HONORED ON RETIREMENT — Larry Angel presents longtime Matador Cowboy, Jim Cross, with a gold watch, as wife, Karlene looks on, when they were honored on Jim's retirement from the Matador Ranch.

Jim Cross was honored by friends and employees of Koch Industries on Friday evening, July 23 at the beautiful setting of headquarters in Matador.

The Roy Stephens Chuck Wagon served a delicious barbecue supper.

Larry Angel, head of Koch Agriculture Department of Kansas honored Jim Cross by telling stories about him. He told of when he was a new cowboy and how Mr. Cross taught him to work until the cattle were gathered or the job was done.

Bob Carey, former Vice President of Koch, of the Kansas office, also spoke about Mr. Cross.

Several other friends, both old and new, and members of his family told stories about Jim, the Cowboy and successful Ranch Manager, husband and father. Some were funny and others were filled with emotion.

Mr. Angel representing Koch Industries presented Mr. Cross with a watch inscribed with the Koch insignia. Bob Kilmer, Koch Ag. Dept. of Kansas presented Cross with three framed photographs of himself riding horseback and working cattle. A new set of spurs, bits and bit leather were also given to Mr. Cross. The spurs and bits were engraved with each brand of each ranch where he has worked the past 39 years. Jim and Karlene were also presented with a beautiful cake displaying Jim's years of being a cowboy.

Jim Cross started to work for Koch on the Spring Creek Ranch at Reece, Kansas, April 1, 1954. He worked there for two years, moving on to the Beaverhead Ranch located at Dillon, Montana in April 1956, where he was cattle foreman. He was then transferred to Matador, Texas in October of 1959 to manage the Matador Ranch for the next twelve years. During this time he married his wife, Karlene and had three children, Audie, Tonda, and Loretta. In the fall of 1971, he moved to the Garvey Ranch at Winnemucca, Nevada as manager. Once again he moved on to the Roberts Ranch at Alvoca, Wyoming in the fall of 1976. He managed this ranch until it was sold in the fall of 1980. From there he returned to Texas on January 1, 1981 to the Lucky Knob Camp at Matador. He spent the next 11 1/2 years there before moving into Matador this past year. He will officially retire August 1, 1993. Mr. Cross will continue as a Ranch Consultant and day worker.

New Law Reaches Out To Rural Callers

NOTE: The following article was taken from the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Rural towns stand to benefit from a state law effective Sept. 1 that widens toll-free telephone calling areas.

"In many communities...people can't reach their doctors or they can't reach a hospital or organize a Little League team or call their school" without long-distance charges, said Austin attorney Jim Boyle. He is a member of the group Texas Communities for Expanded Local Calling Areas which met recently in Lubbock.

"Schools and hospitals have consolidated, and calling patterns have changed, but calling scopes have not," Boyle said. A measure approved last session by the Legislature allows expansion of calling areas under certain criteria: The telephone exchange must serve a non-metropolitan area; the expansion must win 70-percent support in an election called by petition; and the Public Utility Commission must approve.

Telephone exchanges up to 22 miles apart could be linked. The catch? Phone companies will be allowed to charge $3.50 per residential line and $7 per business line each month in an exchange that expands.

Attorneys and analysts in the PUC's telephone division are writing the rules to implement the law. Many details still aren't settled.

Perhaps the murkiest ground surrounds the 22-mile issue: Does the mileage run from city limit to city limit or between telephone offices? And are the miles counted by air or road?

"The analysis that the PUC needs to perform is ongoing," said Guillermo Garcia, director of public information for the commission. "We are not in the position to tell the pluses and negatives right now."

Tim Raven, president of the Texas Telephone Association, said the bill won Gov. Ann Richards' signature in a format that his industry "can work with in a positive way."

Boyle expects the law to help many schools and local governments burdened by expensive calls to areas they serve.

"Long distance has been a real handicap to those communities," Boyle said. "This is an effort to bring fairness to rural areas."

The work was easier than anticipated. A rose pattern was used and the results were pretty and made to perfection. Watch for these new items at our Fall Bazaar.

