President Hoover Vetoes Democratic Tariff Bill Pair Believed Enroute From Wichita Falls

Long Message Is Sent House; Was Expected

Measure Gave Congress, Not President, Power To Change

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Hoover vetoed the Democratic tariff bill, which would have altered the flexible proviso of the present law to give congress the power to change duties instead of the president.

The president sent a long message to the house, which the Democrats control. The veto was predicted even before passage of the bill.

58 Tickets Not Sold As Friday Nears

Final Effort To Be Made This Evening For Special Train

Continued efforts by less than a half dozen men Wednesday morning resulted in sale of approximately 35 more tickets on the Big Spring special train to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Sweetwater. The train will leave about 7:30 p. m. Friday, returning that night.

Total of tickets sold to noon was 142.

Fifty eight more had to be sold during the afternoon to make possible the special train at $1.35.

HE'S TIRED OF COLLEGE QUEENS

James Montgomery Flagg is "bored" with college beauty contests. Pictures of Syracuse contestants including (top to bottom) Elizabeth Marsh, Mary Jane Hall and Lucille Hall, were sent to the artist. A hullo! resulted when he returned the pictures with a request that another be asked to judge because there were "no startling beauties among them."

Pair Believed Enroute From Wichita Falls

One Of Men Believed Killed Lived In Big Spring Recently

Two men, one of whom was believed to be W. K. Judy, Tulsa, former manager of a torpedo company, and who recently resided at a Big Spring hotel, were blown to bits at 9:30 Wednesday morning when nitroglycerine they were hauling in a truck exploded on a highway between Monahan and Wink.

Name of the second victim was believed to be Scottfield.

The two men were on a truck loaded with nitro which left Wichita Falls Tuesday.

The explosion blew a hole twelve feet long and four feet wide in the highway, according to advice from Monahan.

Officers there were unable to find any bit of clothing, or parts of the truck large enough to help in identifying the victims.

Calls to officials of various torpedo companies engaged in shipping oil wells in northern and western Texas were made by friends and acquaintances anxious to learn the names of the men blown from the face of the earth almost literally by the terrific blast.

Local torpedo company men were at a loss to understand how the explosion was caused. They pointed out that modern equipment for hauling nitroglycerin reduces to a very low degree the danger of such an accident.

The nitro is carried in a box behind the seat of a coupe or roadster models of automobiles, which usually are of the larger makes. The wooden box is lined with tin. The box is divided into compartments just large enough to be filled by a 10-quart can. A rubber boot one-fourth inch thick lines each compartment. One-inch felt is placed under the lid of the box.

By this method even if the explosive leaks from a can it will not explode, due to absence of friction against the rubber.

Contrary to the popular belief nitroglycerine may be poured out and will not explode unless exposed to friction great enough almost to produce a visible spark.

No one was nearby when the explosion occurred, according to reports from Monahan.

Home Town Talk by Betty

Well, why not close up one day, take a rest, and let the folks go over to Sweetwater if they wish. We've heard a number of folks say they'd go if they could get off from work.

AKRON STOP FOR FUEL

CAMP KEARNEY, Calif. (UP)—The navy dirigible Akron arrived here at 9:40 a. m., Pacific time, and a ground crew of 200 sailors helped moor the ship.

Commander Rosendahl planned to take on 2,500 gallons of fuel and later proceed to the base near San Francisco. The ship had been greatly delayed by storms over Texas. It originally was intended to make no stops between Lakehurst, N. J. and San Francisco.

The Akron finally emerged from Texas at El Paso about 8 p. m. Tuesday after having spent twelve hours traveling from San Antonio. Following a severe storm over San Angelo that caused a change in the route to the transcontinental air lane at Big Spring the ship turned southwestward over Eldorado, Sonora and Dryden, swerved back over Sanderson and spent six hours in storms before reaching the air lane at Pecos early Tuesday afternoon. It proceeded to near the Guadalupe mountains but fell back in the face of storms. After getting over the mountains it again fell back ten miles from El Paso before a sandstorm subsided.

The ship was sighted at El Paso at 7:35 p. m. Tuesday, passed over Yuma, Ariz. at 7:35 a. m. Wednesday, a. s. t., and was sighted one mile west of Barrett, Calif., 20 miles northeast of San Diego at 9:26 a. m.

Mother's Day Is Theme For Rotary Club

Delegates Report Convention; Simmons New Member

"Mother's Day," was the principal theme at the Rotary club luncheon Tuesday noon at the Settles ballroom. Father Theo Francis made the Mother's Day talk, dwelling on the value of motherhood and how it should be appreciated.

Reports of members attending the convention of three Rotary districts in Mineral Wells last week were made. President Bob Piner, who spoke before the meeting of the 41st district, placing Big Spring before the convention as the next host city for the district in 1933, also told of the many interesting and instructive messages bearing on Rotary and its principles made at the convention.

Dr. M. H. Bennett followed Mr. Piner, telling of attending the program put on by the Dallas club, which had as its theme "Club Service." He paid an especial compliment to Mr. Piner in the manner in which he placed Big Spring before the convention as a host city, and that it was generally conceded that the next conference will be held here in 1933. This decision, however, will rest with the presidents and secretaries in annual meeting at the Seattle convention in June of this year.

Garland Woodward laid plans for the special train to be run from Big Spring to Sweetwater next Friday before the club. He said if Big Spring wanted to get this convention, that they would have to show some interest. He told of the necessary guarantee of tickets to put the train over. He stated that for every ticket the Rotary club would buy, the Kiwanis club would likewise match it.

The following Rotarians were visitors: J. M. Armstrong, geologist of Eastland; W. A. Yeager, Midland; Sam E. Johnson, Fort Worth; Garland Woodward, R. B. Bliss, of Big Spring, and W. R. Mood of Houston, were visitors for the day.

Ray Simmons was introduced as a new member of the club. Joe Galbraith was program chairman.

TOKYO (UP)—The government announced that it planned to withdraw all troops from Shanghai within a month. It was announced that they expected the United States and other powers to see that Chinese observe terms recently agreed regarding a truce.

The decision came as a surprise. Japan announced that the troops would return if serious emergency develops, but not otherwise.

Bonus Plank Turned Down In Convention

Delegation Instructed To Vote For Dry Plank In Platform

Howard county Democracy Tuesday instructed its six delegates to vote for John Nance Garner for the presidential nomination, adopted a resolution favoring a dry plank in the state and national party platforms but defeated another that would have placed the party in this country on record for a plank calling for a "fair and immediate adjustment" of ex-service men's compensation.

The county convention, held Tuesday afternoon at the court house named G. H. Cunningham, the county chairman, with Garland A. Woodward, B. Reagan, R. D. Matthews, Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas and Miss Verbera Barnes delegates to the state Democratic convention May 24.

Jed C. Adams and Mrs. Clara Sevier, present members, were favored for another term as national committee chairman and national committee woman from Texas.

G. B. Cunningham was re-elected county chairman and Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas was named secretary of the convention.

