TRAIL DUST

With all the sordid news in the world today it is refreshing to learn that compassion exists and that greed and indifference do not dominate our land. A salesman of vegetable and flower seeds says he picks up all the unsold seed at the end of a season. New seed in new packages are placed in the display. What happens to the year-old seed? They are ground, packages and seed, compressed and sold to a leading sportsman magazine. They are distributed in forests of the country to feed the birds during the winter. In retrospect I feel a certain amount of shame in considering the amount of garden and flower seeds I have planted. I realize now that it would have been more fruitful if the birds had gotten them.

Small pieces of snow were striking the dingy window of the day coach as the train lurched across the barren miles. My mother sat beside me on the red velvet seat and told me to get our packages from the overhead rack. The engine whistled as we rounded a curve and I was aware we would soon leave the warmth and odors of oil, coal smoke and the clatter sound of iron wheels beating the joints of rails. Two other people joined us in entering the white canvas covered back that was waiting when the train stopped. The air was cold and a little sleet was falling against the canvas curtain on my side. The team lacked spirit as we followed the street out of town, but the driver applied the whip and they moved swiftly for a little while, then slowed to a steady pace. The wheels followed the ruts over hills into the valleys and across the sandy creeks. The curtain on my side was beginning to freeze and I was cold and hungry. It was the middle of the afternoon. My mother wrapped her black shawl around my shoulders and held me close. About an hour later we stopped in front of a shabby, unpainted house and the passengers stepped to the ground, now covered with sleet. We went inside to the warmth and odors of food. A buxom lady welcomed us to the table. She smiled all the time we were in her presence and began lading large bowls of stew containing large hunks of beef, potatoes and onions. It swam in a kind of steaming gravy. There were two plates of cornbread and hot biscuits, with ample quantities of fresh butter. I was given a glass of milk while the others drank coffee poured from a mighty pot on the back of the mesquite-fired kitchen stove. The stop was not a regularly scheduled one, but only when the weather was cold. I don't know how angels are qualified but the rosy-cheeked woman should rate a special place in eternity.

Two Dances Planned For Teen Canteen

The Teen Canteen Committee is planning two dances with bands, in the next two weeks, including a Homecoming dance at the American Legion Building on Saturday, Nov. 10.

According to the announcement, the committee needs and will appreciate the support of both the youth and parents, because of the increased cost of acquiring a good band.

The price of admission for both dances will be $1.50 per person, and will include students from the 8th grade, and including persons through age 21, from Matador and surrounding towns.

It was stressed however that no married couples, other than the sponsors, will be admitted.

A spokesman for the committee explained that these changes in rules are being made because there are not enough young people to pay for a known band. "We will not have sign in and sign out for these dances only. We will have plenty of sponsors, so parents can be assured it will be controlled. After they leave the dance, we expect parents to be responsible."

"There will positively be no alcoholic beverages allowed, nor will any unruly conduct be allowed. Soft drinks will be sold.

The Homecoming dance is scheduled from 8 p.m. to 12. The second dance announced will be the same hours on Saturday, Nov. 17, and will also be held at the American Legion building. The Maines Bros. Band from Lubbock has been engaged for this occasion.

By Dan Meador

The Matadors exploded for 20 points in the first half to spark the Matadors to their seventh straight win this season, with a 28-6 victory over the Nazareth Swifts here on Burlison Field Friday.

The Matadors scored first in the first quarter. The Matadors took the opening kickoff and 6 plays later, Clede Campbell took the handoff and scored. The extra points were no good.

Following the Matador kickoff, the Swifts fumbled and Matadors Doug Meador recovered the pigskin. Two plays later Troy Taylor ran around end for the score. Steve Stevens ran the extra points over making it 14-0.

Following a Nazareth punt in the second quarter, the Matadors got the ball. The Matadors drove the ball into Nazareth territory, and Clede Campbell scored again. The extra points were no good and the Matadors led 20-0 at halftime.

