into gridiron performers of the first rank.

Coach Jim Reese, at a recent banquet for the Colorado team, said: "We have something to pride in reflecting back on the last season—not over a winning record but in the spirit of good losers."

Of the twenty-two players Reese had on his squad, fifteen are to be back as a nucleus about which the next Wolf squad will be constructed.

Reese lettered the following players: Priestler, Ed Morrison, Joe Cox, Mumpsie Wallace, Red Moop Morrison, Pete Warren, Joe Cooper, Restal Porter, Julius Sniveley, George Kiker, manager, Buster Aycock and Roy Miller.

It is rumored that Colorado may have a lighted grid next fall.

Coach Reese was not any too happy at prospects of being cast into the same Class B district with Lamesa.

Service Team Wins Handily

Vie Cook of the Corpus Christi Caller-Times after playing with Jimmy Kitts, coach of the Rice Owls, makes the statement that another school is angling for Kitts' services.

Why is it that Big Spring fans take such little interest in basketball that teams can hardly get rides to tournaments?

Jess Rodgers, who ever now and then scribbles in the Herald Reporter, was a visitor here today.

Devils Win 1st Game By Default

The Reagan county high school from Big Lake is the defending champion. The Owls won from Fort Stockton last year.

Among the favorites in the meet are Iraan, Odessa, Big Lake and Pecos. Marlin Hayhurst, coach of the McCamey high school Badgers, will be the tournament referee.

The bracket places the following games in the first round. Rankin vs. Brownfield, Kernitt vs. Big Lake (Reagan county high school), Crane vs. Forsan, Monahan vs. Iraan, Big Spring won by default over Barstow, Fort Stockton vs. Odessa, Wink vs. Andrews, Midland vs. Pecos, McCamey vs. Ozona.

The Big Spring Devils will play the winner of the Crane-Forsan game Saturday.

Locals Pile Up Easy 40-24 Victory

Big Spring Steers, out for practice only a week, won their first game of the season at Colorado Thursday night by administering a 40 to 24 licking to Blackwell in the first round of the Colorado invitation basketball tournament.

The locals will meet Tuscola tonight. Tuscola, rated an even chance to defeat the Herd, won over Post by default. They have a fine record of early season triumphs and a smooth cliking club that has placed them in the "dark horse" class.

The Steers swept into an early lead against Blackwell and their only threat was fouls. Referee Dalton Hill called a close game, giving the Big Springers seventeen fouls.

Cochran Brown played all ten of his players and practically all managed to tally. Cordill led in scoring with fourteen points.

Cosden To Play At Angelo Tomorrow

By HANK HART The Cosden Oilers, recent victors over the powerful Christoval Bats, will journey to San Angelo Saturday to do battle with the Ellis Parts five, members of the city league in that city.

The locals have met defeat only once this season, that a two point decision by Christoval on the latter's own court. Henninger will take both teams and will be at full strength from the starting gun.

"Jasper Jack" Smith will start at forward along with Jake Morrison, "Caruso" West will work the spot position, while "Broadway Phil" Smith will handle the center. "Ice Wagon" Townsend, "Dandy Dave" Hooper, "Chasty" White, "Mileaway" Baker, "Sarge" Bruce will also make the trip.

The Ellis Parts best bet to trip the high flying Oilers will be D. D. Askew, who has proved tough to the Angelo City league exposition all season. Askew will lead the Ellis attack at a forward post along with Baker.

C. Weatherford will draw theumping assistance while F. Askew and R. Weatherford complete the Ellis lineup at the guard positions. Reserves are Lander, forward; Dewees, center; and Jones, guard.

The Angelo team recently suffered a defeat administered by the Varsity quintet, kingspins of the Angelo City league.

D. Askew tried in vain to turn the advantages to the side of the Oilers, but did not take high point honors for the evening with twelve points.

Among the Oilers' victims this season are Klondike, Bill Tate's Foreman Drillers, the local Dits Bakers, and Christoval.

Singing Horsemen To Render Remarkable Program Jan. 21

The Singing Horsemen of the Steppes, those tall, stalwart singers known as the Don Cossack Male Chorus, will give one of their remarkable programs of Russian music at the Municipal Auditorium on Monday evening, January 21, under auspices of the Ray E. Fuller post Veterans of Foreign Wars.