Fox Stripling, L. S. Patterson and A. P. McDonald were members of the committee for nominations of state delegates.

The three resolutions were introduced by Mrs. Clyde E. Thomas. The Garner resolution follows: "That the Howard county Democratic convention go on record for John Garner for president and that the delegates to the state Democratic convention meeting May 24 from this county be, and the same are hereby instructed to vote for John Garner as the nominee of this party." This resolution was adopted by unanimous vote.

The second resolution dealing with the "wet-and-dry" issue, was adopted by a narrow margin, according to minutes of the convention. It follows: "That the State of Texas being dry and for the enforcement of the prohibition laws, and the dry-and-wet question being a live issue regardless of the cry of the anti to the contrary, this Howard county Democratic convention go on record as favoring a dry plank in the state and national platforms, and that the delegates from this county be, and they are hereby instructed to vote and work for a dry plank in such platform."

The bonus resolution, introduced by Mrs. Thomas and seconded by Mrs. Stripling, was defeated. It follows: "That, whereas many hard working men were compelled to go to service in the World War on a wage of about $1 per day, and whereas at the same time many men and most all left behind were a live issue regardless of the cry of the anti to the contrary, this Howard county Democratic convention go on record as favoring a dry plank in the state and national platforms, and that the delegates from this county be, and they are hereby instructed to vote and work for a dry plank in such platform."

The banks are ready to observe a holiday Friday, the day Big Spring makes her appearance at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Sweetwater, if a sufficient number of stores agree to close.

The Abilene folks come forward with the news that executive board members of the Chamber of Commerce there voted unanimously Wednesday morning to cast Abilene's votes for Big Spring as the next convention host.

That is by no means the only one of the larger cities of West Texas that will support us provided we show the convention delegates that we are really in the race in earnest.

It has been a discouraging thing in some ways, working in the campaign to win this convention. A few members of committees have taken off a few hours and solicited ticket sales. Most of those they contracted bought tickets. If proper assistance had been given the Chamber of Commerce staff more than 200 tickets would have been sold before today.

The most surprising thing thus far has been that the younger men, members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and others, registered almost a blank in turning out to work in the campaign and it had been said a lot of times hereabouts by young men that they would get out and get some conventions if given an opportunity.

Lee Batterswhite, veteran West Texas legislator, former speaker of the house, has launched his campaign for railroad commissioner. He has headquarters in the Stephen F. Austin hotel in Austin and opened his campaign Tuesday in his old home, Wortham.

We have not as yet examined Mr. Batterswhite's platform carefully but we do believe that this is a mighty good year for some good men to do Texas a great service by winning a place on the commission.

Chairman C. V. Terrell's place is at stake. Also Pat Neff's if the governor appoints some one before Neff's term ends.

Mr. Terrell is a fine gentleman. He is honest, conscientious. But Mr. Terrell's administration as commission chairman has been marked by very obvious inefficiency and inability of the commission to cope with the many problems that have come before it.

Creating new commissions in the state government is a distasteful, an unwise practice. But if Texas cannot elect men to the railroad commission who know enough about the oil business to handle that heavy portion of the commission's duties we're going to have to create an oil and gas commission if the industry is handled properly and the laws governing various phases of it enforced properly.

Mrs. Victor Flewellan and Mrs. Marvin House, left Wednesday for a few days visit in Abilene, with Mrs. House's sister and mother. They were accompanied by their children.

J. M. Armstrong, petroleum geologist of Eastland, was a visitor in Big Spring Tuesday.

Lions Soon To Present Show At R&R Ritz

Mrs. Lee Weathers To Have Charge Next Wednesday Evening

"A Night on the Beach," a series of original skits climaxing in a bathing review, is the title of a benefit entertainment to be presented at 9:30 o'clock next Wednesday evening at the Ritz Theater under the auspices of the Lions club.

With Mrs. Lee Weathers in charge of the show, the spot light will be turned on the Lions club quartet, well known throughout this section of the state, and a chorus of beautiful girls attired in original and flashing costumes. A beach will be created on the platform to form a fitting background for the beautifully planned beach pajamas of the chorus.

An hour of pure comedy has been promised those who attend. Proceeds will serve as benefit for the unemployed of the city, Lions club members announced.

Revenue Bill Is Reported Must Be Accompanied By $230 Millions In Savings

WASHINGTON (UP)—The senate finance committee submitted a report on the new billion-dollar revenue bill, saying it must be accompanied by two hundred and thirty million in savings to balance the budget for next year.

The committee said it realized that new taxes would affect businesses already burdened by business taxes but that revenues must be raised and the benefits from a reestablishment of Federal finances on a sound basis would help business far more than the taxes would harm it.

Motor Traffic Resumed Over Highway No. 1

Motor traffic over state highway 1 between Big Spring and Colorado was resumed Wednesday morning with motorists using the old north road from Big Spring to Coahoma. Washouts of bridges east of Coahoma had been repaired.

The Union Bus Terminal reported all lines operating on schedule Wednesday, except that no buses had arrived from the south.

Tuesday and Tuesday night passengers on Southland Greyhound buses were transferred here and in Colorado to Texas & Pacific trains. The buses were going through on the north road eastward Wednesday.

Even W. P. Hobby, Closest Political Aide, Does Not Know Whether Chief Executive Will Seek Second Term

AUSTIN—Whatever variety of opinions about Gov. Sterling's intentions toward a second-term race, this may be vouched for: Former Gov. W. P. Hobby, probably his closest personal friend outside his family circle, and who probably will be his campaign manager if he is in the race, does not know what the governor's decision will be.

This despite the fact that Gov. Hobby at one time had prepared a memorandum for announcing the governor's candidacy, withholding it after it actually had been in newspaper correspondents' hands for a short time.

As a take-it-or-leave-it item of gossip, individuals in Austin have insisted that members of Mr. Sterling's family had said he will not be in the race. So far as official statement, or authorized statement is concerned, no member of his family has made any utterance indicating his course.

These are quoted at a time the presumption of everything so far said has been that Mr. Sterling will lead the present administration forces again this year. And at a time when many democrats are speculating upon the probability of former Gov. Dan Moody's being called, like Cincinnatus, from the

Big Spring Taxi Driver Abducted By Two "Fares", Telephones From Wichita Falls After Night Ride

W. C. Prescott Put Out Near Wichita, Chevrolet Coach Taken

W. C. Prescott, driver for the Dime Taxi company, was abducted here Tuesday night by two men who entered his car when he answered a call to an Austin street address, and forced to accompany them to a point near Wichita Falls. He was there put out of the car and the men drove off, taking a little money Prescott had in his pockets.

Prescott answered the call at 9:10 p. m. Tuesday. He was not heard from until 7:30 a. m. Wednesday when he telephoned Manager Claude Walters of the taxi company here from Wichita Falls. He had walked ten miles into Wichita Falls from the place on a highway where he was put out of the car.