A noontime luncheon was a great time for all - good food, company, and fun. The hour sped away. Joy was hostess. The table decorations were patriotic and made by Joy. Blue roman candles, flowers of red, white and blue, in wooden baskets, and blue napkins. The roman candles were made from paper towel rollers. Very innovative and charming. A business meeting was conducted by President Elect, Joyce Meredith. Programs were planned and year books will be ready for fall.

Joyce Meredith was elected President for the next year, and will lead the club in its many endeavors. FEDERAL PESTICIDE RECORDKEEPING REQUIREMENTS

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS) has developed final regulations to implement requirements in section 1491 of the Food, Agriculture, Conservation, and Trade (FACT) Act of 1990, commonly referred to as the 1990 Farm Bill which became effective May 10, 1993.

(5) The name and certification number (if applicable) of the certified applicator who applied or who supervised the application of the restricted use pesticide; and

(6) Application(s) of restricted use pesticides in a total acre of less than one-tenth of an acre occurring on the same day shall require brand or produce name, EPA registration number, total amount applied, designation of "spot application" for location, and date of application.

Item No. 6 does not apply to nursery and greenhouse applications.

How are "spot applications" recorded? Applicators of restricted use pesticides in a total area of less than one-tenth of an acre are required to record the following elements:

- (1) the brand or product name and EPA registration number;
- (2) the total amount applied;
- (3) the location, which must be designated as "spot application"; and
- (4) Date of application

When does the pesticide application information have to be recorded? The information required shall be recorded within 30 days following the pesticide application.

What shall be recorded for "total amount of the restricted use pesticide applied?" The term "total amount" refers to the total quantity of pesticide product used, with each restricted use being listed separately. "Amount" does not refer to percent of active ingredient, nor does it include the amount of water used as a carrying agent.

How should the location of the pesticide application be recorded? Location of the pesticide application shall be recorded as the actual location where the application of restricted use pesticide was made. USDA has provided several options for recording the location. These options include:

- 1) County, range, township, and section;
- 2) An identification system utilizing maps and/or written descriptions that accurately identify the location;
- 3) An identification system established by a USDA agency, such as the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) or the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), which utilizes maps and numbering system to identify field location; or
- 4) The legal property description.

What can be recorded for "size of area treated?" Size of area treated should reflect label language, which is provided in the label's direction for use section. Examples of "size of area treated" are acres for field crops, linear feet for fencerows and right of ways, square feet for greenhouse and nurseries, or other applicable designations. When recording size of area treated for livestock and poultry, enter the number of animals treated.

What is required for "crop, commodity, stored product, or site to which a restricted use pesticide was applied?" Crop, commodity, stored product, or site shall include general references such as corn, cotton, or wheat, and not specified scientific or variety names. Commodity shall include stored products such as grain, apples or other agricultural products to which a restricted use pesticide was applied. Site could include fencerow, livestock, and poultry.

How long are records required to be kept? Restricted use pesticide records must be retained by the applicator for 2 years from the date of application. Commercial applicators are currently required to keep restricted use pesticide records for 2 years under FIFRA, although many States required commercial applicators to maintain records for a longer period.

Which Federal and/or State agencies can request that certified applicators give access to restricted use pesticide records? Regulation require private certified applicators to provide authorized representative access to record information by the Secretary of Agriculture or a State lead agency.

Who else can require certified applicators to provide access to restricted use pesticide records? A licensed health care professional may require commercial and private certified applicators to provide restricted use of pesticide record information and available label information. This would occur if the health care professional determines access is necessary to provide medical treatment or first aid to a person who may have been exposed to a restricted use pesticide for which records are required to be maintained.

Are there any penalties for violation of the Federal pesticide recordkeeping requirements? Yes. Section 1491 (d) of the 1990 FACT Act provides that for the first violation, the penalty is not to exceed a fine of $500. For subsequent violations, the penalties will not be less than $100 (except that the penalty shall be less than $1,000, if it is determined that a good faith effort to comply was made).

Why are there regulations for restricted use pesticide recordkeeping for private applicators? The Food, Agriculture, Conservation and Trade (FACT) Act of 1990, section 1491, provides that "The Secretary of Agriculture, in consultation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall require certified applicators of restricted use pesticides to maintain records comparable to records maintained by commercial applicators of pesticides in each State. If there is no State requirement for the maintenance of records, such applicator shall maintain records that contain the product name, amount, approximate date of application, and location of application of the each such pesticide used for a 2-year period after such use." Certified applicators include both commercial and private applicators. EPA currently requires certified commercial applicators to keep records under regulations implementing the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). EPA is prohibited from requiring certified private applicators to maintain records. However, some individual States require certified private applicators to maintain records.