These singers, on their first visit to this country, electrified the musical world. They were a sensation. Irving Well, in the N. Y. Evening Journal, considered their singing "the most sensationally striking ensemble singing New York has ever heard."

"Not within memory has a male chorus so awayed a Pittsburgh audience as these former officers of the Imperial Russian army," writes Ralph Lawando in the Pittsburg Press.

"Nothing quite as remarkable as the Don Cossacks has visited Cincinnati," echoes the Cincinnati Enquirer.

The program they present is divided into three parts. The first group is devoted to church music by Gretschaginoff, Tchaikoway, and others. The next two groups hold what to many are the gems of the program—the beautiful and haunting folk melodies of Russia—songs of the Ukraine, of the Don, of the Don had ever heard. This body of 35 voices," he continued, "trained to a hair-trigger perfection, is bound to be one of the most notable importations of the season."

Such is the drama of this song that you seem to see the bent forms of the bare-footed peasants as they trudge along the muddy banks of the Volga, dragging the heavy barges through the shallow waters.

The final group of songs leads up to a climax of soldier songs, Cossack songs punctuated with shrill calls, barbaric yells and frenzied dancing that communicates their thrill to the already enthusiastic audience.

Until one has heard these men in their rendering of this popular song, one cannot say he has really heard it. Like a whisper, the dulcet cry "Ay-ookh-nem" steals upon the air. Near and nearer the sound approaches, then fades again into the distance.

Royal Neighbors Install New Officers For Coming Year

Mrs. D. S. Orr And Mrs. Robinson In Charge Of Impressive Installation Ceremony

The Blue Mountain camp of Royal Neighbors of America met for installation of officers Thursday afternoon with Mrs. D. S. Orr as installing officer and Mrs. T. J. A. Robinson as ceremonial marshal. It was an impressive ceremony.

Mrs. William Gage was installed as orator.

Others taking part in the ceremony were: Mrs. D. H. Petty, past orator; Mrs. C. B. Parker, vice orator; Miss Kiydie Ballard, chancellor; Mrs. Shelby Hall, recorder; Mrs. T. J. Byers, receiver; Mrs. J. E. Pond, marshal; Mrs. L. C. Alton, assistant marshal; Mrs. L. S. Bonner, inner sentinel; Mrs. D. S. Orr, outer sentinel; Mrs. H. C. Streety, musician; Mrs. A. A. McElrath, assistant musician; Mrs. L. L. Bugg, juvenile director; Miss Alta Mae Gage, assistant director; Mrs. Frank Early, flag bearer.
Managers, Mmes. Claud Wright, Gordon Buchanan, L. L. Bugg; the five graces, Mmes. Halbrook, ated by Mr. Jones. He has been given assurance that sponsors and friends of the new power and water control development program will warmly support similar undertakings for the West Texas tributaries and upper reaches of the river. If power development is found feasible as a phase of the development, that also will be given the full support of residents of the lower district.

Mr. Jones returns to the 44th legislature. He, more than any other individual, was responsible for creation of the Lower Colorado river authority at the last called session of the 43rd legislature. Authors and sponsors of the bill had secured passage in both houses. He was on the conference committee. Only two house conferees had signed the bill. Mr. Jones supported the Dean amendment, giving irrigation and municipal users new preferences in use of water. That was put in and then, despite the continued opposition of several house members, who insisted the fight was one on behalf West Texas, he signed the report and thus permitted the bill to come before the two branches of the legislature for final adoption.

The law provides that three members of the state board of education were to be appointed as of Jan. 1. Governor Ferguson has not so far made the nominations. This may, but does not necessarily mean she will let them go over for appointment by her successor, as she could wait and send the names to the senate after the legislature convenes as her first announcement.

The law, designed to keep the board of education out of politics, provides the retiring governor shall name members. But two years ago, a fight on the Sterling appointees defeated two for confirmation, giving Mrs. Ferguson two then. If she names three now, her appointees will constitute a majority of the board.

A month ago State Auditor George E. Simpson made public a "partial audit" of the highway department, containing about 100 criticisms of detail or procedure.