Prescott told him they would leave the car eighteen miles out of Wichita Falls, but did not give any direction. It was believed they were headed for Oklahoma.

The Chevrolet coach, a 1931 model, bore no insignia of the taxi company, Walters reported.

'Ok Big Spring' Consensus At Club Meeting

That Theme Carried Out By 'My Home Town' Contest Entrant

Slogans of "On to Sweetwater" and "O. K. Big Spring" provided the theme for an interesting program at the Business Men's Luncheon Club Wednesday noon as Victor Flewellan, Dr. W. B. Hardy, and C. T. Watson discussed plans for local representation at the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention to be held in Sweetwater May 12, 13 and 14 and Curtis Bishop, Big Spring entry in the "My Home Town" oratorical contest, gave the oration he will use in the second preliminaries of the annual feature of the convention Thursday night.

"We could learn a lot about how to bring home the bacon," Flewellan stated, "by going back to school. Eleven men play in a football game but did you ever try to keep one of your kids away from one? They're all in the stands pulling for the team on the field. Remember the Chinese saying, 'Sitting man has to hold mouth open long time before goose flies in.'"

Dr. Hardy reported that only 150 of the required 200 tickets for the special train to Sweetwater had been sold and that final report must be made by 4 o'clock this afternoon.

C. T. Watson announced that the Abilene Chamber of Commerce had voted unanimously to support Big Spring as the scene of the 1932 West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention. Watson further described the methods necessary to win a convention, stating that a special train and other exhibitions would arouse a favorable sentiment, but that only action-holding of the unit directors would actually win the sufficient number of votes.

"O. K. Big Spring"

Bishop's breezy declamation was well received by the members. The local entry paraphrases the routine of a well known radio announcer, presenting Captain R. B. Marcy of the United States army, who discovered Big Spring in 1849, reviewing the city's history briefly and introducing a complete agricultural and commercial report by the local chamber of commerce. The declamation closes with a reference to the invitation to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to select Big Spring as the scene of the 1932 convention.

"Congratulations and thanks, Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. It may have sounded like bragging."

$50,000 Bond Set For Means

First Bonding Company Appearing Is Refused By U. S.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Justice James Procter of the District of Columbia Supreme Court set the bond of Gaston E. Means at $50,000 when Means was first arrested. Means is now under indictments for larceny and embezzlement of a $104,000 from Mrs. Edward B. McLean on the claim that he could recover the kidnapped Lindbergh baby. The bond is unraised as yet.

United States Attorney Leo Rover refused the first bonding company appearing. He said Means would undoubtedly run away.

SENTENCED REVERSED

AUSTIN (UP)—The court of criminal appeals reversed and remanded the death sentence of Lemelle Goodwell, negro, convicted in Hardin county.

The court reversed a fifty year sentence for J. A. Bond, convicted in Terry county for killing J. C. White, and affirmed a ninety-nine year sentence of Frank Brackeen, Cooke county, for killing Ben Jones and a twenty-five year sentence for Jim Saffel for killing J. W. Windham, Jones county.

Mrs. Harry Hurt and son plan to leave within a few days for a week-end visit with Mrs. Hurt's mother in Abilene.

Husband Admits Killing His Wife

WOOSTER, Ohio (UP)—Shortly after Herbert Meeker, farmer, confessed in Millersburg jail to the murder of his wife Sunday night, implicating his brother-in-law, Harold Young, 19, Young shot himself to death at his home as officers arrived.

The woman was found nude and beaten to death beside a creek. A bloodstained automobile was found a mile away.

Meeker hitherto had protested his innocence.

Mrs. Gus Matthews of Kaufman has arrived to be the summer guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Webb.

One Hour And 36 Minutes

ONE part of President Hoover's recent address to the governors at their convention in Virginia is worth serious attention...

Said the president: "Before the war, theoretically, every man worked 25 days a year for the national, state and local governments combined."

"In 1928 he worked 46 days a year."

"Today he works for the support of all forms of government 61 days a year."

Figure that out. It means that there is one day out of five, in the course of working days in the year, you must toil without compensation. One hour and 36 minutes of every eight hour day you work go to government."

Of course, but a very small proportion of the heavy tax levies that absorb that much of your income are assessed directly. You are paying it, however, in some manner every day and there is no escape. Shifting of tax burdens will not solve the question. Taxes placed elsewhere are tacked on to the things you buy until they eventually redistribute themselves to touch every citizen. Real relief in the form of drastic slashing of tax burdens is all that will remove this penalty every wage earner bears.

Our local governments have already made notable progress in reduction of expenditures; it appears that Congress is finally going to accomplish something in the way of cutting the federal budget. It remains for the state to follow suit, and drastic economy should be the keynote of the legislature next January. Our governmental burdens are so distributed that it is futile to remove some without lessening all.

Life's Darkest Moment

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN Mr. Roosevelt's Defeat

On Tuesday the inherent weakness of Governor Roosevelt's candidacy was made manifest to the country. For the primary elections in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania were the first real test of Mr. Roosevelt's popular appeal in the great centers of population. The outcome has shown what seasoned observers have for some months contended; that he does not command a national following in the Democratic party and that his nomination would disintegrate and disperse the support which the party might reasonably expect this year.

The results in Massachusetts are much more decisive than any one imagined they would be. For Mr. Roosevelt was supported in Boston by Mayor Curley's organization. It is a typical urban machine, immensely powerful and well financed. That this organization should have been overwhelmingly defeated in the city of Boston which it controls is sensational evidence of how Democratic city voters feel about the Roosevelt candidacy. No political observer that I know imagined that such an overturn could take place. It was believed that Smith would run strongly in the other cities of Massachusetts for there he has the support of the state organization. But that his delegates could overwhelm the Curley machine in Boston itself is clear proof that the forgotten men intervened in the contest.

The Boston vote seems to me the decisive test. For in primary elections the machine normally wins. It is only when the machine is beaten that one can feel certain that a powerful popular sentiment has expressed itself at the polls. With the Boston test before us it can now be said with assurance that the politicians in the large states who have been opposing Roosevelt have judged correctly what the voters think about him.

These results dispose completely of the Roosevelt propaganda that he is the idol of the masses opposed only by the international bankers, the power trust, and Mr. Rankin. Today it is certain that in the industrial sections of the country Mr. Roosevelt is very far from being the idol of the masses. In these sections where millions are unemployed, where the suffering is most acute, Mr. Roosevelt's protestations of interest in the forgotten man have brought him just nowhere.

Why is this? Are the miners of Scranton and Wilkesbarre the minions of Wall Street? Or don't they want a president whose heart is sympathetic with them? The real reason is that the people of the East know about Mr. Roosevelt, and gradually have taken his measure. They just do not believe in him. They have detected something hollow in him, something synthetic, something pretended and calculated. While they are far from having definite ideas as to what the policies of the country ought to be, they would like the next president to ring true. Mr. Roosevelt does not ring true. This has been the judgment of the great majority of Democratic insiders. It has now been confirmed by the urban masses of the east.