Does the regulation apply to all pesticide applications? No. The regulations only require recordkeeping for applications of federally restricted use pesticides. Under EPA's regulations implementing FIFRA, pesticides are classified as restricted use, as general use, or for both uses.

How does the regulation affect private applicators currently not required by their State to keep records? Private applicators who are currently not keeping records under State regulations will be required to maintain records as specified in the new Federal regulation.

Is a Federal form required for maintaining the record(s)? No. The regulations do not require the use of a standardized form. This allows applicators the flexibility to fit the recordkeeping requirements into their current record keeping scheme.

What information shall a certified private applicator be required to maintain on a restricted use pesticide application? The restricted use pesticides recordkeeping requirements are:

- (1) The brand or product name, and the EPA registration number of the restricted use pesticide that was applied;
- (2) The total amount of the restricted use pesticide applied;
- (3) The location of the application, the size of area treated, and the crop, commodity, stored product, or site to which a restricted use pesticide was applied;
- (4) The month, day, and year when the restricted use pesticide application occurred;

County Agent's Comments

by Michael Clawson

It's that time of the year again when we start getting attacked by those pesky, light loving June beetles (or May or potato beetles, as a lot of us call them). Although the adult June beetle may be a nuisance every time we get around an outside light at night, it is the larva stage of the June beetle which causes havoc for homeowners year after year.

The June beetle larvae, commonly known as white grubs or grubworms, feed on the grass roots in lawns during the late summer and fall. Feeding of large numbers of grubs causes lawns to turn yellow. The grass in severely damaged lawns can be easily lifted by hand from the ground or "rolled up" because of its shortage of roots.

The adult beetle is 1/2 to 5/8 inch long and light brown with a slight reddish tinge behind the head. During flight periods, the male adults congregate around porch and street lights. The females are much less attracted to lights. Therefore, eggs are not necessarily deposited in soil near lights, and infestations of grubworms are not always associated with lighted areas.

In Motley County, the critical treatment period for white grubs is from late July to mid August. Lawns suspected of harboring grubs should be examined during this time frame. Treatment for grubworms is justified when more than four grubs per square foot are found. Unnecessary insecticide applications often create more problems than they solve. Insecticides can destroy organisms which help decompose thatch or lawn residue. Heavy accumulation of thatch provides a haven for disease organisms and can lead to shallow root development. In addition, a thick thatch layer reduces water and fertilizer movement as well as soil aeration.

Insecticides recommended for grub control should be applied during the critical treatment period. Insecticides are not as effective against eggs or large grubs. Use recommended insecticides such as diazinon, Dursban, or trichlorfon. Always read the label and carefully follow the instructions.

WANTED - HEROS!
Hero's are getting hard to find, nowadays. We use to look up to certain public figures with admiration and think, "Boy, I would like to be like that" or we would have a warm-fuzzy feeling that helped us believe we could trust that person. I know it's dangerous to put people on a pedestal, because we expect too much and can be disappointed. However, it sees healthy for us, especially children, to have someone we can look-up-to, trust and depend on.

Some of the best Hero's can be parents. A little girl needs a daddy she can trust to crawl up into his lap, be a flirty little sweet female without fear of being taken advantage of. A little boy needs to have someone he can share dreams, hopes and fears with, without being made fun of or slapped around when he makes a mistake. One of the best ways to be a hero is to just do what you say you'll do and take some time for that child to be able to really get to know a real hero - their parent.

Billy and Marihelen Wason

We thank you, our many thoughtful friends, for every expression of concern during Cecil's illness, at the time of his death, and in the sad days that followed. We remember with gratitude those who came, those who called, those who brought or sent food, and those who found other ways to show sympathy toward us. We are especially grateful for the meals served at the church, for Rev. Howell's conduction of the funeral service, for the flowers sent for the funeral, and for the memorials to the cemetery fund. Thank you everyone.