Immediately, the highway commission ordered its auditors and department heads to compile data dealing with each matter criticized. That was completed. After Jan. 1, the state auditor's department sent at least a dozen account-

TEXAS TOPICS

By Raymond Brooks

Rep. H. O. Jones of Runnels county, West Texas who made the Colorado river authority a fact by giving his signature to make a majority conference committee report possible has announced the people of the upper reaches of the Colorado watershed will follow through for conservation development similar to the objectives of the authority's district.
Water control and irrigation projects already are being projected in the upper watershed, Mr. Jones said and federal financing similar to that allotted the lower Colorado development will be sought.
Creation of one or more districts in the upper river, similar to the lower Colorado authority is advo-ants back to the department, where they have been working strenuously in a review of the old figures and the accounts generally of the department.

Auditor Simpson's term expires early in the spring.

The two former senators who served in the past house of representatives retired from office, neither making a race for re-election. These members are former Sen. F. C. Weinst of Seguin and former Sen. T. H. McGregor of Austin.

As an incident, their nominal titles are "senator". But while they held house membership to avoid confusion, they reverted to the title of "representative". Now, out of the house they return to their former titles of senator. These titles, like those of a governor or court judge, stay with a man after his public office-holding is over.

Tac L. Gubbels, landscape engineer of the highway department, in public speeches has objected strenuously to the term "highway beautification."
"It is a silly, ridiculous phrase," creating prejudice against the work, he said.

Roadside improvement is a better term," he said. His work, he has pointed out, means much more than planting shrubs and flowers along the roads. One of the chief phases of work has been building small turn-out parks for the convenience of motorists.

NEW CONGRESS STARTS HUGE LAW-MAKING TASK

This was the rostrum scene as the seventy-fourth congress—the second "new deal" congress—convened for its admittedly important task of enacting new legislation to deal with unemployment relief and multitudinous other vital problems. (Associated Press Photo)

ANOTHER PARTY FOR CHILDHOOD

The presidential birthday party, by which a million dollars was raised last year for the benefit of infantile paralysis sufferers, will be repeated in January—but on a different basis so far as the distribution of funds is concerned. Last year, when the million dollar check was turned over to President Roosevelt, it was allocated in this way: a $160,000 fund for research; a $360,000 fund to develop the Warm Springs institution which the president is interested; the remainder for building up the Warm Springs Foundation as a sort of head for America's work in infantile paralysis relief.

to it can be banished. Also, there is recognition that local facilities should be built up to take care of those infantile paralytic sufferers who can not go to the Georgia institution. Every community has these problems and while the work is now supported to some extent in most cities, it is difficult to find the funds in the present state of municipal finances.

So this year, whatever is raised will be divided, 70 per cent to the local communities that are aiding infantile paralysis sufferers and 30 per cent to research. None will go to the Warm Springs Foundation, since its sufferers who can not go to Georgia, to finance another blow by which he hopes to rid this country of the disease that cripples childhood.

THE "WIZARD OF OZ" BECOMES THE SERVANT OF CHILDHOOD

A good many children got "Wizard of Oz" books for Christmas. That has been happening every year, and it will probably go on happening for a long time to come. These Oz books have become American classic, and their readers are numbered in astronomical figures by now.

It is interesting, therefore, to discover that the late L. Frank Baum, their author, wrote them somewhat against his will while trying to do something else. James Thurber recently told all about Mr. Baum in "The New Republic."

It was this writer's great ambition to write distinctively American fairy tales. He wanted no more of ogres, enchanted princesses, fairies, and malicious dwarfs;

he planned to discover the never-never land right in the middle of Chicago, or some other equally unlikely place, and he had written some twenty books when, in his forties, he wrote "The Wizard of Oz."

He wrote this one more or less as a stunt. There is nothing especially American about it, except that Dorothy, the little girl who goes wandering through the land of the Scarecrow and the Tin Woodman, comes from Kansas. Having finished it, Mr. Baum sought to return to the task of becoming an American Hans Christian Andersen.

But at this point the children of America stepped in. They liked "The Wizard of Oz," and they began pelting him with letters demanding that he write more about this marvelous fairyland. After getting some thousands of letters, Baum gave in and wrote a sequel. Once more he tried to go back to his chosen field and once more the children showered letters on him.

The upshot was that he had to keep on writing Oz books until he died—and then the books remained so popular that another writer was engaged to keep his stream flowing, so that new Oz books are still coming out.