After this demonstration it is plain that if the convention in Chicago nominated Mr. Roosevelt, it would be taking tremendous risks. Until Tuesday the promoters of the governor's candidacy were urging that though he lacked the support of democratic leaders and of the democratic machine in the east he was such great popular strength that if nominated he would certainly be elected. That argument is now exploded.

It has now been made plain that Mr. Roosevelt's position is about as follows: he has popular strength in the south, in the northwest and probably on the Pacific coast. He has strength among the professional politicians in these sections plus some scattered professional following elsewhere among politicians who were looking for the bandwagon. But in the industrial East he has neither popular strength nor professional and he has the great weakness of having antagonized Al Smith's most devoted followers. Unless the Chicago convention thinks that he can carry every state west of the Mississippi and south of the Potomac and win with those electorally votes alone, they will take the risk of nominating him. Mr. Roosevelt's liabilities are great, and they will now grow greater as the convention approaches. For his defeat on Tuesday has justified the opposition and will increase it.

Those Democratic leaders who have been working for a convention of unattached delegates have proved to be the best judges of the situation. These are times when some one man so dominates the scene that his nomination can be settled in advance. But this year among the Democrats there has been no man who dominated the scene. Both Roosevelt and Smith are obviously sectional and factional candidates. The wisdom of the matter, therefore, is to recognize each as representative of an important element of the party, but to nominate neither of them since both divide the party. Each is entitled to a strong voice in the final selection. But unless the party wants to do better in its own ranks rather than against the republicans, it will now look for a candidate who is not from New York.

When nobody was opposing him, Governor Roosevelt's candidacy looked irresistible, and he is still doing excellently well wherever he runs alone. But in all the actual tests of his strength before the rank and file of the Democratic voters he has fared very badly indeed. There have been three such tests—in Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and California, and in all three he has made a poor showing. When one remembers that he has been in sight of the nomination for months, that he alone among the candidates has a nation-wide organization, that his name is Roosevelt, that he has sought to identify himself with the discontent of the people, his failure to show popular strength is remarkable. After all the preparation and effort he turns up in California with about 30 per cent of the vote.

That is clear evidence, it seems to me, that he is a weak candidate. I do not see how it can be denied that he is weak after three such practical tests in widely separated and varied states. After the Massachusetts primary explanations were offered that Massachusetts was loyal to Al Smith and that Roosevelt had to fight the state machine. But that did not explain why he made such a feeble run in Pennsylvania or why he could not carry the coal miners with him. I do not know what the local issues and talking points were in California Democrats as a national figure. For if he had had a real hold upon the popular imagination, if his actual strength were truly reflected in his paper strength that fact would have been registered in all the primaries. As matters stand now the opposition can fairly claim that in all the real tests Mr. Roosevelt has failed.

The fact that he grows weaker the longer his candidacy is considered will not astonish those who have observed closely his career in New York. When Governor Roosevelt was nominated and elected governor in 1928 he stood very high among the people of the state. The first shock came in his opening message to the legislature. It transpired there that he had got himself very much muddled up about the water power issue and was in fact flirting with the idea of a compromise which would have surrendered the principle for which Governor Smith had fought and to which he was pledged. So serious was his wabbling and confusion that only after severe attacks by New York World during the very first fortnight of his term as governor did he pull himself together and decide to stand firm on the power issue which ever since he has been making so much of.

This almost forgotten incident put many of his strongest supporters and admirers on their guard as to the quality of his intellectual processes and of his moral courage. They received their next shock when they discovered that in making political appointments in New York City he was taking his advice from the Curry-Walker machine and was in fact helping it with patronage to consolidate its victory over the honest and enlightened group around ex-Governor Smith who had for a time made even Tammany an agency of good government.

This disappointment turned into a sense of outrage when, as the tale of corruption in New York began to be unfolded, it appeared that Governor Roosevelt was preserving an icy calm in the face of Tammy's resistance to the exposure. Not only did the citizens fighting to expose corruption get no moral support from him, but in the actions he was compelled to take he leaned over backwards in order to give Tammy the benefit of every legalistic doubt. As this happened on the eve of his re-election in 1930, and as he received an immense vote from Tammy, there were a great many who concluded that Franklin D. Roosevelt could not be depended upon to risk anything when his ambition was at stake.

His calculations were correct. His re-election in 1930 by an enormous plurality made him a Presidential candidate.

Yet nobody who went through that election, or will now study the records, can doubt that the size of his plurality—and it was the size of the plurality that impressed the politicians in other states—was accidentally inflated. What happened was that Mr. Tuttle, the Republican candidate, announced himself a wet. The drys nominated a candidate of their own who took from Tuttle 184,000 dry Republican votes. Another large bloc of Republican drys refused to vote for Roosevelt so as to make sure that the wet Republican would be punished. Mr. Roosevelt would have been elected anyway. But he would not have been elected by such a record-breaking plurality.

The best proof of these assertions is to be found by comparing Al Smith's victory over Ogden Mills in 1928 with Roosevelt's over Tuttle in 1930. Roosevelt received 246,000 votes more than Smith, and Tuttle received 230,000 votes less than Mills. The presence of a dry Republican candidate and the defection of the drys from Tuttle go a long way to explain the difference. But for these extraneous factors Roosevelt would have won handsomely but not by a vote which amazed the nation.

What has been happening in the last few weeks is that the inflated strength of Roosevelt is being deflated as the voters learn more of the record in New York and take their own measure of the candidate. Those who have observed the progress of his candidacy since 1928, and are now opposed to Mr. Roosevelt's nomination, believe that if he is nominated at Chicago his inherent weaknesses will develop so rapidly during the campaign, that unless this is a year when any Democrat can be elected, Franklin Roosevelt will be defeated. The truth is that he has not a good enough grasp of issues nor the power of quick and firm decision to withstand the withering fire which the Republicans would subject him to.

The petition presented to the President and Congress by Captain Archibald H. Roosevelt on behalf of the National Economy Committee is by all odds the most impressive move yet made toward a real reduction in Federal expenditure. The petition strikes at the heart of the most expensive abuse in the Federal budget—at the enormous sums amounting, it is estimated, to about $450,000,000, which are being paid to veterans of the World War and the Spanish-American War who suffered no injury while in the service of the country.

These payments are about 10 per cent of the budget. They are equal to half the money which is to be raised by the laying of new taxes. They represent no moral obligation of the American people unless it is to be assumed that any man who ever wore a uniform is forever after entitled to special privileges. The petition is a demand that Congress return to the fundamental principle which the whole country approved when the war was in progress, that it undo the mass of legislation which in the course of ten years has fastened upon the country the necessity of enormous payments for men to whom it has no financial obligation whatever. Not only is this a true economy, but it is also something much more important—it is a challenge to a system of legalized privilege which is unjust and is corrupting both to public men and to the voters.

