepare young people in the cotton industry for opportunities in the future and will help keep the industry strong for many years to come."

Further information and application forms may be obtained from The Cotton Foundation, P.O. Box 12284, Memphis, Tenn. 38112 (901/724-9030).

Foot Facts

By Dr. Robert Brodtkin, D.P.M.

HEEL SPURS

Many patients come to a podiatrist's (foot specialist's) office complaining of heel pain and often ask, "Do you think I have heel spurs, Doctor?" It is true that most heel pain is caused by heel spurs but other causes must be ruled out.

What are heel spurs? A heel spur is a ledge or shelf of new bone built up in the heel in response to excessive stress on the plantar fascia. The plantar fascia is a strong band of connective tissue, on the bottom of the foot, which stops the arch from collapsing under weight bearing. The point at which it attaches to the heel is where the heel spur will form. Heel spurs, as seen on an x-ray, can be anywhere from 1/16" to 1/2" long. It is interesting that excessive strain on the plantar fascia can be due to both flat feet and extremely high arched feet.

It is usually necessary to take an x-ray of the foot and to run some laboratory studies to be sure that it is really a heel spur causing the pain. Once a diagnosis has been established, treatment consists of anti-inflammatory medications taken by mouth, cortisone injections into the painful area, physical therapy, and rest. For long term control, special shoe inserts give excellent results. If these treatment modalities have been used for six months to a year without significant improvement, surgery may be indicated. The surgical procedure involves actual removal of the extra bone formation. However, more than 95% of patients treated conservatively have good results.

Joe Vandever

Telephone Manager Receives Additional Responsibilities

In an effort to improve customer services and relations, Joe Vandever, Local Service Manager for General Telephone for Matador, Ralls, Dickens, Crosbyton, Lorenzo, Pefersburg, Idalou and Abernathy has been assigned the additional responsibilities of small business systems sales, according to Jimmy Bennett, Operations Manager in Memphis.

The Local Service Manager concept is part of General Telephone's plan to return responsibility for customer service to the local area. Operations Manager, Jimmy Bennett describes it as "... Part of an overall plan to improve our relationship with our customers and provide them with the kind of service they request.

The Local Service Manager initially was responsible for quality service to our customers locally and were to resolve problems that could not be taken care of through normal Company channels. The sales responsibilities opens up a whole new area for the Local Service Manager. They are now commissioned with not only servicing customer equipment, but insuring that the customer receives the correct equipment for their particular needs. The challenge of creating the correct customer/equipment mix is difficult, but I'm sure they'll meet the challenge.

Vandever, a native of Stephenville, Texas, lives in Ralls with his wife and family. He began his career with GTE in 1954 in Carlsbad as a lineman. He was later promoted to management in Ralls. Prior to joining General Telephone, Vandever was a member of the United States Air Force. He is a member of Masons and active in the Evening Lions Club in Ralls.

Emphasizing his interest in personalizing service, Vandever stated that he is "excited about this responsibility." "I know the customer's needs, his location as well and having the technical expertise to provide our customers with tailored telephone systems."