Here, in miniature, is an excellent sample of the sort of thing that can happen to a man who creates something alive. It takes possession of him. He ceases to be his own master.

Mr. Baum was never a free agent after he had turned his famous Wizard loose among the children. He started something that was bigger than he was.

The ambitious youth who hopes to become a writer might be warned. To write a book is to dally with a potent enchantment. It may work better than you expect—and, if it does, you are forever afterward at the mercy of someone that you yourself invented!

ECONOMICS ALONE CAN NOT END THE SEARCH FOR HAPPINESS

We have a way of talking these days as if all that stood between the human race and complete earthly happiness were a faulty economic system. It is only natural that we should talk that way, because the depression has caused some very tragic things to happen and they aren't quickly forgotten.

But every now and then we get a pathetic little reminder that the quest for happiness isn't going to be solved too easily.

Even after we find a way of banishing hunger and want from the earth forever, there will still be those sad, life-wrecking accidents that people blunder into when they try to solve the personal equations that human society presents.

These things have nothing to do with unemployment or the price of wheat; they happened to people back in the days of the pyramids, and they probably will keep on happening after the last stone has been removed from the bread-winner's path.

That recent case of the aviator and the girl parachute jumper is an illustration.

The aviator was a young man who flew a ship on a commercial line in the east. The girl knew him and his wife—had, in fact, worked at one time as their maid.

The aviator and his wife separated and planned to get a divorce; he and the parachute jumper became sweethearts.

Somehow the course of the romance didn't run so smoothly. The aviator and his estranged wife had two children and they kept the break from becoming complete. The parachute girl found she had to share her man with the other woman.

Finally, after heaven knows what discouragement, anger and desperation, she ended the whole tangle by killing herself.

Now here is the sort of tragedy that all the economic readjustments on earth will never touch. The quest for happiness is a strange and perplexing thing and there will always be pitfalls along the road; because people can not always be wholly wise and controlled when they grope out for those human contacts which give life its meaning.

All of this, perhaps, is self-evident? Perhaps. And yet we forget it. We talk as if the grim fight for economic security were the only fight we needed to win. After it is all over—after the fear of hunger and poverty has been alleviated—life will still be a mixture of splendor and dark tragedy. Some of us will be lucky, and find the love and comradeship we must have—and some of us will reach them, fall miserably and go down in defeat. And when that happens, we who have been lucky can only try to be understanding.

IN SUPPORT OF BUSINESS

The coming year ought to be a good one for advertising—and, by that token, it ought to be a good one for business generally.

Donald R. Richberg, NRA chief-lain, has indicated that the government will adopt no policy which would hamper advertising. Advertising costs will not be included in compilation of those basic prices York.

on which the NRA framework rests. If a business man can increase his profits by an energetic and intelligent advertising campaign, the spoils are fairly his. It is a truism that advertising is the oil which lubricates the business machine. Mr. Richberg's position is an assurance that Uncle Sam will do nothing to cut off the lubrication.

The result should be good profits for business men wise enough to take advantage of their advertising opportunities.

I did not kill Osborne

By VICTOR BRIDGES

Chapter 35
FIRST STEPS

I had handed in the job and was just moving off to help tidy up when I was arrested by a sudden exclamation from Jimmy.

"See that bloke over there, sir? Woulter where 'e's come from?"

His eyes were fixed on the factory, and turning my head sharply I caught sight of the intruder. He was standing about thirty yards from the shore, a little way outside the barbed wire fence. From under one arm protruded a long double-barreled gun, and beside his feet crossed a big rough-scaled dog.

He was a broad-shouldered, sturdy built man of between forty and fifty, dressed in dark clothes and wearing leather gaiters.

I watched him for a moment and then made my way to where the other two were standing.

"That must be our friend Cowland," I said. "Out after rabbits, I suppose."

Jerry granted, "Don't know what he's after, but he seems to be pre-occupied interested in us. Shall I give him a hail?"

As he spoke I saw the dog lift its head, snarl viciously and dash across the water. It was answered promptly by a deep growl from George.

"No, let him alone for the present," I replied. "As you said yourself, we don't want to rush things."