It was high time that a standard of resistance was raised by the veterans themselves. Now it has been done by Captain Roosevelt and his associates. We shall now see whether the American people, when they are offered strong and unimpeachable leadership, will rally to the defense of their rights and of the national integrity. Go window-shopping in your easy chair Relax for a moment and turn the pages of your newspaper. Let the advertisements help you to make your shopping plans. Do you need a dress, or a coat, or a hat? Perhaps a new blanket for a guest-room, some curtain material, or even a few new pots and pans for the kitchen? Of course, there are many things you want and need... but you may be letting many of them wait until you see in a store or window exactly what you have in mind, at an especially alluring price. Those are the very things you will find in advertisements. Attractive articles, new and improved ones, prices that make quick action an economy. Think how many steps it can save you to hunt out these things, and find them, in comfort at home! If a special opportunity is offered, you'll know about it in time. When new articles are announced, you can have them before they are the least bit out of date. And you can save hours of waiting and asking, miles of steps—and money too! These are but a few of the ways the advertisements in your newspaper can serve you. If you read them every day, you are sure to grow wise in the ways of purchasing... and saving.

the MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY is in love with BOB DUNBAR, millionaire's son, DENISE ACKROYD, society girl, tries to break up the attachment, and succeeds at a house party which she gives. ERNEST HEATH, Susan's employer, happens to be passing when Susan and Bob quarrel and takes her home. His wife threatens to sue for alienation of affections but changes her mind when JACK WARING, Heath's assistant, produces an incriminating letter. RAY FLANNERY, stenographer in the next office, confides to Susan her distress on hearing that "SICKY" WEBB has married another girl. Ben and Susan quarrel on Christmas eve over some flowers Heath sent her. Warning, meeting Denise, learns of her interference in Susan's affairs. Heath asks Susan to be his wife when his divorce becomes final. She hesitates. Her aunt undergoes a serious operation and Susan decides to marry him for the sake of security.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV

Susan's engagement had not been announced since neither she nor Heath desired the publicity but it was a definite engagement just the same. Aunt Jessie, home from the hospital, had been told of it. She had met Ernest. Heath and had grudgingly liked him although she had grumbled at the idea of their marriage.

"I never thought to see you marry a divorced man," Aunt Jessie said. "Especially someone so much older. Not that he isn't a fine man. Anyone with half an eye can see that. It just doesn't seem right."

The starchy nurse Heath had insisted upon providing for the comfortable bustled into the room then and Aunt Jessie fell silent. The plan was that on the following day Aunt Jessie was to go to Florida in the nurse's charge. The marriage would take place the following month.

"It don't seem right," Aunt Jessie went on when the nurse had disappeared. "To accept so much from a perfect stranger."

"He's not a perfect stranger," Susan said, laughing and then wondered if she had really spoken the truth. It had been strange and difficult for her to call her employer Ernest. She had finally managed it as she had learned also to like a perfect stranger. The quiet, aristocratic man whom she had promised to marry. There was no time for regret. The die had been cast. Heath had thought it unwise for her to continue working in the office so she was at home.

"Time for your nap," she reminded the invalid. Aunt Jessie grumbled. "I declare, I never expected to see the day when I'd sleep in the middle of the afternoon. I call it shiftless."

"You're a humping. You really like it," Susan told her, leaving to get her wraps. Heath was waiting to take her for a drive.

He looked at the girl with some dissatisfaction as she got into the car. "What on earth's the matter?"

"Nothing, except that I wish you'd let me give you that fur coat now instead of waiting until later," the man remarked.

Susan shook her head. On this point she was stubborn. She would take anything for Aunt Jessie but nothing for herself until she was slightly Heath's wife.

"I thought you'd go out to that little Spanish place for tea," he said.

"That would be nice, I'd like that," she assured him. The luxury and care with which he surrounded her was almost suffocating. Was she warm enough? Why had she worn those thin shoes? Susan appreciated the solicitude, at the same time finding it a little trying. Young men were not like this she reminded herself. Young men were care-free and selfish and arrogant.

"What are you thinking of? You look as if you were miles away." So instead of smiling at him, "Oh, of how good you are to me." There! She had pleased him and with so little. She was almost ashamed. It was so easy to make him happy. She divined something of his former loneliness.

The drive was longer than Susan had expected and it was dark when at last they returned to the city. It had been a clear, cold, sunny day, and a faint light still lingered on the lake. On sudden impulse Susan said, "Let's walk along the lake walk."

"She wanted quite unnecessarily to escape from the warm, luxurious car and feel the cool wind on her cheeks. Heath told Simon to wait for them at the turn of the road."

"It's lovely here, isn't it?" breathed the girl. She leaned against the parapet, looking down at the water.

"Not as much so as some of the places you and I are going to see soon," the man reminded her. She shivered involuntarily. Instantly he was all solicitude.

"You're cold. I knew you would be. We'd better go back to the car."

"No, it's not that," she protested. "It's only that I feel a little frightened sometimes. It has all worked out too smoothly. It seems as though something must be bound to happen."

"Nonsense." His reassurance was robust. "You're just fanciful, that's all."

"Maybe I am. But had it been fancy, Susan wondered, that had caused her to imagine the tall figure strolling past the house several nights when she had been saying good-by to Heath? Looked strangely like Ben? Somehow the idea had made her uneasy. She had refused to see Ben since Christmas eve when he had outrageously kissed her.

"What's that?" she asked fearfully, glancing over her shoulder. "Nothing at all. Just the wind in the branches."

"It sounded like someone running." She looked back along the wind-swept esplanade. "Perhaps we had better go."

"Nothing at all. Just the wind in the branches."

"Perhaps we had better go."

They began to walk briskly in

REG'LAR FELLERS

the direction from which they had come. Susan flung another anxious glance over her shoulder. Her nerves were certainly in a bad state. She could have sworn she had seen the shadow of a figure behind that oak tree.

She heard the whine of something past her ear. Heath grasped her arm roughly and began to run. "What's the matter?" she panted, flying along beside him. "Nothing, nothing! Only come along."

The footfalls behind them were no longer imaginary. They were real. That strange, whining sound came again and Susan recognized it for what it was—the zoom of a bullet! She felt her companion sway against her.

"What is it?" she cried. "Something warm trickled inside her glove. 'You're hurt!'"

"It's nothing. Some fanatic has turned sniper," Heath gasped. They could see the car only a few feet ahead. Heath stumbled and fell and Susan, through a roaring in her ears, heard a cry. She wheeled. The street light glimmering, lighted the nightmare before her. There was Heath, unconscious at her feet. There was Ben, hatless beneath the trees, turning a bright barreled object upon himself.

"Stop it, you fool! Stop it!" It was her own voice but it sounded hoarse and strange. Ben lay grotesquely like a fallen marionette. Simon came running and lifted his employer.

"It's nothing. He only got me in the arm," Heath muttered. "I'll be all right. They helped him to the car. Oddly enough there were no spectators for this little drama."