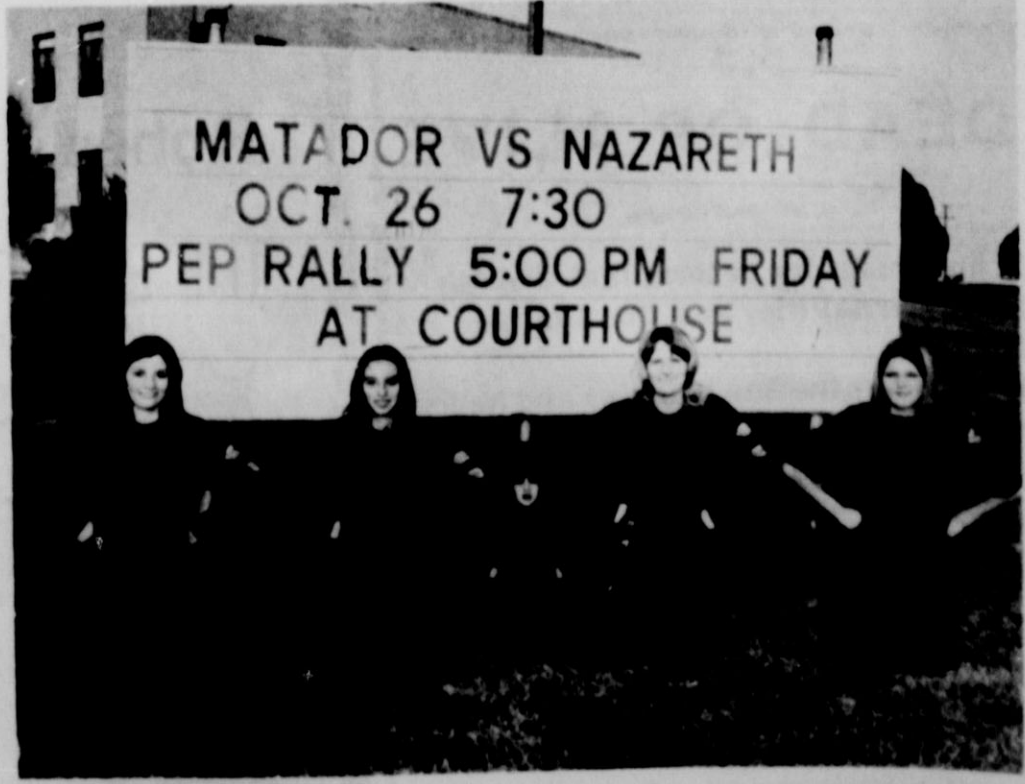

In the third quarter the Swifts took the Matadors' kickoff and drove the ball into scoring position. The Swifts' Pete Gonzales scored. The PAT was no good.

Fine Arts Program Brought By Guest

Recent Bride Complimented

Mrs. Jerry Jones, the former Shane Stevens, was complimented with a bridal shower Saturday, October 27, in the home of Mrs. John Hamilton.

Mrs. W. N. Pipkin as leader, began the program with the quotation, "Every genuine work of Art has as much reason for being as the earth and the sun." She presented Mrs. Douglas Meador, who introduced Mrs. Grady Webb, President of Predicta Club of Roaring Springs, guest speaker for the program.

A native of Motley County, and the daughter of Mrs. Duff Green and the late Mr. Green, Mrs. Webb and her husband retired to Roaring Springs after 35 years living and teaching in California. In her "retirement" she is teaching china painting in Turkey, Spur and Dougherty. She also has private pupils in oil painting.

Hostesses with Mrs. Hamilton for the courtesy were, Mesdames L. M. Cox, L. B. Campbell, Billy Wason, Reece Timmons, Charles Johnson, Alfred Cooper, John Barnhill, Grace McDowell, J. E. Edwards, Dean Turner, Stan Irvine, Bennie Keltz, H. R. Jameson and Kirby Campbell.

In a most charming way, Mrs. Webb told the group that painting is the art of seeing, and that a person who studies art should observe nature very closely. China painting is the most ancient of painting and she chose that because "it is such a challenge."

"We often think of china painting when we think of 'past middle-aged' women seeking relief from boredom," she said, adding, "It is a great therapy for the ill and no age limit is involved. It just takes time and a desire for the work."

China ware is seen in museums, and in rare instances with china from the 960-1279 era, Mrs. Webb revealed. She stated that in 1650 the vogue of drinking tea and chocolate from china cups was introduced with china from the Orient, and that during the Ming dynasty, china exporting began.

Other interesting facts as related by Mrs. Webb, were that chinaware or porcelain is the finest product of the potters art, also that china painting originally was done to cover up flaws in pieces of china.

STUDIES ABOUT THE BIBLE

This present study, and a few others to follow, is designed to show that Darwin's theory of evolution is just that - a theory. My first witness is W. R. Thompson, Director of the Commonwealth Institute of Biological Control, Ottawa, Canada.

All quotes in today's study are from EVERYMAN'S LIBRARY, 1967 edition, of ORIGIN OF SPECIES by Charles Darwin. Mr. Thompson was asked by the publishers to write the Introduction to this edition. Following are three quotes from Thompson's introduction, Page VII.

"When I was asked by the publishers of this new edition of THE ORIGIN OF SPECIES to write an introduction replacing the one prepared a quarter of a century ago by the distinguished Darwinian, Sir Arthur Keith, I felt extremely hesitant to accept the invitation.

"I therefore felt obliged to explain to the editors of the EVERYMAN'S LIBRARY, that my introduction would be very different from that of Sir Arthur Keith, and that I could not content myself with mere variations on the hymn to Darwin and Darwinism that introduces so many text-books on biology and evolution, and might well be expected to precede a reprinting of the ORIGIN. They raised no objection, so my main difficulty was removed."