With a gruff word of command, the stranger shouldered his gun and, turning on his heel, began to walk slowly away. Something peculiar in his gait struck me at once, but before I could remark on it, Molly had caught me by the sleeve.

"Nick," she whispered, "he's drunk."

"He can't be at this hour of the morning," I objected.

"But he is; I can see it from here. Look at the way he's lurching about!"

"Well, he banged to him anyhow!" broke in Jerry cheerfully. "Let's go below and have some grub."

"How about it, Nick?"

I hoisted myself from the bunk where I had been lying smoking, and looked at my watch. The time was close on eleven o'clock.

"I'm all in favor of getting to work," I said. "We've lots to do and the sooner we make a move the better."

"When shall we begin?" inquired Molly.

"Well, as a first step, I think the wisest thing would be if Jerry and I had a look round."

Her face fell a trifle. "Oh! Can't I come too?"

"I'd rather you didn't—not until we see how the land lies. I don't suppose there's anything to worry about, but it would be just as well to do a little bit of preliminary scouting."

BABY FILM STAR VACCINATED

It was something of an ordeal for her parents, but Shirley Temple of the movies didn't seem to mind when she was vaccinated against smallpox. Dr. Russell Sands of Santa Monica, Cal., is shown injecting serum into the film star's leg. (Associated Press Photo) was just preparing to follow him when Molly put her hand softly on mine.

"Take care of yourself, Nick," she whispered.

The tide had already run down to such an extent that the bank was now not more than thirty yards distant. Instead of being partially submerged, the end of the jetty stood out some three feet above the water, and sculling leisurely up to it, Jerry grabbed hold of the rusty chain which served as a hand-rail.

"This will be cleaner than the shore," he observed. "We can push off from here without getting our feet muddy."

He made the painter fast to an iron ring, and preceded by George, I clambered cautiously ashore. The steps were coated with wet slime, and festoons of green weed trailed down from the sodden timber.

"I wonder Avon doesn't look after his property a bit better," I complained. "The whole place seems to be going to rack and ruin."

Jerry shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, it was only a makeshift job run up during the war. I don't imagine it's ever been used since—at least only for Osborne's experiments."

He led the way along the slippery plank until we reached the firm ground beyond, where I turned round to wave a good-bye to Molly, who was still washing us from the deck. "Feel like coming inside first?" he added, "or would you rather push along to the farm straight away?"

"I think I'll stick to my original plan," I replied. "We're in for a regular ducking from the look of it, and I'd like to get this job over before it starts."

"Perhaps you're right. I'll just have a nose round, and then if you're not back I'll probably stroll along and meet you."

He glanced once more in the direction of the elms. "Unless it's pouring with rain we might walk over afterwards and take a squint at that boat. Always a good thing to make sure who one's neighbors are."

"So it occurred to me," I admitted. "I was going to suggest it myself only you..."

"I didn't want to frighten Molly. She's had enough shocks already, and besides, I wouldn't mind betting a hundred to one that it's some perfectly harmless chap cruising around for his own amusement."

SHOARD COUNTY HARDWARE & OIL CO. GABON

Open Tuesday MODERN RENTAL LIBRARY. Newest fiction, biographies and Popular Copyrights. Work relief wage scales will get New York's closest attention.

The former boss of NRA originally was tendered the job back in October. That was just before election. Senator Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, up for election in his own right, was facing a tough fight and the political powers thought announcement of the railroad's revival—with all the work it would afford—might help O'Mahoney's candidacy. Conditions laid down by Johnson at the time temporarily poured cold water on the whole idea.

Since then Bernard M. Baruch is said to have looked into the proposition. Soon after the New York financier got interested the U. S. Bureau of Mines made a very informal survey of the situation and gave it a clean bill of health.

Then, just before Christmas, General Johnson's mother became ill in Oklahoma, and again negotiations were held up. But before Johnson hurried home to his mother, he applied in person to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a renewal of the Wyoming & Montana license. This bears out the report that Baruch had advised him finally to accept the road's presidency. And so a squawking baby gets his pacifier.

Notice

The so-called Young Liberals have not been so chipper since the Supreme Court, by an 8 to 1 decision, ruled Congress had no authority to give the New Deal unlimited control over oil production.