Susan tried to protest. Calmly

the park at this hour at this particular place was deserted.

"Who is the fool?" Heath demanded in a low, angry voice. "I know him," Susan murmured. "I saw him for an instant under the light. It's a boy I used to see."

Heath glanced at her shrewdly. He knitted his brows for a moment, debating. Then he ordered Simon sharply. "Better drag the young idiot in here. We must hush this up at all costs."

Susan tried to protest. Calmly

Heath ordered her to get into the front seat beside the chauffeur. His left arm hanging at his side, he managed to help Simon drag the limp figure of the boy into the car.

"Drive to Dr. Blake's in Bank street," he told Simon fiercely. "The young fool's still alive, thank Heaven, although he doesn't deserve to be."

Susan put throbbing hands to her temples. The horror of the situation overwhelmed her. Surely she would wake, and find she had been dreaming.

Dr. Blake's home had a drive way and a service door opening directly upon that. No one molested them or questioned them as they lifted the unconscious figure and carried it inside.

"You wait here," Heath told Susan. "I don't want you mixed up in this." He looked older, sterner. "Your arm," she flattered. On she had not meant to bring trouble to him!

"It's all right. Blake will attend to it in a few minutes. Don't worry. It's lucky this happened."

 Susan asked timidly, "You'll telephone me later and let me know what happens?"
 "Of course."
 She had never liked him as much as she did at that moment. She leaned toward him and said, softly and hurriedly, "This boy hasn't any claim on me."
 Her face lighted, but he said rather brusquely, "You didn't need to tell me, I knew it."
 "Will he live?" asked Susan, fearfully.
 Heath shrugged.
 "Blake says he doesn't know." (To Be Continued)

Joe Presents Details Of Changing A Tire

In this short narrative I shall try to set forth a few essential steps on how to change an automobile tire!
 First, upon hearing the peculiar sound of "bump," "bump," "bump," one should thrust his head out of the car and utter a few "magic" words that I shan't repeat here. However, every car owner will probably know these magic words. Then one should proceed to bump his head on the top of the car door upon trying to pull the seat out in order to get the necessary tools with which to change the tire.
 After this short experience one should begin taking the deflated tire off by trying to unscrew the nuts out and rusted nuts on the wheel. After smashing several fingers, pull the tire off with much effort, then sprawl all over the ground with the tire on top of you. Place the spare tire on the wheel and find much to your surprise, that all of the nuts but one screw on perfectly.
 Work thirty minutes more with this one nut with many "magic" words as a help, then take the

BELL EDUCATION

Students have the wrong conception of education; we study only when in class, only during the time of a certain subject. In other words we think the process of education is governed by a bell. To be more specific, we go to class at 9:15 o'clock to study English, and from then until 10 o'clock we try, some of us, to concentrate on that subject. At the beginning of the next period the same routine is followed in a history class; our eyes can see no further benefits of that particular subject than during the regular class period. When a bell rings we forget about that previous class and surge in and enter of the crowd in the hall, enter our next room and all former instructions of English, history, Latin, physics and so forth are forgotten until the following day. Although some actual effort is rendered in class room to learn a subject, if no additional effort is expended, little knowledge will be received.
 The class room is only a place of instruction and reviewing; the teacher studies with us and tries to make the lesson clearer. The real value of any subject, literary or scientific, comes to us when and only when we reconcile ourselves to get back of the pages, so to speak. If 45 minutes or one hour were all we spend each day, no success will likely be ours. Men who have become famous have done so by laboring every possible moment on a certain line or profession. And so it is with this; the more we put into a subject, not during the allotted time of class, but every chance we get, the more we receive. That odd saying, "you get out just what you put into something" certainly is true; especially is it true in this problem of education. We will feel better if we study at home or elsewhere and then come to class, fully prepared to any test that the instructor might give. Such practice will become a habit, and such a habit might lead up to the profession we intend to follow long after we leave high school and college.

No Liquor Is Food Declares Speaker Here

Dr. James Crain Before Thursday School Assembly
 Mr. B. D. Sartin of Wichita Falls, Dr. James Crain of Indianapolis, Indiana, and Rev. D. R. Lindley were the speakers in an assembly held last Thursday.
 Dr. Crain spoke on the eighteenth amendment, what makes it necessary, and the purpose for which the amendment was made.
 "The first phase of alcohol that I wish to take up is bacteria in the solution," Dr. Crain stated. "Fermentation ceases at 12 per cent and 14 per cent because the bacteria cannot live in something of their own producing. What even bacteria can not live in, people drink. By the method devised by an ancient chemist, alcohol can be obtained from any plant juices. When you take alcohol in your body, do you know what happens? There are a number of ways of taking it into the body. Either is a form of alcohol; the ether enters the blood, goes to the cortex of the brain where it begins its process of paralysis. This is the exact same state of one 'dead drunk.' When you drink alcohol, the result occurs as when you take ether, paralyzing the brain. No liquor is a food, for it does not build back the energy it takes out. The first thing alcohol does to the human brain is to let down the bars. It attacks religion, education, and your sense of decency, discretion, well-being, and self-criticism. If you take a teaspoonful of alcohol the paralyzing process begins. It attacks the sense of skill. One of the paralyzing effects of alcohol is on the eyes, making one see double. Everything that culture, civilization, and education has done for you can be erased by the poison of alcohol. If civilization is to live, we must control use of liquor until we get a better way of controlling it, we should stand by what we have, the Eighteenth Amendment."

Fisher Speaks For Assembly

Evangelist Lester Fisher of the Church of Christ spoke on "The Family of Success" in the regular chapel program held last Wednesday.
 According to Mr. Fisher, "The father of the family of success is work. You must get acquainted with him if you wish to scale the mountain tops of success. 'Ambition is the mother of the family; people who do not have ambition will never be successful. The eldest son in the family is 'Common Sense.' When you graduate from college, you will meet practical problems and you must meet them practically. The elder girl is 'Character.' If you lose your character, you lose everything. It is the most important gift you possess. 'Vision' it takes vision to accomplish anything. Build air castles. We need determination and will power if we ever achieve success. Let nothing discourage you, never give up. Let that be your motto, let it be imbedded in your heart. There are thorns on the pathway of life as well as roses, but let us never be discouraged, for behind every cloud there is a silver lining. Faith and thoroughness are two great steps along the pathway of life. 'Opportunity' comes along and if a man is prepared he may snatch it for it comes only once. No man is used as he prepared himself to be used. Use opportunity as a step up the mountain of success."

CAMPUS CHATTER

By MATTIE SATTERWHITE
 There is at least one person left in Big Spring that has a car in good condition and with five good tires. The typing team and sponsor took Mr. Matthews' car to Austin and didn't have as much as a flat on the round trip. Maybe since he is a teacher, that that accounts for it all, but in that case, he is an exception to all rules.

