As early as 1792 when their presence as free citizens was recorded in the Span-ish census, black women have been part of Texas history.

As the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History desig-nates this month of February as Black History Month, we recognize the contri-butions of Texas Black Women. Even these earliest hardy pioneers found time to fight for freedom from slavery, inte-gration of the races, and social reform.

Without pay or hope of freedom, slave women worked from childhood to old age under the threat of physical punish-ment. They were expected to be constantly pregnant to produce as many chilas possible while carrying a full dren loan clearing land, choppi picking cotton, cutting wood, cooking, cleaning, or sewing.

Rather than suffer the splitting of their families and continued violence, some women ran away, but those that couldn't ook up more subtle forms of resistance: breaking tools, prevented pregnancies or performed abortions, being uncooperaive, and in extreme circumstances, mur dering their owners. After the Civil War, Black women worked hard to reunite their families, establish new communities, schools, churches, and lodges. Some who had learned to read from their slave mis-tresses or white children taught in those early schools. As Black colleges opened, women prepared to teach in segregated public schools.

About 50 million non-smoking adults over age 35 are regularly exposed to passive smoke, the American Heart Association says. Meanwhile, about 50 percent of all children live in families with one or more smokers. Thus, the risk of death from heart disease is about 30 percent higher for those exposed to ETS at home and could be much higher in those exposed to use the second s those exposed at work.

But you can help protect yourself and others. If you smoke, quit (more than 435,000 Americans die yearly from ciga-rette smoking-related illnesses). If you won't stop, then don't smoke around others.

We need people to check in books, shelve books, file cards in the card catalog, use the computer to catalog books and then to accession books and get them ready to be put into circulation. The only requirement is that the volun-teers know their alphabet, because everything else can be very easily learned with that basic knowledge. Even if all you can donate is one hour per week, come by and see what can be accomplished. Central and South West's electric utility subsidiaries - West Texas Utilities Company, Central Power and Light Company, Public Service of Oklahoma,

Abilene, Texas -- West Texas Utilities company announced today that it is participating in a renewable energy project which will include locations in its service territory. The company and the other three electric utility companies of Central and South West Corporation (CSW) are plan-ning the most comprehensive study of renewable energy technologies ever undertaken in the Southwest The $10 million, five-year program cells for installion a large photovoltaic

The S10 minor, the year program calls for installing a large photovoltaic system connected to the electrical net-work, individual photovoltaic panels on customer rooftops,two solar-dish Stirling engines and several wind-powered tur-bines. This project will increase the CSW system's research expenditures for 1993 by more than 40 percent by more than 40 percent.

Glenn Files, president and chief ex-ecutive officer of the Abilene-based elec-tric utility company, said the renewable energy program is designed to lead to alternative sources of clean power for the CSW system's 1.6 million customers.

The multipurpose program will in-clude testing for the best potential sites for sun and wind exposure in WTU's 53,000 square-mile service territory, and in the 100,000 square-miles served by the other theoretilies other three utilities.

Initial tests indicate the best combina-tion of solar and wind resources is located in the Fort Davis area of West Texas. Some equipment will be located in the region

Files said that research, technological advances and economics of scale could help make the use of sun and wind for electrical power an affordable alternative for customers early in the 21st century. Karlene and Jim Cross

I want to thank all my family and friends for being so nice to me while I was hurt in the hospital and since I've been home, for all the nice cards, letters, food and other acts of kindness. Thank you very much.

Arrie Aulick

We would like to say once again how very much we appreciated all the cards, letters, telephone calls, flowers and most of all your prayers while we were in Dallas for Trigger's surgery and his long weeks of recuperation, and it is so good to be back home.

Annie B. and Trigger Holt

We want to thank everyone for your prayers, cards, and food brought to our home during my illness and the death of our loved one. May God bless you.

Tom and Mamie Yeates

We want to thank everyone who sent food, flowers, cards, and donations in memory of J.D. If anyone has been overlooked, know that we appreciate everything and we thank you.

Pansy Spray and family

We would like to extend our deepest gratitude to everyone for the food, flowers, cards, prayers, and kindness shown to our family during and after the loss of our son, Sammy Zarate. May God bless each and every one of you. It's good to know that so many of you cared in our time of sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Jes'us Zarate and family

There are no words special enough to express my sincere "thanks" and gratitude to all our dear friends and relatives for all the flowers, food, cards, phone calls, and visits during my recent surgery and after my return home. All of these wonderful Christian deads have made being sick a little more bearable. Your thoughtfulness and concern was very much appreciated. $ 10.7

Thank you, Dorothy Lefevre