These lads, in the course of their evening soirees, had been sure the Supreme Court would be swayed by public sentiment as voiced in the last two elections. Then along came the highest tribunal with notice it was still interested in law and precedent—and, woe of woes, Justice Brande is concurred in the decision.

The oil decision was important in this respect as much as any other. It did not invalidate the rest of the National Industrial Recovery Act. But it gave notice that each clause will be considered on its merits.

Notes

All ideas support Roosevelt in increasing Navy and Army strength. Pacific defenses will be specially looked after. Farm settlement is split on details of proposed new AAA. Combinations of inflation blocs are possible. House committees have become unwieldy in size. Banks will bear the brunt of new federal borrowings—and like it.

NEW YORK

By JAMES McMULLIN

Neat

The President's budget plans fit advance New York estimates pretty closely. The emergency appropriations requested weren't nearly as shock to financial opinion you might have expected. Of course you hear moans from the right about "unbridled inflation" and "destruction of the federal credit"—but those are mostly stage effects. A leading anti-New Dealer privately remarks: "No one knows at what level the government's credit would go to pieces but the best estimates we can get are somewhere between 50 and 75 billion."

Keen observers took special note of two points in the budget presentation. One was the firm but delicate manner in which business was told it can have its heart's desire—the balanced budget—after it absorbs the unemployed.

There's no doubt in informed quarters that the President means what he says. Comment runs that he's devised a neat test of the sincerity of industrial cooperation. If the bosses don't come through they'll find responsibility for the debt mountain laid on their own doorstep so far as the public is concerned.

The other outstanding point is that work relief will be financed by borrowing through the banks and not by taxing industry. This is a better break than business expected. But money not needed for taxes is available for employment—so it also removes an excuse for failure to function. That's neat too.

Vain

Work relief wage scales will get New York's closest attention. The idea that they're to be low enough not to compete with private enterprise sounded like a valuable concession to right-wing sentiment—but suspicious conservative mind read it differently. The figure 728 really meant the scale will be lower than

STRIKE UP THE BAND

A social event which is expected to make the recent English royal wedding seem like a garden party will embrace more than 5,000 American communities on the night of January 20, when the entire nation will celebrate President Roosevelt's fifty-third birthday anniversary with dances for the benefit of infantile paralysis victims throughout the country.

OIL NOTES

Leases are turning over rather rapidly in Andrews county. According to reports the average turn over per day is about 10.

The Bond Drilling Co.-L. C. Harrison No. 5 Denman is still cleaning out after a shot two weeks ago. It has prospects of becoming a very good well.

S. B. Dorn has leased from Verno Geneva McQuerry Bell, as guardian of the state of Midland county minors Theo. George, Vernon and Dorothy McQuerry, 160 acres, being all of the southeast one-fourth of section 42, block 50, T-1-N, T-6-P survey, Howard county. The lease stipulates a well to be started within a mile and a half of the premises by Feb. 1.

Brick P. Edison, who worked up the acreage for the Wright & Scott No. 1 Flannigan in Martin county west of Stanton, says that drilling probably will be started sometime next week.

Attorney General William McGraw is engaging in boasts about stopping hot oil movements in the East Texas fields. Said McGraw: "We are going to have the rule book down here, and that is what we are going by."

Add to this the belief of Lloyd Wheelock of the Texas Petroleum council that the railroad commission can control movement of hot oil in the field.

Members of the Triangle club were royally feted Wednesday when they attended two club sessions. The first was in the afternoon Mr. E. W. Lomax entertained the afternoon members, and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Griffith were host and hostess to the Triangle Night club, both at the Settles.

At the afternoon party Mrs. Fahrkamp made high score and Mrs. Hardy second high. Both received bath sets.

Mrs. Mae Battle was a guest. Members attending were: Mmes. Emil Fahrkamp, Monroe Johnson, W. B. Hardy, Miss Little, Omar Pittman, and Miss Jena Jordan.

At the night party Mrs. Davis and Dr. Hardy were the high scorers. She was given Houbigant's perfume and he a "Book of Knowledge." Consolation trophies were also awarded Mrs. Pittman and Mr. Barker.

Fresh strawberry parfait was served at the close of the games. Playing were: Messrs. and Mmes. Monroe Johnson, Omar Pittman, James Davis, W. B. Hardy, Miss Jena Jordan and C. E. Barker.