If case you wondered what was the call for that satisfied expression on Laura Belle Underwood and Gertrude Martin's faces Monday morning; well, the best we can hear is the fact that they had company from Sweetwater Sunday and seemed quite proud of the fact. However, Edythe Ford did not appear with such a satisfied expression, and we learned that she had sat on Louise Flower's piano bench and broken it to pieces, so she was all worried.

Paul Warren visited the crazy house while in Austin and it seems that he got cornered off and had to give the lady flowers and promise to come back in just a minute before she would cease explaining her plans to him and permit him to leave. Paul says that she has firmly resolved to "whip the navy" and was anxious for him to voice his approval or disapproval of her plans.

In case you see any of these students down on their knees or with that pleading expression in their eyes, you can instantly imagine what it is all about. They are begging a senior not to send them a graduation announcement, because they know only too well what it means. And that places the seniors in a senior's position, because those invitations are ordered and now no one wants to receive one of them. There are only two steps to choose from: Send two to a freshman or make new friends and don't tell them you're graduating this year. Seemingly, some of the girls have already substituted some poor out of town people that don't know until they receive the invitation.

Fisher Speaks For Assembly

Evangelist Lester Fisher of the Church of Christ spoke on "The Family of Success" in the regular chapel program held last Wednesday.
 According to Mr. Fisher, "The father of the family of success is work. You must get acquainted with him if you wish to scale the mountain tops of success. 'Ambition is the mother of the family; people who do not have ambition will never be successful. The eldest son in the family is 'Common Sense.' When you graduate from college, you will meet practical problems and you must meet them practically. The elder girl is 'Character.' If you lose your character, you lose everything. It is the most important gift you possess. 'Vision' it takes vision to accomplish anything. Build air castles. We need determination and will power if we ever achieve success. Let nothing discourage you, never give up. Let that be your motto, let it be imbedded in your heart. There are thorns on the pathway of life as well as roses, but let us never be discouraged, for behind every cloud there is a silver lining. Faith and thoroughness are two great steps along the pathway of life. 'Opportunity' comes along and if a man is prepared he may snatch it for it comes only once. No man is used as he prepared himself to be used. Use opportunity as a step up the mountain of success."

Typing Team Returns Home

Twenty-Eight Towns Of State Represented In Contest
 The Big Spring High School Typing Team returned from Austin Sunday night, where two of its members, Josephine Dabney and Grady Harland, participated in the state interscholastic typing tournament.

There were 38 contestants in the tournament. The two highest placed went to Abilene High School, with 65 and 59 net words per minute. The third place went to Humble High School, with 58 net words. Josephine averaged 48 net, and Grady averaged 32 net. The lowest place in the contest was 12 net words per minute. There were 23 towns in Texas represented in the contest, some of them having two or three representatives.

Those making the trip from Big Spring High School were Josephine Dabney, Grady Harland, Paul Warren, and Mrs. W. O. Low, instructor.
 "Though our entrance did not win a high place," said Mrs. Low, "I feel that all of the students have greatly profited from the contest, and from the trip. We visited and were conducted through the State school for the blind, State School for the Deaf, State insane Asylum, and the State Cemetery, and State Capitol."

Hi-Y Club Is Enlarged By 13 Members

Initiation Held With Aid Of Various Effective Weapons
 Thirteen new members were initiated into the local Hi-Y Club Tuesday night at the high school. The enrollment of the club has not reached its maximum and the present membership is divided almost equally between the various classes. This was the second initiation this year for this club, but the present ones will fill the vacancies for next year and were elected that work could be taken up at the beginning of school.

Boys were ushered in and given a serious talk while sitting in an electrically fitted chair, given oysters to consume and lightly tapped with boards and many other things. The new members today were the signs of the Hi-Y on their foreheads.

Tracy Wood Leads Latin Club Session

The Latin Club held its regular monthly meeting Tuesday. Tracy Wood was in charge of the program. Several entertaining Latin games were played. The name of a famous Roman character was pinned on the back of each member, who guessed the name with the help of suggestions made by the other members. Slips of paper on which were written the principle parts of verbs were distributed among the members. The members matched the slips, fitted together the principal parts until the verbs were completed. "Gaudemus legitur," a Latin song, was sung. The following members were present: Tracy Wood, Dorothy LeFevre, Hugh Gilliam, Margaret McDonald and Ruth Mellinger.

Dr. Dunno's High School ANSWERS

(Editor's Note: In the Senior Edition of the Wheel next week, Doctor Dunno will conclude his question answering for the year. He will endeavor to answer all questions submitted, signed, since that will be his last chance. Will everyone please submit every question he wants answered by next Tuesday?)
 Do L. A. and R. N. love one another, will they ever get married? J. N. Will L. A. and I ever make up, if so when? R. N.
 You've submitted this question before, but never indicated who L. A. and R. N. are. Lala Ashley vehemently disclaims that the L. A. is she. No one knows of whom you speak. If you are sincere in the question, submit it again, indicating L. A. and R. N. by name. If this, however, is your idea of a practical joke, you'll wind up at Terrell anyhow.
 Why did Erin Ely pretend that the diamond she was wearing was her's, when it was her boy friend's sister's ring? R. M. R.
 How does it feel to be catty?
 Polly Thomas looked kinda happy Friday night. Was it because she was with W. D. or because she likes to dance? S. M. N.
 Walter asked her first; she could have turned him down.
 Why does Jewel like James Smith so well? D. J.
 She just can't resist his so enthusiastic personal magnetism—or just the opposite.
 Why has Esther Earley decided to go steady with a certain young man? I certainly would like to know. E. A.
 Don't get jealous, Eugene. If you could dance like he does, maybe you'd get a break, too. Take a tip from an old timer.
 Why doesn't someone tell J. C. D. that bustles are out of date? A. M. E.
 He'd only want to know what date.
 Is E. F. G. as good as she seems? J. C. D.
 Absolutely not; there's a limit to possibilities, even in this day of miracles.
 Why doesn't L. F. try Life Buoy for his feet? I've heard that it is good for his trouble. Studes of B. S. H. S.
 "His best friend wouldn't tell him, and his worst enemy doesn't hint to him."
 If you saw Walter Bunker climbing a tree, what would he remember off? H. W.
 He wouldn't have to be climbing a tree to remind me of the evolution theory. He's direct proof for Darwinians, even sitting still.
 How come Dot and Joe to know that Dee and the Barber brothers never go to church? Do they? D. M.
 They watched the boys. Yes, they have.
 Does M. E. J. chew gum for her health? J. K.
 She doesn't have to chew it for her health. It's a habit.
 How does a girl get a chance at Rick? Ploax tell me if it is hopeless for another girl to care for him? A. Junior.
 If he wanted to go with another girl, he'd do it right away.
 Why is Mary L. Gilmour so happy lately? L. R.
 She got a break at last.
 Why does Billie Frances like brown Ford sedans? Anyone.
 Willard drives one; why shouldn't she?
 Why does Jane Tinsley chase after Rick? C. M.
 He's not only the "handsome" boy in H. S., but she wants her (am, theme, or whatever he's snatched, back.
 Why does Elizabeth Thompson always say "Billy" to a certain person? F. S.
 It shows will power and restraint. She'd like to call that person a worse name, usually.
 What is an odoriferous crankcase? L. L.
 A pipe, when it smells unpleasant. To prevent smoke, Mr. Walter Raleigh—"And it's milder."
 Why is a door knob? J. N. and L. H.
 A smart man long ago found that the simplest way to operate a portal was with a catch and an exterior lever. Door: "The movable hinged or sliding frame or barrier by which an entrance, as into a house, may be closed." Knob: "A rounded protuberance-like ornament or handle, usually upon doors." Hence: "Door Knob."