In the two above quotes we see plainly that Mr. Thompson, a scientist of note, is at odds with Darwin and Sir Arthur Keith on the belief that human beings evolved, over millions and millions of years, from a one-celled microscopic blob. In the next quote, note that Mr. Thompson does not believe that Darwin's evolutionary teachings have been in the best interest of our society.

"But I am not satisfied that Darwin proved his point or that his influence in scientific and public thinking has been beneficial."

Letters Received From Matador Exes

John M. Russell, President and Mrs. Hazel Donovan, Secretary of Matador Ex-Students (and Teachers) Association are receiving responses daily, from Homecoming letters mailed recently. Many plan to be here, while others find that it will be unable for them to make it.

Dr. Ruth Hartgraves of Houston, a former Matador teacher writes: "... How I would love to return to Matador to see my friends again. It is not possible this year, as four of us old past teachers from Matador are having a reunion in Dallas in November. We have kept up with each other for 40-some-odd years, so decided to have a visit together this year. I hope you have a wonderful Homecoming..."

The group includes Dr. Hartgraves, Mrs. Frances Canon Spindle of San Angelo, Mrs. Tommie Sanders (Ruth Montgomery), and Mrs. J. P. Blake (Patti Hightower) of St. Louis, Missouri.

Mrs. Spindle wrote from her home in San Angelo: "Dear John, it was so kind of you to send me the nice invitation to attend the Nov. 9-10 meeting of Matador Exes. I regret that I cannot come. So many fond memories of Matador and its fine people have continued to give me pleasure through the years as I recall my first two years of teaching. Best regards to all!"

D. L. Campbell, owner of Campbell's Church Directory in Waco, sent regrets: "Sorry I cannot make the big event. Hope you have the greatest yet... say Hi to my friends and class of '29. Small check enclosed to help a little."

In acknowledgement of her letter, Mrs. Ted Woolery (Lucille Meador) of Abilene wrote, "To honor you, Hazel, will be a great pleasure. It is long over-due, but you are a great one to pass honors on to others. Hope to be there."

The former Ruth Tilson (Mrs. J. Wilbur Smith of Denton) writes, "Homecoming sounds really good this year... hope I can make it, but doubt it. We took a trip to Big Bend this summer and went by to see Erin (Campbell) Shearer... we really enjoyed our short visit - looked at some old pictures of us, and nearly died laughing... enclosed are my dues."

A note from B. F. Sparks of Conroe: "Sorry I can't make the Homecoming, wrecked my car... have a good time for me too."

GASOLINE SHORTAGE will probably prevent Exes who live a far distance, from attending Homecoming this year, as the letter from last year's Homecoming Queen, Mrs. J. N. Scrivner (Leora Barton) of Alpine, California, indicates:

"I am so afraid we are going to be unable to attend Homecoming. I'm really disappointed. This gas situation out here is critical right now. So many stations here in Southern California are closing on strike in other words. So have some 'stand by' just in case I can't be there to crown the new Queen... it's breaking my heart, but just something we can't help. Am hoping things clear up in the next two weeks. It would be kinda drastic to be stranded somewhere in the mountains of Arizona, with all the stations closed. 'Out of Gas' signs are every where so we are hoping for a better day by Nov. 1st."

"How I wish I could attend Homecoming this year, but as usual, there's just too many chores here at home for me to get away for long... it would be such a pleasure to see and visit with all my old friends again. Give my best regards to any of my old friends you run across. Kindest regards, Dick Gates, Catoosa, Okla."

"Dear Hazel: Enclosed are our annual Ex-student dues... Lance is an 'Ex' this year too! Your much deserved Homecoming honor is the nicest and best news I've heard in weeks... Earlyne Jameson. (Mrs. H. R.

Jameson, former Earlyne Laughlin.)

"Enclosed is $1 for dues... sorry I will not be able to attend the reunion this year, especially since you will be honored at the meeting. You certainly deserve a lot of credit for your long and faithful service. Have a big time... Ros McWilliams, Arlington, Va."

"Dear Hazel: Here is a dollar for Homecoming dues, and I'm glad they are honoring you. No one has put any more in it, nor gotten more out of it than you... I probably won't be there, but I know you will enjoy it! Annie Mae Jackson" from Graham.

From Howard V. Martin, Clovis, N.M.: Dear Hazel: Sorry we will be unable to attend homecoming... thanks for your loyal attention to this project through the years. Regards to all."

"Dear Mrs. Donovan: I hope I can attend your 1973 Homecoming. You have been such a faithful secretary all these years. Enclosed is $1.00 for dues. Mrs. Adrian Hawkins (Berrenda Nelson).

Also visited was Shepherd of the Hills farm. The tour group attended the "Shepherd of the Hills" outdoor drama that was superb. The colorful foliage in the Ozarks was beyond description, the ladies declared.