Dramatic Club Presents Play Friday Night

Seniors Members Given Principal Roles For Comedy
 The Dramatic Club will present a three-act comedy, "Anne What's Her Name"—in the high school auditorium at 8:15 p. m., Friday. The admission will be twenty-five cents for all persons. This play will feature senior members. A very able cast has been selected. The following are in the play: Anthony Wheat (Tony), a victim of circumstances—Eudaea Heasley Brooks, his valet, faithful to the end—Jarrell Pickle. Marjorie, a very modern young woman—Katherine Anthony. Aunt Julia, the Judge's sister-in-law—Edythe Ford. Barbara, a flapper who flaps—Jane Tinsley. Mooney, the temperamental maid, with nerves—Georgia Belle Fleeman. Willie Peabody, the boy from next door—John Nell. Doran, a plain-clothes detective—Carlton Coburn. Gram's, aged 82, but with young ideas—Elinora Guthrie. Louise Byers, her companion—Doris Smith. Judge Bunby, the head of the house—Howard Whitehead. Doctor Aked, a friend of the family—Leonard Van Open. Nancy Brown, the girl from Rosedale—Leola Moffett. Ebenezer Whittle, the Judge's nephew—Walter Bunker. Mrs. Ebenezer Whittle, looking for Ebenezer—Virginia Francis. Tickets are on sale now and can be secured from any member of the Dramatic Club.

Possession Still Is Nine Points Of Law Test Shows

"Possession is nine points of the law." This ancient axiom may, or may not, be held true by the interpreters of the law. However, it settled a dispute in school the other day, as few, if any, disputes here. Gentry was called upon to decide the ownership of an orange colored fountain pen, ownership being disputed by Howard Whitehead and Jake Pickle. Upon the top of the pen were carved the initials, J. P. As a rule, this would have been a point in favor of Pickle. However, Whitehead showed where previous initials had been whittled off, before the carving of the J. P.
 The arbitrator then called upon material and character witnesses. Their evidence conflicted and threw no more light upon the matter, than to show that both of the claimants had had possession of the pen for a time before the dispute. Both had carved upon the pen, also. In the face of such conflicting evidence, our local Solomon became greatly perplexed.
 Pickle and Whitehead both told a very creditable story about the pen. Nothing in their manner belied their statements. The witnesses on one side equaled the number upon the other side. Apparently both had secured the pen and had merely loaned it to the other one.
 As time was passing, Mr. Gentry rendered a memorable decision. He handed the pen to Pickle and opined, "Possession is nine points of the law." Strangely enough both agreed to the plan; Pickle, because he held the pen, and Whitehead, because his brain was busy.
 When the principals and witnesses had reached the auditorium, where play rehearsal was being held, Whitehead snatched the pen from Pickle and tossed it to his benchman, Harris. A struggle and chase ensued, climaxing when someone tossed the pen up into the balcony, by mistake. With incredible celerity Pickle and Whitehead each shined up a column. A bare second's start ahead of Pickle enabled Whitehead to reach the pen first. Then Pickle realized that he had really lost. A game loser, he dismissed the loss of the pen from his mind and entered a conversation upon the stage. Quiet had once more been restored, for "possession is nine points of the law."

SPORTS ON PARADE
By CURTIS BISHOP

Ahlens Christian College won the track championship of the T.I.A.A. this year by default. The Wildcats have won it every year since 1927, and might have won the Southwest Conference as well had they been eligible for competition. This year Daniel Baker, usually strong, cancelled further engagements and McMurry, Sul Ross, West Texas, and Texas A and I do not have teams. So it looks as if Coach Weems must point his charges for the intercollegiate, where they might win one of the relay events. Worth Watkins, if he equals his mark at College Station some two-weeks ago, will be a threat in the high jump.

Officers of the council were installed at the Tuesday meeting and reports were heard from the city P.-T. A. associations.

Theron Hicks, the southpaw golfer, has decided that from now on all of his challenge matches for the local ladder will be twosome affairs. It seems that Hicks opened the year as ranking No. 3 on the local ladder. Then Oble Bristow, Fred Stephens, L. Hicks experienced an off day and dropped three places in one afternoon, which is dropping fast enough we must say.

Satterwhite Personally Open Race For State Office

Charges Terrill Has Been Extravagant As Chairman

(WORTHAM (Sp))—The Railroad Commission offers perhaps a greater opportunity to render a useful service to the people of Texas than any other department in our state government. Not even the high office of governor presents a larger field of public service. There is hardly a person in Texas who is not interested in matters which come under the jurisdiction of the Railroad Commission, said Lee Satterwhite in the local Tabernacle here Tuesday in his first speech for Railroad Commissioner.

Petroleum
"So rapidly were they developing the output of petroleum that it became necessary for the State of Texas to promulgate methods of conservation that would prevent undue waste of this useful commodity," continued Mr. Satterwhite. "The Legislature, noting the reckless and uncontrolled methods of development were depriving royalty holders of the equitable share under their lands, undertook by law to remedy this condition. Suppose that we had no conservation laws. The result, of course, would be that in a short time the entire petroleum industry would be in the hands of a few persons, and I might say, in spite of all the efforts we have made to the present time, this is almost the case."

Says Terrill Failed.
Mr. Satterwhite charged procrastination and extravagance in the administration of the duties and responsibilities of the Gas Utility division of the commission.

Expensive Cars.
In making specific charges, Mr. Satterwhite cited the purchase of the more expensive types of cars for the traveling force of the railroad commission; the paying of exorbitant prices for certain kinds of work; and the increase by $50,000 of the appropriation for use in revaluation work. He also mentioned the annual expense account for traveling. He found it rather interesting that so many hearings were held at places and times of importance such as the Stock Show at Fort Worth, and the Beauty Show at Galveston. Mr. Satterwhite was definite in his denunciation of campaigning by state employed men. He stated that he knew he was bucking a political machine, but that he was leaving the choice of the voters to their better judgment.

Lee C. Durst To Be Buried At Stanton
Funeral services for Lee A. Durst, who died in the W. O. W. hospital in San Antonio, were to be held at Stanton at 10 a. m. Thursday with burial beside the grave of his wife and two daughters. The body was received here Wednesday morning by the Charles Eberly Funeral home. A daughter and son-in-law were en route from San Antonio.
